John stood a minute as is he were a little dazed by the sudden coming of his happiness; then he went slowly across to his house. There was a new light in his face, and a smile on his lips, and his home did not seem half so lonely, for he could already see, in fancy, a morsel of gray-gowned womanhood, flitting about those rooms. He sat till late that night, trying to realize his fortune, wondering how Amy had come to know her own heart, for he felt sure that, unawares, she had been fond of him all these years. He never knew how the dust on the mopboard had pleaded his cause, nor how his kettle had been gifted with a more persuasive voice than his, nor felt for them the affection that otherwise he might have regarded as their due.

It was not many months before the dust tasted water; the frying-pan once more learned the use of scouring sand; the table was freed from its burden of earth, and the whole kitchen was washed and rewashed, till it shone and shone again. The only hindrance to the good work was the frequent presence of a masculine giant, who picked up the small housewife, and held her up till her eyes were on a level with his own, "mussed" her hair, took, as he said, "the starchy look out of her mouth," and otherwise conducted himself "like a great boy." Still, she bore it with a better grace than one might have expected from such a prim little woman, and in after years; when she and her mother sit about their spotless hearth in the house once across the way, she has almost forgotten the influence of the dust, and fancies that it was solely a heart impulse that brought her to her new home.

Shah's Diamond Costume.

An English jeweler once expressed his willingness to pay four million pounds for the shah of Persia. This was not because he considered him particularly precious personally, but because he was wearing a black frock coat studded with diamonds, with diamond epaulettes, and a scimitar with a diamond-crusted scabbard. The diamond costume is used only on the most important occasions. On lesser occasions he has a pearl costume, and for every-day wear a costume that presumably permits him to be more comfortable.

Carried to Extremes.

We no longer demand that a man or woman play a part; we insist that the part fit the man or woman. This condition, no doubt, is largely the fault of managers, who, instead of requiring impersonation, pick performers for their likeness to the characters to be assumed. "Have you a father?" one can imagine them inquiring of a candidate. "Yes." "Then you won't do. This man's father died 20 years before the beginning of the play."

SMALL TALK

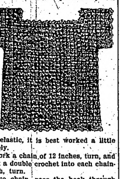
WARM AND PRETTY

INFANT'S CROCHET VEST FOR COLD WEATHER.

Directions for the Making of Useful Garment—Shetland Wool the Best Material for the Purpose.

One ounce Shetland wool, and a fairly thick bone hook, about No. 10.

As the stitch is a rather close one, but at the same time particularly soft and elastic, it is best worked a little loosely.



Work a chain of 12 inches, turn, and work a double crochet into each chain-stitch, turn.

Five chain, pass the hook through the two front threads of the nearest stitch, that is, the thread which curves, and the front or nearest top thread, *, draw the wool through and complete the stitch like double crochet, take up the two front threads of the next stitch and repeat, * to the top of the row; turn, do not make any chain, but pull the loop which is on the hook out a little before starting to work down again, work in the same way into every stitch to the lower edge, turn, five chain, and continue as before, working to and fro until the work is about two and one-half inches in width, then in the following row turn when within one and one-half inch from the top, keep the rows this length for five more; then add as many chain-stitches at the top as required to bring the work to the original length, and work this second shoulder piece the same width as the first; this will complete half the vest.

In the next row leave unworked about four inches from the top for armhole, make as many chain as there are unworked stitches and one extra for the turn, and work the second half of the vest to match the first, join round with single crochet, leaving opening for other armhole. Join the shoulder pieces with single crochet.

For the Sleeves.—Commence from the under part, and work the same stitch as before all round the opening, *, catch to the first stitch, turn, and work back again; repeat from *, decreasing one stitch at the join in each of the first three or four rows until the sleeve is about one and one-half inch deep, then work a double crochet into the back top thread of the nearest stitch, *, three chain into the same place, pass one, a double crochet in next, and repeat from * all round.

Work round the top of the vest like the last row of the sleeves.

GIVES CHANCE FOR ECONOMY.

Fussy Styles Are Really a Boon to Home Dressmaker.

Paradoxical as it sounds, the present vogue for extravagant elaboration in trimmings and garnitures is an aid to women who must carefully consider the cost when planning their outfits. Fussy styles are always more easily counterfeited than plainer and more exact models. Tailoring, whether plain or intricate, is quite beyond the skill of the average little dressmaker, but all the legion of elaborate devices in braidings, gatherings, tuckings and embroideries, and their allied trimmings need only the skill of the ordinary needlewoman for their accomplishment, and if good taste directs the choice of a model, and good sense keeps its elaboration within proper bounds, a "little gown" may be turned out at home which will be fit to pass muster in any company.

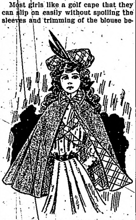
Make Dresses Alterable.

When making your small daughter's dresses, remember that she is apt to grow considerably before their shabbiness would cause you to discard them. As it is not easy to devise a way to lengthen the waists, content yourself with the thought that empire waists are pretty for little maids of four to six, and the skirts are easily lengthened if, when making them, you will allow for an extra wide hem and on the under side of it make a tuck, which, if stitched with a long stitch, is easily taken out.

THIS IS A POPULAR GARMENT.

Golf Cape a Favorite with the Smaller Members of Society.

Most girls like a golf cape that they can slip on easily without spoiling the sleeves and trimming of the blouse beneath. The one we show here is just a simple circular, fitted on the shoulders by darts; it has a collar, but no hood. A thick cloth that is plain on one side and plaided on the other is used for it; the collar has a plaid showing outside, and is strapped at the edge with the plain. Material required, two yards 52 inches wide.



IN VOGUE

Hand embroideries are used more than ever on elaborate toilets; the work is of the finest, and, in response to the Parisian influence, shows touches of rich color.

Tulle and chiffon neck ruffs of quite passable smartness can be purchased for about three dollars. They are sprinkled either with velvet dots on self-color or tiny white dots.

The shirt waists of white linen and of muslin will remain in demand. They will be still more in favor than the colored ones, although striped linen and cotton voile will hold their own.

In choosing purple for night wear great care must be taken to secure exactly the right shades. Some purples change considerably under electric light, and others gain in brilliancy and tone.

Marlboro and other greens and a wide range of taupes with their lovely smoky tones, are popular for daytime uses, and shimmering satin in tints at once rich and delicate is the newest for evening gowns.

Among the new materials from which fashionable women are picking their winter costumes are the lovely shaded colors. Green has assumed a yellowish tinge under the name of chartreuse and crocodile. Gray has become dark and indefinite; it runs to iron gray, mole, slate, etc. Other colors are warm and dazzling, such as copper, purple and old gold. Some of the experts affirm that among these shades purple and dark blue will predominate.

Homemade Underwear.

Take the bottom part of a man's undershirt, cut out desired size, using bottom for bottom. Slit in front the desired length, face buttonhole side with muslin, sew muslin flap on other side for buttons, fasten at end by sewing across, cut out armhole, not much; also neck, hardly any at the back and only enough in front to shape and fit properly.

Cut sleeves the same way, using cuff for cuff, slant upward to desired length and to fit armhole. Finish seams by laying flat and stitching down. Flannel, being already shrunk, it makes ideal shirts for children, such as cannot be bought. The same can be done with drawers.

Novelties in Trimming.

Among the novelties in trimmings for the season are the quaintest of embroideries and braidings, whose patterns date back to the time when art was in its infancy, years and years ago.

They are designs borrowed from the mummy cloths of the ancient Egyptians, Byzantine embroideries, Algerian and Syrian hammered trimmings, hand-made Italian nets and laces and the decorative arts of old Japan.

Overskirts and Deep Hems.

The use of hems of heavier material is as notable as ever, but the hems have grown wider, and in many instances come to the knee or even higher up on the skirt. As their edges are usually made irregular where they are appliqued on the gown material and ornamented with embroidery or some other form of trimming, the double jupe effect that results is most pronounced.

The vogue of the double skirt is decidedly waxing, but its happiest expression is found in models where the double effect is modified by long panels, either in trimming or due to the cut of the skirt. These give that continuity of line that is almost universally becoming, and help out the slenderness of effect that remains an insistent demand of Madame la Mode.

Woe of Kilted Skirt.

When you press your kilted skirt, to have it hang just right you will have to baste down every plait, sponge it and iron it. Then when all have been pressed comes the undoing of the basting, all of which makes kilted skirts not altogether a joy forever. However, if you are going to wear them they must look trim and freshly pressed, no matter if you were caught out in the rain the day before. For this one reason it is likely that they will soon give way to the gored model, and if you are wise you will not lay up any stock of them.

Velvet Hems and Furbishings.

Velvet hems and velvet dots or other figures picked out with jet make other lace or net robes attractive and offer suggestions for clever designing. Bright-colored linings, either plain, changeable, or figured, are liked for all sorts of transparent dresses, and as a rule the color of the lining is repeated in the garnitures in sashes and bodice trimmings.

Motor Veils "Out."

Veils are clinging to the big hats. It takes a yard and a half when the veil is to be worn half tight, for the grand chic is to have the veil fall rather loosely over the chin. The very large dot is fashionable and the all one-color veil is elegant. Long chiffon veils are little seen.

CONFESSES TO MURDER OF CHUM

YOUNG O'BRIEN BREAKS DOWN AND ADMITS HE KILLED LE CLAIRE.

HATCHET THE WEAPON USED

MURDERER CLAIMS VICTIM HIT HIM WHILE BOTH WERE DRUNK.

Pembina, N. D., Jan. 1. — James O'Brien of Neche has made a complete confession of the murder of Arthur Le Claire, the Great Northern fireman. The sixteen-year-old slayer finally gave up the details of his crime to J. C. Crawford, a Pinkerton detective, who has been working on the case.

The confession came after he had been confronted with his bloody clothing, hatchet with which the crime was committed, a bloody scarf and other evidences of his guilt.

When the news was broken to the father of O'Brien, for years a resident of Neche and custom officer there, he broke down completely. Fred Le Claire, the father of the murdered boy, called on him in an endeavor to console him.

The Pinkerton detective, who has been working on the case, was employed through the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, of which Le Claire was a member.

Confession of O'Brien.

The confession written by O'Brien's own hand, is as follows:

"We got a rig and went to Gretna and both got drunk. Coming back we got to fighting over who was the best man, and he said he could lick three O'Briens, and I got mad. When we left Cook's shop I made an excuse to go out to the closet, and I got a hatchet and we started for the rink. We got down there and he made a remark about fighting me, and he got behind me and threw me over. I got up and he hit me, and I hit him with the hatchet, and after I saw what I had done I hit him again, took his pocketbook and threw him in the river. After I realized what I had done I threw him in the river and went home.

"I got the hatchet behind the house, where the ice is kept. I threw him over the bank and followed the body down the bank. I think I had hold of him by the collar, and dropped him right in at the head of the dam in the river."

LOST SCRIPTURE IS REVEALED.

New Saying of Christ, Lost for 1,300 Years, Now Given to World.

Chicago, Jan. 1.—A new saying of Christ, lost to the world for thirteen centuries and found in Egypt, was given to the world for the first time yesterday by Prof. Henry A. Sanders of the University of Michigan, addressing the members of the Archeological institute now in session at the University of Chicago. The fragment is part of an old Bible dating back to the Moslem conquest of Egypt and on its face is so authentic as to disarm hostile criticism.

The long-lost fragment belongs in the sixteenth chapter of the Gospel of St. Mark, and follows the fourteenth verse. It relates to the story of Christ's appearance, following his death, to eleven of his apostles in Jerusalem.

With the new verse the Bible reads thus:

Mark xvi., 14—"And they answered, saying that this age of unrighteousness and unbelief is under the power of Satan, who does not permit the things which are made impure by the (evil) spirits to comprehend the truth of God and his power. For this reason, reveal thy righteousness now, they said to Christ. And Christ said to them: "The limit of the years of the power of Satan has been fulfilled, but other terrible things are at hand. And I was delivered unto death in behalf of those who sinned in order that they may return to the truth and sin no more, to the end that they may inherit the spiritual, indestructible glory of righteousness which is in heaven."

Prof. Sanders declared that the new found manuscript also contains what is known as the liturgical ending of the Lord's prayer.

The text was found, he said, by Charles L. Freer of Detroit, who was traveling in Egypt and searching for additions to his art collection.

FUGITIVES FLEE IN STORM

REV. COOKE, ONCE PASTOR OF FASHIONABLE LONG ISLAND CHURCH, IS FOUND.

San Francisco, Jan. 1. — In a pelting rain before daybreak yesterday, Rev. Jere Knode Cooke, formerly pastor of the fashionable St. George's church at Hempstead, Long Island, and Floretta Whaley, the seventeen-year-old heiress with whom he eloped eight months ago, deserting a wife to whom he had been married for nine years, stole away from the little flat which they had occupied at 1199 Green street in this city.

They were discovered here Sunday, living under the name of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Balcom. They took with them their baby boy, Balcom, born two months ago.

Did Manual Labor.

Whither they went has not been ascertained. The police declare that no request has been made to them to apprehend the couple and that no effort is being made to locate or detain them.

Sunday afternoon a reporter called at the home of the unfrocked minister and his companion, where they had lived quietly under their assumed names. Cooke, a Yale graduate, worked at painting and decorating, and when hard pinched for funds did any manual work he could get.

Begs for Chance to Flee.

When the interviewer called Balcom, or Cooke, admitted his identity, but sent the frail mother and the baby into another room, asking the reporter to lower his voice that she might not learn that their identity had been discovered.

"My God! What an awakening from our happiness!" exclaimed he.

Then he burst out passionately: Look here; give me a chance to get away. You're human—just as human as I am. I don't mind Sing Sing or hell, but it's she. The child was born two months ago, and this will kill the mother."

Tells His Life Story.

Cooke told of the death of his father when the son was six years old; his adoption by an uncle, learning the trade of paperhanging and decorating; how he worked his way through Yale and finally entered the ministry; he touched upon his marriage and unhappy married life.

"Then I awoke to love and everything else was worthless. You know the end. On the one hand was a loveless life, with honor and position and wealth, and on the other hand love with poverty. I chose this."

He pointed to the scantily furnished room.

Begs to Be Let Alone.

"I am doing a man's work. I have sinned, but I have suffered. Now, I beg the world to let me alone with my wife and child. I can live the life of a good Christian. They say I am a good decorator. I ask the world to let me be a painter, nothing more; to do a man's work and enjoy the average society and happiness of the average man."

VISCOUNT AOKI SAYS GOOD-BYE.

Jap Ambassador Deeply Affected by Evidences of Friendship.

Washington, Jan. 1. — "We shall take back home with us to Japan only the kindliest feeing for America and for her people and the highest regard for her institutions," said Viscount Aoki, the Japanese ambassador, yesterday, just prior to his departure for San Francisco with Viscountess Aoki, from which place they sail on Jan. 7 for home. The ambassador returns to Japan at the instance of his government, which desires to consult with him freely regarding conditions affecting Japanese interests in America, notably relating to the question of Japanese emigration to the United States.

He said that his relations with the American government always had been of a most agreeable and pleasant character, and that his treatment by the Washington government had been uniformly courteous and considerate.

"I am confident that an amicable understanding will be reached on this emigration question—the only one of any consequence that is now agitating the people of the two countries," said Ambassador Aoki.

Official and diplomatic Washington was well represented at the station to bid Viscount Aoki and wife good-by. Every member of the cabinet in Washington able to be there was present. Viscount Aoki and his wife were visibly affected over the evidences of friendship displayed.

BURNED ALIVE BY ROBBERS.

Burglars Rifle Railway Station, Then Burn It and the Agent.

Clarington, Ohio, Jan. 1. — Edward Hutchinson, the Baltimore & Ohio railroad agent here, was robbed and murdered at an early hour yesterday and the station burned over his head. It is said that the murderers got a large sum of money. The burglars evidently decided to burn Hutchinson as he lay bound, in order to conceal their identity.

SLAYER GIVES UP MONEY OF VICTIM

ROBBERY THE MOTIVE FOR O'BRIEN'S FRIGHTFUL CRIME AT NECHE.

BOY IS SOMEWHAT OF A LIAR

WILL PLEAD GUILTY AND ASK FOR LIFE SENTENCE INSTEAD OF HANGING.

Neche, N. D., Jan. 2.—When James O'Brien, the sixteen-year-old murderer of Arthur Le Claire, faced the coroner's jury at the resumption of the inquest he repeated almost word for word the confession of the crime which he gave to the detective hired by the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, and the jury accordingly brought in a verdict to the effect that Le Claire came to his death as a result of blows from a lather's hatchet in the hands of James O'Brien.

Other evidence has been secured, however, which has led the authorities to believe that the boy's statements regarding a quarrel with his victim were false, and that he deliberately murdered Le Claire for his money.

When he was taken into the hall where the inquest was being held the prisoner looked pale and haggard. He was kept in the wings of the stage, and the crowd which filled the room did not get an opportunity to see him.

Lied About Money.

Following the inquest, O'Brien was taken back to the Pembina jail by Sheriff Roadhouse, after going home to bid his family good-by.

In the confession O'Brien said that he had thrown the murdered man's money and pocketbook into the river. After the inquest, however, he got an opportunity to speak to a friend and told him that if he wanted some money he should look under a stone which O'Brien described. The detective was told of this and he made an investigation, but he found nothing hidden there but some lead pencils.

When O'Brien was at his parents' home his father fell on his knees and begged the boy to tell where he had hidden the money. James answered that he had burned it in the kitchen stove. Later, however, he told the detective that if he might be allowed to show the way he would reveal the hiding place of the booty. He took the officer with him to his father's barn, and from under a handful of twine on a beam in the loft he produced six $5 bills and four of the $10 denomination, which he declared were all that he took from Le Claire's body.

May Waive Examination.

It is understood that O'Brien will be arraigned in the district court in January before Judge W. J. Kenesaw, and that he will plead guilty and enter a petition for a life sentence instead of hanging. It is expected that he will waive a preliminary examination.

MANY COWS CONDEMNED.

124 in Herds Aggregating 271 Animals Have Tuberculosis.

Moorhead, Minn., Jan. 2.—The state inspection and testing of milch cows which has been conducted in this vicinity of late has resulted in disclosures which are startling. The plain statement of the results is that 124 milch cows have been found to be tubercular and have been condemned. The three herds include two of the largest dairies in Clay and Cass counties.

MORTGAGES ARE BURNED.

Two Churches Wipe Out Their Debt New Year's Eve.

La Crosse, Wis., Jan. 2.—As a result of strenuous effort upon the part of congregations and pastors two La Crosse churches last night burned the mortgages upon their churches. The First Baptist church was cleared of $2,500 and the Norwegian Methodist canceled much larger indebtedness.

BOMB FOR DANCING PARTY.

East Pierre Merrymakers Target for an Infernal Device.

Pierre, S. D., Jan. 2.—A bomb made of a piece of gaspipe filled with powder and plugged was exploded last night under a window of a hall in East Pierre where a private dancing party was in progress. No trace of the perpetrators of the outrage has been secured.

Held on Embezzlement Charge.

Fargo, N. D., Jan. 2.—Frank E. Dunlon, formerly cashier of the Milwaukee station here, has been held to the district court after the preliminary hearing. His shortage, at first placed at $600, is now said to be $2,000.

Found Dead in Cabin.

Bagley, Minn., Jan. 2.—Carl Olson, a widower, aged sixty-eight years, was found dead in his cabin in the town of Nora by a neighbor. From what the coroner could learn Olson died of heart disease.

Law Found Void.

Pierre, S. D., Jan. 2.—The supreme court has declared void the provisions of the state pure food law requiring patent medicines to bear the formula telling the composition of the medicines.

TEACHERS HOLD CONVENTION

MINNESOTA ASSOCIATION MEETS —INTERESTING ADDRESSES MADE.

St. Paul, Jan. 2.—That the present day elementary school curriculum is inadequate and ill arranged to meet the demands of complex life and that it does not tend to produce an efficient type of boy ready to make his way in the world, was the general charge made by S. L. Heeter, superintendent of the St. Paul public schools, yesterday afternoon before 500 educators of the state gathered in the Central Presbyterian church for the openin gsession of the forty-ninth annual convention of the Minnesota Educationl association.

It is expected that the convention, which will continue until Saturday morning, will be attended by fully 2,500 teachers in elementary and high schools.

"The Right of Civic Demands on Public Education" was the paper presented by Dr. J. A. Hancock of Mankato. He pointed out that the schools must respond to the public demand for a richer civic content in the curriculum. It is necessary that the course of study be expanded and such substitutions be made as will make it of value and benefit to the masses in general.

Thomas A. Hillyer of Mayville, N. D., spoke on "The Normal School Course of Study."

Supt. W. M. West of the university read a paper on "The University and the Preparation of the High School Teacher."

In addition to general meetings of the state teachers, special sections will meet at various times and places to consider and discuss particular topics concerning education. Among these are the county superintendents' section, the high school council, as well as a business session of that body, the elementary section, the graded school section, two sessions of the associated school boards, the college section, meetings of the section devoted to music as well as one devoted to business college subjects. There are also sections which consider rural school questions and manual arts.

AGED ENGINEER IS DEAD.

Simeon P. Folsom Was True Western Pioneer.

St. Paul, Jan. 2.—Simeon P. Folsom, who was one of the earliest of the pioneers of Minnesota, [illegible] first recorded plat of the city of St. Paul and assisted in the construction of the first dam built at the Falls of St. Anthony, died Tuesday at his home in this city. Mr. Folsom was eighty-eight years old. He has been a resident of St. Paul for sixty years and for forty years he has made his home in the house where he died.

Mr. Folsom was appointed city surveyor of St. Paul in 1854, and platted the original city. After the Civil war he entered the employ of the Winona branch of the St. Paul & Pacific road as a civil engineer under Col. Crooks, and in the years that followed he was connected with other railroad enterprises. Since 1890 he has been assistant to the general solicitor of the Great Northern road, which position he held at the time of his death.

RECEPTION AT THE WHITE HOUSE

THE PRESIDENT EXTENDS NEW YEAR'S GREETINGS TO VAST THRONG.

SHAKES HANDS THREE HOURS

HISTORIC EVENT IS RESPLENDENT IN ALL INCIDENTS OF TRADITION.

Washington, Jan. 2. — President Roosevelt received at the White House yesterday a New Year's throng of well-wishers which was three hours in passing his hand. Mrs. Roosevelt and the members and ladies of the cabinet were his assistants.

Though curtailed in number (5,645) by more than a thousand over the preceding New Year's day, the reception was resplendent in all the incidents of tradition which have accumulated to its interest for more than a hundred years.

Seventh Annual Greeting.

The gorgeousness of the diplomatic and militant features, the cordiality of the many personal friends of the president who made him their seventh annual greeting as such, and the intensely human and patriotic characteristics of the American people, typified by the thousands who represented them yesterday, all combined to make a happy conclusion to the historic event.

President Enjoyed It All.

From greeting in appropriate dignity and appropriate surroundings the ambassadors and ministers of the nations of the world to stooping far down to grasp the hand of a "dolly" that its toddling parent of a year and a half might be gratified, were the extremes required of the president, and both the infant and the diplomat realized an anticipated pleasure. And the president enjoyed it all.

Big Guns Were There.

The presence of men whose names are daily in the public press as presidential aspirants lent interest to more subtle observations. The vice president, the speaker of the house of representatives, Secretary Cortelyou, Senator La Follette, all had [illegible] in the big east room, where the distinguished guests gathered to chat after making their bow to the receiving party.

Baron Edmons Mayor des Planches, the Italian ambassador, as dean of the diplomatic corps, had the honor of leading that corps. Brig. Gen. J. Franklin Bell, chief of staff, led the army, and Admiral Dewey the navy.

John Bentivazua, a barber, was shot last night, the bullet passing through the window of the shop, in the heart of the Italian colony. He died an hour later.

In the dead man's pocket was found a threatening letter, mailed in this city, which contained references to a quarrel in New York city. In the letter was a rudely drawn sketch of a black hand.

San Francisco, Jan. 2. — Fire that brought death to Charles Figone, eight years old, fatal injury to Louis Figone, sixteen years of age, and Mrs. Dominico Divinbenci and almost cost the lives of fifty others, broke out in a building in the coal yard of Antonio Figone on Stockton street early yesterday and caused a loss of $50,000.

Crazed by Drug, Youth Ends Life.

Minneapolis, Jan. 2.—Investigation regarding the death of W. P. Ferris, the young man found dying in a hallway Tuesday night, reveals the startling fact that he had shot himself through the stomach while in a delirium brought on by a determined effort to free himself from morphine, a drug he had long consumed in large quantities.

DAY OF CRIME IN BROOKLYN

LONG LIST OF KILLINGS, ASSAULTS AND MINOR CRIMES KEEP POLICE BUSY.

New York, Jan. 2.—A long record of killings, assaults, accidents and minor crimes were written in Brooklyn police blotters yesterday. New Year's day is usually peaceful. Brooklyn was even more disturbed than in larger Manhattan. The police had scores of assault cases to handle in both boroughs.

Gas escaping from a partly opened burner asphyxiated Jacob Spriesterback and his wife in their home in Ocean Parkway, Brooklyn. An unknown burglar was shot down and killed while trying to enter David Jaffo's store on Neserele street. Jaffo collapsed when he found he had killed the burglar. The police are hunting for Frank Fereso, who shot and killed Michael Schindelle as an outcome of an altercation in Carroll street. Hattie Schubert took umbrage at a remark made by her husband, Max Schubert, in their home on Ocean Parkway and stabbed him with a knife. His condition is serious.

After a quarrel with his wife, Archibald P. Mitchell, who several years ago married Augusta Herne, a daughter of a wealthy West Virginia politician, took his life early yesterday by inhaling gas at his home on West Seventy-first street, Manhattan.

IS STILL A MYSTERY.

Identifications of Woman Murdered Near Harrison, N. J., Collapse.

New York, Jan. 2.—The mystery enveloping the murder of the "woman in red" is seemingly as impenetrable today as when the nude body was first discovered on Christmas day, partially concealed in the water and slime of a lonely pond near Harrison, N. J. Thus far the detectives have failed to find a single reliable clew to the identity of the woman or her slayer. The identifications of the dead woman by Mrs. Hattie Hull and Detective Drabell of Orange have completely collapsed and left the case more puzzling than ever.

APPEAL LAND CASES.

Government Will Seek to Set Aside Decree of Colorado Court.

Washington, Jan. 2.—At the last cabinet meeting of the year 1907 the decision was reached by the president and Attorney General Bonaparte that the government will use every means in its power to bring about in the courts disapproval of the decision rendered in Colorado by Judge Lewis, that there is no law against citizens agreeing in advance to purchase coal or other public lands that may be acquired by others under what is known as the dummy entryman system.

UTE HANDLES PICK BEST.

Indian School Superintendent Gives Red Men a Boost.

Washington, Jan. 2.—J. F. Houz, superintendent of the Indian school at Rapid City, S. D., is in Washington on official business with the Indian office. He says the Ute Indians who recently were rounded up by federal troops and put to work at Rapid City are making fairly good hands. Most of them are employed on railroad construction and the rest at chopping wood. They seem to be more skillful with the pick and shovel than with the ax.

BLOOD FLOWS IN KENTUCKY DUELS

YALE AND BEATTYVILLE ARE SCENES OF TWO BLOODY TRAGEDIES.

FOUR MEN FALL IN TWO DUELS

STRANGE STORY BROUGHT TO LIGHT THROUGH ONE OF THE DUELS.

Owensville, Ky., Jan. 2.—A. J. Ballard last night engaged in a shotgun duel with Allie and Boone Henry, brothers, at Yale, a mining town. Ballard and Boone Henry were fatally wounded. Further trouble is feared.

Ballard participated twenty years ago in a battle resulting in the death of two of his brothers and the wounding of other men under unusual circumstances. He had killed Peter Spencer and on trial was sentenced to life imprisonment. The court room was crowded and guards had been placed at every exit, as it had been reported that an attempt would be made to release Ballard. When Ballard was being taken to jail after sentence his brothers, Moses and James, started a riot and attempted to release their brother. Guards, however, in a running battle, killed both. Jack Ballard escaped, but was recaptured and sent to the penitentiary. He was pardoned about six years ago.

It has since been reported that a man who died in the West confessed that he and not Ballard killed Spencer and that Ballard was serving his sentence unjustly.

Both Duelists Dead.

Beattyville, Ky., Jan. 2.—One of the most tragic events in the annals of Lee county was enacted here last night when Chief of Police Joe Davidson and Robert Evans, a merchant, shot each other to death.

Davidson, it is said, was under the influence of liquor and he went into Evans' store and entered into a discussion as to whether Evans was his friend. Evans assured him he was, but requested Davidson to get out, as he wished to close his store.

Evans' unfortunate movement of his hand to his pocket toward the store [illegible] misunderstood, and Davidson shot him in the head. In an instant Evans fired twice, one shot entering Davidson's head and the other taking effect below the heart. Both men fell dead.

SAY RORAFF WAS DRUNK.

Chicago Police Do Not Believe La Crosse Man Was Murdered.

La Crosse, Wis., Jan. 2.—The claim of the Chicago police that Joseph J. Roraff, altar maker of this city, whose dead body was found in the lake in Chicago, was intoxicated at the time of his death probably will put an end to any efforts on the part of relatives to probe further into the mystery surrounding his demise.

It is claimed by the Chicago officials that his death occurred in broad daylight within a hundred paces of the police station, and that any disturbance would have been known to them.

BURGLARS LOOT SAFE.

Cambridge, Minn., Jan. 2. — The Farmers and Citizens State bank of Braham, Isanti county, was robbed of $2,600, of which $1,200 was in silver and the balance in paper money. The burglars broke into the rear of the building and blew the safe up with nitroglycerin. The safe was completely ruined. There is no clue thus far to the robbers' identity.

TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS.

A large number of our subscribers have paid up all arrears for the SPECTATOR and many have paid in advance for which we are thankful. The new postal law, now in effect, is such that it will be impossible for a weekly newspaper to be sent for more than one year unless paid for. We are now preparing and will soon send bills to all delinquents and we hope they will respond promptly.

Does it come easy for you to write it 1908.

Republicans are liable to find that a "Cannon" is a heavy burden to carry during the coming campaign.

Oklahoma, the last state to be admitted into the Union is the first to have state insurance of bank deposits.

The former holders of railroad passes are in mourning as the old ones are dead and no new ones are issued. Even legislators must pay fare this year.

Governor John A. Johnson continues to be considerable of a factor in the pressidential race. It is conceded that the Governor would have a much better chance of winning than would Bryan.

By all means send an instructed delegation to the Republican convention. Let the delegation represent the people and their ideas and do not let a few delegates use the votes as trading stock for personal uses.

It is authoritatively stated that within the twenty-two counties comprising the Fergus Falls federal court district there have been 1000 petitions in bankruptcy filed since the Nelson law was passed by the national legislature in 1898. No wonder that the senator is anxious to have the act amended so as to exclude those who owe less than $500 from taking advantage of the act. In its present condition the "Nelson Cure" is taken advantage of by unscrupulous persons for the purpose of avoiding payment of their grocery bills and other household supplies, often in amounts ranging as low as $100.—Detroit Record.

Our own supreme court has asked the governor to appoint a commission of five judges of the inferior court to hear the evidence and try one Francis B. Hart for the crime of contempt. It may become necessary for our state Douma to be called together to declare again that our supreme court is not an autocrat and to define the word contempt when applied to courts. If contempt consists in rigid and scathing criticism, in bringing the delinquencies of a tribunal to a knowledge of the people who create such agencies, then Mr. Hart might as well plead guilty and pay the penalty; but unless the tribunal has never and never can do wrong, the right of the citizen remains to express in respectful language his opinion of their conduct, and to do so is not contempt. The state may look for one of the most interesting fights before this affair is over that has ever exercised the minds of the citizens. Autocracy in a court of last resort is equally pernicious as when reposed in an absolute monarch, and the American people may well inquire what may be the end if this incident is permitted to ripen into an autocratic supreme court for our state.

Every one has seen or read "East Lynn." Full of comedy, pathos and sentiments it has a trend of feeling that appeals to the sympathy of all. It will still be a great play when the popular plays of the day are gone and forgotten. Its story is the old one of man the tempter and the betrayer, and women the unction caused by an uncalled for jealousy. It is interesting, full of heart interest and is a lesson to every human being. It will be seen at the Imperial Hall next Tuesday evening.

Tolef Thompson who was formerly in business here but for the past year a resident of Beaudette has been visiting friends here this week. He received a wire on Newyears day informing him that his boot and shoe store at Beaudette had been burned but that a large portion of the stock had been saved. The blow will be a particularly hard one on Mr. Thompson as he was just starting in business and did not have a dollar of fire insurance. He left for home on Thursday evening.

FRANK JEFFERS INJURED

Falls Under Wheels of a Passenger Train at Blackduck.

Frank Jeffers, well known to almost every one in Red Lake county was badly injured on Friday evening of last week while trying to board a passenger train at Blackduck, Minn. Mr. Jeffers has been working for several months past for a Crookston job printing company and was at work when the accident occurred. He was standing on the depot platform at Blackduck talking with friends intending to take the northbound train at 7:30. The train started before he was aware of it and in attempting to get aboard his foot slipped on the icy platform and he was thrown under the wheels. He was taken to a hospital where it was found that both feet were so badly crushed that amputation was necessary. His right leg was cut off above the ankle and the left foot taken off leaving only the heel. Mrs. Jeffers joined him later and advices are that his excellent constitution will pull him through. Mr. Jeffers was raised on a farm a few miles south of here and was a resident of this county until a few months ago when he moved to Crookston.

He was superintendent of schools for eight years and Register of Deeds for two years and has as large a circle of warm friends as any man in the county. While the accident will prove a heavy handicap, his friends believe Frank to be a man of pluck and energy and that he will meet the new conditions and prove a winner.

Hunting the Marabou.

Hunting the marabou is attended with great difficulty, as the bird possesses wonderful cunning and often contrives to outwit the most skillful hunter. With laughable dignity it measures the ground between itself and its pursuer and takes very good care not to exhaust itself by too rapid flight. If the hunter moves slowly the bird at once adopts an equally easy pace, but if the hunter quickens his steps the bird is off like an arrow. It is very difficult to get within gun range of this calculating creature; but the natives adopt a novel means of capturing it, which the bird, with all its astuteness, is unable to comprehend and falls an easy victim. A tempting morsel of meat is tied to the end of a long stout cord, which the skillful hunter flings to a great distance, as he would a lasso, the bait falling as near the fleeing bird as he can aim it. He then conceals himself hastily behind a bush or crouches low on the sand. The marabou, which always keeps its eye on the hunter, seeing him vanish, quietly steps and devours the bait, when it is easily secured by the hunter, who runs toward it, coiling the rope as he goes.

Carlyle's Recipe For Shirts.

Here is an extract from a letter of Thomas Carlyle, in which he asks his sister to make him some shirts and sends the measurements. How many women could make a shirt after them?

"My Dear Jenny—* * * In the meanwhile, I want you to make me some flannel things, too—three flannel shirts especially. You can get the flannel from Alick if he has any that he can well recommend. You can readily have them made before the other shirts go off. I have taken the measure today and now send you the dimensions, together with a measuring strap which I bought some weeks ago (at one penny) for the purpose! You are to be careful to scour the flannel first, after which process the dimensions are these: Width (when the shirt is laid on its back), 22½ inches; extent from wrist button to wrist button, 61 inches; length in the back, 35 inches; length in the front, 23½ inches. Do you understand all that? I dare say you will make it out, and this measuring band will enable you to be exact enough."

Began With "D" Anyway.

"An' when they gits to Italy," goes on Bill, growin' quite enthusiastic, as you might say, over th' idee, "he'll have th' time of his life ruminatin' roun' them old palaces of the dogs."

"Dogs," I gasped. "Palaces of the dogs!"

"Doggies, then, I s'pose you might call it," says he, "if you're so blamed pertiklar, though it ain't spelt that way. It's spelt dogs, only with the 'e.'"

"Bill Gladox," says I, "for an uneducated man you are th' most ignorant I ever see. Do you mean to tell me you ain't never hear of th' dodges of Venice that has been mayors of th' town for th' last hundred years or more?"

"No, I ain't," says he, "an' no one else neither. Ther' ain't any such folks there. Dodge ain't an Eyetalian name nohow. It b'longs in Connecticut. Not but what ther's a few mebbe in New York an' Rhode Island, but not in Italy, not by a derned sight."—American Magazine.

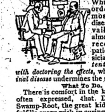
Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It

Prevalency of Kidney Disease.



Most people do not realize the alarming increase and remarkable prevalency of kidney disease. While kidney disorders are the most common diseases that prevail, they are almost the last recognized by patient and physicians, who content themselves with doctoring the effects, while the original disease undermines the system.

What To Do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.

Home of Swamp-Root.

You may have a sample bottle and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention this paper and don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y.

Didn't Agree With Him.

A Carolina man was recently inspecting a farm owned by him and operated by an old friend who had pressed into service every member of his family, including his aged father.

"The old man must be getting along in years," said the owner.

"Yes, dad's nigh onto ninety," was the reply.

"Is his health good?"

"Well, no. The old man ain't been hisself for some time back."

"What seems to be the matter?"

"I dunno, sir. I guess farming don't agree with him no more."

SUFFERED TWENTY-FIVE YEARS.

With Eczema—Her Limb Peeled and Foot Was Raw—Thought Amputation Was Necessary—Believes Life Saved by Cuticura.

"I have been treated by doctors for twenty-five years for a bad case of eczema on my leg. They did their best, but failed to cure it. My doctor had advised me to have my leg cut off. At this time my leg was peeled from the knee, my foot was like a piece of raw flesh, and I had to walk on crutches. I bought a set of Cuticura Remedies. After the first two treatments the swelling went down, and in two months my leg was cured and the new skin came on. The doctor was surprised and said that he would use Cuticura for his own patients. I have now been cured over seven years, and but for the Cuticura Remedies I might have lost my life. Mrs. J. B. Renaud, 277 Mentana St., Montreal, Que., Feb. 20, 1907."

The Worst of It.

"Bilkin's cat yelled for three hours the other night, and then I got up and threw a lump of coal at it."

"Hit the cat?"

"Nope. I hit Bilkins, who had just come out to let the cat in."

"There must have been some satisfaction in that."

"There was for a moment, and then Bilkins returned the coal through one of my plate glass windows. But that wasn't the worst of it."

"No?"

"No. He went in the house and left the cat outside yelling."

HOW A VOICE WAS RESTORED

(A Thanksgiving Story)

By ANNA DEMING GRAY

(Copyright.)

Nat's wife stood in the back door, looking across the east meadow, and shading her eyes with her hand watching her father-in-law and little son disappear over the field.

"I wish I'had made father put some grape-leaves in his hat," she said; "he minds the heat so, and it's sure to be hot by noon. If it is, I hope Marthy will keep them to dinner."

She was a slim, girlish-looking woman, and her cheeks were pink and dimpled. Her ripples of brown hair were drawn down behind her ears, into a tight knot, with quaker-like precision, but escaped into little curls in spite of her.

The prettiness of Nat's wife was an established fact, and one for which she had felt very sorry, ever since she overheard Nat's sister saying, scornfully, soon after the wedding: "Nat always seemed well-balanced, as most men—which isn't sayin' much. He stayed a single bachelor till he was 40 and then got took in by a pair of laughing eyes and a baby dimple. Him near 40, and she 22! An' to think of him marryin' Annett Durand! No; I can't say there was anything against her father, only he never did nothin' but paint pictures. He came here to Strangville a widower, with this chile. She was ten then. That's all anybody knew about him. In Strangville, you have to have a grandfather to be anybody."

Until recently, Annett had not thought that she possessed any of her artist father's talent, but she knew that his love for all beautiful things was hers. Secretly, unknown to her husband, she took lessons until her work was pronounced by critics to be even better than her father's.

She had never repeated Martha's words to her husband, for she was too loyal and knew Nat too well for that. Her woman's instinct told her that jealousy of her place in Nat's affection was at the bottom of it, more than any ill will to herself—for Martha was Nat's twin-sister. Annett felt keenly the injustice of the dislike, and resented the thought that she had been married merely for her pretty face. She made up her mind then and there—and her will was quite equal to Martha's own—that she would win the affection and respect of her husband's family in spite of themselves. She had grown to love Nat's eccentric, handsome old father; he was so much like her husband, and this alone would have made him dear to her; but, with Martha, it was quite a different matter.

The young wife wondered sometimes how this hard, scolding woman could be Nathaniel's twin sister. For to protect and defend those weaker than himself was as natural as to breathe to Nathaniel Strang.

This had been the foundation of his love for Annett, perhaps. He had seen her lonely and sad after her father's death, and his pity had been roused. Almost before he knew it himself, she had become the one woman in the world to him.

He had never been a man of many words. "I know that I am not half good enough for you, Annett," he had said, "nor young enough neither; but I love you, and I'll try every day I live to make you glad you married me."

Not a very sentimental wooing perhaps; but Annett, looking into his honest eyes, was satisfied, and tried bravely to enjoy the rose of love that was hers, and not feel the thorn.

Since little Nat had come, Martha had seemed more friendly, for a child is a great point of sympathy often, between even those who do not like each other.

Martha was honestly very fond of the boy, who was now almost three years old.

Annett had made her husband's home so attractive and inviting a place that Nat's father had long ago grown to think that there was nobody like his daughter-in-law.

In truth she had made herself almost invaluable to him, since his "trouble" came.

Three years before, a traveling doctor had visited Strangville—a quack would perhaps be a better term—whose name was Bromwell. He held each evening a concert and a dime museum performance, consisting of mind-reading, sleight of hand, and reading the future.

The last evening of the doctor's stay in the village, Mr. Strang had been giving his opinion rather too freely, as to the Reading of the Future; in fact, he had ridiculed the whole thing.

The doctor finally became angry, and offered to tell Mr. Strang an unpleasant fact in his own near future.

The old man only threw back his head, and laughed the more.

"Well, sir," cried the irate doctor, "you'll know it soon enough, I guess, but you may have it to think on awhile. On the 22d day of next September, at 12 o'clock, you will lose your voice, and never speak another word;" and he turned his back and walked wrathfully away, followed by the resounding laughter of old man Strang as he turned toward home. But he did not tell the evil prophecy to anyone.

As the 22d of September approached, he grew more and more silent and moody.

That day, while the family were at the dinner table, he suddenly paused in the middle of a sentence and got to his feet, his eyes fixed on the clock on the opposite wall. It was just 12 o'clock. He made several efforts to speak, but finally sank back into his chair, white and trembling. Afterward he had written it down for his son, but he had not talked since.

He brooded much over his trouble and did not get any more reconciled to it, in spite of the sympathy of friends and the union prayer-meeting held in his behalf.

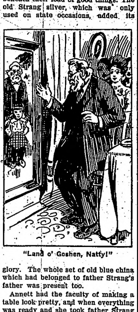
As Annett watched the two going over the meadow together she wore a very thoughtful expression.

"I wonder," she said, "how my plan is going to turn out? If I can only keep Natty from finding it out awhile longer." And then her face lighted up and her eyes smiled.

Annette firmly believed that old father's Strang's voice was lost through fright, and that an equally great surprise would restore it.

For years and years the Strangs had been having two big family dinners in the year—one at Christmas and one at Thanksgiving. They had never been to Annett's for one of the gatherings since her marriage; Nat had always seemed to oppose it, and there were so many other places, that it did not matter. This year Mrs. Strang insisted upon having the Thanksgiving dinner at her place. The day happened to be old father Strang's birthday.

Annett had planned a dinner with which not even Martha could find fault. The two long tables groaned beneath their load of good things. The old Strang silver, which was only used on state occasions, added its glory. The whole set of old blue china which had belonged to father Strang's father was present too.



"Land o' Goshen, Natty!"

Annett had the faculty of making a table look pretty, and when everything was ready and she took father Strang out to see it before the guests were invited out, he kissed her and wrote on his tablet: "There hasn't been so fine a dinner since mother died."

And Annett knew that he was giving her his highest praise.

Guests had been arriving since early in the morning, and at last they were all seated around the tables, 40 of them in all, and in the best spirits.

The dinner went on much as usual, each one of the women remembering silently how she had prepared this or that dish much better, when they met at her house.

The same old jokes were told by the older people, and laughed at and applauded by the rest, with as much enjoyment as if they were being heard for the first time.

And finally it was over, and the dessert had been passed, and seed cakes and sweet cider were going the rounds, which had been the winding up of the Strang dinners since the beginning of time.

Then while they were all only waiting for one of the party to finish a story before going back to the sitting-room, Annett called little Nat to her side and whispered something to him.

"Father Strang," she said, "I have kept my birthday gift for you until now. Nat, dear, will you draw the curtains, so that all our friends may see it?"

Her heart was beating rapidly as she spoke, but her voice was clear and distinct.

Nat drew the curtains and everyone turned to the door of the library, wondering what the gift would be.

As a rule they did give birthday gifts in the Strang family.

Father Strang had risen unconsciously to his feet, and stood gazing in pleased surprise at the picture which was revealed.

"Land o' Goshen, Natty!" he said, "if it hain't you and me, an' the medder lot!"

Later, when things had quieted down a little, Martha said before them all, and it took some courage to do it:

"I haven't treated you right, an' I'm willin' to say so, Annett. There isn't anything I would 'a' liked as well for you to do, as to get a picture of father. You know we haven't been able to get him to be took fur 40 years. That was a tin type, an' it's so faded that you can't tell which is him, and which is his mother. The picture's made his voice come back, and there isn't nothin' I wouldn't do for you from this time on. As fur it, I'll bet there isn't anybody in the United States who can paint to come up to it!"

And so at last Nat's wife found her way into the hearts of the Strang family, and for her at least, it was a blessed Thanksgiving.

Dog Shoots Man.

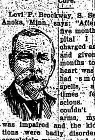
Dr. Vernon Paul, a young English medical man, was the victim of an extraordinary accident. He had been rabbit shooting with some friends; the sport over, the guns were placed in a motor car in readiness for the return journey. By some mischance one of them was left loaded, and just as Dr. Paul was taking his seat a dog jumped into the car and touched the trigger. The charge entered Dr. Paul's body, passing through the left lung and killing him instantly.

New Wire Invented.

A Parisian metallurgical engineer claims to have perfected a process of welding copper to steel wire so as to make a noncorrosive coating. Many advantages, it is said, will result from the use of this new wire, such as high tensile strength and elasticity, combined with smaller surface exposed to wind and sleet than would be the case with iron wire of the same conductivity. This wire is especially useful over long spans, as pole intervals may be greater when it is used.—Engineer.

FIVE MONTHS IN HOSPITAL.

Discharged Because Doctors Could Not Cure.



Levi P. Brockway, S. Second Ave., Anoka, Minn., says: "After lying for five months in a hospital I was discharged as incurable, and given only six months to live. My heart was affected, I had smothering spells, and sometimes fell unconscious. I got so I couldn't use my arms, my eyesight was impaired and the kidney secretions were badly disordered. I was completely worn out and discouraged when I began using Doan's Kidney Pills, but they went right to the cause of the trouble and did their work well. I have been feeling well ever since."

HOME RECIPE FOR COLDS.

Will Break Up a Cold in 24 Hours or Cure Any Cough That Is Curable.

Mix half pint of good whisky with two ounces of glycerine and add one-half ounce Concentrated oil of pine. The bottle is to be well shaken each time and used in doses of a teaspoonful to a tablespoonful every four hours. The Concentrated oil of pine comes in one-half ounce vials packed securely in air tight cases which are intended to protect it from light and retain all the original ozone. It is a product of the laboratories of the Globe Pharmaceutical Co., of Dayton, Ohio, and is guaranteed under the National Pure Food and Drug Act. Don't use bulk oil of pine or imitations of Concentrated. They are insoluble and work havoc to the kidneys. Any druggist has the Concentrated oil of pine.

His Revenge.

He adored her, but his pride was very great.

"Elsie," he faltered, "do you love me?"

Above the boom of the sea her voice sounded clear and cold.

"No," she said. "No, Mr. Mannering."

He laughed unpleasantly.

"Well," he said, "I feared you did, that was all, and I just wanted to warn you that I am already engaged."

COMING WEST.

Shoe Industry Gradually Leaving Eastern Coast.

Massachusetts and Connecticut are generally thought of as the big shoe manufacturing states, but, as the great west has become more densely populated, these states are slowly losing prestige.

Wisconsin, for instance, has the largest manufacturer of full vamp shoes in the world—The F. Mayer Boot & Shoe Co. of Milwaukee. The market for this company's product is the great west from the Mississippi to the Pacific. Undoubtedly it is Milwaukee's nearness to this great west market which is responsible for the great growth of this concern which has been in proportion to the growth of the west. In the last 25 years they have outgrown six factories. Including the new Seattle factory nearly completed and the Milwaukee factory annex built this last year the total capacity of the Mayer Boot & Shoe Company exceeds 9,000 pairs per day, which already has been inadequate to meet the demand of the west.

DUNFORD'S HUMILIATION

By BOB GUY

(All rights reserved. International Press Association.)

A spluttering, gesticulating, wild-eyed man, hatless, coatless, ushered to his carriage by a most astonished and annoyed young man, was the spectacle witnessed by the customers of an exclusive downtown restaurant one evening just at the fashionable hour of six.

As Dunford had entered the crowded restaurant fifteen minutes previously he had been the personification of prosperity. His immaculate clothing, faultless shoes and headgear, immense diamond, and walking stick with head of massive gold design, all gave evidence of the wearer's substantial bank account.

He knew it.

That was why he bought them, paid for them, and wore them. Hence Dunford's florid countenance and rotund figure fairly radiated with self-confidence and esteem.

Dunford had a daughter, too! Ye gods, did ever man have such a jewel as his Jane? Why his Jane was the embodiment of all things desirable. Bewitching, handsome, and as decorous and affectionate as she was handsome, Jane at eighteen was her father's pride and delight. Left motherless at the age of ten, she had been a real chum to her father.

Dunford's importance fairly thrust itself upon those about him, for to-day he looked and felt his best. Jane was home from school for her Easter vacation. She had promised her father that after an afternoon of formalities she would meet him here for dinner, and later they would attend the theater.

Jane was nowhere to be seen, so Dunford concealed himself in a cosy little nook to "see but not be seen." He settled himself for a few moments' wait.

"If Jane would only wear that same gown which she wore last night, I can't miss her; but Heaven knows! with her mania for fine feathers, I am taking uneven chances," he chuckled, as he stole a hurried glance at the menu card.

"Pardon my abruptness, sir," said a business-like voice at his elbow.

Dunford nearly "jumped out of his skin." Looking up he beheld a neatly dressed and exceptionally prepossessing young man.

"You see, sir, I am in the employ of the law," he continued, deftly permitting Dunford a fleeting glimpse of the little silver shield fastened beneath his coat.

"I take you to be a reliable citizen, hence allow me to request a little assistance of you."

Dunford, taken by storm, could only mumble a few incoherent words of objection.

The officer bent over him and fairly spun out his words.

"At the table yonder sits a very attractive young woman, for whom the police of three cities are searching. A cleverly desperate character. Youthful in appearance but aged in vice. A member of a notorious gang of thieves and general lawbreakers. An elusive 'will-o'-the-wisp.' Invite her to your secluded table. She will accept without demurring. Once over here I can easily make my arrest without further disturbance, for I greatly respect the management of this place, as well as their patrons. You shall suffer no undue publicity in the affair, I assure you."

Dunford grasped the situation at once. As a good citizen he must aid the law. He must not delay but act quickly. He rose hastily, stepped noiselessly up to the young woman from the rear and gently tapped her upon the shoulder.

She whirled quickly about.

It was Jane!

Dunford stood aghast; his round face now ashen, and his eyes starting from his head.

Jane was panic stricken.

Dunford in terror and uncertainty turned to ward her off the detective.

The "officer" was gone!

So was Dunford's hat, overcoat, walking-stick, watch, diamond stud, and fat round money-roll, as he by degrees discovered.

Only a small, neat derby hat, in whose crown lay an absurdly crude tin badge decorated with the significant numerals "23," remained to comfort the unwary one.

STRINGS IN JAPAN.

Writing from Japan, an American says: "You must come here to appreciate some of the quaint customs and usages which contact with other peoples has not yet driven out. To read about them gives you only a poor idea. For instance, did you ever know what an important thing a piece of string is here? The children, workmen, idlers, servants, all carry pieces of string for use in case of emergency. With us the emergency would arise only when a parcel had to be done up, but the Jap uses his piece of string as a first aid to the injured, to repair a rent in his clothing, to fix a broken down jinrikisha, to mend tools, to take measurements and, in fact, the string is his universal tool chest. The queerest use to which it is put, according to my way of thinking, is when a police officer arrests a man, ties a bit of string about the arrested man's wrist and then leads him by the loose end of the thin hempen fetter to the lockup. You ask: 'Why doesn't the Jap crook break the string and find a gateway?' He could, but he would not. That's where his respect for the law comes in, and the bit of string holds the man as securely as though he were manacled by our own humane chilled steel, nickel-plated and snap-locked method."—New York Tribune.

"Service was longer, was it?"

"Indeed! And you know him?"

"Oh, yes. I'm his wife!"—Yonkers Statesman.

SERIOUS CHARGES AGAINST HEINZE

INDICTED FOR OVERCERTIFICATION OF CHECKS AGGREGATING $400,000.

IS RELEASED ON $50,000 BAIL

COUNSEL SAYS THERE WAS ABUNDANT COLLATERAL TO COVER CHECKS.

New York, Jan. 9.—Indicted by the federal grand jury for the overcertification of fifteen checks, representing in the aggregate over $400,000, and drawn by the firm of Otto Heinze & Co. on the Mercantile National bank, F. Augustus Heinze, the copper magnate and former president of the Mercantile National bank, surrendered himself to United States Commissioner Shields yesterday and later was released on $50.000 bail. Heinze will be formally arraigned to plead to the indictment before Judge Chatfield in the United States circuit court to-day.

Heinze's Counsel Explains.

After an examination of the indictments, which contains thirty counts, Counsel Edward Lauterbach last night made the following statement:

"The indictment is based upon certification of fifteen checks, amounting to something over $400,000, drawn by Otto Heinze & Co., on the 14th day of October last. Before the certification was made, F. Augustus Heinze obtained the discount of a note for $500,000 secured by abundant stock exchange collateral worth at the market rates of that day more than $800,000, and drew his check for $500,000 to the credit of Otto Heinze & Co., the amount of which should have been passed to their credit, as I think it was.

No Willful Intent.

"There certainly was no willful intent within the statute to overcertify any check. On the contrary, there was far more than the amount of the checks standing to the credit of the account of the drawers when they were certified."

The indictment specifically charges that Heinze, while president of the Mercantile National bank, overcertified fifteen checks. That is, that he guaranteed by the bank signature that the sums indicated in the checks were held by the institution to the credit of the drawer. To overcertify bank paper is under the federal statute an offense punishable by imprisonment for not less than five years and not more than ten years.

What the Government Charges.

One count is devoted to each of the checks involved. It is alleged that Heinze knew that Otto Heinze & Co. did not have to its credit the sums named in the various checks. The sixteenth count in the indictment charges that Heinze intentionally applied the funds of the bank, without the knowledge of the directors, to the payments of the fifteen checks drawn by Otto Heinze & Co., and knowing that the company did not have on deposit with the bank a sum to the amount named in the certified checks.

For such an offense the federal statutes provide a penalty of not less than five years' imprisonment or a fine of not more than $5,000, or both.

Fraud and Graft Said to Have Been Found in St. Joseph, Mo.

St. Joseph, Mo., Jan. 9.—The county grand jury here reported that it had uncovered gross frauds and graft in the city's electric street lighting department and returned indictments said to be against the heads of departments and other city employes. It was found that dead men had been carried on the pay rolls for several years. The names of the indicted men were not made public.

200 PASSENGERS GO DOWN

THREE KILLED, TWO FATALLY AND EIGHTY SERIOUSLY INJURED.

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 9.—Running at a speed of thirty miles an hour, the second section of an excursion train on the Southern railway from Cleveland, Ohio, known as the Collver special, and bound for Florida points, plunged through a trestle over Copper Mine creek, about fifty miles west of Atlanta, yesterday, and as a result three persons are dead and two fatally injured, and eighty passengers were so seriously injured as to require medical attention.

Two Fatally Hurt.

It was nearly midnight when the Southern railway relief train reached Atlanta, bearing the body of Engineer James Edward and about fifty of the injured, among whom was Mrs. Emil Hoover of Columbus, Ohio, who is in a dying condition, and Florence A. Studebaker of Cleveland, internally injured and probably fatally hurt. Road Foreman of Engines Schnapps and a negro fireman, Mose Baldwin were also on the train and died shortly after reaching the city.

Many of the injured were lifted from the car windows in Atlanta and conveyed to hospitals, while some of the hurt were able to take cabs to the local hotels.

200 Passengers Go Down.

The wreck occured about 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, five vestibuled Pullmans being precipitated twenty-five feet to the bed of the creek, which was nearly dry, one of the Pullmans being torn asunder. Two hundred passengers went down with the coaches.

Copper Mine trestle is between Hiram and Dallas, Ga., in a sparsely settled country.

ROBBERS HOLD UP TRAIN.

Four Armed Men Attempt to Loot M. K. & T. Flyer at Kansas City.

Kansas City, Jan. 9.—Four men attempted to rob the passengers on a Missouri, Kansas & Texas passenger train standing in the union station here yesterday. They were frightened off without securing any money or valuables. The men escaped, leaving no clue.

The train is what is known as the flyer, due to depart at 2:20 for the Southwest. Shortly before starting time the would-be robbers, four white men, entered one of the forward day coaches, and walked up and down the aisle, awaiting a favorable opportunity to commerce their work.

Robbers Drew Revolvers.

The station, aside from this one train, was practically deserted, and this fact is believed to have prompted the men to make so bold an attempt.

Dr. M. H. Kennedy of Kansas City, a passenger in the coach, said:

"The four men walked through the coach several times. It was crowded. Several German immigrants were in the rear of the coach, and they seemed to be the object of the attack. Before any of us realized what they were up to two of the robbers showed revolvers, and, pointing them at the foreigners commanded them to give up their valuables.

Lantern Blow Routs Them.

"Just then H. W. Drew, the conductor, and David White, the negro porter, came into the car. Drew hit one of the robbers on the head with his lantern and smashed it to pieces. Then they ran.

"The only things they got were two valises from the German immigrants. Three of the robbers were short and one was tall. The tall one, who was the leader, was about sixty years old. All wore good clothes."

The quartet dodged through long lines of freight cars standing on the sidetracks and were soon lost to sight.

TERRORIZE TWO VILLAGES.

Night Riders Continue Their Raids in Kentucky.

Paris, Ky., Jan. 9. — Night riders made their appearance in the Burley district late last night, visiting two towns, one in Fleming and the other in Bath county, and destroyed two warehouses and a big general store. The raiders did not fire any shots in either place and left as soon as the work had been accomplished. The men were all masked and heavily armed and caused a reign of terror among the citizens of the little villages.

AHEAD OF THEIR TIME.

First Class of West Point Will Graduate Next Month.

Washington, Jan. 9.—The first class at the military academy will graduate Feb. 4, that date having been selected by the superintendent of the academy in accordance with instructions received from Washington. The army is short of officers and the addition to the list resulting from an early graduation will help materially in filling some of the vacant assignments in existing regimental organizations.

THREE THAW JURORS SWORN.

New York, Jan. 9. — Three jurors sworn to serve on the trial panel for Harry K. Thaw represented last night the net results of the two days and six sessions of the trial before Justice Dowling in the criminal branch of the supreme court. In addition there were in the jury box at the close of of the night sitting four tentative jurors who are subject still to peremptory challenges by either side.

In all ninety-five proposed jurors were called and questioned yesterday.

HEINZE LOSES CONTROL OF BANK

FAILURE TO MEET NOTES PUTS GOULD INTERESTS IN CONTROL.

MORE INDICTMENTS PROBABLE

OTHER WALL STREET MEN MAY BE CALLED BEFORE FEDERAL AUTHORITIES.

New York, Jan. 9.—Being unable to meet payments due on his stock in the institution yesterday, F. Augustus Heinze lost control of the Mercantile National bank, the conduct of which as its president had brought about his arraignment in the United States circuit court earlier in the day on charges of overcertification.

One year ago Heinze bought a controlling interest from the Goulds, with whom he pledged his holdings as security for his promise to pay for them in full within one year. This loan of $1,200,000 was due yesterday to Edwin Gould and William Nelson Cromwell, who was a member of the Gould party in the bank before the Mercantile was added to the Heinze-Morse-Thompson chain of financial houses. Up to the last moment allowed him, Heinze struggled to meet his obligations and so to retain his banking interests.

Statement by Cromwell.

His failure was chronicled in the following statement issued by Mr. Cromwell after an afternoon conference of the parties concerned:

"The Heinze stock in the Mercantile National bank has been acquired by Mr. Gould in a satisfactory arrangement. Mr. Heinze was given every possible chance to pay for the stock, but because of his inability to do so in the time agreed upon we have been forced to take it over."

Later Mr. Cromwell stated that the Gould interests would assume their proper place in the bank board at the meeting on Jan. 14. This implies, of course, that the so-called Heinze directors will then retire.

Yesterday morning Heinze, now under bail consequent upon an indictment by the federal grand jury on a charge of overcertifying checks of his brother's brokerage firm, involving $460,000, was arraigned before Judge Chatfield.

Others May Be Indicted.

A plea of not guilty was entered and permission was given to alter or withdraw it or to make any other desired motions later. An adjournment of the case was ordered until Jan. 20, when the final plea will be made. The bail of $50,000 was continued.

It was reported yesterday that other men equally as prominent as Heinze in Wall street operations were to be called before the federal authorities to plead to indictments. Who they are or when their arrests are to be expected could not be learned at the United States district attorney's office. It is known that the grand jury is not yet through with its inquiry into certain banking conditions exposed by the recent financial flurry.

It is announced that Jake Jacobson, the uncombed statesman, will again be a candidate for the republican nomination for governor.

Tom Lowry, the Minneapolis railroad man wants to represent Minnesota as a delegate to the Republican National Convention. It will keep him busy to land.

The St. Hilaire Creamery starts the new year by making over twelve hundred pounds of premium butter at one churning. This will do for a starter.

Hutchinson Leader.—Here is a statement from the United States department of agriculture which should set every farmer to thinking:

"A ton of wheat, worth $22, removes from the soil $7.50 worth of plant food. A ton of butter worth $500, takes less than 50 cents worth of plant food from the soil."

This is proven by scientific tests that cannot be questioned. The profit and the soil preservation is in dairy farming. But still the dread of milking time removes the danger of all the farmers giving up wheat raising and making a shortage in the world's bread supply.

The parcels post bill before congress is doomed, from all indications, to an ignominious death. The demand for such a law was wholly traceable to the big department stores and the mammoth mail and catalogue houses of the big cities. The bill was not framed in the interest of the business of the country and its passage by congress would only tend to build up the larger community at the expense of the smaller. It was an effort to legislate out of business that class of retailers who, after all, are the foundation of the country's financial strenght.—Crookston Times.

BUTTER LAMBS.

Fat and Early Ones For Easter and Fancy Trade.

Some years ago we attempted to raise "Easter lambs," and, though we did not get our lambs out early enough, we got some experience in intensive lamb production which has since helped us much in our sheep operations and which incidentally shows what gains lambs will make, says C. A. Waugh in National Stockman.

We bred 100 ewes to lamb in February, thinking that would be early enough for us to make the lambs fat enough by Easter. Instead we ought to have bred at least one month earlier, which additional month would have made things just right.

We housed the ewes in a large warm shed in which we have since fed over 800 lambs. One requisite for early and quick lamb production is plenty of warmth and room.

During the entire winter we gave the whole bunch one bushel of corn apiece per day, feeding cornstalks and clover hay as roughage. We also fed nearly all the turnips they would eat. This root crop stimulated milk production.

Let no one who is not an old shepherd try to raise early lambs. One must truly love one's sheep, and if you don't you have to make the bluff seem real. As soon as the lambs began to drop it was eternal vigilance. If one slept too long a lamb was the price of the sleep. We divided the night into watches. The hired man watched until midnight, while the "boss" watched until morning. As soon as a ewe had a lamb she was put off in a pen away from the rest of the flock. Every few days we would have graduation exercises, and each pen of ewes would move up a grade.

If a young lamb were chilled the least bit of a blanket was wrapped about him and he was placed in a capacious basket behind the kitchen stove. If pretty far gone a spoonful of brandy was poured down his throat. This will revive almost any lamb if he is not too far gone. The brandy does not make him drunk. Try it next spring.

Big Gains, Good Price.

We succeeded in raising 100 lambs, one per ewe. When these were old enough we nailed slats around a pen, placing these just far enough apart to permit a lamb to squeeze through. In this pen were placed all the cracked corn and other fattening grains that they would eat. The gains made were almost pheuomenal. Several which we weighed at consecutive periods gained seven pounds per week. The 1st of August they averaged seventy-five pounds apiece, many weighing upward of ninety pounds. At that time we received $6 per hundredweight at home. Now the same lambs will bring about $7.20 per hundredweight delivered at our home station.

Why Not?

You perhaps wonder why we have not tried again, breeding earlier, as I have suggested. We would have done so, only that the kind of hired help which will sit up half of the night in order to look after your interests cannot be picked up at a minute's notice.

DECISION REVERSED.

Secretary Garfield Makes Final Decision in Homesteaders' Case and They Will Get Patents

A special dispatch from Washington says:

"At the conclusion of an argument made by Congressman Halvor Steenerson Saturday, Secretary Garfield reversed an order of the general land office whereby about 100 settlers in Northern Minnesota, whose homestead entries were held for cancellation will be granted patents. The secretary ordered that the lands be patented to entrymen who had complied with all the requirements of the department prior to last January. At that time a ruling was made requiring 14 months continuous residence on homestead lands.

"Fred Lidgell, who was one of the entrymen, had resided for eight months on his land and had also been credited with the usual six months constructive residence, and when his entry was rejected on the ground that he had failed to live on the land for 14 months he took an appeal with 100 others. Congressman Steenerson told Secretary Garfield Saturday that unless the ruling was reversed he would take the matter before congress. About 16,000 acres of land are affected."

It will be remembered that this is a matter about which there was a great deal of correspondence between Congressman Steenerson and the department of the interior before Mr. Steenerson left for Washington, and that Mr. Steenerson, in championing the cause of the settlers, maintained that the government had acted in bad faith with the settlers in making them put in fourteen months actual residence on this land. Before the government threw open this land for settlement and at the time that it was thrown open, the officials of the government specifically stated that the settlers who took this particular land, which consists of eleven towns east of Thief River Falls, would be allowed to put in what is known as six months constructive settlement and eight months actual settlement, to count as fourteen months settlement required under the homestead laws when commutation proof is made. He evidently made Mr. Garfield see that this was an injustice, hence the reversal of the order.

SMALLPOX

In The Town of Rocksbury at Home of Anton Aubol.

It was reported to us late yesterday afternoon that a member of the family of Anton Aubol, in the town of Rocksbury, is ill with the smallpox.

A new law enacted by the last legislature removes all compulsory quarantining of smallpox, consequently it would be advisable for all the people, in and around Rocksbury at least, to be vaccinated at once if they have not already done so.

Smallpox is a disease which medical science has not learned to cope with with any marked degree of success and it is hoped that the warning of the Spectator will be heeded in time. "An ounce of precaution is worth a pound of cure".

School Notes.

The New Year is all right.

School seems to go better than ever. The attendance is good and every one takes a hold of his work in a way that will make the examinations in the spring look easy. Judging from the work done so far, last fall and now, there will be a large number of state examination certificates earned next spring. We hope to exceed any previous year in that respect even tho the attendance is not quite so large.

A number of new pupils came in with the new year. Mary and Anna Winkie entered the primary grade; Olive Christenson, the fourth grade; Oscar Haugen and Selmer Benson, the fifth; and John Hooper and Annie Adams, the eighth grade.

The total enrollment is now 193. They are distributed in the different rooms as follows; Primary room, 57; first intermediate, 45; second intermediate, 39; grammar, 21; high school, 31.

The members of the American literature class have bought for study, "Nature and Compensation" by Emerson "Baby Belle and the Little Violinist" by Aldrich, "Vision of Sir Launfal" by Lowell, and "Birds and Bees" by Burroughs.

Annual Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Bray Mutual Fire Insurance company was held in the village hall last Monday and a fair sized crowd was in attendance. The books of the company show a continued prosperity and a steady growth of the company since its start until at present it is carrying nearly one half a million in fire policies. This is a gain of over sixty thousand dollars the past year. The business was in such satisfactory shape that all of the old officials were re-elected except Treasurer Ed. A. Aubol who declined and Chas. Gustafson was elected in his place.

COUNTY SEAT FIGHT

Latest Decision of Judge Watts in the Famous Red Lake Falls vs. Thief River Falls Controversy Favors Thief River—Red Lake Falls Will Probably Appeal.

Thief River Falls Press—Judge Wm. Watts has handed down a decision in the so-called county seat case of M. V. Evenson against John B. O'Brien, as county auditor, to restrain the auditor from taking action on the "old" or original petition stolen from the office of Mr. O'Brien last spring. The order is in favor of Thief River Falls and effectively kills the original petition so far as the district court is concerned. Red Lake Falls will probably appeal from Judge Watts' decision to the state supreme court. A. A. Miller and E. M. Stanton appeared for Evenson.

The decision of Judge Watts reads as follows:

In this case it is ordered that the defendant and his deputies be restrained and enjoined from acting upon the original and lost petition for the removal of the county seat of said county and from making, signing or serving any order on any member of the board of county commissioners to act on said petition first filed but now removed from the auditor's office.

County Printing.

Red Lake Falls Gazette.—At the annual meeting of the board of county commissioners in session at the court house in this city Tuesday and Wednesday of this week, the matter of greatest importance to the publishers of the county was the letting of the county printing, the bids for which were opened yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock. There were but two bids submitted, one by H. E. Ives, of the St. Hilaire Spectator, who agreed to publish the tax list, financial statement, proceedings and all notices to be published by the county at legal rates less ten per cent, agreeing further to give publicity to the tax list, financial statement, proceedings, etc., by having them published in the Gazette, the Thief River Falls News and the Thief River Press free of additional expense to the county. The other bid was by C. W. Latta, of the Plummer Pioneer, who agreed to publish the financial statement, proceedings, notices, etc., for forty cents per folio for the first insertion and twenty cents per folio each subsequent insertion, and the tax list at eight cents per description, stating that he would post notices agreeing to furnish every tax payer who would write for such a copy, of any notice published free of expense to the county. Full two hours the "county dads" considered the matter—they figured and thought, and then thought some more, while the clock ticked on their salaries. At five minutes past six Commissioner Shaw made a motion to accept Latta's bid, adding that Latta further agreed, on the side and not included in his sealed bid, to mail to each and every person on the tax book a copy of the delinquent tax list, financial statement, proceedings and all notices on the day of the first publication thereof, without additional cost to the county. The motion was seconded by Commissioner Pigeon, and carried by Chairman Lindquist voting in the affirmative. While the affair is settled so far as the commissioners are concerned, could Latta give the service required and was it right to amend a sealed bid after it had been opened by this august body without giving the other bidder an equal show, and espcially when the amendment means a reduction in the bid?

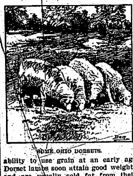
Dorsets In Hothouse Business.

Joseph E. Wing in his book on "Sheep Farming In America" says that the Dorset ewe has the way of dropping her lambs at an earlier season than any other ewe. Then she is the greatest milker of any of the sheep tribe, and because of this and of their ability to use grain at an early age Dorset lambs soon attain good weights and are usually sold fat from their mothers' sides, and most profit comes from selling them at two to four months of age. Dorsets are largely used in hothouse lamb business.



SOME OHIO DORSETS.

Naturally the larger number of lambs on the farm will be born too late for the fancy trade. There is, however, abundant profit in fattening them to be sold afoot in April, May, June or July.

Trim the Lambs While Young.

Many farmers and especially those who keep only a few sheep, making them only a side issue, neglect to castrate and dock the lambs till they are large. For docking I use a wide chisel. Placing the tail on a block, I set the chisel so as to leave a stub of about one inch, says a writer in National Stockman and Farmer. Shoving the skin up toward the body till I feel the chisel between the joints, then a sharp blow with a mallet and the job is done. This leaves enough loose skin to drop over the bone, which is quite an advantage in healing.

MISS ANNIE CATRON.

CATARRH MADE LIFE A BURDEN TO ME.

MISS ANNIE CATRON, 937 Main St., Cincinnati, Ohio, writes:

"As I have found Peruna a blessing for a severe case of catarrh of the head and throat which I suffered from for a number of years, I am only too pleased to give it my personal endorsement.

"Catarrh, such as I suffered from, made life a burden to me, my breath was offensive, stomach bad, and my head stopped up so that I was usually troubled with a headache, and although I tried many so-called remedies, nothing gave me permanent relief. I was rather discouraged with all medicines when Peruna was suggested to me.

"However, I did buy a bottle, and before that was finished there was a marked change in my condition. Much encouraged I kept on until I was completely cured in a month's time, and I find that my general health is also excellent."

People who prefer solid medicines should try Peruna tablets. Each tablet represents one average dose of Peruna.

His Literal Wife.

"Every family should keep an account of its expenditures."

"We tried that scheme, but it failed to give satisfaction."

"Why?"

"O, my wife was too literal. Things I wanted charged as sundries she insisted on charging as booze."

Imitation in Art.

Clyde Fitch, in a kindly letter to a young and unknown playwright, said: "I liked your play; I thought it promising; but in the first act you imitated Ibsen, in the second you imitated Pinero and in the third and fourth you imitated Barrie. This will never do. Imitation in art is always bad. It suggests the shabby man, who, as he sipped a glass of beer, looked into the mirror behind the bar and muttered to himself: 'Here I am wearing a railroad president's shoes, the trousers of a senator, the hat of a millionaire banker, the waistcoat of a Newport society leader and an ambassador's coat; and yet in spite of all I look like a tramp.'"

HE WAS SO THOUGHTFUL.

And Yet He Must Have Been Shocked When She Spoke.

"Ah, sweetheart," he said, "how can I wait for next Thursday to come? It seems a year away. I have just seen Dr. Thudleigh and he has gladly consented to perform the ceremony."

"I am so happy," the beautiful girl replied. "The dressmaker added the final touches to my going-away gown to-day, and nothing remains now but wait for the great day to come. Have you seen about getting the drawing room on the 9:30 train?"

"Yes, love, and I have taken out a $10,000 accident insurance policy, so that if I happen to be killed by our dear friends when they are seeing us off you will have something to partially console you for your loss."

"Dearest Harry, how will it be possible for me to ever be anything but happy with one who is so thoughtful?"

FOUND A WAY

To Be Clear of the Coffee Troubles.

"Husband and myself both had the coffee habit and finally his stomach and kidneys got in such a bad condition that he was compelled to give up a good position that he had held for years. He was too sick to work. His skin was yellow, and I hardly think there was an organ in his body that was not affected.

"I told him I felt sure his sickness was due to coffee and after some discussion he decided to give it up.

"It was a struggle because of the powerful habit. One day we heard about Postum and concluded to try it, and then it was easy to leave off coffee.

"His fearful headaches grew less frequent, his complexion began to clear, kidneys grew better until at last he was a new man altogether, as a result of leaving off coffee and taking up Postum. Then I began to drink it, too.

"Although I was never as bad off as my husband, I was always very nervous and never at any time very strong, only weighing 95 lbs. before I began to use Postum. Now I weigh 115 lbs. and can do as much work as anyone my size, I think.

"Many do not use Postum because they have not taken the trouble to make it right. I have successfully fooled a great many persons who have drunk it at my table. They would remark, 'You must buy a high grade of coffee.' One young man who clerked in a grocery store was very enthusiastic about my 'coffee.' When I told him what it was, he said, 'why I've sold Postum for four years but I had no idea it was like this. Think I'll drink Postum hereafter.'"

Miss Margaret's Wedding Dress

By INA BREVOORT ROBERTS

(Copyright.)

Except for the twittering of the birds the little country churchyard was very still as Miss Margaret laid the wreath she had brought upon her lover's grave.

Twenty-five years had gone by since John Grant had closed his eyes in her arms, and in that time his sweetheart had allowed no anniversary of his death to pass without placing flowers on the green mound that marked the spot which held all that was earthly of the man she loved.

"Miss Margaret is faithful," said the older people in the village, who remembered her as a gentle, lovely girl with the light of a happy love in her blue eyes, and after the loss that ended her pretty romance, as a still, sad-faced woman.

Only two days in the year did she consecrate to her sorrow—the anniversary of John's death and, following it, the day that was to have seen her married.

On the former she placed flowers on her lover's grave; on the latter Miss Margaret took from their tissue wrappings the wedding gown of sheeny satin, the filmy veil, the snowy gloves and slippers she had never worn.

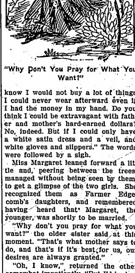
If the day were fine she hung the dress before an open window to let the spring breeze smooth out any wrinkles. Then, lovingly and carefully, she wrapped the things again, in fresh paper, with a bit of wax in each package to keep its contents white.

It was of the morrow's labor of love that Miss Margaret was thinking as she paused in the quiet churchyard, where the setting sun shone with serene splendor and a faint breeze swayed the grass that between the graves was blue with periwinkle, and here and there a late violet.

"It's hard to have to be married in muslin, and not fine muslin at that," the voice said. "I don't often mind being poor; even at graduation I didn't complain at being the worst dressed person in the class, but it does seem as if when a girl is married she ought to have pretty clothes for once in her life."

"Yes, it does," replied another voice, like the first one, and yet different; Miss Margaret guessed that the speakers were sisters. "If the crops hadn't turned out so badly last fall you might have a silk dress. Why don't you wait another year? We mightn't be so poor then?"

"I—we—he doesn't want to wait," said the first speaker. "Besides, you know I would not buy a lot of things I could never wear afterward even if I had the money in my hand. Do you think I could be extravagant with father and mother's hard-earned dollars? No, indeed. But if I could only have a white satin dress and a veil, and white gloves and slippers." The words were followed by a sigh.



"Why Don't You Pray for What You Want?"

Miss Margaret leaned forward a little and, peering between the trees, managed without being seen by them, to get a glimpse of the two girls. She recognized them as Farmer Edgecomb's daughters, and remembered having heard that Margaret, the younger, was shortly to be married.

"Why don't you pray for what you want?" the older sister said at this moment. "That's what mother says to do, and that's if it's best for us, our desires are always granted."

"Oh, I know," returned the other somewhat impatiently. "But I'd be just as likely to get it as the things I want. Nothing short of a miracle could get me that dress and veil and those gloves and slippers. And the day of miracles is over."

"I'd pray just the same if I were you," maintained the older sister stoutly. "I always do, and I've had the things that seemed just as unattainable come to me in the most unexpected way."

"Well, I won't," declared the bride-elect. "I can't help wanting those things, but I can help praying for what I know I ought not to have. Come, we must go. I'm glad we live near the cemetery, aren't you? It's such a nice place to come to think things over. Or to talk them over," the speaker concluded as she tucked her arm in her sister's and the two moved away.

Miss Margaret responded somewhat absently to the salutations of the people she passed as she drove home. She was pondering the mysterious ways of the Providence which had given dainty wedding finery to her who was never to wear it, and had denied it to the other Margaret.

"She is the one who should have had those things," Miss Margaret thought, "and yet," she asked herself, "what would I have done without them, how borne the long, lonely years?"

Her wedding gown had seemed in some indefinable way to keep in mind the thought that she and John were to meet again. She had left instructions that she was to be dressed in it for her burial.

As she touched its shining folds next day Miss Margaret's thoughts kept recurring to the conversation she had overheard in the churchyard. It fretted her to think that the other Margaret must do without the things she longed for. A bride ought to have her every wish gratified, should be made the happiest of God's creatures.

An hour later Miss Margaret dressed for the street. Her mind during this interval had been the scene of a quiet, bitter combat, a struggle between her unselfish desire to do a beautiful act and a feeling that she could not bear to have other hands touch the treasures she had kept so long. The parting with her wedding clothes was a tragedy in the lonely woman's life.

Pleased with the invitation to spend a day in the "great house," although a little surprised at it, Margaret Edgecomb chatted gayly as she drove by Miss Margaret's side along the country roads and through the village.

Ever afterward that visit seemed like a dream to the girl. The dim twilight of the stately rooms, the quaint silver and china, the highbred charm of her hostess, all contributed to an atmosphere she felt, but could not have described.

When, after luncheon was over, Miss Margaret took her guest into her own room, it seemed to the young girl that she was entering a sanctuary, and that it was another person than herself who watched her hostess unlock a cedar chest that stood against the wall and from many layers of white paper take out a long tulle veil, white gloves and slippers and a dress of satin, to which age had given the tint of ivory.

Dazed and bewildered, the one Margaret listened while the other Margaret told the story of the twilight hour in the churchyard, and afterwards in a maze of wonder tried to realize that the things were to be hers if they would fit. Both pairs of hands trembled as the old maid helped the young one to don the bridal array.

Strange enough, the things fitted. And yet, not strange either; what miracle was ever incomplete?

The robing finished, the girl stood, shy and blushing before the pier mirror, scarcely daring to lift her eyes to the vision in the glass.

"You look very lovely, and I am glad you are to have these things," Miss Margaret said softly.

The girl did not speak, and a terrible fear seized Miss Margaret's heart. Were her bitter struggle and cheerful sacrifice to go for naught?

"Perhaps after all you may not care to have them," she said gently. "It may be that to you they seem ill-omened."

The bride-elect forgot her shyness, and moving forward, took the older woman's hands in hers. "Ill-omened!" she exclaimed. "Consecrated, rather. The wearing of them will seem a blessing on my marriage."

A deep peace fell upon Miss Margaret's spirit as she returned the pressure of the youthful fingers.

"Of course the dress is old style," she remarked tremulously, "but the pattern is large, so alterations can easily be made, and with new bows on the slippers——"

The other Margaret looked at her with something that was almost anger in her eyes.

"Alterations!" she exclaimed. "Do you think I would have a thing changed, a ribbon altered? Why, it would seem like profaning something sacred."

As she helped the girl take off the finery and the two packed it to be sent to the home of its new owner, Miss Margaret's heart was full of gratitude and tenderness toward the woman who had accepted her gift as gracefully and graciously as she had proffered it.

As she said good-bye the young Margaret kissed the older one. "It all seems too good to be true," she murmured. "And to think I said the day of miracles was over."

SET GEORGE TO THINKING.

Probably Just Then Was Not Good Time to Visit Papa.

A young fellow in Pittsburg intended to ask her father's consent the other evening, but changed his mind. He has decided to wait till the old gentleman is disabled from a fall on the ice, or till something equally propitious turns up. It happened this way:

When he reached the house the girl met him at the door, pearly tears stealing down her fair cheeks.

"Oh, George!" she whispered, "I am so glad you have come. Please go into the library and see if you can calm father—he is so excited, and is raging about, knocking over the furniture and breaking things."

"Certainly," George said briskly. "What is the matter with the old gentleman?"

"I'm sure I don't know," she said. "He was all right, and I just began to tell him that you wanted to marry me."

PAID FOR HIS FAULT.

Little Girl's Idea of the Punishment Visited on Adam.

In the latest number of "Heimgarten," which has just been published at Graz, Pastor Rosegger tells this story: "I visited a school one day where Bible instruction was a part of the daily course, and in order to test the children's knowledge asked some questions. One class of little girls looked particularly bright, and I asked the tallest one: 'What sin did Adam commit?'

"'He ate forbidden fruit.'

"'Right. Who tempted Adam?'

"'Eve.'

"'Not really Eve, but the serpent. And how was Adam punished?'

"The girl hesitated and looked confused. Behind her sat a little eight-year-old, who raised her hand and said: 'Please pastor, I know.'

"'Well, tell us; how was Adam punished?'

"'He had to marry Eve.'"—Exchange.

Another Remarkable Cure of Serious Kidney Trouble.

C. L. Wood, a prominent merchant of Fentress, Norfolk Co., Va., was suffering some months ago with frequent attacks of hard pain in the back, kidneys and bladder and the kidney secretions were irregularly scanty or profuse. Medical treatment failed to cure him. "At last," says Mr. Wood, "I began using Doan's Kidney Pills, and before one box was gone, I went through four days of intense pain, finally passing a stone, one-half by five-sixteenths of an inch in diameter. I haven't had a sign of kidney trouble since."

Bishop Potter's "Job."

To illustrate a point he was making in an address he was delivering, Bishop Potter told the following story:

"Not long ago I was staying with a friend in a country house up on the Hudson. On Sunday morning as I passed through the library I found a small boy curled up in a big chair deeply interested in a book. 'Are you going to church, Tom?' I asked. 'No,' he replied. 'Why, I am,' I said. 'Huh!' he said, 'that's your job.'"

DOCTOR SAID "USE CUTICURA"

In Bad Case of Eczema on Child—Disease Had Reached a Fearful State—His Order Resulted in Complete Cure.

"When I was small I was troubled with eczema for about three months. It was all over my face and covered nearly all of my head. It reached such a state that it was just a large scab all over, and the pain and itching were terrible. I doctored with an able physician for some time and was then advised by him to use the Cuticura Remedies which I did and I was entirely cured. I have not been bothered with it since. I used Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment but do not know exactly how much was used to complete the cure. I can safely say that Cuticura did a lot for me. Miss Anabel Wilson, North Branch, Mich., Oct. 20, 1907."

She Told Him.

"About the greatest man who ever lived in this community was Dug Skinner; broad minded, big hearted, and brilliant, and yet he died with all his talents and goodness unsuspected."

"How did you come to find out about it?"

"I married his widow."

Why Sloan's Liniment and Veterinary Remedies Are the Best to Use.

Let me tell you why Sloan's Liniment and Veterinary Remedies are the safest and most practical on the market to-day. In the first place, Dr. Earl S. Sloan is the son of a veterinary surgeon, and from his earliest infancy he was associated with horses.

He bought and sold horses while yet very young. He practiced as a veterinary for 20 years and has battled successfully with every disease to which that animal is subject.

All his remedies are the result of experiments made to save life or relieve suffering while he was practicing his profession.

Any reader, by writing to Dr. Earl S. Sloan, 615 Albany street, Boston, Mass., will receive "Sloan's Treatise on the Horse," free. This book tells how to treat horses, cattle, hogs, and poultry.

THEATER DISASTER TAKES 170 LIVES

Sacrifice of Life by Holocaust in Little Pennsylvania Town Is Appalling.

BODIES PILED IN SOLID MASS

Pickaxes and Crowbars Used to Separate Victims—Not Half Can Be Identified.

Boyertown, Pa., Jan. 16. — When nightfall put a stop to the work of recovering the dead from the ruins of the Rhoades opera house, where Monday night's holocaust occurred, the official roll of victims numbered 157. It is the belief of those who had charge of the gruesome work that all of the dead have been removed and that the total list of victims will not go above 170.

The inhabitants of the borough are steeped in grief.

It was almost daylight before the flames were extinguished and rescuers were able to enter the ruins to remove the dead. The bodies were so badly burned that not half of the victims will ever be identified.

Curiosity Causes Disaster.

The Rhoades opera house was located on the second floor of a three-story building. There were about 425 persons in the hall, most of them adults. The entertainment was nearly over when something went wrong with the calcium light apparatus. There was a loud, hissing sound which caused many in the audience to turn their heads in curiosity. There was absolutely no panic up to this time, and nothing would have happened if one of the performers had not raised the curtain to see what caused the noise. In doing so he accidentally upset the coal oil lamps used for footlights. The oil flowed out and caught fire. Then came the inevitable cry of "Fire!" and what followed has been impossibe accurately to tell.

Tangled Mass of Humanity.

Eye-witnesses say that the audience rose en masse and rushed for the front door. Not more than two persons could pass this door at one time, and soon the narrow passage became clogged with a struggling mass of humanity. Men, women, boys, girls and chairs were tangled up in a solid mass. In the meantime some one discovered that there were fire escapes on each side of the building, and dozens made their exits in that manner and gave the alarm. The whole town was aroused and went to the rescue.

While the frenzied people were fighting to get out of the building the calcium light tank exploded and fire was spread over the entire mass of people. The whole interior of the building became a seething furnace.

Helplessly Watch Sacrifice.

The cries of the struggling people and the moans of the dying were heartrending. Nothing could be done to get the unfortunates out, and fathers and brothers were forced to stand by and watch the awful sacrifice of life.

When the flames were extinguished and the rescuers entered the building a horrible sight met their gaze. Bodies were piled in one solid mass six feet high on the second floor. So solidly were they wedged that pick axes and crowbars had to be used gently to separate the victims. There were nine female victims to one male. In nearly every case the upper portions of the bodies were burned away, and in a great many instances the lower parts of the body were not touched by the fire.

BRAZILIAN OFFICIALS CORDIAL.

Brilliant Functions in Honor of Americans—Sailors Get Drunk.

Rio de Janeiro, Jan. 16.—The first of the many official functions to be given in honor of the visiting American naval officers during their stay took place yesterday. The first event was a visit to the Brazilian minister of marine, Admiral Alencar, and this was followed by a reception by the president of the republic, Dr. Penna, and a banquet by the American ambassador, Irivign B. Dudley. Dr. Penna cordially welcomed the visitors to Brazil. The ambassador's function was a brilliant affair.

There was a little brawl between some American sailors from the fleet and Brazilian and Portuguese boatsmen at the landing dock at midnight. Exaggerated reports of the affair were abroad, but when questioned regarding it Admiral Evans said:

"The occurrence was only an ordinary drunken brawl, which was quickly stopped by local police and officers from the ships. All were suspended from shore leave. The matter was not serious." The granting of shore leave was resumed yesterday, when 4,000 men, double the number of Monday, were permitted to go ashore. The local authorities consented to this large shore party. The men have been cordially received in Rio de Janeiro.

Ask Pardon for Chief.

Butte, Mont., Jan. 15.—At a meeting of the miners' union resolutions were adopted asking President Roosevelt to pardon Joseph Shannon of the Montana state union of the Western Federation of Miners and former legislator, who is now confined in the county jail at Helena. Mr. Shannon was found in contempt of court for having violated the injunction restraining any one from interfering with the Rocky Mountain Bell Telephone company, and was sentenced to serve ninety days in jail.

ONLY 25 VICTIMS HAVE HEADS

Volunteers Called for to Help Dig Graves—Heartrending Scenes at Morgue.

Boyertown, Pa., Jan. 16.—Bearing up bravely under the awful blow which it received in the destruction of the Rhoades opera house by fire Monday, this thriving little borough yesterday came to a full realization of the fact that one-fifteenth of its population was wiped out of existence by the holocaust. The figures compiled by Coroner Strasser at nightfall show that there are 170 dead as a result of the fire. Of the 168 bodies, or remains, that lie in the improvised morgue, 115 have been officially or partially identified. The private morgues in the town were not of sufficient size to receive the bodies of those taken from the fire ruins, and the public school was also used as a charnal house.

Heartrending Scenes.

The scenes at the morgue were heartrending. Children of tender years were in some cases called upon to assist in making the identification of parents who went to an untimely death in the fire and panic, and again feeble men and women were racked with anguish as they came upon some distorted body in which they recognized the form of a lost son or daughter.

Before any of the bodies were removed from the morgue Coroner Strasser empaneled a jury to sit at the inquest.

After the jury had been sworn in they made an inspection of the ruins and went through the morgues. No date has been fixed for the inquest.

Bodies Are Headless.

Coroner Strasser says that not more than twenty-five of the entire number of bodies removed from the fire have heads. There are several trunks that will probably never be identified, as there were several strangers in the audience that witnessed the play.

A committee has been appointed to make a canvas of the borough and arrange for the proper burial of the dead. A call has also been issued for volunteers to help dig the graves to bury the victims.

CORTELYOU WILL NOT QUIT CABINET

Secretary Says Reports That He Intends to Resign Are Without Foundation.

BUT RUMORS WILL NOT DOWN

Resignation Would Surprise Nobody; Says He Has No Differences With President.

Washington, Jan. 16.—Despite the categorical denials of Secretary Cortelyou, the reports that he is preparing to get out of the cabinet continued through the day. The rumor of his approaching resignation found some foundation in the inability to obtain from the White House a denial that Mr. Cortelyou is getting ready to step out.

As far as direct and official statements bear weight, the preponderance of evidence is in favor of Mr. Cortelyou's remaining in the cabinet. He declares that there is not a word of truth in the story. Some of the reports which drew forth the secretary's denial had even placed his resignation in the hands of the president, and had chosen George von Meyer as his successor. They had found a new position for Mr. Cortelyou as the head of the Knickerbocker Trust company, of recent unfortunate fame.

Would Surprise Nobody.

Those who are in touch with the White House profess to believe that Mr. Cortelyou is not altogether satisfied with the present condition. The report has trickled through the departments that he has told the president that he would like to be relieved.

Whether Mr. Cortelyou's statement yesterday was dictated in a Pickwickian sense or whether he really wants to hold down his present job, it is safe to say that his resignation would surprise nobody. The last few months have been far from pleasant ones for Mr. Cortelyou. His flyer in politics went wrong and the money flurry came just at an inopportune time for his interests. A seat before the president's desk in a large banking firm might be less exciting, but easier on the nerves.

Utterly False, He Says.

Secretary Cortelyou was at his desk yesterday for the first time since his recent illness, which began four weeks ago. He said the published story that he had resigned or would resign was absolutely without foundation. He had no serious differences with the president, he declared, or with any member of the cabinet, and he expected to continue to serve as secretary of the treasury.

Mr. Cortelyou pronounced the story that he had been offered the presidency the Knickerbocker Trust Company of New York as false, and said also that the published report that he had conferred with J. P. Morgan in regard to it during his recent trip to New York was a "fake" in every particular.

HEARING IN THE HART CASE

Attorney Contends That Proceedings Should Take the Form of a Libel Suit.

St. Paul, Jan. 16.—Contending that the proceedings against him should take the form of a libel suit rather than action for disbarment, and that he should not be punished as an attorney for what he had done as a citizen, Capt. Francis B. Hart of Minneapolis made formal objections to the proceedings which seek to remove him from the bar of the state, when the taking of testimony was begun yesterday before Gideon S. Ives, referee.

The proceedings are upon a petition of Eli Southworth, secretary of the state board of law examiners, charging that Hart, in writing and publishing letters criticising decisions of the supreme court, had been guilty of misconduct in his profession as an attorney at law and had been guilty also of willful violation of his oath of office.

Mr. Southworth, the complainant, was assisted by Edward Lees of Winona and P. J. McLaughlin of St. Paul, the latter acting upon behalf of the state bar association. They submitted evidence of the writing and publishing of the letters, but Capt. Hart simplified this by admitting and assuming full responsibility for all the letters in question.

In the afternoon an adjournment was taken until Jan. 24 at 11 a. m. to allow the defendant to prepare his defense.

He was given medical attention, and although the trouble did not seem to be of a serious nature he expired a short time later.

NELSON BLOCKS $50,000,000 STEAL

Minnesota Senator Balks Real Estate Speculators in Plot to Carve Melon.

WOULD HOLD UP UNCLE SAM

Plan to Sell Government a Tract of Worthless Land for Building Purposes.

Washington, Jan. 16.—The real estate men of Washington, to whom a good many crimes against Uncle Sam's pocket have been charged in the past, are alleged by Senator Nelson of Minnesota to be preparing to carve the biggest melon they have ever plugged.

For years the project of the government buying an immense tract of business property south of Pennsylvania avenue to perfect the mall from the capitol to the Washington monument has been pressed upon congress.

Nelson Blocks the Bill.

This session there seemed an excellent chance of its passing. Estimates of something like $9,000,000 expense looked reasonable, and the bill got out of committee, but on the floor of the senate it has been viciously attacked, the charge being made that if it passes the government will be held up for tremendous prices, making the tract cost not less than $50,000,000.

Of course there is intense grief among the real estate speculators, and Senator Nelson is the cause of it all. The senator is stubbornly blocking the alleged steal, which has the approval of many sincere people who are in favor of the extensive plan of beautifying Washington.

Marshy and Worthless.

The stated object of this purchase is to cover the tract with government buildings. Mr. Nelson has been making a study of the old maps and pictures of Washington and has discovered that the tract of land in question is one of the lowest in the city, was at one time a marsh, and in flood times, when the Potomac is at its highest stage, water has been known to pour over the lower section of the tract and across the wide avenue.

For these reasons Mr. Nelson is blocking the passage of the bill. He denounces the site as unfit for public buildings because it would cost, as he has shown, about twice the value of the land to obtain suitable foundations for large buildings on the low ground.

Faribault, Minn., Jan. 16.—A petition signed by most of the leading business men here was presented to the council, asking that body to grant a franchise to the Dan Patch Air line. The matter has now been referred to another committee and some action soon will be taken. It is generally thought that the franchise wil be granted.

WOMAN FIRES AT LAWYER

Tries to Shoot One of Walsh's Attorneys in Chicago Federal Building.

Chicago, Jan. 15.—Three shots were fired at Samuel R. Hamill, an attorney, by Mrs. Thomas Metcalf in the corridors of the federal building here late yesterday afternoon. The reason for the shooting is a mystery. Hamill is one of the attorneys for John R. Walsh, but the identity of Mrs. Metcalf is not yet thoroughly established.

The incident occurred outside the court room of Judge Anderson, before whom John R. Walsh is on trial on charges of having misapplied funds of the Chicago National bank.

Woman Pulls Gun.

Mr. Hamill, according to witnesses of the affair, left the court room in the afternoon, followed by Mrs. Metcalf. Archibald L. Van Winkle, a private detective employed by E. C. Ritscher, another of Walsh's attorneys, followed the couple.

As Hamill approached the stairway leading to the ground floor of the building the woman drew a revolver from the folds of her dress and before Van Winkle could grapple with her fired twice at the attorney. The latter hurried down stairs and left the building. Efforts to locate him last night proved fruitless.

Man Is Injured.

Van Winkle grasped the woman's revolver and is said to have suffered a slight injury to his hand in so doing. After remarking that he had only tried to keep the woman from attempting suicide he also left the building and has since kept his whereabouts secret.

Mrs. Metcalf fainted when disarmed and was taken to the office of United States Marshal Hoy.

Late in the evening she revealed the identity of the man at whom she shot and also gave her own name. Her address, however, she kept secret and also refused to discuss her motive. She will be arraigned this morning.

CRISIS OVER ECONOMIES.

Ministers Resign Following a Dispute Over New Financial Policy.

Tokio, Jan. 16. — Yoshiro Sakatani, minister of finance, and Isaduro Yamagata, minister of communications, have resigned from the cabinet. Their resignations have been accepted. The resignation of Marquis Saionyi, the prime minister, has been refused.

It is understood that differences exist over the budget which are irreconcilable.

The Saionyi ministry has been meeting with growing opposition throughout the country, particularly because of the reductions made by its appropriations for development purposes.

The elections in Japan are approaching and the opposition has been endeavoring to arouse strong sentiment against the cabinet by a newspaper campaign, attacking principally the government's policy of increasing taxation.

Distrust Over $20,000,000 Error.

The financial program was formally settled at a meeting of the council of elder statesmen, held Dec. 17. It was one of retrenchment and involved a reduction in the expenses of the army and navy for the next six years, whereby the government will save $200,000,000.

As soon as this program became known the opposition made vigorous preparations to fight it in the diet. Other reports declared that a miscalculation of $20,000,000 in the budget had aroused widespread distrust in the financial policy of the Saionyi ministry.

BUILD UP CASE OF INSANITY.

Witnesses Tell of Thaw's Eccentricities and of Insanity in Family.

New York, Jan. 16.—The attorneys for Harry K. Thaw at his trial yesterday began relentlessly to build up the case of legal insanity which they have interposed in his behalf as a defense for the killing of Stanford White. The two principal witnesses of the day were Prof. Charles H. Koehler of Winona, Minn., who acted as instructor to Thaw in the Wooster (Ohio) university in 1886, and Mrs. Amy Grosette of San Mateo, Cal., who attended Thaw as a trained nurse at Monte Carlo in 1897. They both told of the young man's eccentricities and declared that his manner always was irrational.

Dr. John T. Deemar of Kittanning, Pa., one of the Thaw family physicians, also was heard, as were the attendant physicians of three institutions for the insane where members of Thaw's family on both paternal and maternal sides were confined. District Attorney Jerome, by unexpectedly invoking the sacred privilege of physician and patient, blocked much of the testimony as to unsoundness of mind in the Thaw family, but the calling of the witnesses and the questions they were allowed by the court to answer left the desired impression on the jury.

Girl Skaters Fall In.

Appleton, Wis., Jan. 16.—While skating on the Fox river Miss Lydia Helwig and Miss Mary Kichbush, a teacher in the Evangelical Lutheran school at Kaukauna, went through the ice. They were saved from drowning by two boys.

SAY THAW WAS IRRATIONAL

Witnesses Testify That Defendant Was Mentally Unsound—Much New Testimony.

New York, Jan. 16. — Adhering strictly to their promise to interpose no other defense than that of insanity in behalf of their client, the attorneys representing Harry K. Thaw, at his trial yesterday continued the examination of witnesses who swore that young Thaw at various times in his life appeared to them as irrational and mentally unsound. Practically all of the testimony was entirely new to the case and had to do with acts down to the day of the tragedy itself. Then came the declaration of the ten men who sat on the coroner's jury during the inquiry into Stanford White's death, all of whom declared that the defendant the day following the shooting acted irrationally. His manner and appearance were such as to cause the inquest jury to discuss his state of mind after their formal verdict had been rendered.

In the day's testimony there was more delving into the history of the Thaw family, Alfred Lee Thaw of Richmond, Va., a third cousin of the defendant, taking the stand and telling of the taint of insanity which had caused his father and brother to die in state asylums.

CANADIAN QUESTION SETTLED.

Immigration Arrangement With Japan Is Satisfactory.

Tokio, Jan. 16.—The Canadian immigration question has been settled. The Japanese government has received notice that the report of Rodolphe Lemieux, Canadian minister of labor, is entirely satisfactory to the Canadian government, and that it would accept in good faith the verbal promise of restriction of the emigration of laborers, relying upon the Japanese government to enforce the regulations that are outlined in its memorandum.

Nothing now remains except the exchange of memoranda between the two governments.

HAMILL CASE STILL PUZZLES.

Mrs. Metcalf Refuses to Explain Why She Shot at Attorney.

Chicago, Jan. 16. — Mrs. Thomas Metcalf, who shot at Samuel R. Hamill, an attorney, in the federal building Tuesday, still refuses to make a statement concerning the incident. She was bound over to the federal grand jury yesterday in bonds of $1,000. Attorney Hamill declares that the trouble arose over a belief of Mrs. Metcalf that he had failed properly to prosecute a claim against a certain estate in St. Louis, which claim, Hamill asserts, he investigated and found worthless.

IS TWICE INDICTED.

New York Banker Is Charged With Illegal Acts.

New York, Jan. 16. — The special grand jury which was sworn in to investigate the conduct of certain banks in New York county returned two indictments yesterday against William R. Montgomery, president of the Hamilton bank. The charges, involving overdrafts and overcertification, have to do, however, with acts alleged to have been committed by Montgomery while he was vice president of the institution.

A SONG TO LYDIA.

I KNEW that you were coming back!
Shall I tell you how?
Today a wild bird swung and sung
On a blossomed bough.
Far and high his greeting rose
'Gainst the sunrise flame,
And all the notes of all his song
Tangled in your name.

I knew that you were coming back!
Shall I tell you why?
Today a new rose broke in bloom
'Neath the noon blue sky.
Rare and red it beckoned me,
Bending as I came,
And all the sweet of all its bloom
Only breathed your name.

I knew that you were coming back!
This is how I knew:
Bird and rose and earth and air
Gave me news of you;
Green leaves merry in the wood,
Glad waves on the sea,
And all the winds of all the world
Sang your name to me!

A WOMAN'S WISH.

WOULD I were lying in a field of clover,
Of clover cool and soft, and soft and sweet,
With dusky clouds on deep skies hanging over,
And scented silence at my head and feet.

Just for one hour to slip the leash of worry
In eager haste from Thought's impatient neck
And watch it coursing, in its heedless hurry
Disdaining wisdom's call or duty's beck!

Ah, it were sweet where clover clumps are meeting
And daisies hiding, so to hide and rest;
No sound except my own heart's steady beating,
Rocking itself to sleep within my breast.

Just to lie there, filled with the deeper breathing
That comes of listening to a wild bird's song!
Our souls require at times this full unsheathing—
All swords will rust if scabbard-kept too long.

And I am tired—so tired of rigid duty,
So tired of all my tired hands find to do!
I yearn, I faint, for some of life's free beauty,
Its loose beads with no straight string running through.

Aye, laugh, if you will, at my crude speech,
But women sometimes die of such a greed—
Die for the small joys held beyond their reach
And the assurance they have all they need!
—Mary Ashley Townsend.

Seen at Big State Fairs.

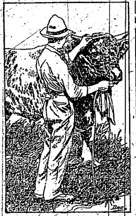
Reviewing the cattle section of the huge Minnesota state fair, the giant exponent of the great northwest, the Breeder's Gazette, Chicago, from which the cut is reproduced, includes the following in its running comment:

The awards in the class of aged Shorthorn bulls scattered this fair's money and commendation from Kentucky to North Dakota. A contest that will prove memorable in Shorthorn history was waged in this spacious and well appointed arena.

Most of the strong herds at Iowa moved up to Minnesota, where they were not exactly "welcomed with bloody hands to hospitable graves," but where the breeders of the home state gave them all the competition they wanted and then some. But even at that one grand championship went to faroff Kentucky and the other to Missouri.

White Hall Marshal fought his way to another championship, winning in the aged class over the beautiful white Bapton Favorite, which wants only some filling of the bottom line to give pause to nearly any competitor.

Memory does not recall such unanimous favor for a cow denied as was freely manifested for the beautiful roan three-year-old Dorothea H., which was left down in third position. She was the only one fit to the minute in the ring. The others had dipped too often in the meal tub or else had been too long divorced from it. She stands a trifle from the ground, and the judge is notably fond of the low legged ones and hence got her wrongly in mind. Much of the massiveness inheres in his first choice, the roan Woodhill May Blossom II., but there is a lack of finish at both ends and a somewhat sagging top line against her.



MAKING UP FOR THE SHOW RING.

One of the most interesting exhibits of the company was the red Marchioness IV., the Van Horne cow that was at the front in the Winnipeg show. Here is such perfection of Shorthorn type that, soft as her flesh is, we should not have hesitated at ranking her next to the top.

It need not be recalled that comment is current to the effect that the fat show bulls are "no account;" that they cannot sire calves and are so "bagged out" that they are useless and of no value as stock getters. Not a few people of limited observation and cross eyed reasoning are wont to descant eloquently to this effect. Among the fourteen clinking good heifer calves in this exhibit five out of the six places (all of them but the fifth place) fell to calves sired by that very fat bull Princeps IV., many times champion.

At the Big Buckeye.

"The 'Ohio Idea' is one of education—to teach, to show, to illustrate by graphic example. At Columbus there is this year, as is usual, graphic example of how best to do the best things." Thus neatly Joseph E. Wing sums up in the Breeder's Gazette, Chicago, his impression of the big Buckeye fair, but he adds, among other remarks:

The defect in the management of this fair was one so familiar that men have forgotten to see it any more, the failure to mark or catalogue animals so that any intelligent study of them could be made. Ohio is no worse sinner in this respect than some other states. The writer, wandering in the horse barn searching for a particular animal, overheard this from a man who, with his wife, was seeking to learn something: "I can't tell anything about them. There is no one around to tell a man anything." Turning to the writer, he asked: "I want to see the Belgians and to compare them with the Percherons, and I wish to find one Percheron especially."

It is nearly as bad in the cattle barns. If not catalogues, why not simple, plain, but good sized cards announcing names of owners, name of animal, breed and age? Would not more men go to fairs if they could really study the animals with any comfort or understanding?

In Iowa.

The Shorthorn show at the Iowa state fair has been declared to be the best ever seen on American soil. Professor Curtiss, dean of the Iowa state college, is quoted by an exchange as saying that it probably has never been surpassed even in England, the home of the Shorthorns. Exhibitors from Kansas, Wisconsin, Kentucky, Missouri, Ohio and Iowa warmly contested the ribbons. A new class, Iowa Specials, was crowded. This was for Iowa bred stuff only.

Wanted His Money's Worth.

"Have you any choice as to the wedding march?" asked the church organist.

"The wedding march?" echoed the father of the bride.

"Yes; the march that is played when the bridal procession moves down the aisle. Which one would you prefer—Mendelssohn's or the march from 'Lohengrin?'"

"Any difference in the expense?"

"Oh, no!"

"Then play the one that's the longest."

ANCIENT BOWS.

That of the Scythians Was In the Form of the Letter C.

While universally used by the ancients, the form of the bow varied with different nations. The Scythian bow was in the form of the letter C, and the bow of the Tartars, descendants of the Scythians, still keeps that shape.

The Greek bow was not more than three or four feet in length, but so stout and stiff that it required considerable strength and skill to use it. It is said that the first Greek bows were made from the horns of a species of goat, the bases being united by means of a metallic band. Afterward other material was used in their manufacture, but they still retained their original shape. These bows were too short to be of much use, and, comparatively speaking, but a small portion of the troops were armed with them.

The Romans carried the bow to Britain, where it at once obtained favor and during the middle ages was extensively used, forming an important element of the armies of that period.

The English archers were said to be the finest in the world, and their skill decided the battles of Crecy, Poitiers and Agincourt. The bows used were of two kinds—the long bow and the arbalest, or crossbow. The arbalest was made of steel or horn and was of such strength and stiffness that it was necessary to use some mechanical appliance to bend it and adjust the string. The arbalestiers carried a quiver with fifty arrows and were placed in the van of the battle.

FELLOW SUFFERERS.

Each Had Throat Trouble Just Like the Other.

As the commuter who always boarded the train at Paradise Hills seated himself he was conscious that the young man next him looked at him with some curiosity as they exchanged good mornings. For the first few minutes neither one spoke; then the young man broke the ice. "You have a delicate throat, I see," he said commiseratingly. "I used to be bothered that way myself."

The commuter hesitated. There was something about his seat mate which invited confidence.

"Have you been married long?" he asked, with apparent irrelevance.

"Not so very," admitted the young man. "Why?"

The commuter cautiously loosened the bandage round his throat and, turning toward his companion, displayed an absurd looking, polka dotted tie.

"We've been married less than a year," he muttered; "and she gave me six for my birthday."

The hand of his seat mate grasped his in a cordial, sympathetic grip.

"I thought so," he said. "It's only a year since I had my attack of throat trouble."—Youth's Companion.

Blowing the Nose.

Medical experts are calling the attention of the public to the importance of performing the nose blowing operation in a scientific and hygienic manner. First one nostril and then the other should be blown without undue violence. Doctors state that the two nasal passages should never be closed at the same time. If they are obstructed, as in the case of a cold, the back of the throat is filled with compressed air, and this, together with the discharge and the microbes which it contains, may be driven through the eustachian tube into the middle ear and lead to serious results. A great authority on the subject used to forbid his patients to blow their noses when suffering from a cold. The course is hardly one which will commend itself to those in the habit of catching colds. The best advice would seem to be that when it is necessary to blow the nose blowing should be done gently.—London Mail.

MY BOOKS.

THEY dwell in an odor of camphor,
They stand in a Sheraton shrine,
They are warranted "early editions,"
These worshipful tomes of mine.

IN their creamy "Oxford vellum,"
In their redolent "crushed levant,"
With their delicate watered linings,
They are jewels of price, I grant.

BLIND tooled and morocco jointed,
They have Zaehnsdorf's daintiest dress;
They are graceful, attenuate, polished,
But they gather the dust no less.

FOR the row that I prize is yonder,
Away on the unglazed shelves,
The bulged and bruised octavos,
The dear and dumpy twelves—

MONTAIGNE with his sheepskin blistered,
And Howell the worse for wear,
And the worm drilled Jesuit's Horace,
And little old chopped Moliere,

AND the Burton I bought for a florin,
And the Rabelais foxed and flea'd—
For the rest I have never opened,
But these are the books I read.
—Austin Dobson.

THE IRISH PIPES.

I HEARD the piper playing,
The piper old and blind,
And knew its secret saying—
The voice of the summer wind.

I heard clear waters falling,
Lapping from stone to stone;
The wood dove crying and calling,
Ever alone, alone!

I heard the bells of the heather
Ring in the summer breeze,
Soft stir of fir and feather
And quiet hum of bees.

The piper drew me yearning
Into the dim gray lands
Where there is no returning,
Although I wring my hands.

There to the piper's crooning
I saw my dead again,
All in a happy nooning
Of golden sun and rain.

You piper kind and hoary,
Your pipes upon your knee,
If I should tell my story
The things you piped for me,

The folk would leave their selling,
And bid their buying go,
If I could but be telling
The things you let me know.
—Katharine Tynan.

DOUBT.

IN love, if love be love, if love be ours,
Faith and unfaith can ne'er be equal powers.
Unfaith in aught is want of faith in all.
It is the little rift within the lute
That by and by will make the music mute
And ever widening slowly silence all.
—Alfred Tennyson.

CREED AND CROWN.

A CREED is a rod,
And a crown is of night;
But this thing is God:
To be man with thy might,
To grow straight in the strength of thy spirit
And live out thy life as the light.

About a year ago Henry Houpt, the well known River Falls farmer, informed us that if the Spectator continued to publish the names, each month, of all creamery patrons who drew a check of fifty or more dollars we might as well keep his name in type as he intended to beat that figuring each and every month during the year. The boast was not an idle one and Mr. Houpt's name has appeared in the list every month and to make it good and strong the December report published this week shows that he draws a check of $113.10 for the month. There is no reason why others cannot do equally as well.

A Mail Order Bride

The story comes from Plummer that John M. Anderson, the Mayfield farmer who recently advertised and secured a mail order bride, caught a tartar.

The girl arrived on the early Wednesday morning train at Plummer. Her name was Miss Jessie Perry and she hailed from Milwaukee. They were married that morning, all of Plummer assisting. They had a row in the afternoon and the blushing bride made an application for a divorce and left on the ten o'clock train. It looks to us as if John had been stung.

Wonderful Peacock Throne

The throne of Persia, known as the Wonderful Peacock Throne, is probably the most costly throne in the world. It is literally covered with jewels, and is valued at between two and three million pounds. A Cure For Smallpox

Edward Hine, a correspondent of the Liverpool Mercury says:

"I am willing to risk my reputation as a public man if the worst case of smallpox cannot be effectually cured in three days simply by cream of tartar. This is the sure and never failing remedy. One ounce of cream of tarter dissolved in a pint of water to be drank when cold at short intervals. It can be taken at any time, and is preventive as well as curative. It is known to have cured in a hundred cases without failure. I have myself restored hundreds by this means. It never leaves a mark, never causes blindness, and always prevents tedious lingering. If the people would only try it and report all the cures to you, you would require to employ many columns if you gave them publicity."

DECEMBER REPORT

Of the St. Hilaire Creamery Association Giving the Amount of Business Done During the Month.

The creamery paid 33c per pound for butter fat for the month of December. This makes six months during the year of 1907 that the price of 30c or over has been paid, and this is for the months of January, February, March, September, November, and December, showing that the dairymen that can get their cows to do as well in January as in June are the ones that are getting the gold.

Total amount of business done in December was $2,721.97.

The $50 List.

H. Houpt, $113.10.
A. Mortenson, $59.83.
John Konikson, $57.35.
Aug. Swanson, $55.87.
Peter Johnson, $51.35.
N. E. Beebe, $54.12.
Emil Just, $50.42.

JEFFERS IMPROVING

Red Lake Falls Man Visited Him This Week and States That He is in Fine Spirits and is Getting Along Nicely—I. O. O. F. Lodge and Others Raise Large Purse for Him.

Says the Red Lake Falls Gazette:

Fred Borchers was over to Blackduck the latter part of last week to see Frank Jeffers and look after his wants as a representative of the local I. O. O. F. Lodge. Fred reports the injured man in fine spirits and doing nicely, and says it will be but a short time until he may remove to his home in Crookston. Everything possible is being done by the Odd Fellows and numerous friends for the relief of the unfortunate man, and liberal donations have been extended by all. The citizens of Red Lake Falls made up a purse of $125, the firemen at their meeting Monday night voted him $100, and the Odd Fellows sent a check for $75 besides the weekly offering allowed by the by-laws of the order. All our people sympathize with the unfortunate man and are ready to extend aid in the time of need to a citizen so highly respected as was Frank Jeffers and his family.

Thief River Items

From the Press.

Dr. Crandell has sufficiently recovered from his recent illness to be able to again do his office work and is about his duties as before.

Receipts of cream at the creamery are increasing since the first of the year and a gradual increase in receipts is looked for right along from now forward. On Monday 23 tubs of butter were shipped to Spokane at the prevailing price of 28½ cents per pound.

The register of deeds in Red Lake county has not such a "fat" office as some people have been lead to think. E. L. Quist has just filed his sworn statement for the past year, covering all the receipts of the office, and this shows that he received for recording, $2355.85; for abstracting, $580.05, a total of $2935.90. Out of this, clerk hire and incidentals amounting to approximately $900 had to be paid.

A new post office just established in Red Lake County is called Mavie, and is located eight miles east of this city on the telephone road. C. P. Quist is postmaster. For the present the office will be supplied with mail three times a week, but later it is hoped that a daily mail will be secured by getting the Germantown route changed to go by the new office.

Lowering the blackboards during vacation in all rooms except the high school room brought them down to where the pupils can make better use of them.

A January Morning.
(By Gilbert Strom. 4th grade)

Now the snow birds are flying over the snow.

They have just come from their hiding places.

The sun is just beginning to shine through the frost-covered pines.

The owls have stopped their hooting and gone to sleep in the thick forest.

A squirrel and a blue jay are now and then seen jumping about.

The rabbits have stopped running about and have sought their hiding places where they hide through the day.

My Christmas Vacation.
(By Olga Fricker.)

We did not have a Christmas tree, but papa went into the woods and chopped down a small poplar tree and he took it home and we trimmed it up and we lighted its candles at night. That was our Christmas tree.

Every night we played games and sang songs.

On Christmas eve washed the dishes and then papa told us to go upstairs and then we would see what Santa Claus would bring us. So we went upstairs and then Santa Claus came in and put the presents on the table and when he went out he rapped on the stairway door, and asked mamma where we were, but she wouldn't tell, so Santa Claus said, "Good night", and went out.

Then papa and mamma called us down stairs to see what Santa Claus brought us.

I got a doll and a handkerchief box to put my handkerchiefs in and sister got a doll and a rocking chair, and sister Alice got a chair and a doll, and a bead's chain.

On New Year's eve we wanted to see who was going to say "Happy New Year" first. Mamma and and papa were the ones to say "Happy New Year" first

We went sliding and skating down the hill.

I had lots of fun during Christmas, but I was glad when school started.

Silk Manufacture.

From all accounts silk manufacture originated in China. Chinese tradition has it that the Emperor Foh Li taught his people the art of cultivating the silkworm as early as 5000 B. C. Spain was the first European country to receive the silkworms, the Arab conquerors introducing them about the tenth century, probably from their home on the borders of Persia. The foundation of the silk industry in France dates from the year 1510, when Francis I. imported silk workers from Milan.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

An Uncertain Compliment.

James J. Hill, the railway magnate, on a recent visit to Kansas City, said of a certain rise in stock quotations:

"It looks well, but I am afraid it is dubious. Yes, it is dubious. It reminds me of the Turkish bashaw and his wife.

"A Turkish bashaw lay dying. He summoned to him the youngest and fairest of his forty-six wives, and said to her in a low, weak voice:

"'Put on your richest costume, your most brilliant jewels. Deck your hair with pearls, brighten your finger tips with henna.'

"The young wife blushed. Even in her grief she was flattered.

"'And why, my lord,' she said, 'do you desire me to make this sumptuous toilet?'

"'So that Death, when he comes,' the man replied, 'seeing you so very beautiful, may perhaps carry you off instead of me.'"

NATURE AND A WOMAN'S WORK

LYDIA E. PINKHAM

Nature and a woman's work combined have produced the grandest remedy for woman's ills that the world has ever known.

In the good old-fashioned days of our grandmothers they relied upon the roots and herbs of the field to cure disease and mitigate suffering.

The Indians on our Western Plains to-day can produce roots and herbs for every ailment, and cure diseases that baffle the most skilled physicians who have spent years in the study of drugs.

From the roots and herbs of the field Lydia E. Pinkham more than thirty years ago gave to the women of the world a remedy for their peculiar ills, more potent and efficacious than any combination of drugs.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is now recognized as the standard remedy for woman's ills.

Mrs. Bertha Muff, of 515 N.C. St., Louisiana, Mo., writes:

"Complete restoration to health means so much to me that for the sake of other suffering women I am willing to make my troubles public.

"For twelve years I had been suffering with the worst forms of female ills. During that time I had eleven different physicians without help. No tongue can tell what I suffered, and at times I could hardly walk. About two years ago I wrote Mrs. Pinkham for advice. I followed it, and can truly say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Mrs. Pinkham's advice restored health and strength. It is worth mountains of gold to suffering women."

What Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for Mrs. Muff, it will do for other suffering women.

The Lines of Age.

The rich Miss Passaye's thin lips closed firmly.

"No, Mr. Goldhunter," sre said. "A thousand times, no. Indeed, I am surprised that you should have risked a proposal. I should think you could have read your rejection in my face."

Charles Goldhunter rose at once.

"But," he said, "I am not very good at reading between the lines."

And laughing harshly, he lighted a cigarette and passed out into the raging snowstorm.

A Religious Jokesmith.

A stickler for the good old ways, which we all admit to be the best, dropped in from church to see a writer.

To the great surprise and horror of the Sunday visitor the writer was at work. The cheery click, click of the typewriter sounded from his den.

"Oh, my dear man," exclaimed the shocked caller, "you have not so far forgotten your early training as to be composing on Sunday?"

"Oh, my dear, only jokes—and they are jokes on religious subjects."

No Dispute.

A man and his wife were airing their troubles on the sidewalk one Saturday evening when a good Samaritan intervened.

"See here, my man," he protested, "this sort of thing won't do."

"What business is it of yours, I'd like to know?" snarled the man, turning from his wife.

"It's only my business in so far as I can be of help in settling this dispute," answered the Samaritan mildly.

"This ain't no dispute," growled the man.

"No dispute! But, my dear friend—"

"I tell you it ain't no dispute," insisted the man. "She"—jerking his thumb toward the woman—"thinks she ain't goin' to get my week's wages, and I know darn well she ain't. Where's the dispute in that?"

Resurrection.

With a start the humorist awoke.

A tall figure, gray and faintly luminous, stood at his bedside. And from the cold, damp air (as from an open vault) that pervaded the room, the man knew well his visitant was no earthly one.

"Who—who are you?" he faltered.

In hollow tones the apparition answered:

"I am the leap year joke. Since 1904 I have lain in my forgotten grave. To-night, inspired with hope, I come to you. It rests with you to resurrect me. Will you do so?"

"Will I?" cried the humorist.

And turning on the light, he hopped from bed with a great, glad cry, took pen and paper and a lot of bound periodicals dated four years back, and at last accounts was still writing away busily.

Biggest Man in the House.

Cy Sulloway of New Hampshire still retains his place as the biggest man in the house of representatives, and so far on one has appeared that may claim honor to second place ahead or Ollie James of Kentucky.

Sulloway is something more than six and a half feet tall and weighs a pound less than 350. His breadth is proportionate with his height, and he towers above his colleague, Frank D. Currier, as he does above most all the members of the house. He is one of the members who does not exercise his prerogative of taking his luncheon on that side of the house restaurant where the sign proclaims "for members only, but each day partakes of a sparing lunch on the public side of the room, where negroes are not barred and where the motto is that anybody's money is good.

RAILROAD MAN

Didn't Like Being Starved.

A man running on a railroad has to be in good condition all the time or he is liable to do harm to himself and others.

A clear head is necessary to run a locomotive or conduct a train. Even a railroad man's appetite and digestion are matters of importance, as the clear brain and steady hand result from the healthy appetite followed by the proper digestion of food.

"For the past five years," writes a railroader, "I have been constantly troubled with indigestion. Every doctor I consulted seemed to want to starve me to death. First I was dieted on warm water and toast until I was almost starved; then, when they would let me eat, the indigestion would be right back again.

"Only temporary relief came from remedies, and I tried about all of them I saw advertised. About three months ago a friend advised me to try Grape-Nuts food. The very first day I noticed that my appetite was satisfied, which had not been the case before, that I can remember.

"In a week, I believe, I had more energy than ever before in my life. I have gained seven pounds and have not had a touch of indigestion since I have been eating Grape-Nuts. When my wife saw how much good this food was doing me she thought she would try it awhile. We believe the discoverer of Grape-Nuts found the 'Perfect Food.'"

The State Day by Day

LESSONS FOR REAL FARMERS.

Short Course at State School Is Practical One.

"I wouldn't for $200 give up what I've learned," said an enthusiastic student in the farmers' short course, which opened Friday morning at the state agricultural school. Saturday afternoon 126 men and one woman had enrolled for the six weeks' course which Principal D. D. Mayne describes as the cream of the state school's three-year course. The attendance last year did not exceed eighty-five.

The students are farmers who during the dull winter months find time to come to St. Paul to learn how to get more out of the soil. Several of the men are more than fifty years old. One is an expert swine breeder, who has come to learn more in his line. All are acquainted with the practical problems of farming and follow that for their occupation. The average age is twenty-five.

The course consists of two weeks' judging of stock and grain and four weeks of lecture work by the professors in the state school. The regular work of the school is carried on in addition to the large class in the short course. The course in judging includes the manner of determining the best seed stock for corn, wheat and other grains. The desirable points in horses, cows, sheep and swine are noted and the students are taught how to produce them. The design of the course is to show the farmers of the state how they can do their work better, how they can produce better results. It is a school distinctively for Minnesotans, as the conditions of this state are specially emphasized in dealing with the production of the various products of the farm. The soil of the state is taken into consideration as well as the climate. Most students are from this state, although several from Wisconsin and the Dakotas are also enrolled.

A series of lectures specially designed for farmers' wives have been prepared and announced in the bulletin issued concerning the short course, but only one woman applied for enrollment and she desired to take the full course in judging and regular-term lectures, so that the course, which included entomology, botany, horticulture and poultry, will be reserved for another year. Last year three women enrolled.

"The course is designed to be as practical as possible," said D. D. Mayne, principal of the school. "It is planned to meet the desires of mature men who are busy on the farm the major part of the year. There is no entrance requirements and there is no examination at the end of the course. Every man is expected to get as much as he can for himself."

A fee of $10 includes the total expense for the instruction for the six weeks' course.

ANNUAL REPORTS ARE MADE.

Minnesota Officials Send in Statements of 1907 Work.

Annual reports poured in upon Gov. Johnson and to his secretary. The governor received the report of the Minnesota state board of examiners in optometry, the report of the surveyor general for the Second district, the report of the state inspector of apiaries and the state librarian's report.

C. A. Snell of Minneapolis, in submitting the seventh annual report of the state board of examiners in optometry, reports that at the annual election C. C. Staacke of Duluth was chosen president and himself secretary of the board. The total membership on Jan. 1, 1907, was 235, and during the year 21 members were added and 3 reinstated, while 11 had their membership revoked, leaving the total membership on Dec. 31, 1907, 348.

William Russell state inspector of apiaries, reports visiting 419 apiaries and placing under quarantine those he found diseased, thus preventing the sale of bees or honey. A cure was suggested in each case. Inspector Russell hopes that by the time his next annual report is due the number of diseased apiaries will be far less. Apiaries were reported as diseased in the following counties: St. Louis, Benton, Sherburne, Stearns, Wright, Carver, Hennepin, Ramsey and Dakota.

Fred E. Wheaton, surveyor general for the second district, reports 364,494,096 feet of logs were sawed. In classifying the manufactured logs he divided them into lumber, shingles and laths, estimating that 466,474,555 feet were sawed into lumber and that of this amount 214,192,392 feet were sawed in Minneapolis. Of the 13,283,750 shingles, 2,500,000 were manufactured in Minneapolis, while 37,883,200 laths were manufactured in the rest of the state.

STATE HEALTH BOARD.

At the annual meeting of the state board of health in St. Paul, Dr. Henry Hutchinson of St. Paul and Dr. J. B. McCaughey of Winona were re-elected president and vice president, respectively. Dr. Hutchinson has been president of the board for four years.

The matter of the distribution of free vaccine was taken up, but no action taken until the financial side of it could be ascertained. Free vaccine was decided upon at a previous meeting.

It was decided, by the board that hereafter membraneous croup should be classed and quarantined the same as diphtheria.

Ferdinand Benzel, an ex-saloonkeeper of Good Thunder, lost confidence in banks and withdrew his deposits during the financial flurry. By gradually increasing the wad assumed goodly proportions and the tempting wallet, containing an even $440, is now missing. Some thrifty associates recently are said to be under suspicion but the roll is not in evidence.

TEACHERS END THEIR SESSION.

Sections Meeting Wind Up the Annual Gathering.

After one of the most successful gatherings in its history, the forty-fifth annual meeting of the Minnesota Educational association closed at St. Paul Saturday, when the last of the sections met and elected officers. The educators of Minnesota, it is evident, are returning to the various parts of the state firmly convinced that the civic content of the public school curriculum is in dire need of being remodeled. The emphasis laid on the more essential subjects of education, those which will prepare the student for the struggle of life, has been such during the convention that it will be remembered by all. The need of affording a business training, an industrial training or a drilling in the principles of elementary agriculture, has been made apparent to those who have followed the speakers closely. The abandonment of the strictly "cultural subjects" has been advocated, but there has been, however, an opposition to this in that a strong appeal was made for the rentention of the classic languages in the high school courses.

The convention, which opened Wednesday afternoon, has been largely attended, probably larger than ever before. The program of papers, following the theme announced, has met with general approval and developed a line of thought which has long been waiting. The musical feature of the convention was greatly appreciated by visitors to the city.

FRESH AIR IN SCHOOL.

State Superintendent Is Starting a Crusade.

The state department of public instruction is planning to secure an improvement in the conditions of the schools of the state so far as ample and properly regulated supply of fresh air is concerned, and Supt. J. W. Olsen has just sent out to the school authorities a letter on this subject. Beginning next year, the regulations with respect to this matter will be more strict, and this letter advises the authorities to prepare for compliance with such regulations. The letter follows:

"All who have given the matter thought agree it is exceedingly important that the pupils be supplied with plenty of fresh air, heated properly, and distributed through all parts of the room, without causing dangerous drafts.

"Every county superintendent should provide himself with an anemometer that he may measure scientifically and exactly the amount of fresh air admitter, and of foul air emitted by the heating and ventilating apparatus of each schoolroom, and be able to give the school board accurate data for determining its efficiency or defects. The cost of such an instrument should be allowed by the county commissioners, for it constitutes just as valid a claim against the county as the stationery and postage of the county superintendent.

"After this year applications for state aid will require county superintendents to furnish results of complete anemometer tests in each instance."

NEW FOOD LABELS.

E. K. Slater Makes State Regulations Conform to United States Laws.

E. K. Slater, the state dairy and food commissioner, has just completed the preparation of a new set of rules and regulations relating to the manufacture and labeling of food products for sale in this state.

These new regulations, which will go into effect Feb. 1, have been arranged so as to conform to the regulations issued by the federal government in order to avoid unnecessary restrictions and expense upon the manufacturer.

Heretofore the requirements of the state law often differed from those of the federal statutes in regard to labels, which make it necessary for manufacturers outside the state to place two labels upon goods shipped into Minnesota. By adjusting these differences it is hoped to make the federal and state regulations identical, thus requiring only one label.

"SECTION 16" AGAIN.

Chris Burns of Cass Lake was appointed chairman of the county board for the ensuing year. The county board granted a petition for an election for the purpose of organizing a new village, to be known as Cass City, adjoining the present village of Cass Lake, and comprising the famous "section 16." A portion of the proposed new village is already in the village of Cass Lake, having been added to that corporation nearly a year ago. The petitioners, however, assert that the proceedings were illegal. A long legal battle is promised.

NEW COURSES MAPPED OUT.

Engineering Faculty at "U" Provides Extra Studies for Longer Course.

Economics, political science, modern languages and the other elective course are to be offered the engineering students at the University of Minnesota as the culture subjects in the new five-year course which will be put into force next September. One year's work will be required in each of the first two, and two years for the modern language.

Repeated protests made by the students in that college against a too heavy burden of work will be answered by spreading the work in mathematics, pure and applied, over four years, instead of three, as at present. It was in that subject especially that the men said they had too much to do. The fifth year of the course will be devoted to experimental work, without the mathematics, as is at present done during the fourth year.

James Ryder Randall of Augusta, Ga., famous as a war poet, is dead after an illness of a few days.

The General Demand

of the Well-Informed of the World has always been for a simple, pleasant and efficient liquid laxative remedy of known value; a laxative which physicians could sanction for family use because its component parts are known to them to be wholesome and truly beneficial in effect, acceptable to the system and gentle, yet prompt, in action.

In supplying that demand with its excellent combination of Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna, the California Fig Syrup Co. proceeds along ethical lines and relies on the merits of the laxative for its remarkable success.

That is one of many reasons why Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna is given the preference by the Well-Informed. To get its beneficial effects always buy the genuine—manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., only, and for sale by all leading druggists. Price fifty cents per bottle.

Prejudice.

"Robert, this spelling paper is very poor," complained the small boy's teacher. "Nearly every word is marked wrong."

"It wouldn't have been so bad," protested Robert, "but Annie corrected my paper, and she's mad at me, and for every little letter that I got wrong, she crossed out the whole word."

Baby Had Severe Attack—Grandfather Suffered Torments with It—Owe Recovery to Cuticura.

"In 1884 my grandson, a babe, had an attack of eczema, and after trying the doctors to the extent of heavy bills and an increase of the disease and suffering, I recommended Cuticura and in a few weeks the child was well. He is to-day a strong man and absolutely free from the disease. A few years ago I contracted eczema, and became an intense sufferer. A whole winter passed without once having on shoes, nearly from the knees to the toes being covered with virulent sores. I tried many doctors to no purpose. CONSPIRACY WAS HATCHED IN PARIS

France Sent Warning of Possible Attempt to Destroy the American Fleet.

MANY REGARD AFFAIR AS MYTH

Brazilian Police Have Arrested Several Suspects—Ship Sails With Explosives.

Paris, Jan. 22.—Reports cabled from Rio Janeiro that the Brazilian authorities were warned from Paris of a possible attempt to blow up the American battleship fleet while in the harbor there are true.

Some time ago certain suspicions indicating the existence of a plot to destroy the whole or a portion of the fleet, either at Rio Janeiro or in the Straits of Magellan, were aroused here and naturally communicated to Rio and Washington.

A chartered steamer was reported to have conveyed explosives for the use of the conspirators to Rio Janeiro, arriving there about the middle of December, and John Fedher, whose name is mentioned in the Rio dispatches, was one of the men whose names were revealed here as implicated in the conspiracy.

Startling but Weak.

The alleged plot is supposed to have some rather startling ramifications, but the evidence along this line is far from conclusive and rests chiefly upon the statement of an individual whose record was subsequently proved to be anything but creditable. Consequently the whole affair is regarded with much skepticism and indeed the presumption has been raised that it may have been a deliberately conceived scare.

In any event it is now believed here that if the plot actually did exist the timely warning and precautions taken have completely frustrated the plans of the conspirators at Rio Janeiro and compelled them to transfer their operations further south, if not to abandon them entirely. The latter hypothesis is considered here to be the most probable.

Only a few people here treated the story seriously; others regarded it as fantastic, while many dismissed the whole affair as a myth.

Vague and Indefinite.

Washington, Jan. 21. — That the American government was cognizant of the existence of the belief of ulterior designs against Admiral Evans' battleships in the harbor of Rio Janeiro was admitted yesterday in administration circles. The news first reached here by way of Paris, where somebody communicated it to the American ambassy.

The intimations contained were vague and indefinite as to details, yet in view of the great importance of the matter and the possibilities which might develop were the officials on the scene not informed, no time was lost in transmitting it to Rio Janeiro.

Police Find Clues.

Rio Janeiro, Jan. 22.—There were further complications yesterday, according to the local police, in the efforts being made to unearth the persons responsible for the alleged plot to destroy part of the American fleet now in this harbor. Several arrests have been made.

The band which is supposed to have organized the plot is made up of foreigners.

Fleet Officers Attend Banquet.

Rio Janeiro, Jan. 22.—The Brazilian minister of foreign affairs, Baron Rio Branco, gave a magnificent banquet last night to the officers of the American fleet. Fully 1,000 persons attended.

IS LYNCHED; MAY LIVE.

Negro Is Taken From Tree by Sheriff and May Recover.

Dothan, Ala., Jan. 22. — The negro, Grover Franklin, who Sunday night was taken away from Sheriff Butler and his deputies and hanged to a tree, is again in the hands of the law and stands a chance of recovery. The mob Sunday night was so closely followed by the officers and law-abiding citizens, determined if possible to avert the lynching, that they did not have time to get their victim outside the corporate limits, and hurriedly stringing him up to the first tree and thinking they had riddled him with bullets, they fled. On the arrival of the officers the negro was still alive and was immediately cut down and placed in the county jail. It is thought he will recover.

SERIOUS RIOTING IN BERLIN

Socialists Make Demonstration and Are Dispersed by Police—Many Are Injured.

Berlin, Jan. 23.—Serious rioting occurred yesterday in the vicinity of the reichstag building, where the Socialists' interpellation regarding the Prussian suffrage system was scheduled to come up. About 4 o'clock in the afternoon some 2,000 persons, mostly unemployed men and half-grown boys, marched through the streets intending to reach the reichstag, but found the bridges over the Spree strongly occupied by police, who soon summoned a mounted division to assist in dispersing the crowd.

The crowd then assembled at a point nearest the reichstag building, on the opposite bank of the river, from which they kept up a prolonged hooting The police attempted to disperse the demonstrators by pushing them along and driving them into the side streets. When a part of the mob reached the new opera house now under course of construction they found piles of bricks and they began to hurl bricks at the police, who thereupon drew their sabers, striking here and there among the rioters with the flat of the blade. A boy fired a pistol, the bullet striking a policeman, but not seriously injuring him. Workmen in the upper stories of the theater threw brickbats down upon the police, who in turn charged savegely upon those of the rioters that they could reach. After the fight a large number of rioters were unable to move, having been too severely wounded by the officers.

BAN ON WOMAN SMOKERS.

This question was definitely settled, for the present at least, by the board of aldermen yesterday, when an ordinance directed against women smoking in public places was adopted. JAP LABORERS TO BE KEPT AT HOME

Government of Japan Will Inquire Into Standing of All Coming to America.

WILL APPLY ALSO TO MEXICO

Foreign Minister Hayashi Makes Statement Regarding Emigration Question.

Tokio, Jan. 23.—Viscount Hayashi, Japanese minister of foreign affairs, in an interview, made a statement concerning the emigration question which may be considered as an official declaration of the attitude of the government, it having been prepared for publication in Japan, anticipating a similar statement in the diet. Minister Hayashi said:

"The government of Japan is determined to investigate the personal standing of those who go to America as students, requiring two sureties before they leave. The government realizes that the emigration of laborers pretending to be students is liable to be embarrassing to America, and, therefore, we are determined to prevent the emigration of laborers.

Laborers Will Be Excluded.

"While the proposed restrictions may be embarrassing to real students, all legal restrictions will be made alike because one dishonest person may embarrass many who are honest.

"Although the negotiations with America have not yet been concluded, I may make the definite statement, as minister of foreign affairs, that the rumors which have been circulated to the effect that any important question is pending between America and Japan is a fabrication, originating in a certain section of the United States.

May Prohibit Emigration.

"Should emigation to Hawaii not be prevented entirely the minister of foreign affairs will not hesitate to entirely prohibit Japanese emigration to those sections. The foreign office intends to prohibit emigration to Mexico. Those who desire to send emigrants to Mexico will be regarded as assisting emigrants to enter the United States through the frontier, and, therefore, they will be treated as lawbreakers."

WARSHIP SENT TO HAITI.

Because of Disturbed Condition Cruiser Des Moines Goes to Haiti.

Washington, Jan. 23.—Because of the disturbed conditions in Haiti, and as a guarantee for the protection of American interests, it has been decided to dispatch the cruiser Des Moines to that island, with her headquarters in the vicinity of the troubled section. The guboat Eagle, Capt. Marvel commanding, now at St. Marie, will look after the protection of those interests until the arrival of cruiser, when she will resume he: survey work around the coast.

The immediate reason for the increase of the naval force in Haitien waters was the receipt of a dispatch yesterday from Capt. Marvell, which in addition to reporting the fact that St. Marc had been retaken by the government forces, added that a number of buildings had been burned and that the property of an American had suffered. The Des Moines will reach Port au Prince about Feb. 1. She is now on her way from Boston to New York, and will take aboard her regular supply of ammunition at the latter place and at Norfolk, Va., on her way to Haiti. The Des Moines is in command of Capt. J. M. Potts.

"RAID" SHONTS HOME.

Customs Officials Find Dutiable Goods in House.

New York, Jan. 23.—Dutiable goods valued at between $1,200 and $1,500, upon which no duty was paid when they were brought in from Europe by Mrs. Theodore Shonts and her daughter, were found by Customs officials who made a search in the Shots residence Monday. This statement was made yesterday by a respresentative of Mr. Shonts authorized to tell of the results of the investigation. It was said at the same time, however, that no effort at concealment had been made when the family arrived; that the twenty trunks which they brought in were thoroughly examined by the customs officers at that time, and that the only reason duty was not paid was because none had been assessed.

SAILORS WON HEARTS OF ALL

Friendships Made and Sympathies Won Which Will Have Far-reaching Effect.

Rio Janero, Jan. 23.—To the booming of guns and the cheers of thousands on the accompanying pleasure craft, the American warships sailed from Rio Janeiro yesterday afternoon, bound for Punta Arenas, on the Magellan straits. Ten days will bring the fleet almost midway on its 14,000-mile cruise to San Francisco, and the ships and the men carried with them yesterday the Godspeed and good wishes of the whole Brazilian nation.

Not an untoward incident had marked the visit of the Americans here.

Given Noisy Farewell.

They were feasted and feted, both officers and men, during their sojourn in Rio, and half the population turned out from early in the morning to give them a fitting farewell.

The president of the republic, Dr. Penna, made a tour of the fleet and then proceeded to a point off Fort Villeganon to watch the departure of the ships.

One by one as they passed the president's yacht they saluted with twenty-one guns, and the forts replied in kind. There was much waving of small flags and handkerchiefs and the cheering seemed incessant. The noisy blowing of a hundred whistles in the steam craft added to the noise. About this time a heavy shower fell, but the majority of the spectators held to their posts until the last warship had disappeared on the horizon.

Won the Hearts of All.

Commenting on the departure of the fleet the Journal of Commerce yesterday said:

"The great procession will soon be set in motion and the fleet will be on its way again, but in the few days of its stay friendships have been made and sympathies won which will have a far-reaching effect in the years to come.

"Come fair weather, come foul, they have won the hearts of the Dazilians, Americans and Englishmen in this city, and as the mighty vessels boom out a parting salute to the sister republic they will take with them the sympathy and good will expressed by her sons in a heartfelt God speed you."

DECLARE STEAMER A PIRATE

Haitien Government Asks Friendly Nations to Attack Vessel Carrying Rebels.

Port au Prince, Jan. 23.—The steamer Vortigern, which sailed from St. Thomas on Jan. 18 with Gen. Firmin, who was the leader of the revolution in Haiti in 1902, and a score of other exiled revolutionists on board, has made several atempts to land them on Haitien soil. The Haitien government has declared the Vortigern a pirate and has called upon all friendly nations to consider her as such and to attack her.

Government troops are concentrated around St. Marc and are preparing to attack Gonaives.

Washington, Jan. 23.—A cablegram was received at the navy department yesterday from Commander Marvill of the U. S. S. Eagle, announcing that he had just arrived at St. Marc from Guantanamo. He found all quiet there and was proceeding at once to Gonaives, three hours distant, to look after American interests there while the city is blockaded.

STEAMERS IN COLLISION.

Amsterdam and Axminster Come Together Near Nieuwe Waterweg.

Rotterdam, Jan. 23.—The steamer Amsterdam, belonging to the Great Easter Railway company, and the British steamer Axminster, from New York Dec. 30 for Rotterdam, collided in a fog last night near Nieuwe Waterweg. The Amsterdam had a great hole stove in her bows, and the water began coming in so fast that the captain decided to lower his boats and transfer his passengers to the Axminster. There is considerable anxiety over the fact that one of the Amsterdam's boats still in unaccounted for. The missing boat is reported to contain a dozen or a score of passengers or numbers of the crew, several women being included.

KILLS MAN AND HERSELF IN CAFE

Murder and Suicide in Crowded New York Restaurant Causes Sensation.

WOMAN A WALKING ARSENAL

Shooting Is Culmination of Quarrel Over Man's Refusal to Renew His Attentions.

New York, Jan. 23.—Armed with three revolvers and sweeping through the crowded restaurant which takes up the eighth floor of Macy's department store and into the gentlemen's cafe yesterday, a tall, stylishly dressed woman bent for a moment over the shoulder of a diner, whispering something in his ear, and then drawing a revolver from her muff emptied the contents of the five chambers into his body.

As her victim, Frank Brady, a newspaper advertising solicitor, slipped lifeless to the floor the woman flung the weapon from her, and, taking a second revolver from her muff, shot herself first in the head and then twice in the breast. She died half an hour later.

Threat to Kill Recalled.

A note found in the woman's purse proved her to be Mrs. Mary Roberts Clark, a manicurist, the widow of a police officer and stepmother of a six-year-old son, Raymond. Brady was thirty years old and the sole support of a helpless aged mother for whom he had made a home.

The shooting was the culmination of a series of violent quarrels, and, according to the woman's intimates, in fulfillment of a threat to murder Brady in a public place "before the world" unless he renewed the attentions which she asserted she received from him when he was less prosperous and she in a position to befried him.
and she in a position to befriend him.

While Mrs. Clark was in prosperous circumstances and before the death of her husband, Brady had lodgings at her home and she declared that she helped him to the success which he subsequently attained. A few months ago he left her house and made a home for his mother, whom he brought here from New Jersey.

Recently Mrs. Clark thought that Brady was avoiding her and when he called at her home occasionally they quarreled.

The shooting was out of the sight of the hundred or more shoppers in the restaurant, but the report of the discharge created consternation and there was a rush for the elevators.

PURDY MAY SUCCEED LOCHREN.

Federal Judgeship, It Is Said, Will Be Vacated Before May 1.

Washington, Jan. 23.—Milton D. Purdy of Minneapolis is said to be slated for Judge Lochren's place on the federal' bench. While no information is obtainable here giving a definite time for the resignation of Judge Lochren of the United States district court, the impression is general among Minnesota people here that it is the purpose of the judge to relinquish his office before May 1.

Gossip about the prospective change is induced here at this time by suggestions among Minnesota people here that it seems to be practically settled that Mr Purdy, at present assistant to the attorney general of the United States in the department of justice, has been slated for the position.

THAW TRIAL IS NEARING END

Defense Begins Examination of Alienists—Mrs. William Thaw Completes Testimony.

New York, Jan. 23.—The end of the second Thaw trial is fast approaching. This was indicated late yesterday when Dr. Charles G. Wagner, the first of the alienists to be called by the defense, took the stand for his preliminary examination. Anthony Comstock, vice president of the Society for the Suppression of Vice, had been heard as a witness earlier in the day and Mrs. William Thaw, mother of the defendant, had completed her testimony. The kindergarten teacher who had charge of Harry Thaw as a lad of six, also testified, and the day marked a long stride toward the conclusion of the celebrated case.

Mr. Comstock's testimony, while new, had been discounted by the known facts of Thaw's appeal to him to assist in closing up the houses where Stanford White was alleged to have maintained elaborately furnished apartments and where young girls were said to have been mistreated.

A dozen letters Thaw wrote to Comstock regarding the matter, giving a detailed description of the Twenty-fourth street house, were admitted in evidence and read to the jury.

JUDGE LOVELY IS WORSE.

Is Able to Discuss Business Matters Only Disconnectedly.

Albert Lea, Minn., Jan. 23.—The condition of Judge John Lovely, who was stricken with partial paralysis of his mental and physical faculties and has been for months in an enfeebled condition, is becoming rapidly worse, and his friends are more than ever alarmed as to the outcome of his illness. He is able to be up part of the time, but it is feared a recurrence of the hemorrhage will end his life at any time. In spite of his sixty-four years Judge Lovely is making a hard fight for life, and at times takes interest in current matters and frequently refers to law cases he has tried, but only in a disconnected manner.

POLICEMAN SHOT DOWN BY BURGLAR

St. Cloud Officer Fatally Shot While Trying to Arrest Thief Caught at Work.

CROWD THREATENS LYNCHING

Two Suspects Arrested and Posse Are in Pursuit of Third—Nine Stores Entered.

St. Cloud, Minn., Jan. 23.—Police Officer Henry Becker, while attempting to arrest a burglar, was shot and fatally wounded at 1 o'clock yesterday morning. He now lies at the point of death in Straphel's hospital. Two men have been caught and are believed to have been in the party. One was arrested at Cable, a village three miles south of this city. He was found to be carrying a revolver and five empty shells, and booty which had been stolen from stores here Tuesday night. The second man was caught at Foley by Sheriff Calahan, and both are now in the county jail.

A mob surrounded the jail all day and cries of "lynch them" were heard on every side. Posses have been sent in every direction looking for the third party. Public feeling runs high and the prisoners will be well guarded.

Officer Becker, it is thought, will not survive the night.

Nine other stores were robbed and several hundred dollars stolen.

Has Hat as Clue.

As Patrolman Becker was walking down Fifth avenue he noticed that the door of the Heimenz & Reider grocery store was open. He went in and saw a tall man working over the till. A scuffle followed, and Becker succeeded in dragging the man out into the street. The man lost his hat and this is the only clue that the police have. Two other men then appeared, and one raised a gun and placed it within six inches of Officer Becker's breast and fired. The bullet entered his lung. Two more shots were fired before the men made their escape.

It is reported that a bareheaded man was seen later running through Cable and the officers immediately set out in that direction. All the villages and towns have been notified and have been given a fairly good description of one of the men.

Reward of $500 Offered.

The robbers evidently were experienced in the business. In each case they entered through the front door and in one instance the safe was blown open. Mayor Brown has offered a reward of $500, and other sums will be offered.

Mystery Envelops Recluse Sorrow Drives to Woods.

St. Cloud, Minn., Jan. 23.—A St. Cloud man with his hair a foot long, with a beard reaching down a foot in length, was discovered living in a hut about fifteen miles from Big lake by two homesteaders a few days ago. He claimed to hail from this city and apparently has gone almost mad over some terrible sorrow. He told of a vow that he had made never to speak to a living person. His hosts thought him demented and decided to take him to big Falls and turn him over to the proper authorities. He, however, overpowered them and got away. No one since has been able to find a trace of him."

Breckenridge, Minn., Jan. 23.—The large harware store of Louis Gewalt of this city was broken into last night. The thief forced two doors in the rear to gain entrance. The cash in the till, amounting to little more that $3, a number of razors and pocket knives was the extent of the booty.

IMPORTANT

Notice to Subscribers

Under a recent ruling of the post office department at Washington newspapers are required to practically collect their subscription price in advance. The new order became effective Jan. 1, 1908, and a short time is given publishers in which to get their subscription accounts in shape. Weekly papers, whose subscribers are delinquent for more than a year, will be barred from second class postage privileges, and if mailed must be stamped. The placing of stamps on each paper is of course out of the question, and the order simply means that a publisher must either collect for his paper or cut the delinquent subscriber off his list. The newspaper publisher has no choice in the matter. The SPECTATOR is not afraid to trust its subscribers and our past experience in the newspaper business has convinced us that our subscribers are honest and there are rare exceptions indeed, where they refuse to pay for their paper, but the publisher is up against a proposition where we are obliged to collect all arrearages within a very short time or cut the delinquent subscribers off our list, and place the back subscription accounts in the hands of a collector. We are mailing statements to those in arrears and we trust if the reader of this article knows himself to be in arrears in his subscription account he will call at the office and effect a settlement. We do not want to cut you off our list.

The World's Gypsies.

The gypsies have passed under a variety of names, arising either from their supposed original country or the callings and characteristics of the race. The old English Egyptian, the Spanish Gitana and the Magyar Pharas nepek (Pharaoh's people) all point to an Egyptian origin. The Scandinavian Tatare identifies them with the Mongolian hordes which terrorized early Europe, while the French Bohemian suggests yet another country as their cradle.

As to the names bestowed by their supposed character, the Arab boldly calls them harami (a villain), the Dutchman heydens, or heathens, and the Persian takes his name from their complexion and dubs them karachi, or swarthy. A charter of William the Lion, as early as the twelfth century, mentions their Scotch name of tinklers, which is commonly supposed to be a corruption of tinker, although possibly the substitution of "t" for "z" has produced this form of the Italian Zingaro, one of the most widespread of gypsy appellations.—London Chronicle.

What is a Midshipman?

By luck I for the first time in my life have found a plausible derivation for midshipman. It would appear that in the days immediately after the flood the vessels were very high at the ends, between which there was a deep "waist," giving no ready means of passing from one to the other. To meet this difficulty there were employed a class of men, usually young and alert, who from their station were called midship men, to carry messages which were not subject for the trumpet shout. If this explanation holds water, it, like forecastle and afterguard and knightheads, gives another instance of survival of nomenclature from conditions which have long since ceased.

Whatever the origin of his title, it well expressed the anomalous and undefined position of the midshipman. He belonged, so to say, to both ends of the ship as well as to the middle, and his duties and privileges alike fell within the broad saying that what was nobody's business was a midshipman's. When appointed as such in later days he came in "with the hayseed in his hair," and went out fit for a lieutenant's charge, but from first to last whatever his personal progress, he continued as a midshipman, a handybilly.—Captain A. T. Mahan in Harper's.

ANNUAL STATEMENT

Secretary's Statement of Condition of St. Hilaire Creamery Association.

To the St. Hilaire Creamery Association.

Gentlemen-

It is with great pleasure I hand the sixth annual report of our creamery to the printer. The total amount of over $60,000 is certainly something that we in our wildest dreams dared not think of six years ago. The price of nearly twenty-eight cents per pound for butter fat is a good price, and only a one-fourth of a cent sinking fund should make us well pleased. So taking everything into consideration, last year has been our most successful year.

Hoping the next year will be even more successful I remain,

Yours truly,
N. A. Nelson, Sec.

The annual report of the St. Hilaire Creamery Association for 1907 is as follows:

Amount of cream received, 753,035 lbs.

Total amount of money, $64,004.96.
Total amount paid patrons, $54,595.56.

SMALLPOX QUARANTINE

The State Board of Health Has Issued the Following in Regard to Smallpox Quarantine.

The impression seems to have gone abroad that the State Board of Health is abandoning all restraint of smallpox. This is not true. The last sentence in the new regulation No. 11 reads as follows:—"The patient must not leave the house until after the removal of the warning card."

The two important changes in methods of dealing with smallpox are:

1. No quarantine restrictions on WELL people living in a placarded house. The quarantine of the well but exposed individuals has proven an unnecessary and unwarrantable hardship. The old methods have been a great expense to both municipalities and individuals.

2. No fixed detention period for smallpox cases. With mild smallpox it is not practical to have a fixed length of time for quarantine (not less than four weeks under the old regulations.) The new regulations place the responsibility for the time of release upon the attending physician. (See Reg. 1.) The time of restraint will be short or long according to conditions in each case.

With the history of smallpox as it has prevailed in Minnesota during the past nine years the Board should have the support of the entire state in these two changes. We have an illustration in our own state of the ineffectiveness of quarantine as a means of controlling smallpox, for during the past nine years there have been at least 50,000 cases of this disease in spite of the rigid quarantine demanded by the old regulations. The new regulations should relieve both officials and individuals of much needless expense and annoyance that were unavoidable under the old regulations.

The regulations still require careful disinfection of the premises.

Bring in Savings Banks.

Cashier Gigstad of the Merchants State Bank wishes all who have savings accounts and and banks to bring in their banks and books as early early in the month as possible and have interest account figured up for the past year when the interest will be either paid or the account given credit.

Fined for Smoking

A thirteen year old boy who is a student in the schools here and whose name we need not mention, was caught smoking a pipe on the school house grounds this week by Prof. Bergh. The boy was arrested upon complaint of the professor and taken before Justice Nelson who found him guilty as charged and imposed a fine of $10 or five days in jail. The fine was suspended however during good behavior. It is not probable that there will be much smoking by pupils around the school house for some time.

AN ODD SUPERSTITION.

British Fishermen Balk at the Name of Graham.

One of the most curious of British fishermen's superstitions, the one which perhaps to this day has the strongest hold upon them, is that connected with the name of Graham. No fisherman will go to sea if he has heard this name mentioned, nor will he do any manner of work upon that day. He will refuse to sail in a boat with any one bearing the name, and a house painter from Newcastle called Graham, who had been sent to do some work in one of the large houses, found his life made so unbearable by the villagers that he incontinently returned to the town, leaving his work uncompleted. The women who bait the lines in the winter will unbait every hook and rebait the whole length—the labor of hours—if they hear it mentioned. A local tradesman bearing this unfortunate patronymic is never referred to save as "Puff;" another, an innkeeper, is known as "Lucky Bits." No rational explanation is to be found. On one of the most intelligent fishermen being questioned on the subject he laughed the idea to scorn. Why, his daughter was married to a Graham. But, he added, a strange thing happened two years ago when he was off at the herring fishing and had not been home for some weeks. Having received a letter at Shields to say that his son-in-law was ill, he hailed a passing boat which had come from the north, asking if they had heard how Jack Graham was. "And, wad ye beleev't, ne sooner had an syed the words than theor wes a crash, and the mast went ower the side!" None of the crew spoke to him for the rest of the day.—New York Post.

HABITS OF SPIDERS.

"Do These Insects Sleep?" Is Not an Easy Question to Answer.

The question, "Do spiders sleep at night?" is not easy to answer. I have made a careful observation of the sleep of ants, and that could readily be done by watching colonies in their artificial formicaries. It is almost impossible to deal with spiders in the same way. I would answer, however, in general terms that spiders sleep, as all animals do, and doubtless parts of the night are spent in slumber. Many species, however, prey on the night flying insects, and so must be awake in order to catch their prey. If you will watch the porch or outbuildings of your home on a summer evening you will be likely to see an orb weaving spider drop slowly down on a single thread in the gathering dusk of the evening. From this beginning a round web will soon be spun, and either hanging at the center thereof or in a little nest above and at one side is the architect, with forefeet clasping what we call the "trap line" and waiting for some night flying insect to strike the snare. In this position spiders will sometimes wait for hours, and it is just possible that they may then take a little nap. They might easily do that and yet not lose their game, for the agitation of the web would rouse the sleeper, and then it would run down the trap line and secure its prey. Some species of spiders do the chief part of their hunting at night, and there are some who chiefly hunt during the day; but, as a rule, these industrious animals work both day and night.—St. Nicholas.

Suffered For His Chickens.

In London as far back as 1701 a city ordinance was passed to suppress the early morning cries of the street hucksters. This law was so severe that a person arrested twice for the same offense could be imprisoned for ten years. There is one record of a man lingering in prison for ten years. When his time was up he was asked what his crime was.

"For selling chickens that squawked," was the reply.

In the confusion of the trial the fact was not brought out that the chickens, and not the man were responsible for the din that aroused the wrath of the disturbed citizens.

Wanted Money Too.

Ned, walking with his father, saw him give a beggar 5 cents and inquired into the matter.

"What did you give that man 5 cents for, papa?" asked Ned.

"So that he might eat bread, my boy," said the father.

That evening at the supper table it was observed that Ned declined to eat any bread, in any shape.

"Aren't you eating bread nowadays, my boy?" his mother asked.

"No, mamma."

"Why not?"

"So papa'll give me 5 cents."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

THE WIND OF DEATH.

Life Lines In Trieste's Street For Use When the Bora Blows.

That which was once Illyria is now Dalmatia, or, rather, that part of Illyria which reaches the Adriatic is Dalmatia, the half forgotten country, as the Austrians called it when it fell into their hands not so many years ago.

It is one of the few bits of Europe that remain in a measure unhackneyed, and it is still out of the beaten paths of the tourist, who himself is almost as much of a curiosity to the people as they are to him. There are seasons, according to an article in Appleton's Magazine, when the bora blows, that wind of death, as the natives call it, which comes out of the blue with more than a suddenness of a tornado and shakes the earth and all that is on the earth, stinging, blinding, choking. In the square of Trieste life lines are prominent features which the citizens must grasp when the bora clutches them, and they grope their way through the whirling dust and the promiscuous missiles flying in the darkened air. But the bora goes as quickly as it comes, and when it is gone the people simply excavate themselves out of the drift and think no more about the winged demon, which has left no trail whatever in the restored serenity of the scoured sky.

HIS SYMPATHY.

It Would Have Been Worth More Only He Lacked Presence of Mind.

In the criminal court in Baltimore a darky was on trial for stealing a watch, which he had pawned. He was identified by the owner as the person who grabbed the watch out of his pocket, yet the darky claimed to be innocent. When asked how he came in possession of the watch he said:

"I was standing on the corner when a man comes up to me and says he is hard up and hasn't a cent to buy food with, and he wants to sell me this watch for $3. I knew I could get $4 on it in pawn, and I felt sorry for him and bought the watch for $3 and pawned it for $4. That's how I got the watch."

The prosecutor then asked, if he had bought the watch for $3, knowing he could pawn it for $4, simply to help the man along because he felt sorry for him, why he did not advise him to pawn it himself, and then he would have had $4 instead of $3.

"Well, you see," said the prisoner, "I didn't have the presence of mind to do dat."—Judge's Library.

The Old Suez Canal.

Few people are aware that there had been a canal across the isthmus of Suez before De Lesseps ever conceived the idea of his monumental enterprise. A canal across the isthmus was actually constructed 600 years before the Christian era and served as a waterway for small vessels until about 1,000 years ago, when it was allowed to fall into disuse. Napoleon revived the idea and instructed one of the great engineers of his day to investigate the matter, but though a favorable report was presented to him, in which M. Lepere recommended the restoration of the canal, the work itself was never touched. When M. de Lesseps undertook the task of cutting the canal he thought at first to follow the idea of Napoleon and restore the ancient waterway, but this plan was abandoned and the present plan determined upon.

The Other Way Around.

The loyalty of the Scottish highlander to his kilt is a picturesque thing. He will never admit that it makes him cold, and highlanders who were suffering from cold in the ordinary dress of civilization have been known to substitute the kilt for it in order to get warm, though this would be much like removing one's coat and waistcoat and rolling up one's shirt sleeves for the same purpose.

It is said that a stranger, seeing a soldier in full highlander uniform shivering in a cold wind, asked him:

"Sandy, are you cold with the kilt?"

"Na, na, mon," the soldier answered indignantly, "but I'm nigh kilt with the cauld."

Might Start a Forest.

A lady told a party of friends that she had quarreled with her husband and had planted a tree in memory of their first falling out.

"What a splendid idea," whispered another lady in her husband's ear. "If we had adopted that plan we might have had by now a fine avenue of trees in our garden."

Blind to Them.

"Never be critical upon the ladies," was the maxim of an old Irish peer, remarkable for his homage to the sex. "The only way that a true gentleman ever will attempt to look at the faults of a pretty woman is to shut his eyes."

This woman says that sick women should not fail to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as she did.

Mrs. A. Gregory, of 2355 Lawrence St., Denver, Col., writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"I was practically an invalid for six years, on account of female troubles. I underwent an operation by the doctor's advice, but in a few months I was worse than before. A friend advised Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it restored me to perfect health, such as I have not enjoyed in many years. Any woman suffering as I did with backache, bearing-down pains, and periodic pains, should not fail to use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

BABS IN THE CITY

By ARMIGER BARCLAY

(Copyright.)

"Well, how did you like the city, Babs?" asked the admiral.

Babs, perched on a high stool in front of the tape-machine, ceased pulling the paper ribbon through her fingers and looked up.

"I'm waver bovered," says she. "It's the figures. I never was good at awfmetic."

"Oh, the quotations! They are puzzling when you're not used to them," agrees the admiral.

"I never shall be," admits Babs. "I never could learn the multiplication table. When people say eight times nine's fifty-free, how can you tell if it's twue?"

The admiral ponders the indictment before he answers. "Your illustration certainly does place arithmetic in a new light. All the same, business would be rather dull on the stock exchange without it. Eh, Mr. Hands?"

Babs throws a glance over her shoulder at the stock broker. "If fings go up free points how much would I make on a fousand?" she asks him.

The question took him by surprise. He had been regarding the earl's small daughter with great interest, but hardly as a potential dealer.

"It depends, Lady Barbara," he smiles. "Depends whether it's stock or shares."

"I was finkin' of Mexicans—second prefs," observes Babs, sagely.

It is as much as Mr. Hands can do to answer. "A rise of three points on a thousand Mexicans means £30 profit," he stammers.

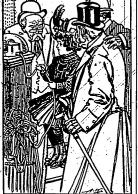
"Fanks," says Babs, and becomes immersed in the tape once more.

People who meet Babs for the first time are usually bewildered by her baby-like perspicuity, and the stock broker is no exception to the rule. The admiral evades his glances of stupefaction by addressing Babs.

"What is the trouble, little lady?" he asks, leaning over her chair.

"Noffin'; I'm waver busy," she answers without moving her eyes from the tape.

The admiral dutifully moves away and rejoins the earl and Mrs. Fane, who are now in consultation with Mr. Hands. Mrs. Fane has certain investments to make, and the earl, her trustee, has accompanied her into the city. For reasons not yet apparent, Babs has insisted on being of the party, and persuaded the admiral to make it a partie carree.



The Men Come and Stand Over Her, Watching the Ribbon.

While the tape machine ticks and jerks under the regard of her big blue eyes, the others go into the merits of Japanese fours, colonial government securities and English rails, and in due course Mrs. Fane's business is disposed of.

"We may as well have a flutter, now we're here," suggests the earl to his sailor friend.

The admiral concurs with a nod. "What would you advise?" he asks the stock broker.

"Grand Trunks and Hudson Bays are looking up," answers Mr. Hands impartially.

"You'd much better stand in wiv me," murmurs Babs from the other end of the room.

Mr. Hands sits up with a start, then turns an inquiring face to his clients.

"What is it, Babs?" asks the admiral. "I didn't know you were an authority on stock exchange transactions."

"I'm perfectly serious," insists Babs. "If you want to earn your winter's corn, buy Mexican second prefs."

Mr. Hands, through his pince-nez, eyes her in a fascinated way, but feels compelled to dissent. "The very last thing to touch. No dividend expected, you know," he observes in an undertone to the earl.

"I know it's not expected," returns Babs, whose sharp ears have caught the words. "But there's goin' to be a dividend, all ve same. It's a stable secret."

"My dear child!" reproves Mrs. Fane, fearful of the stock broker taking offense. "How can you know anything about it?"

"Oh, I've known it for a couple of fortnights. I had it stwait from the Beitsteins."

"Beitsteins?" repeats Mrs. Fane. "I never heard of them. Babs does get to know the strangest people!"

"Beitstein!" exclaims Mr. Hands with sudden interest. "He's the leading operator in the Mexican market!"

"Where did you pick them up, Babs?" inquires her father.

"I didn't. They picked me up in the park one day and took me for a wide in their motor car. It's a Cantilever, and mops up petwol by the bucketful. That's how I got my illustrated froat."

"Mops!" gasps Mrs. Fane. "Really, Babs, you do get hold of the most extraordinary—"

"Let's hear about her new friends," interposes the earl. "Who are they, Babs?"

"I only know Percy, weally. He's their son. I met him at a juvenile party; but I got my maid to look them up in 'Who's Who,' and it says they're an old Jacobite family. There is somefin' curious about their noses. And old Mr. Beitstein takes hours to tell you anyfing—even wiv all the hs left out."

"But where do they live?" demands Mrs. Fane.

"In a place called Bayswater—where the 'buses come from," explains Babs.

"Was it at the party that Mr. Percy became confidential about Mexicans?" asks the admiral.

Babs allows her diminutive shoulders a slightly contemptuous shrug. "Yes," she admits. "When a boy is epwis wiv you he always tells you his pwivate affairs."

Mrs. Fane deems it essential to lift her eyebrows censoriously.

"It was private, then?" ponders the earl.

"Ravher, daddy! He said the only over person besides me who knew a word about it was the head rabbit."

There is a pause while they revolve her meaning.

"Chief Rabbi!" exclaims Mr. Hands, with sudden inspiration. "It must be something very exceptional, or Beitstein wouldn't—would you mind telling us exactly what he said, my dear?"

Before Babs answers she opens the little jeweled bag that hangs on her wrist and exhibits a banknote.

"You'll put this on for me?" she asks. "It's some of my 'Sarewitch' winnin's."

"That's all right, Babs," promises the admiral.

"Well," proceeds Babs, while the three men hang on her words, "he said he'd heard his faver say that Mexicans were goin' to soar to heaven when the dividend came out, and that if I could pick up a few seconds prefs in the street next Friday before free o'clock I should go home feelin' 18 carat. And I wasn't to bweave a word to anyone."

"What a little horror the boy must be!" deprecates Mrs. Fane.

"He is," allows Babs; "but it's a soft fing all the same."

"Friday—three o'clock!" muses Mr. Hands, looking at his watch. "If we only can—"

"Spoil the Egyptians!" augments the earl grimly.

There is a short consultation between the three men and then Mr. Hands hurries out.

Five minutes later he returns, rather out of breath, and announces that he has got 11,000 second preference at 61¼—five each for the earl and the admiral, and the odd thousand for Babs.

"It's like racin', only not so excitin'," observes Babs as she turns once more to the tape.

As she speaks, the machine, which has been silent for half a minute, recommences ticking. The men come and stand over her, watching it. A good yard and a half of ribbon slowly exudes in spasmodic jerks, giving the prices of various stocks and shares. The office clock points to five minutes past three and Mr. Hands, watching it, grows anxious.

"Here they come!" cries Babs, as the words MEX 1st appear, followed by the price, and then 2nd is disclosed with the quotation 61—½. Mr. Hands seizes the ribbon and reads off the figures that are now coming as fast as the operator at the other end can send them.

"Two to a half—three—three and a quarter—four!" He ignores the first preference stock. "Four and a half—five! Dividend three and three-quarters per cent.! Well, I never!"

"That's good enough!" cries the earl. "Better close. They'll be up another point by the time you get to the house!"

Once more Mr. Hands hurries out—this time, in his excitement, forgetting his hat. Babs climbs down from her stool.

"It's all over bar the shoutin'," she remarks calmly. "How much have we won, daddy?"

"By Jove, they've touched 66!" cries the admiral at the tape.

"You'll rake in at least 60 for your share, young woman!" laughs the earl.

Babs looks up with a smile at the admiral. "Well, how do you like the city, shipmate?" she asks mischievously.

"I think it's a thundering fine place to come to—with you, Babs!" is his prompt answer.

"I'm so glad," she drawls. "But I fink the Beitsteins have a good deal to do wiv it. I shall have to leave cards on them to-morrow, I suppose."

"You may as well leave mine, too, Babs," says Mrs. Fane meekly.

Shelley's Edinburgh Home.

One of the two Edinburgh houses associated with the name of Shelley is in process of demolition. Though there is a little uncertainty as to Shelley's first house, the house in which or from which he was married to Harriet Westbrook in September, 1811, a correspondent thinks the evidence is almost conclusive in favor of 60 George street, the "handsome front parlor" in which Shelley spent his honeymoon being now a shop.

Of the second house, however, there is no uncertainty. He lived in it for nearly three months in the autumn of 1813, and addressed many letters from it, putting the fact beyond all doubt. They are headed "36 Frederick street," and this is the house which is now being pulled down to make room for large buildings.

Here Shelley, with Harriet and "the blue-eyed Ianthe," spent many happy days, and here also Shelley wrote his "Refutation of Deism," and became known as the author of "Queen Mab"—privately printed in the summer of 1813.

"I had heard so much about Peruna as a catarrh remedy that I determined to try it. After taking two bottles, my trouble has disappeared. I feel sure that Peruna has greatly benefitted me."

TELL STORIES OF AWFUL BRUTALITY

Witnesses Testify in Investigation of Illinois State Reformatory.

TORTURE CAUSES BOY'S DEAHT

Hung Up by the Hands for Hours and Then Left Paralyzed on Reformatory Floor.

Pontiac, Ill., Jan. 30.—Members of the board of managers of the Illinois state reformatory in this city, at a session that lasted almost throughout last night, heard stories from the lips of officers of the institution themselves of brutality and torture inflicted upon William Hamlin, an inmate, whose death and the conflicting explanations thereof have raised a storm of criticism.

Tortured Twenty-two Hours.

Admissions were wrung from officers of the institution that Hamlin was chained up to the bars of the "solitary," his wrists held by handcuffs to a point even with the top of his head, for twenty-two hours the first day of his punishment, for sixteen hours the second day, and that the third evening he was tied up, with every indication that he faced a similar period of torture, but his endurance gave out after five hours, and after he had revived from a faint he either tried to commit suicide or escape. Being chained up again, he climbed up the bars of his cell, probably while in delirium.

He fainted the first day of his torture, and the third night, and for long periods during these fainting spells, he hung by his wrists suspended from a bar of his cell, his legs too limp to support his weight.

Left Paralyzed on Floor.

The "cold water cure" was applied, quart after quart of ice water being thrown over him to make him "quit shamming," and once it was poured down his throat until he choked. After he was injured he was left lying on the concrete floor of the "solitary," with only a blanket under him and another over him, his back broken in three places and his body paralyzed, all but the arms, for twelve hours before the reformatory physician was called.

These assertions were made to the board of managers by Ulysses A. Wilson, farmer of the institution.

WRITES A RED-HOT MESSAGE.

President About to Startle Country With Rap at Predatory Wealth.

Washington, Jan. 30. — President Roosevelt has written for transmission to congress the hottest, strongest and most emphatic message of his term. So warm is this document that some of his friends and advisers have been trying to dissuade him from using it, but whether they will succeed is still a question.

The rumors which bring out this much information do not state the occasion for the message.

But whatever the vehicle, if the message goes to congress it will be meant to act as a sufficient warning to the people against the dangers which threaten free government from those described by Mr. Roosevelt's often-quoted term, "the holders of predatory wealth."

The president is profoundly impressed with the present crisis. He believes that to let this form of piracy again get the upper hand in national affairs, may endanger the safety of the republic itself, and his message, as he is understood to have drawn it, goes into the field with such degree of frankness as may well startle the country. If the message goes to congress at all, it is likely to go within a comparatively few days.

There is a hint also that the document, instead of going to congress, may reach the public in some other way.

CUTS DUTY ON WEALTHY WATER.

Franco-American Reciprocity Agreement Is Concluded.

Washington, Jan. 30. — The president late yesterday issued a proclamation announcing the conclusion of the Franco-American reciprocity arrangements drawn under section of the Dingley act. Under it America concedes a 20 per cent abatement in duties on champagne and sparkling wines imported into this country, and France confirms the minimum tariff rate now accorded American products. Other important provisions are made, including the creation of a commission to consider possible amendments to the trade regulations in France.

Steel Pays Same Dividend.

New York, Jan. 29.—Quarterly dividends of 1 3-4 per cent on the preferred stock and one-half of 1 per cent on the common stock of the United States Steel corporation were declared yesterday. These dividends are unchanged from the last previous quarterly dividend.

Nevada Police Bill Passed.

Carson, Nev., Jan. 30.—The Nevada police bill passed the assembly by a vote of 31 to 7. It already has passed the senate.

BIG FIRE LOSSES IN TWO CITIES

Packing Plant of Nelson Morris & Co., Is Damaged to the Extent of About $500,000.

Chicago, Jan. 30.—The third disastrous fire in the business district of the city in as many days caused a loss last night estimated at $1,200,000 in the almost complete destruction of the building at 144 Wabash avenue, occupied by Alfred Peats & Co.; the building adjoining it on the south, occupied by John A. Colby & Sons, and those in the rear, fronting on Michigan avenue, occupied by Gage Bros. & Co., Theodore Ascher & Co. and Edson, Keith & Co. The interiors of each of the buildings was burned out. The fire started in the engine room of the Peats building and raged for three hours. The work of the firemen was witnessed by at least 15,000 persons, who, attracted by the glare, which could be seen for miles, thronged the streets in spite of the cold.

$500,000 Loss at Kansas City.

Kansas City, Jan. 29.—Fire of unknown origin started in the canning department on the second floor of one of the twin main buildings of the $27,000,000 packing plant of Nelson Morris & Co., on the Kaw river, in Kansas City, Kan., last night, threatened destruction of the entire plant and caused a loss, estimated at $500,000 before it was controlled. All efforts to save the east main building, in which the fire started, and the box factory, was abandoned within a half hour after the flames were discovered, and the firemen devoted themselves to the work of saving the other buildings. The fire had gained great headway before the fire department arrived, and the heat was so intense that it was impossible for the firemen to make any progress in checking it except to prevent its spreading.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 30. — Fire last night in the Coburn warehouse, 213 to 233 West Georgia street, destroyed the building and caused a loss estimated at $500,000.

PROSECUTIONS FOLLOW INQUEST

Hints of Graft and Admissions of Neglect in Theater Horror Mystery.

Boyertown, Pa., Jan. 30. — Suggestions of graft and admissions of neglect, which it is intimated may result in prosecutions, marked the opening session of the inquest here yesterday in the horror of the Rhoades opera house on Jan. 13, when 169 persons lost their lives.

It was brought out that the main exit from the hall was blocked by the box office and that the stairway and the point of exit and entrance was but three feet one inch in width, and that Harry Fisher, the operator of the stereopticon apparatus had received but two days' instruction in the methods of handling the calcium light and that he operated the machine in public for the first time on that fatal night.

Suggests Graft.

In addition to this, Dr. Thomas A. Rhoades, the owner of the building, declared that the building had been inspected and passed by a state factory inspector after he "had given a contract for fire escapes to a Reading man." He added, in reply to a pointed question put by District Attorney Dunn, that the factory inspector told him who he should buy his fire escapes from, that he placed the order with the Reading contractor and that the inspector passed the building.

The lessee of the opera house, E. C. Mauger of Pottstown, who admitted he did not know the location of the fire escapes on the building, said that he never saw the factory inspector, but had been told his name was Bechtel.

No Doors to Fire Escapes.

It was learned from his testimony that there were no aisles along the walls and only two narrow aisles to separate the seats into three divisions, and that the chairs in the outside section were not fastened to the floor, so that they fell and caused many to stumble and fall in their rush to get out of the building. Mauger admitted there were no red lights to show where the fire exits were and no doors through which to reach the fire escape had been cut in the wall.

DOG SAVES MASTER'S LIFE.

Pet Is Killed Arousing Household in Time to Escape Flames.

Great Barrington, Mass., Jan. 30.—A pet dog jumping upon the bed of John E. Pell awakened the man barely in time from him to escape from his burning home, together with his son and two servants. The dog perished.

Freezes in Lonely Home.

Fergus Falls, Minn., Jan. 30.—Arne Gunderson, an old resident of this city, was found dead in his home here yesterday by a neighbor. Gunderson had been living alone. The weather turned bitterly cold, the mercury falling to 11 below zero, and the man had been partially frozen during the night, exposure causing his death.

Herd of Cattle Condemned.

Waseca, Minn., Jan. 30. — Twenty-three out of a herd of forty-two Shorthorn cattle belonging to A. S. Hawkes of this county were condemned as afflicted with tuberculosis and ordered to South St. Paul to be slaughtered.

Bank Closes; Cashier Missing.

Enid, Okla., Jan. 30. — The Alva Bank of Commerce was closed yesterday and Cashier Lou Westfall is missing. He is charged by the directors with looting the institution of practically all of its deposits.

GHASTLY HORRORS IN ILLINOIS HOME

Probe of Charitable Institutions Brings Out Shocking Revelations.

ADMIT DOZEN VIOLENT DEATHS

"Fire Hole" and "Water Drip" Among Horrors of Place—"No Restraint" Rules Record.

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 30. — Yesterday was another day of shocking revelations of cruelties and brutalities at the various charitable institutions under control of the State of Illinois.

Dr. George A. Zeller, superintendent of the asylum for the insane, who established the "no restraint" rules, admitted that a dozen violent deaths had resulted from his experiment in giving insane men and women liberty to roam the country at will. Here are some of the results of this policy:

William H. Hatchett, with a homicidal mania, was permitted to leave the asylum; he killed one of the men responsible for sending him there.

Mary Polak, with a mania for running away, left the asylum in broad daylight and died from exposure; her body was not found for six weeks, although only a stone's thrown from the asylum.

Arena Longmeiers, insane, feeble and almost blind, wandered away and froze to death.

Two Scalded in Bath.

John Looker "playfully" drank a bottle of carbolic acid which a nurse absent-mindedly placed by his bedside.

John Pierson wandered away and was killed by a railroad train.

An unnamed woman wandered away and died in a blizzard.

Frederick Weber was scalded to death while being bathed by an incompetent attendant.

George Wright, a helpless paralytic, met the same fate as Weber.

Fresh charges were made yesterday against the Pontiac reformatory for boys by a former inmate. He alleges numerous indignities and sufferings inflicted on prisoners at the institution now under fire. Among the horrors of the place, it is alleged, are a "fire hole" and a form of punishment similar to the celebrated "water cure" of the Philippines.

The method of the "water drip" punishment was declared to have been practiced at Pontiac is the same as that which was a ghastly byword centuries ago.

In Cell Two Years.

A prisoner is bound helpless, while on him beats a ceaseless succession of drops of water—drip, drip, drip—until the tiny splashes finally impose the agony of trip hammer blows and the sufferer loses his reason.

Among other charges of cruelty, the ex-prisoner declares, guards carried blackjacks and loaded canes and knocked men down for misdemeanors, such as failing to keep in step while in line. Prisoners were kept locked in cells for as long as two years at a time.

BONES FOUND IN RUINS.

Iowa Farmer Is Believed to Have Set Fire to His House.

Waterloo, Iowa, Jan. 30.—The charred bones of Peter Ackerman, a farmer fifty-two years old, who lived near Allison, were raked from the ashes this morning by neighbors who visited the scene of a fire that destroyed the Ackerman home Friday night. Ackerman had lived alone in a little shanty since the death of his mother, several years ago, and his absence since the fire created wonder as to his whereabouts. There scarcely are enough bones left to bury. The suicide theory is advanced.

PLAY WITH MATCHES FATAL.

Tot's Clothing Takes Fire and Resulting Burns Kill Her.

Gettysburg, S. D., Jan. 30.—As a result of obtaining possession of some matches the two-year-old daughter of Peter Mouck lost her life. During the temporary absence of the mother from the room the little girl got hold of some matches which she lighted. The fire was communicated to her clothing and before her mother could rush to her assistance she was burned so severely that death resulted.

Slayer Expects Pardon.

Bemidji, Minn., Jan. 30.—Peter Nelson Mathieson, whose sentence of death for the murder of Johan Johanson at Tenstrike last March was commuted to life imprisonment by the state board of pardons, has been taken to the state prison at Stillwater. Mathieson stated that he believed he would be pardoned after serving eight or ten years in prison.

Scramble for Police Jobs.

Carson, Nev., Jan. 30.—Gov. Sparks signed the police bill yesterday and it is now a law. Already there is a fierce scramble for places on the police force. It is believed that the new force can take the field inside of forty-five days.

Jumped From Train May Die.

Luck, Wis., Jan. 30.—John Rogers jumped off a freight train here after leaving the station and broke his collarbone, besides receiving internal injuries, and may not recover.

FOUR TOWNS ARE HIT BY FIRE

More Than $100,000 Damage Is Done by Fires in Four Northwestern Towns.

Sarles, N. D., Jan. 30.—Fire yesterday destroyed the Acme elevator in Sarles and threatened to wipe out a large part of the town. A big string of elevators was saved by the fire department. The total loss is $20,000. There were over 8,000 bushels of grain in the buildings.

Oshkosh, Wis., Jan. 30.—Fire caused a loss of about $53,000 yesterday to the R. Brand & Sons company, manufacturers of fixtures and interior woodwork, on Cape street, which is within a short distance of the business district. The entire factory and dry kiln, valued at $40,000, and stock to the extent of $12,000 more, was destroyed. On the total loss there is $20,000 insurance. Several buildings near by sustained small losses. The origin of the fire is not known.

Brainerd, Minn., Jan. 30.—A building owned by R. R. Wise, occupied by William Erb as a harness store, was damaged by fire to the extent of $1,000 to $1,500 yesterday. The blaze originated in the chamber, but the cause is unknown. Erb's water damage amounts to $200 or $300. George West's restaurant, next door, was damaged by water to the extent of $200, fully covered by insurance.

Oskaloosa, Iowa, Jan. 30.—The business section of Leighton, northwest of Oskaloosa, was destroyed by fire last night. The loss was $30,000. There was no fire protection.

DIES "TO JOIN JESUS."

Fisherman Leaps From Steamer Into Lake Superior.

Duluth, Jan. 30.—"Jesus wants me; I am going to him," declared Louis Ronning, a north shore fisherman, as he climbed over the rail of the steamer Moore of the Booth line last Thursday and slipped into the icy waters of Lake Superior.

That was the last seen of him, although the vessel was stopped and a small boat was sent in search of him. Ronning took his plunge to death at about 4:30 o'clock in the morning. He was not in his right mind, and recently has seemed to be insane on religious subjects.

ALDERMAN IS ARRESTED.

Aberdeen City Father Accused of Buying Stolen Coal.

Minneapolis, Jan. 30.—E. G. Anderson, an alderman of Aberdeen, S. D., was arrested last night in Minneapolis at the request of the chief of police of Aberdeen on a charge of having been implicated in thefts of coal from the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway at that place. It is charged by railway detectives that Anderson has been buying coal at Aberdeen from employes of the road. When arrested Anderson declared he did not know that the coal had been stolen.

RAISE FUND TO AID MUNN.

Murderer Has Friends Who Rejoice Over Commutation of Sentence.

Chippewa Falls, Jan. 30.—Citizens of Chetek, before learning of the commutation of sentence, collected a purse to cover the expense of sending George L. Parkhill to Bemidji, Minn., to see if he could be of some assistance to Merton Munn, who had been sentenced to be hanged. Munn spent the greater portion of his life at Chetek and vicinity, and the people there greatly sympathize with him and believe that there may be extenuating circumstances in his favor.

CONVERT PLEADS GUILTY.

Man Who Confessed in Minneapolis Mission Arraigned at Madison.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 30.—Knolan H. Whiteside, who confessed to Supt. E. G. Master of the Charity mission, in Minneapolis, that he assisted in the burglary of the home of L. M. Hanks, in a fashionable residence district of this city, on the night of April 23, 1904, was brought to Madison yesterday and pleaded guilty. He will be sentenced to-day.

Lumber Company Sells Holdings.

Washburn, Minn., Jan. 30.—One of the largest deals that has been made in real estate and timber lands in Bayfield county for the last two years was made this week when the Spider Lake Mill and Lumber company disposed of its holdings in this county to the Superior Lumber and Box company, the consideration being $148,000. The sale includes a large amount of timber lands and some cut over lands.

Fear Pastor Is Suicide.

Echo, Minn., Jan. 30.—No trace has been found of Rev. F. L. Honeywell, who disappeared from his home in Wood Lake Thursday of last week. The only plausible theory to account for his action is that he has lost his mind. His revolver also is missing and some fear that he has committed suicide.

Chief George Wasquam Dead.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Jan. 30. — Chief George Wasquam is dead at his home near Brimley. He was seventy years old. Wasquam was one of the most noted Indians of Northern Michigan. He had never been outside the upper peninsula.

Killed by Horse's Kick.

Yankton, S. D., Jan. 30. — Otto Hewer, a well known young farmer, was kicked in the head by a horse at Kamerville yesterday and died soon afterward.

ARCHITECT WILL TRY TO SAVE SELF

Will Throw Down Co-defendants in Pennsylvania Capitol Graft Cases.

SIGNED BLANK CERTIFICATES

Huston Fixed It So Plunderers Could Help Themselves While He Was Absent.

Harrisburg, Pa., Jan. 30. — That Architect James M. Huston means to take care of himself at the expense of his four co-defendants in the four conspiracy cases now on trial in the Dauphin county court, is apparent from the testimony yesterday of his brother, Rev. Samuel C. Huston of Philadelphia, a retired Presbyterian clergyman, who was called as a witness for the commonwealth.

Huston's Assistant Testifies.

Stanford B. Lewis, the architect's active assistant while the capitol was being constructed and furnished and who is under indictment on two charges of conspiracy to cheat and defraud the state in the payment of bills aggregating $92,704 for capitol furnishings, was also a witness for the commonwealth.

Rev. Mr. Huston testified that when his brother went to Europe, in the spring of 1905, on business for the state, he left with him signed blank architect's certificates and a power of attorney. Soon after the architect's departure Contractor John H. Sanderson, one of the defendants, appeared with a bill supported by an affidavit purporting to be in proper form, for which he asked and obtained certification of the architect by the brother's signature.

Bill Was Fraudulent.

The commonwealth expects to prove that this bill was fraudulent in that Sanderson was given the contract for certain furnishings under one item in the special capitol furnishings schedule and billed these articles to the state under another item, the amount of which is in excess of the item under which he was given the contract, and also that some of these articles were invoiced to the state and paid for as containing three times as many feet as they actually contained.

This explains the mystery of Murderer Pickard's disappearance. The letter was brought out by the arrest of Nicholas Pickard in Texas, who was brought to Wapello, Iowa, charged with being William Pickard, the murderer, but was discharged because of the failure of any one to recognize him.

They opened it and found $7,000 worth of notes recently stolen from the butcher shop of Knute Anderson of this place. The whole number of notes was intact. The box apparently had not been there very long, as some broken hinges on it were not at all rusted. It is thought that the theft was the work of local parties.

BOLD HOLD-UP IN CROWDED STATION

Robbers Get $3,000 at Mansfield, Ohio—Arrested, They Accuse Employe.

PLANS ARE AIDED BY RUSE

$40,000 in Gold Is Overlooked by Daring Bandits in Raid on Express Office.

Mansfield, Ohio, Jan. 30.—Shortly after midnight two masked men entered the office of the Adams Express company at the union station here, knocked William Depew, the agent, unconscious, and got away with $3,000, while nearly fifty passengers stood about the station waiting for trains. A bag containing $40,000 in gold lying near the $3,000 was overlooked by the robbers.

The men on entering the office asked Depew for a package they said must have arrived on a train too late for delivery. While Depew was looking for the supposed package one of the robbers struck him on the head and knocked him unconscious.

Ruse Aids Their Plan.

The other robber covered George McGinty, a friend of Depew, with a revolver, and the first robber then went through the safe. Then, keeping McGinty covered, the men ran from the express office and disappeared.

Depew lay unconscious for more than an hour after aid had been summoned by McGinty.

Telegrams were promptly sent to the police of all nearby towns and as a result John McCue and Joseph Stevens were taken into custody at New London. They had the sack taken from the express office containing $3,000.

Caught; Implicate Helper.

Stevens, the police say, confessed and implicated McGinty. According to Stevens' story, the money arrived late last night from Delphus, Ohio, and was consigned to a bank at Hamilton, Ohio. Stevens said McGinty "tipped off" the arrival of the money and "cooked up" the scheme with him and McCue to rob the office.

As soon as this information was wired here McGinty was locked up. He denies the charge.

LOVERS ARE DROWNED.

Chippewa Falls Man and Fiancee Meet Death While Skating.

Chippewa Falls, Wis., Jan. 30. — Word has been received here from Boston to the effect that Peter Capelet, aged twenty-two years, of this city, and Miss Marrier, aged eighteen years, of Boston, were drowned while skating on a pond in that city. When the bodies were recovered, it was seen that they were clasped in each other's arms, and from appearances it was evident that they had fought hard to save themselves from death. A pathetic incident of the drowning was the fact that the young people were engaged to be married and that the wedding was to have taken place in a few weeks.

IMPORTANT

Notice to Subscribers

Under a recent ruling of the post office department at Washington newspapers are required to practically collect their subscription price in advance. The new order became effective Jan. 1, 1908, and a short time is given publishers in which to get their subscription accounts in shape. Weekly papers, whose subscribers are delinquent for more than a year, will be barred from second class postage privileges, and if mailed must be stamped. The placing of stamps on each paper is of course out of the question, and the order simply means that a publisher must either collect for his paper or cut the delinquent subscriber off his list. The newspaper publisher has no choice in the matter. The SPECTATOR is not afraid to trust its subscribers and our past experience in the newspaper business has convinced us that our subscribers are honest and there are rare exceptions indeed, where they refuse to pay for their paper, but the publisher is up against a proposition where we are obliged to collect all arrearages within a very short time or cut the delinquent subscribers off our list, and place the back subscription accounts in the hands of a collector. We are mailing statements to those in arrears and we trust if the reader of this article knows himself to be in arrears in his subscription account he will call at the office and effect a settlement. We do not want to cut you off our list.

If something would only happen to Joe Cannon we might have a chance to get the tarriff revised.

Indications, at present, all point to the nomination of Taft by the republicans and Bryan by the democrats. It looks like an easy victory for Taft.

The Duluth Herald is leading the fight for state and government insurance of bank deposits. We hope the Herald will keep it up until we have such a law in Minnesota.

It is well to remember that the St. Hilaire creamery made more butter and paid the farmers a bigger price for butter fat than any creamery in northern Minnesota.

We are in receipt of copies of the Duluth Daily Star upon our exchange table. It is a bright and energetic paper and deserves success. Duluth newspapers are coming to the front in Minnesota. The city is improving rapidly and its newspapers are setting the pace.

The St. Paul and Minneapolis daily papers have all quit sending their papers to the country press upon the exchange plan It won't be long before the country press will be asked to do a whole lot of boosting for those cities. Of course they will all fall in line and do it—we don't think.

Law Invalid

The discovery has just been made that House File No. 718, passed at the recent session of the legislature, is invalid, because it was not properly engrossed. The bill relates to the appointment of superintendents of highways and road inspectors in counties having less than 200,000 population. The engrossers left out an amendment providing that townships could authorize voters to pay their road taxes in either money or labor, and the omission invalidates the entire law. The law is the second passed by the last legislature that has been invalidated by reason of error in engrossing.

This will compel the county commissioners to dispense with the services of Mr. C. H. Martz who has been acting as Supt. of highways for the past year. Mr. Martz gave excellent service and saved the county on one bridge contract recently the amount of his yearly salary. He is particularly well qualified for the position and the county will be a loser by the faulty law.

Obituary

Died—On January 27th, 1908, at 4:30 a. m., Lea Richard Hooper, son of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Hooper.

Lea Richard Hooper was born May 15th, 1888 at Panorama, Iowa, and came to Hammond township, Polk county, Minnesota, in 1899, where he has since resided. Mr. Hooper while not a church member was a confessor to the faith of the Baptist church and was a young man of exemplary habits and good morals. He was popular and well liked by a circle of friends who mourn his death and extend sympathy to the prents and family in their bereavement.

Mr. Hooper was a member of the M. B. A. lodge at Crookston and the local lodge acted as pall bearers at the funeral. The funeral took place from the M. E. church on Thursday at 1:30, Rev. Wilcox officiating and the interment was made in the Swedish cemetery.

Card of Thanks

We wish to express our heartfelt thanks to the many kind friends and neighbors who so kindly assisted us in the last illness and sad bereavment of our beloved son and brother, L. Richard Hooper. Also Drs. Cummings and Swanson for their untiring efforts.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Hooper and family.

St. Hilaire, Minn., Jan. 31, 1908.

Want Top Price

Very little wheat is being sold at the towns between Moorhead and Crookston at present, whenever the price is below the dollar mark. All those who are holding grain yet seem to have their mind made up that is the minimum price they will accept for 1 northern. Last week, while the price was up, there was a rush to market at every town along the line, but Saturday, when the price slumped two or three cents the movement seemed to have ceased all along the line. The same thing must be true all over the northwest, because the receipts at the terminals get large as soon as wheat goes to $1.10 or over, while they immediately drop off when the price goes below that figure. While the Equity Society is at the bottom of this it is not confined to members of that organization.—Hendrum Review.

Neil Dahl,

Miss Caroline Skeie, our popular teacher, went thru a rather thrilling experience in the shape of a runaway, the other evening as she drove down to Rhoda to get mail. Somehow or other the bronchoes took it into their heads to have a little fun with their new driver but Miss Skele was up and "doin" and got them stopped after being schocked to a fare-ye-well, and like all other school ma'ams, had her nerve right with her and simply tied the "bronks" to a fence post and walked the rest of the distance to the postoffice. She hasn't fully recovered yet from her thrilling experience, but feels as tho she had gone thru an earthquake. --Deer Park correspondent in the Red Lake Falls Gazette.

Andrew Bjork, one of the prosperous settlers living up near Sandridge, was in the city yesterday. Mr. Bjork is an enthusiastic boomer for the Sandridge creamery and says that the farmers up in that vicinity are going to make this creamery one of the best in the country. Since the creamery started up this summer it has done a business of about $8,000. The creamery is not the only branch of farming Mr. Bjork is interested in. This fall he threshed 101 bushels of winter wheat from two acres of land, and he is of the opinion that winter wheat is the thing to raise in this country. The winter wheat kills off all of the foul seed in the fields, and Mr. Bjork is going to raise this kind of wheat quite extensively in the future. He still has a few bushels of seed wheat of this variety for sale and would like to have other farmers in this vicinity buy some and start raising it.—The River Falls News.

What Is a Midshipman?

By luck I for the first time in my life have found a plausible derivation for midshipman. It would appear that in the days immediately after the flood the vessels were very high at the ends, between which there was a deep "waist," giving no ready means of passing from one to the other. To meet this difficulty there were employed a class of men, usually young and alert, who from their station were called midship men, to carry messages which were not subject for the trumpet shout. If this explanation holds water, it, like forecastle and afterguard and knightheads, gives another instance of survival of nomenclature from conditions which have long since ceased.

Whatever the origin of his title, it well expressed the anomalous and undefined position of the midshipman. He belonged, so to say, to both ends of the ship as well as to the middle, and his duties and privileges alike fell within the broad saying that what was nobody's business was a midshipman's. When appointed as such in later days he came in "with the hayseed in his hair" and went out fit for a lieutenant's charge, but from first to last, whatever his personal progress, he continued as a midshipman, a handybilly.—Captain A. T. Mahan in Harper's.

The weather the past week has been somewhat different. It started in the week with a snow storm and on Tuesday and Wednesday we had a taste of the real old fashioned winter weather. It was nearly 40 below and cold enough for anyone and, we hope, made a record for the season. If we have any more extremely cold weather we will predict that it comes in the next two weeks. The last week in January and the first ten days in February are nearly always sure to bring us our worst winter weather.

Will a merchant who is wise ever cease to advertise? Yes—when the trees grow upside down; when the beggar wears a crown; when ice forms on the sun; when the sparrow weighs a ton when gold dollars get too cheap; when women, secrets keep; when a fish forgets to swim; when Satan sings a hymn; when girls go back on gum; when the small boy hates a drum; when no politician schemes; when mince pie makes pleasant dreams; when its fun to break a tooth; when all lawyers tell the truth; when cold water makes you drunk; when you love to smell a skunk; when the drummer has no brass; when these things all come to pass; then man that's wise will neglect to advertise.—Ex.

A Disastrous Fire

The city of Red Lake Falls was again visited by fire Saturday morning when a blaze was discovered in the building occupied by Garceau & Zaiser, general merchants and before the flames were gotten under control the building and stock had been damaged to the extent of about $15,000. The origin of the fire which started in the basement is unknown.

The building is a brick structure, owned by J. B. Damerais. The loss on the building was less than $1,000 but Garceau & Zaiser's stock of merchandise valued at nearly $20,000 suffered about a three fourths loss. The latter firm carried insurance on stock to the amount of $17,000 while the building was fully insured.

AND BOTH WERE STUNG

O. H. Martz Brings Suit Against Chas. Fellman in a Mock Trial to Recover an Overcoat or its Equivalent, in Cash.

A mock trial was held at Hotel Markham last Saturday evening which created more than ordinary interest. The trial grew out of an agreement between Mr. Martz and Mr. Fellman over an overcoat raffle, Mr. Martz agreeing to give Mr. Fellman $10 for the coat if he (Fellman) won it and if Mr. Martz won it Mr. Fellman was to give him $10 for it.

In the due course of time the raffle was pulled off and Mr. Fellman won the coat, and right there is where the trouble commenced. According to Mr. Martz, Mr. Fellman after coming into possession of the coat, refused to stick to his end of the agreement, much less to compromise it, hence the above mentioned litigation.

The court officials were as follows:

Judge—Dr. C. C. Cummings.
Clerk—K. O. Gigstad.
Constable—Hans Wilson.
Prosecuting atty—A. S. Wilson.
Atty. for defense—Carl Johnson.

Court was formally opened and the examination of witnesses was begun. The legal talent for both sides struggled manfully for the supremacy in their examination and cross-examinations but all to no avail. After the attorneys had plead their case and the judge delivered his charge the jury retired.

In about half an hour the jury filed back to the jury box and and delivered their verdict to the judge which, when opened and read was in substance, that there were grave errors on both sides and therefore they recommended that the coat be sold at public auction to the highest bidder and the proceeds used to "set up" the crowd, which was done. The verdict came as a big surprise to both parties to the suit as each one confidently expected that judgement would be rendered in his favor but they entered good naturedly into the fun and the coat was auctioned off for $11.75.

School Notes

I wonder if those Minneapolis guys who sported straw hats last week are now convinced that Minnesota is still Minnesota and that "things are not always what they seem", not even January in a Leap year.

Some of the children were slightly bitten by the frost Tuesday morning and Wednesday the attendance was greatly reduced in the lower rooms, especially the primary room. It was a wise precaution too, in not sending them that morning.

Some promotions have been made so far this year, all in recognition of exceptionally good work done. Mabel Swenson was promoted from the first grade to the second and Selmer Benson and Bennie Johnson from the fifth to the sixth.

Teacher's examinations are being conducted in the high school room this week, Thursday, Friday, and Saturday.

MAPLE SUGAR.

There are many kinds of maple trees. They grow in North America, in Europe and Asia. There are ten kinds of maple trees in the United States. Most of the sugar making is done in the northern and middle states. The maple tree is much like the hickory for it is good fuel and makes good charcoal. The tapping is done mostly in the spring time. Sometimes they begin in February. The holes are bored in the trees, pipes are put in and a bucket is placed under the pipes. The sap flows drop by drop. It is put into a kettle and boiled until most of the water passes off in steam. Then some is left in for a while until it gets cool and then it is made into maple syrup. It is then put into cans and taken to the stores for sale.

For the boy in Vermont the maple sugar season is about the merriest time of the year. The maple groves cover many acres of land. If there is room in the house the men will be allowed to stay for three or four weeks. When night comes and they go to bed they have to sleep on soft hemlock boughs with a bag of hay for a pillow. They roast their potatoes in the ashes and cook their meat on a stick.

James King,
5th Grade.

Creamery Officers Elected

At the annual meeting of the St. Hilaire Creamery Association on last Monday the following officers were elected:

J. S. Roy, President.
O. L. Larson, Vice President.
N. A. Nelson, Secretary.
Chas. Gustafson, Treasurer.
C. A. Melin, Nels K. Anderson and Andrew Soderberg, Trustees.

A committee consisting of C. H. Martz, Ed. Aubol and P. Engelstad was appointed to look over the treasurer's and secretary's report. The Association decided to join the Commercial Club and appointed their president as their representative.

About one-half of the stockholders were present, taking a lively interest in the welfare of the institution.

Notice

The postmaster of St. Hilaire desires to call attention to the practice of some patrons of rural delivery of placing loose coins in their boxes each time they desire to dispatch letters instead of supplying themselves with postage in advance of their needs.

This practice imposes undue hardships on rural carriers in removing loose coins from the boxes and delays them on the service of their routes.

The postmaster, therefore, urgently requests that patrons of rural delivery provide themselves and keep on hand a supply of stamps consistent with and in advance of their needs. It is also very desirable that rural patrons place in their mail boxes small detachable cups of wood or tin in which to place coins, when necessary, in purchasing supplies of stamps.

Good Sense and Brotherliness

It is a matter of good sense as well as brotherliness, to throw over "the bear" in the disposition, "come into the azure and love the day," as Emerson puts it. It is also a matter of good sense to serve daily with your meals a good malt tonic such as golden grain belt beer. This delicious table beverage cheers the depressed, strengthens the weak and builds up the run down. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

How the Death Penalty Was Administered to Two Indians.

The following story illustrates very well one of the characteristics of the Indian, as it shows that Indians, as a rule, did not mind dying so much as they were particular about the method. It was a good many years ago at Pine Ridge, when there was trouble with the Cheyennes. Major Cooper was there as agent, and there were two young Cheyennes who were badly wanted for murder. They had waylaid and killed a prospector. They were not caught, and the chances were that they would not be unless the soldiers were called in. If this were done it was likely to precipitate trouble with the whole tribe, and Major Cooper laid the case before the headmen. They were told that if the soldiers were sent for there would surely be trouble and were requested politely to ask the two erring bucks to come in and be hanged.

Word was sent to the two young Indians, Head Chief and Young Mule, who were out in the hills. They sent word back that they had no objection to dying if it would keep the rest of the tribe out of trouble, but that if they had to die they preferred to die fighting, and they wanted it distinctly understood that they would not be hanged. It was entirely against the customs of the government, but rules did not go for much in those days. Results were the chief things, and Major Cooper sent word to them that if they wanted a fight he would risk accommodating them. A date was set and early in the morning they rode toward the agency, fully armed. Major Cooper was out to meet them, and the rest of the tribe, the potential hostiles, were gathered on the hills to see fair play. The agent rode out into the open and slipped off his horse, using it for cover and shooting across the saddle.

The two young Indians galloped up to within shooting distance and commenced circling, hanging on the off side of their ponies and shooting under their necks and across their heads. The tacit understanding was that if they were killed it was all right, but if they got the agent they would pull out into the hills and wait for some other challenger. The fight did not last long. Cooper had a heavy buffalo gun and killed one Indian, shooting him through the body of his horse. The other kept on circling, and several shots were exchanged till the Indian was shot through the body. He knew it would be all up with him in a few minutes and charged, shooting as he came. But the agent's luck held good, and he was dropped within fifty yards. The law was satisfied, and the agent was able to report officially to Washington that the Indians had been executed.—Washington Star.

Rescued a "Foxy" Squirrel.

A man in New York state who owns several fine cats stepped out of his house one day to see two of his feline possessions crouched in the grass, and equidistant between them sat a common striped squirrel, not daring to move a hair lest he invite the sharp claws of one or both of his enemies. [illegible] side to side as he calculated his chances of escape between the two. The man walked on toward the squirrel, and the squirrel seized his opportunity and leaped upon the man's trousers and ran nimbly to his shoulder. Then the man backed slowly toward a tree at no great distance from him. Again when within leaping distance the squirrel jumped into the tree and disappeared amid its branches.

ABSENCE OF MIND.

A Funny Story About Ampere, the Famous Mathematician.

You all know the old joke of the professor who, pondering over the saying that in a railway accident absence of body was a good deal better than absence of mind, went to the nearest railway station and tried to take a ticket "for the nearest railway accident," so as to have the matter proved to his own satisfaction. You doubtless know the story, too, of the professor of mathematics whose new parlor maid told him when he rang at his own door that Professor Jones was out—"I'll call again, I'll call again," he said and went away.

But these are stories merely. Here, however, are some incidents from real life: Ampere was remarkably absentminded. Hundreds of stories of his absentmindedness are told, but quite the funniest is that of his dinner at the house of M. Fontanes, the grand master of the University of Paris. For a joke somebody had told Ampere that he must go to the dinner in his academician's uniform of green and gold and girt with his sword. When he got to the house he was very much annoyed to find everybody else in ordinary evening dress. "I will get rid of the sword at all events," he said to himself and slipped it behind the cushions of a sofa. After dinner Ampere forgot himself, as usual, and became lost in abstruse calculation. He took a little piece of chalk out of his pocket and began working out problems on the black satin cover of the mantelpiece. He became so absorbed in what he was doing that all the guests left without his noticing them, and when he wrote down Q. E. D. no one was left in the room except Mme. Fontanes, and she unfortunately sat fast asleep on the sofa where Ampere's sword lay hidden.

Ampere went down upon his knees and pulled gently at the sword, so as to get it away without waking the lady. He pulled and pulled, and presently the sword came out—without the scabbard. At this moment Mme. Fontanes awoke and alarmed the house with her screams of terror at seeing a man on his knees before her with a drawn sword in his hand.

But mathematical professors have not the monopoly of absentmindedness. La Fontaine, whose fables are the delight of adult Frenchmen and their children's earliest task, went to the court of Louis XVI. to present a copy of his fables to the king. And he forgot the book. Fortunately, the king knew La Fontaine, his fables and his foibles and gave him a thousand pistoles (about $230). Unfortunately, though, La Fontaine left the money in his hired carriage on his way back to Paris.

But the prettiest piece of absentmindedness of which I have ever heard was that of Professor Pozzi, who asked a lady who was bewailing the fact that she had no children whether she thought the failing was hereditary. This is even more amusing than the delightful answer made by the engineer of the Seine tunnel, M. Berlier, to a servant who told him that his gentleman had died that morning. "Oh," said M. Berlier, "dear, dear, I'm so sorry. But tell him I won't keep him a minute."—St. James' Gazette.

The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidney-poisoned blood will attack the vital organs, causing catarrh of the bladder, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell.

Bladder troubles almost always result from a derangement of the kidneys and a cure is obtained quickest by a proper treatment of the kidneys. If you are feeling badly you can make no mistake by taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful new discovery and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address, Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

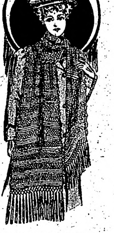
FASHIONS FOR THE FAIR

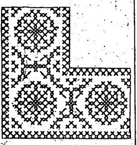
FOR MOTOR SCARF

ACCESSORY MAY BE WORKED IN ANY WOOL.

Individual Requirements Readily Adapted if Directions Are Followed—Proper Way to Fashion and Shape Fringe.

This scarf may be worked in any wool, also any width and length preferred. These directions, which may be readily adapted to individual requirements, are for a scarf about 16 inches wide and about three yards long, worked with a No. 8 bone hook and in white ivorine wool, about seven ounces of which would be required.





Work a chain of 16 inches, turn.

Row 1: A double crochet in each stitch, turn, no chain, but pull the loop on the hook up a little.

Row 2: Pass the hook through the two front threads of the last made double crochet, that is the thread that curves round and the nearest—or front—top one, draw the wool through both and finish the stitch like double crochet. Pass the hook through the two front threads of the next stitch and repeat to end of row; turn, no chain, and work six more rows like row 2. This completes a close stripe.

Row 9: A double crochet in the last made stitch of the previous row, one chain, *, pass over one stitch, a double crochet in the next—the front top thread only to be used throughout the open stripes—one chain, and repeat from * to end of row, turn with one chain.

Work five more rows like the last, but working a double crochet on each chain stitch, and a chain stitch over each double crochet, always commencing and ending the rows with a double crochet.

Repeat from row one and work alternate close and open stripes, ending with a close one, of which there should be eighteen.

For the fringe, cut the wool into 24-inch lengths. Pass the hook under both threads of the end stitch of the last row, fold four strands of the wool exactly in half and draw them a short distance through, forming a small loop, draw the eight strands right through this loop and pull gently, drawing the knot close up to the work. Repeat this into every other stitch along the end of the scarf, taking care that all the knots are turned the same way.

To knot the fringe, take four threads of the first tassel and four of the next one, and tie them together about an inch below the other knots, tie the remaining strands of the second tassel to four of the third one, and repeat to end of row, being careful to keep the knots quite level.

Tie another row of knots an inch below these, but this time taking the eight strands of each tassel and tying them together. Fring the other [illegible] of the scarf in the same way, and cut the ends level with a pair of sharp scissors.

Along each side of the scarf work a double crochet into the end stitch of the first row, a treble into the end stitch of the next row but one, *, five chain back into first (picot), another treble in the same stitch as the same stitch as the last, repeat from * four times, a double crochet in the next stitch but one and repeat.

TO KEEP SUPPLY OF STOCKS.

No Problem at All for Those Skillful with the Needle.

With the tailored waists and skirts which now are fashionable comes a demand for all kinds of stocks. Their attractiveness depends so much on their freshness that a generous supply is needed. If one is handy with the needle a great many of these pretty trifles may be made for little expense.

One chic stock is made of linen. The collar is made of double material and there are two shaped pieces of single linen embroidered. These pieces are the width of the collar in back and taper to the front, where they are an inch wide. They lap in the front and button. One piece is set in the end of the collar, between the two pieces of linen. The other piece is finished neatly and is fastened to the top and bottom of the other end of the collar. This leaves a long opening like a large buttonhole. The first end passes through this. The tab end is made of two shaped strips of linen, single pieces, and is joined by embroidery. This tab end is separate and slips between the collar and the buttoned ends.

Any simple design may be embroidered on the ends of the tab on one side, and the other end on the opposite side, so that when lapped over the embroidery on both ends of the tab will be right side out.

Lovely stocks can be made from pieces of a man's worn-out white vest.

Hot Water, Perhaps.

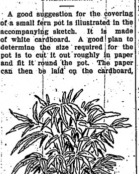
For hoarseness, beat up the white of an egg, flavor with lemon and sugar, and take something occasionally.—Somerville Journal.

From Paris comes the fashion of ribbon threaded throughout the hair, ending sometimes in an airy bow at the left side, suggestive of Madam Le Brun's paintings.

COVERING FOR FERN POT.

Illustration Gives Good Idea of Useful Ornamentation.

A good suggestion for the covering of a small fern pot is illustrated in the accompanying sketch. It is made of white cardboard. A good plan to determine the size required for the pot is to cut it out roughly in paper and fit it round the pot. The paper can then be laid on the cardboard, and the shape marked out by running a pencil around the edge of the paper. Some pretty floral designs may be painted on the sides, and the upper edges bound with ribbon or colored paper. In the sketch it is shown square in shape, but with a little additional labor it may be constructed on the same lines in an octagonal design. The fern-pot should be set in a small saucer or lid of a china pot, so that the draining from the mold may not spoil the cardboard.



PROPER DRESSING A DUTY.

Sage Advice to Young Girls Given by Successful Actress.

A very successful actress recently gave this advice to girls who make their own living:

"Go without butter for your bread if necessary, but have becoming clothes!"

Dressing is not only an art, but a duty! The woman who succeeds on the stage does so almost as much through her clothes as through her voice and her acting. Clothes are a highly important consideration for every woman who would succeed, and yet that each woman should dress in her own way, with her own requirements in mind.

Usually up-to-dateness should be the watchword in the selection of a woman's wardrobe, for it is only once in a great while that there will be found one of the fair sex so fashioned as to be able—and possibly obliged—to cling to a particular style of costume, just as one woman in a million possesses a certain design of coiffure which she wisely retains in spite of fashion's dictates.

"The safest plan for the greatest number is to keep in touch with the times. Don't be a slave to dress—but don't be a dowdy—be yourself."

Demand for Soft Silks.

How far away we are from the old, stiff silks that cracked and tore up almost before they were made up!

The woman of to-day demands that silks be soft, pliable and cling to the figure so as to accentuate its lines.

She will not a moment consider the use of stiff, unwieldy fabrics.

This has resulted in the manufacture of exquisite chiffon taffetas that drape as softly as crepe. Of these latter there is an abundance to choose from this fall, as well as the supple, brilliant liberties, which are being daily more used for the wonderful creations of the Paris modiste.

Tussor, the softest of silk or silk and wool, is almost always shown in solid color, but sometimes appearing in Pekin effects, with graduated stripes, which offer splendid opportunity for novel combinations of color.

Commissioner Smith vs. The Standard Oil Co.

From the Railway World, January 3, 1908.

Mr. Herbert Knox Smith, whose zeal in the cause of economic reform has been in no wise abated by the panic which he and his kind did so much to bring on, is out with an answer to President Moffett, of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana. The publication of this answer, it is officially given out, was delayed several weeks, "for business reasons," because it was not deemed advisable to further excite the public mind, which was profoundly disturbed by the crisis. Now that the storm clouds have rolled by, however, the Commissioner rushes again into the fray.

Our readers remember that the chief points in the defence of the Standard Oil Company, as presented by President Moffett, were (1) that the date of six cents on oil from Whiting to East St. Louis has been issued to the Standard Oil Company as the lawful rate by employes of the Alton, (2) that the 18-cent rate on file with the Interstate Commerce Commission was a class and not a commodity rate, never being intended to apply to oil, (3) that oil was shipped in large quantities between Whiting and East St. Louis over the Chicago & Eastern Illinois at 6¼ cents per hundred pounds, which has been filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission as the lawful rate, and (4) that the 18-cent rate on oil was entirely out of proportion to lawful rates on other commodities between these points of a similar character, and of greater value, such, for example, as linseed oil, the lawful rate on which was eight cents. President Moffett also stated that thousands of tons of freight had been sent by other shippers between these points under substantially the same conditions as governed the shipments of the Standard Oil Company.

This defence of the Standard Oil Company was widely quoted and has undoubtedly exerted a powerful influence upon the public mind. Naturally the Administration, which has staked the success of its campaign against the "trusts" upon the result of its attack upon this company, endeavors to offset this influence, and hence the new deliverance of Commissioner Smith.

We need hardly to point out that his rebuttal argument is extremely weak, although as strong, no doubt, as the circumstances would warrant. He answers the points made by President Moffett substantially as follows: (1) The Standard Oil Company had a traffic department, and should have known that the six-cent rate had not been filed, (2) no answer, (3) the Chicago & Eastern Illinois rate was a secret rate because it read, not from Whiting, but from Dolton, which is described as "a village of about 1,500 population just outside of Chicago. Its only claim to note is that it has been for many years the point of origin for this and similar secret rates." The Commissioner admits in describing this rate that there was a note attached stating that the rate could also be used from Whiting.

The press has quite generally hailed this statement of the Commissioner of Corporations as a conclusive refutation of what is evidently recognized as the strongest rebuttal argument advanced by the Standard.

In fact, it is as weak and inconclusive as the remainder of his argument. The lines of the Chicago & Eastern Illinois do not run into Chicago. They terminate at Dolton, from which point entrance is made over the Belt Line. Whiting, where the oil freight originates, is not on the lines of the Chicago & Eastern Illinois, which receives its Whiting freight from the Belt Line at Dolton. The former practice, now discontinued, in filing tariffs was to make them read from a point on the line of the filing road, and it was also general to state on the same sheet, that the tariff would apply to other points, e. g., Whiting. The Chicago & Eastern Illinois followed this practice in filing its rate from Dolton, and making a note on the sheet that is applied to Whiting. This was in 1895 when this method of filing tariffs was in common use.

Now let us see in what way the intending shipper of oil could be misled and deceived by the fact that the Chicago & Eastern Illinois had not filed a rate reading from Whiting. Commissioner Smith contends that "concealment is the only motive for such a circuitous arrangement," i. e., that this method of filing the rate was intended to mislead intending competitors of the Standard Oil Company. Suppose such a prospective oil refiner had applied to the Interstate Commerce Commission for the rate from Chicago to East St. Louis over the Chicago & Eastern Illinois, he would have been informed that the only rate filed with the commission by this company was 6¼ cents from Dolton, and he would have been further informed, if indeed he did not know this already, that this rate applied throughout Chicago territory. So that whether he wished to locate his plant at Whiting, or anywhere else about Chicago, under an arrangement of long standing, and which applies to all the industrial towns in the neighborhood of Chicago, he could have his freight delivered over the Belt Line to the Chicago & Eastern Illinois at Dolton and transported to East St. Louis at a rate of 6¼ cents. Where then is the concealment which the Commissioner of Corporations makes so much of? Any rate—from Dolton on the Eastern Illinois or Chappell on the Alton, or Harvey on the Illinois Central, or Blue Island on the Rock Island, applies throughout Chicago territory to shipments from any other point in the district. So far from the Eastern Illinois filing its rate from Dolton in order to deceive the shipper, it is the Commissioner of Corporations who either betrays his gross ignorance of transportation customs in Chicago territory or relies on the public ignorance of these customs to deceive the public too apt to accept unquestioningly every statement made by a Government official as necessarily true, although, as in the present instance, a careful examination shows these statements to be false.

The final point made by President Moffett that other commodities of a character similar to oil were carried at much lower rates than 18 cents, the Commissioner of Corporations discusses only with the remark that "the 'reasonableness' of this rate is not in question. The question is whether this rate constituted a discrimination as against other shippers of oil," and he also makes much of the failure of President Moffett to produce before the grand jury evidence of the alleged illegal acts of which the Standard Oil official said that other large shippers in the territory had been guilty. Considering the fact that these shippers included the packers and elevator men of Chicago the action of the grand jury in calling upon President Moffett to furnish evidence of their wrong-doing may be interpreted as a demand for an elaboration of the obvious; but the fact that a rate-book containing these freight fates for other shippers was offered in evidence during the trial and ruled out by Judge Landis, was kept out of sight. President Moffett would not, of course, accept the invitation of the grand jury although he might have been pardoned if he had referred them to various official investigations by the Interstate Commerce Commission and other departments of the Government.

We come back, therefore, to the conclusion of the whole matter, which is that the Standard Oil Company of Indiana was fined an amount equal to seven or eight times the value of its entire property, because its traffic department did not verify the statement of the Alton rate clerk, that the six-cent commodity rate on oil had been properly filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission. There is no evidence, and none was introduced at the trial, that any shipper of oil from Chicago territory had been interfered with by the 18-cent rate nor that the failure of the Alton to file its six-cent rate had resulted in any discrimination against any independent shipper—we must take this on the word of the Commissioner of Corporations and of Judge Landis. Neither is it denied even by Mr. Smith that the "independent" shipper of oil, whom he pictures as being driven out of business by this discrimination of the Alton, could have shipped all the oil he desired to ship from Whiting via Dolton over the lines of the Chicago & Eastern Illinois to East St. Louis. In short, President Moffett's defence is still good, and we predict will be so declared by the higher court.

The Standard Oil Company has been charged with all manner of crimes and misdemeanors. Beginning with the famous Rice of Marietta, passing down to that apostle of popular liberties, Henry Demarest Lloyd, with his Wealth Against the Commonwealth, descending by easy stages to Miss Tarbell's offensive personalities, we finally reach the nether depths of unfair and baseless misrepresentation in the report of the Commissioner of Corporations. The Standard has been charged with every form of commercial piracy and with most of the crimes on the corporation calendar. After long years of strenuous attack, under the leadership of the President of the United States, the corporation is at last dragged to the bar of justice to answer for its misdoings. The whole strength of the Government is directed against it, and at last, we are told, the Standard Oil Company is to pay the penalty of its crimes, and it is finally convicted of having failed to verify the statement of a rate clerk and is forthwith fined a prodigious sum, measured by the car. Under the old criminal law, the theft of property worth more than a shilling was punishable by death. Under the interpretation of the Interstate Commerce law by Theodore Roosevelt and Judge Kenesaw Landis, a technical error of a traffic official is made the excuse for the confiscation of a vast amount of property.

KING AND CROWN PRINCE ARE SLAIN BY ASSASSINS

Portuguese Royal Family Attacked by Regicides While Driving in Street.

MANUEL IS PROCLAIMED KING

Second Son, Who Was Wounded by Assassins, Is Now Ruler; Country Overwhelmed.

QUEEN TRIES TO SAVE SONS

Heroic Act of Mother Is Too Late; Three Regicides Killed; Rumor of a Republic.

Lisbon, Feb. 4.—King Carlos of Portugal and the crown prince, Luiz-Philippe, were assassinated Saturday while driving in an open carriage. All Portugal is overwhelmed at the tragedy.

A boy king, who henceforth will be known as Manuel II., is now the ruler of the kingdom of Portugal, and the revolution into which the instigators of the bloody events of Saturday had hoped to plunge the country has, not yet at least, engulfed the nation. Franco, the dictator and real commander of the country's destinies, whom the moral and physical might of all parties and powerful interests has not succeeded in destroying, remains still the triumphant leader, not only unconquered and unaffrighted, but retained in power by the new king.

Rumor of a Republic.

The only word of indication that universal order in Portugal had possibly been broken came from Oporto in the form of a rumor that a republic had been proclaimed there, but this was not confirmed. Lisbon seems sincerely prostrated with grief. The streets are silent and the people, wearing emblems of mourning, pass slowly and sorrowfully.

The cowardly shooting of the king in the back calls forth words of execration upon the regicides, while the government declares that the murders will only strengthen the cause of the monarchy and insure the fidelity of the people. The army apparently is still loyal and no organized movement of the republicans to launch a republic is under way, so far as outward appearances go.

THE LATE KING CARLOS.

Story of the Tragedy.

No more beautiful day could be imagined than that which hereafter will mark the date on which King Carlos and Crown Prince Luiz met their death at the hands of assassins. Returning from a sojourn at the king's estate at Villa Vicosa, accompanied by the queen, the crown prince and the infant Manuel, the sovereign seemingly was in a happy mood when he stepped into the carriage in waiting at the railroad station. Thousands of spectators, gayly attired, in combination with the bright decorations, set out to welcome the royal family, made an animated scene.

Take Escort by Surprise.

It was because of the beautiful weather that an open carriage was in waiting for the royal family, and when they took their places they were greeted with some lifting of hats, but mostly in silence. Then as the carriage sharply turned into the Rua do Arsenal there was a cracking of guns and a shower of bullets tore their way into the bodies of the king and crown prince and the little prince, who proved to be an easy target. The assassins, numbering six in all, boldly ran up to the sides of the carriage and poured in a hail of lead before the stupefied escort could intervene. The king and crown prince, half rising, fell back into the cushions, the blood gushing from their wounds.

Tries to Shield Her Sons.

Queen Amelie, uttering a scream that could be heard by all who had not become frenzied by the attack, threw herself toward her sons, shielding their bodies with her own. She frantically struck at the murderers with a bouquet of roses which she had been carrying, but even in the face of this the men fired again and again. As he saw his father and his brother fall, Prince Manuel whipped out a revolver and discharged it at the men, but he was himself struck on the right arm by a bullet from a carbine. A footman in the carriage also was wounded, and it was stated that a bullet grazed the queen's shoulder, but did not do her harm.

Three Regicides Killed.

Only mounted police accompanied the carriage, as the king had refused military escort. The attack came from the rear, for it was found afterwards that the king had been shot in the back of the neck, and it was so entirely unexpected that the murderers had employed their carbines and revolvers almost before the police knew what was going on and had turned to flee into the crowd that now, panic-stricken, had dropped back before their weapons. The guard charged upon them, pursuing them down the street and riddling three of them with bullets. Hundreds of the people joined in the pursuit and the others of the band of assassins were made prisoners.

Grief Is Heartrending.

The royal carriage had by this time been driven into the quadrangle and the gates of the arsenal were shut. The grief of the queen and Prince Manuel was heartbreaking.

The news of the assassination spread like wildfire and thousands of people, bewildered and terrified, poured into the streets. Soon the troops and police occupied all the prominent places and the people hurried to their homes and barricaded the doors and windows to await in fear the unknown future. The strictest measures were taken by the officers in charge of the troops to suppress the slightest sign of disorder, but their work was light. There have been no disturbances in Lisbon in the last twenty-four hours, and Sunday passed off only in the deepest gloom, with the populace mourning on every hand.

Queen Sits With Her Dead.

The bodies of the king and crown prince rest in the royal palace, and beside them the queen sat throughout the night, sometimes with her hand pressing the forehead of King Carlos and sometimes stroking the face of the dead crown prince. The condition of the newly proclaimed king, Manuel, is satisfactory to the physicians in attendance. His wounds are not severe, and if there are no complications, of which there are no signs now, he is expected to make speedy recovery. He carries his arm in a sling and declares that he suffers no pain.

The bodies of King Carlos and Prince Luiz were embalmed yesterday and will lie in state, according to the custom of the court. The funeral probably will be held on Feb. 10.

Work of Revolutionaries.

The republicans disclaim responsibility for the assassinations, which they lay at the doors of the anarchists, but the identification of a dead regicide as a cavalry sergeant is accepted by many officials as proof that the assassinations were the work of revolutionaries, who had successfully spread the propaganda, smuggled in arms and bombs, and who, headed by prominent republicans, plotted to proclaim a republic a fortnight ago.

PRESIDENT URGES CONGRESS TO ACT

Time to Wrest Control of Country From Greedy Corporations—Plea for Labor.

CONTROL LAW-DEFYING WEALTH

Sees Grave Menace in Reactionary Work of Representatives of Predatory Wealth.

Washington, Feb. 2. — President Roosevelt yesterday sent to congress one of his most powerful messages. He makes a plea for a new and stronger employer's liability law, more power for the interstate commerce commission, a law against speculation in stocks and futures, and appealing for careful use by the courts of the power of injunction.

The president inclosed in his message statements by government officers in answer to allegations by the agents of the Standard Oil company and by the president of the Santa Fe road, in which these two corporations denounced the verdicts rendered against them, with heavy fines, for criminal misconduct. The president says these pleas of innocence are without foundation, and he includes a letter from Francis J. Heney in support of his contention.

Attacks on Administration.

Of the attacks of these companies on the administration the president says:

"The attacks by these great corporations on the administration's actions have been given wide circulation throughout the country, in the newspapers and otherwise, by those writers and speakers, who, consciously or unconsciously, act as the representatives of predatory wealth—of wealth accumulated on a giant scale by all forms of iniquity, ranging from the oppression of wageworkers to unfair and unwholesome methods of competition, and to defrauding the public by stockjobbing and the manipulation of securities.

Work for Reaction.

"Certain wealthy men of this stamp, whose conduct should be abhorrent to every man of ordinarily decent conscience, have during the last few months made it apparent that they have banded together to work for a reaction. Their endeavor is to overthrow and discredit all who honestly administer the law, to prevent any additional legislation which would check and restrain them, and to secure if possible a freedom from all restraint which will permit every unscrupulous wrongdoer to do what he wishes unchecked provided he has enough money. The only way to counteract the movement in which these men are engaged is to make clear to the public just what they have done in the past and just what they are seeking to accomplish in the present.

Clamor Against Truth.

"The apologists of successful dishonesty always declaim against any effort to punish or prevent it, on the ground that any such effort will 'unsettle business.' It is they who by their acts have unsettled business; and the very men raising this cry spend hundreds of thousands of dollars in securing, by speech, editorial, book or pamphlet, the defense of misstatements of what they have done, and yet when public servants correct their misstatements by telling the truth they declaim against them for breaking silence, lest 'values be depreciated.' They have hurt honest business men, honest workingmen, honest farmers; and now they clamor against the truth being told.

"The business which is hurt by the movement for honesty is the kind of business which, in the long run, it pays the country to have hurt.

Punish Only Wrongdoers.

"We are in no vindictive spirit and we are no respecter of persons. We seek to stop wrongdoing and we desire to punish wrongdoers only so far as it is necessary to achieve this end.

"The extraordinary violence of the assaults upon our policy . . . and the enormous sums spent in various ways, give a fairly accurate measure of the anger and terror which our public actions have caused the corrupt men of vast wealth to feel in the very marrow of their being.

"The methods by which the Standard Oil people and others . . . have achieved great fortunes can only be justified by the advocacy of a system of morals which would also justify every form of criminality on the part of a labor union and every form of violence, corruption and fraud, from murder to bribery and ballot box stuffing in politics.

Control Law-defying Wealth.

"We seek to control law-defying wealth; in the first place to prevent its doing dire evil to the republic, and in the next place to avoid the vindictive and dreadful radicalism which, if left uncontrolled, it is certain in the end to arouse.

"In my judgment, thoroughgoing and satisfactory control can in the end only be obtained by the action of the national government, for almost all corporations of enormous wealth—that is, the corporations which it is especially desirable to control — are engaged in interstate commerce."

Must Not Persecute Labor.

Some action in connection with the abuse of the power of injunction is recommended. The president says that it is all wrong to use the injunction to prevent the entirely proper and legitimate actions of labor organizations in their struggle for industrial betterment, or under the guise of protecting property rights unwarrantably to invade the fundamental rights of the individual.

It is futile, he says, to concede, as we do, the right and the necessity of organized effort on the part of wage-earners and yet by injunctive process to forbid peaceable action to accomplish the lawful objects for which they are organized and upon which their success depends.

Additional powers for the interstate commerce commission in regulating concerns engaged in interstate commerce are also urged in the president's message.

Legislation to prevent gambling in securities and commodities is strongly recommended.

Outlook Bright.

In conclusion, the president points out that the country has just passed through two months of acute financial stress. At such a time there is a natural tendency on the part of many men to feel gloomy and frightened at the outlook, but there is no justification for this feeling. There is no nation so absolutely sure of ultimate success. Ours is a nation of masterful energy, with a continent for its domain. We are upheld by the confident hope of ultimate triumph.

CZARINA IS WORSE AGAIN.

May Have to Undergo Operation on Her Eyes.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 2.—After a period of slight gains, the condition of the Empress Alexandra again has taken a turn for the worse. The nervous debility, which is baffling the skill of the specialists, is now complicated by an affliction of the eyes which is of such a painful character that an operation probably will be required.

VIOLENT STORM FATAL TO TEN.

Wide Strip of Farming Country in Mississippi Is Laid Waste.

Wesson, Miss., Feb. 2.—Six persons were killed outright by a tornado which laid waste a strip of farming country three-quarters of a mile wide and several miles long just north of here yesterday. Four persons were fatally injured and many others were slightly hurt when their homes were blown down. A negro who arrived here about dark brought news of the storm. Three physicians started in carriages for the stricken district.

The dead and injured are all white, excepting one unidentified victim.

The tornado struck about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. It came from the south west and disappeared into the northeast. At least a dozen homes of white families were blown down. The residence of Mr. and Mrs. Maddox was blown almost completely off the premises, and Mrs. Maddox's spinal column was broken.

Wide Swath Is Cut.

The path of the tornado was unusually wide and was left littered with hundreds of dollars' worth of dead farm animals an strewn with many thousands of dollars' worth of property.

Surrounding towns not in the direct path of the storm suffered damage during the few minutes of the tornado's duration.

At Georgetown buildings were blown down and at Hazelhurst two sawmills were destroyed and many fences and several small buildings were blown over.

Center Point reported much damage but no loss of life.

Darkness settled down so quickly after the storm that only an incomplete estimate of the destruction, both to life and to property, was obtained.

INDICT SPEAKER OF HOUSE.

Massachusetts Legislator Accused of Seeking Reduced Fare.

Salem, Mass., Feb. 2.—Speaker John N. Cole of the Massachusetts house of representatives, whose home is at Andover and who has represented the Eighth Essex district for seven years, was indicted yesterday by the Essex county grand jury on a charge of violating the public statutes in requesting reduced rate of fare on the Boston & Maine railroad for a large number of persons. The indictment is in 123 counts and the statute provides a penalty in each case of a fine of not less than $100 nor more than $1,000.

Certain sections in the public statutes forbid public officers, including members of the state legislature, from soliciting for themselves or any one else free passes or reduced fares on any railroad.

Fire Loss Is $150,000.

Bluefield, W. Va., Feb. 2.—A disastrous fire broke out in the Christie building, on Pulaski street, yesterday and spread rapidly. On account of a delay in turning in an alarm the department did not arrive until the building was in flames and had spread to adjoining buildings. The total damage will exceed $150,000.

PLAN PIONEER MOVEMENT.

INSANE ASYLUM IS THAW'S PRISON

Not Guilty of Murder, by Reason of Insanity, Is the Verdict of the Jury.

IS RUSHED TO THE MADHOUSE

Court Rules Prisoner Dangerous Person and Commits Him to Matteawan Asylum.

New York, Feb. 4.—Adjudged not guilty of the murder of Stanford White by reason of insanity at the time the fatal shots were fired, Harry Kendall Thaw Saturday was held by the court to be a dangerous lunatic and was whirled away to the state hospital for the criminal insane at Matteawan.

The verdict came after twenty-five hours of waiting and when every one connected with the case had abandoned all hope of an agreement ever being reached in this or any other trial.

To Asylum in Four Hours.

Four hours after the foreman's lips had framed the words "not guilty," with the accompanying insanity clause, Thaw, protesting that he was sane, was on his way to Matteawan. A little after nightfall he had been received in the institution under commitment papers which directed his detention "until discharged by due course of law."

No more unwilling patient ever made a journey to a state institution.

Bows Haughty Thanks.

The first thrill of the words of acquittal brought Thaw to his feet in the court room, and with that lack of grace which always has characterized his movements he awkwardly, almost haughtily, bowed his acknowledgments to the twelve jurymen as they were discharged by the court. A smile played about his pallid features and there was every reason to believe that he was entirely pleased with the outcome.

It was after he had heard the words of Justice Dowling committing him to Matteawan on the ground that his release, in the opinion of the court, would endanger the public safety, and after the elation of the verdict had died away, that Thaw rebelled.

In Fear of Madhouse.

He commanded his attorneys immediately to swear out a writ of habeas corpus to have his sanity tested before he was sent away to the up-state institution where the insane of criminal tendency are confined.

Under promise that some action speedily will be taken looking to the appointment of a commission to inquire into his present sanity or for his transfer to a private institution, where his wife and other members of the family might reside with him, Thaw consented to go without further protest.

THAW FAMILY PLANS FLIGHT

Nullifying of Yarmouth Marriage Decide Family to Seek Seclusion in Europe.

Pittsburg, Feb. 6. — Pittsburg no longer is the home of the Thaw family, action having been taken to sever all connection with this city, financial and social. This was announced authoritatively yesterday after the result of the Yarmouth divorce suit was made known. Alice, no longer Countess Yarmouth, will return to America at once and remain with her mother for a stay of indefinite duration.

This will be followed by the departure of Mrs. Thaw, Alice, Harry K. Thaw and wife for Europe, where all will try to lose themselves for several years from the public gaze. The time of flight to Europe will depend upon the time elapsing until Harry is released from confinement.

Whether he is kept at Matteawan or transferred to another institution, Mrs. Thaw and Alice will secure a house in close proximity to the asylum and there will stay as long as he is deprived of freedom.

Marriage Is Annulled.

London, Feb. 6.—Sir Birrel Barnes, president of the divorce court, yesterday granted the countess of Yarmouth, who was Miss Alice Thaw of Pittsburg, a decree nullifying her marriage to the earl of Yarmouth.

The case was heard in private. The case was practically undefended and the hearing lasted for only half an hour.

MICHIGAN IN GRASP OF STORM

Dozen Passenger Trains Snowbound; Several Deaths From Exposure in New York.

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 6. — With upwards of a dozen passenger trains snowbound in various parts of the state and indications of zero weather for to-day, Michigan last night was in the grasp of a blizzard that has paralyzed transportation in many sections and threatens to cause serious distress.

On the Flint division of the Pere Marquette railroad a passenger train has been stalled since Saturday, and with the railroad closed a number of small towns are shut off from their chief source of bread and other food supplies. So far as known the passengers on all snowbound trains have been carried on bobsleds to nearby towns or farm houses.

Henry Laros of Menominee was frozen to death last night while trying to walk to a lumber camp near Cedar River in the upper peninsula.

New York, Feb. 6. — After having dropped to a low record for the season, the temperature late yesterday lifted just enough to permit of a snow storm of considerable proportions. When the day broke the mercury was but one degree above zero, seven points short of the coldest weather ever recorded here. There was much suffering among the poor and destitute. The police reported several deaths from exposure.

St. Paul, Feb. 6.—A severe storm raged here yesterday. It was general all over Northern Wisconsin, according to advices received here. Train service is demoralized.

KILLS TEAM; SPARES MAN.

Fast Locomotive Hits Horses, but Driver Is Only Thrown From Sled.

Melrose, Minn., Feb. 6.—Oscar Winters of Spring Hill town, while on his way to town, narrowly escaped being dashed into eternity by a Great Northern passenger train. As he was about to cross the track a mile west of town his team was struck by the engine, running at full speed, killing both horses. Mr. Winters was thrown out of the sled, but luckily escaped with nothing worse than a scratch on his right knee.

$1 PHONES OR NEW LINE.

Farmers Will Get Low Rate or Build System.

La Crosse, Wis., Feb. 6.—Farmers of the northern end of the county have taken a fresh start in the war against the telephone companies by the circulation and liberal signing of a pledge to pay no more than $1 per month for complete telephone service.

The pledge guarantees that its signers will support a movement for the building of a private farmers' line, to the exclusion of all other phones.

DOG BITES BOY COASTER.

Lad's Ear Is Seriously Chewed by Animal That Attacks Him.

Hot Springs, S. D., Feb. 6.—While coasting down hill yesterday with a number of other boys on a bobsled Carl Hunter, the ten-year-old son of William Hunter, was pounced upon by a dog and his right ear was seriously bitten and lacerated. Prompt attention was given the wound and it is hoped no bad results will follow.

Willard Violet sustained a broken leg while at work in the woods near here.

FOUR BURNED TO DEATH IN HOME

Farm House Destroyed Near Preston, Minn., and Inmates Perish in Flames.

ONLY SURVIVOR IS INJURED

Bodies of Four Victims Almost Completely Incinerated—Awakened by Smoke.

Preston, Minn., Feb. 6.—Fire starting at a stovepipe hole in the floor of the house caused the deaths of four persons and the possible fatal injury of a fifth on the farm of C. W. Engle, six miles southwest of here, shortly after midnight last night. The dead are:

C. W. Engle, thirty-seven years old.

Mrs. C. W. Engle.

Mrs. Thomas Yeast, mother of Mrs. Engle.

Baby Engle, the infant child of the first named victims.

Thomas Yeast, Mrs. Engle's father, was the only inmate of the house who escaped from the flames, and he was so seriously burned in attempting to rescue the others that his injuries, with the subsequent exposure, may cause his death. He inhaled smoke and flames, and internal injuries are feared.

The house was completely destroyed.

Awakened by Smoke.

Mr. and Mrs. Yeast lived with their daughter and husband, and material had been taken to the place to build a new home in the spring large enough to accommodate the two families.

Mr. and Mrs. Yeast occupied a room on the first floor of the house. Mr. Yeast awoke some time after midnight, partly suffocated by smoke. He ran into the hall and met his son-in-law at the foot of the stairs. The latter was clad only in his underclothing and both those garments and his hair were in flames. Mr. Yeast hurriedly wrapped a quilt about the man and calling to his wife to warn her of the danger, ran to the granary for a ladder with which to rescue his daughter and grandchild. The fire drove him back, however, and he was unable to reach their room.

All Four Incinerated.

By this time he noticed that his wife had not appeared, but efforts to go to her aid were baffled by the flames and he was obliged to remain alone in the cold until help from neighbors arrived.

The bodies of the four victims of the fire were almost completely incinerated. No trace whatever of the baby could be found in the ruins. Of the other victims nothing is left but their skulls and a few bits of partly burned flesh and clothing, all of which could be gathered up in a bushel basket.

IMPORTANT

Notice to Subscribers

Under a recent ruling of the post office department at Washington newspapers are required to practically collect their subscription price in advance. The new order became effective Jan. 1, 1908, and a short time is given publishers in which to get their subscription accounts in shape. Weekly papers, whose subscribers are delinquent for more than a year, will be barred from second class postage privileges, and if mailed must be stamped. The placing of stamps on each paper is of course out of the question, and the order simply means that a publisher must either collect for his paper or cut the delinquent subscriber off his list. The newspaper publisher has no choice in the matter. The SPECTATOR is not afraid to trust its subscribers and our past experience in the newspaper business has convinced us that our subscribers are honest and there are rare exceptions indeed, where they refuse to pay for their paper, but the publisher is up against a proposition where we are obliged to collect all arrearages within a very short time or cut the delinquent subscribers off our list, and place the back subscription accounts in the hands of a collector. We are mailing statements to those in arrears and we trust if the reader of this article knows himself to be in arrears in his subscription account he will call at the office and effect a settlement. We do not want to cut you off our list.

"Our Uncle Joe" has decided that congress will not revise the tariff this session.

Don't forget the big farmers' meeting on the 21st. Such meetings offer great educational advantages to the farmer.

The ground hog saw his shadow last Sunday, if he showed up at that time, so we may look for at least six weeks more of winter.

Now that the twin city papers have all quit the country press it might be a good plan to give the Duluth travelling man as warm a welcome as we do the Duluth newspapers.

The cities seem to consider it settled that they are to furnish the delegates at large to the republican convention. They may have trouble trying to convince their rural friends, however.

The country is ringing today with the echoes of Friday's special message from President Roosevelt to congress. It is the bravest, staunchest, most virile and most able message that has gone from a president to congress and the country since Lincoln's time. It is a clarion call to battle, rallying the people for the final assault upon the fortification of entrenched and sodden greed. It is the message of a real man to real manhood.—Duluth Herald.

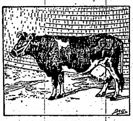
Plummer Pioneer—In starting these proceedings Mr. Ives evidently didn't stop to consider what the result might be to himself in case the Pioneer should lose out. We managed the Spectator for Mr. Ives for about three years and during all that time the Spectator did not have within several of the total number of subscribers which the Pioneer had during the past two or three years and has at present. But during most of this time the Spectator was the official paper of Red Lake county. Since then the saw mill and lots of people have moved away from St. Hilaire and it is a question if the Spectator's subscription list has not moved away some with the rest. Still the Spectator has been the official county paper until this year.

It is true that Mr. Latta was in our employ on the Spectator for about three years but we are not inclined to believe that there were many times during that time when he was in condition to even count the Spectator's subscribers. We also have documentary evidence that during that time his memory was bad. Had he continued in our employ it is probable that we would not have had very many subscribers at this time.

March of The Dairy Cow.

As long as business is prosperous and population continues to concentrate in the cities and towns, requiring them to reach out farther and farther for supplies of fresh milk, the market milk business will crowd back the making of butter and cheese, especially of the ordinary grades, and factories for their manufacture will be abandoned in order to sell milk or cream to the city. The outlook for the market milk business in New England as far as demand is concerned is good. The only question is that of price. The farm labor situation is acute, the cost of grain feeds is high and increasing, and the awakening of health authorities to the importance of clean, sanitary milk is adding to the cost of production. There seems, however, to be no danger of the overproduction of milk, cream or fancy fresh butter.

Wonderful progress has been made in the dairy industry during the past decade in the north central states. Among the states which have become prominent in dairying recently are Michigan, Indiana, North Dakota, South Dakota, Oklahoma and Missouri. In the last fifteen years the states of Illinois, Iowa, Wisconsin and Minnesota have made great progress in dairying. In the last two states thousands of farms have been taken up and put under cultivation, and hundreds of the creameries and cheese factories have been built and put in operation. The center of butter production has been moving westward, while market milk is relatively of less importance westward than in the east.



GRADE HOLSTEIN QUEEN.

[Best yearly record, 12,000 pounds milk, 480 pounds butter fat; average for six years, 8,422 pounds milk, 339.47 pounds butter fat.]

In the South.

In the south some herds are found producing as good results as are ordinarily made in any section of America. Altogether there is an enormous demand in the south for dairy products. Almost all of the butter and cheese is imported, and some cream is shipped in from states a great distance away. While the southern dairyman has some difficulties he has also many advantages in climate, cost of building, variety of forage crops and good markets.

On the Pacific Coast.

In the highly productive valleys of the state of Washington rich, succulent food, pure water and temperate climate are the essentials in the manufacture of a "nutty," high flavored sweet butter. Nature has been lavish in her gifts to the state of Washington in this respect, and we may look forward to this state becoming a large producer of highest grade butter.

In the beautiful climate of Oregon new blood, dairy literature and farmers' institutes are the leaven which is changing the "mossback" into an intelligent dairyman. Here and there may be seen pure bred herds of Jerseys, Holstein-Friesians and Ayrshires.

California has sections that are ideal for the production of milk, the only drawback being the scarcity of labor. The counties surrounding the bay of San Francisco comprise the best developed dairy district of California. It is from these counties that California is receiving one-third of its butter and San Francisco all of its milk.

No section of the United States offers greater returns to the intelligent dairyman than the states on the Pacific coast. Owing to the numerous streams which have their origin in snow clad peaks there is a never failing supply of fresh pure water, and in this equable climate dairy cows require to be stabled only from two to four months, according to the locality.

What Grade Cows May Do.

In all parts of the country the interest of farmers who desire to build up profitable dairy herds, but do not feel able to purchase pure bred stock entirely, centers largely around the possibilities of grade cows. Carefully kept records of individual grade cows for a series of years have shown that when such cows are well fed and well managed they may return a liberal profit for a term of seven, eight or even nine years.

Fever Tick on Sheep.

The cattle fever tick, which has been found on sheep all through the range country, has upset all the theories heretofore held regarding the pest, says Denver Field and Farm. Experts have been at work endeavoring to eradicate the cattle tick under generous appropriations from congress. The first discovery of the tick on the sheep was one which had been left in an isolated field for a month before the ticks were discovered. In moving the herd this one had been accidentally left behind, but the pest has spread rapidly in some way, and now whole bands are infested in several states.

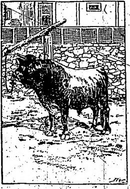
"When the frost is on the pumpkin
And the fodder's in the shock,"
It is then the careful farmer
Turns his mind upon his stock.

BULL EXERCISER.

A Device That Hardens Muscle and Tones Down Temper.

The necessity of some form of exercise for the stock bull has long been recognized, and many devices have been experimented with. Mr. F. E. Dawley in Country Gentleman pronounces the pole and sweep shown in the cut the most satisfactory device that he has ever used. Mr. Dawley describes the device as follows, and the arrangement is easily understood, although one of the chains alluded to is not discernible in the cut:

It is made by setting a heavy post deeply in the ground, letting it extend up about six feet. A band is placed on the top, and a section of an old steel wagon axle with the box attached is driven into the end. This post should not be less than ten inches through at the top. A hardwood sweep is cut and the center of gravity determined by balancing it over a sawhorse. A hole is then bored through this sweep at the center of gravity and the box securely fastened into it. It is then set back on the axle, the sweep swinging on the axletree. Two short chains are attached to the small end of the sweep. To the lower end of one of these a swivel bar clevis is attached. To the other a very heavy snap is fastened. A piece of old two inch tug or a strong leather collar is placed on the bull's neck, being held in place by two short flat head bolts, which are far better than a buckle, and a ring is placed on this collar. When the bull is led ~~out~~ before liberating him from the staff the large snap on one of the chains is snapped into this ring. The bar clevis is then screwed into the ring in the bull's nose, when he is ready to take his exercise.



ON THE SWEEP.

The first time an animal is hitched it may be necessary to drive him around and to work the sweep for him in order to get him accustomed to it. The chains should be so adjusted that the one attached to the strap on his neck will swing the sweep. It should be long enough so he can reach the ground. By the use of this device I have kept a bull until he was fourteen years old in such condition that his muscles were hard and firm and he was vigorous and virile. One great advantage in exercising the animals in this way is that they become accustomed to being handled and are very much more tractable than when kept tied in the pens or when simply led out and put in a tread power once or twice a day for half an hour.

LIVE STOCK NOTES.

A meeting of the associations of Angora goat breeders and mohair growers is announced for Nov. 15 at San Antonio, Tex. It is expected that some of the very best goats in America will be on exhibition in the same place from Nov. 9 to Nov. 24, and $600 in prizes will be awarded.

Bare Lot or Grass Lot.

At the Louisiana experiment station an experiment as to the relation of bare lot and grass lot feeding to parasites in the stomach and intestines of sheep has been concluded, and Dr. Dalrymple states in his report of the test, bulletin No. 95, that on the whole the lambs raised by the bare lot method were in every way more satisfactory than those raised on the grass lot.

Sugar Beets For Stock.

Farmers are beginning to appreciate the value of sugar beets for stock feeding and are raising more of them each year. Many of the farmers in northern Colorado have grown beets for this purpose and will slice them before feeding, while others will turn their stock into the fields to fatten on tops and roots. The Jones Cattle company of the Middle Park has contracted for 300 tons of beets at Mead, which will be fed to cattle, with hogs following, a plan which was tried last year with excellent results.—Denver Field and Farm.

No American Coach Horse.

Although numerous entries were made, not one was judged good enough to carry off the first prize for a coach horse which was offered this year by the Iowa state fair. The requirements were "American trotting bred horses of suitable size, conformation, style, quality and action for heavy harness service. Size, 15 hands and over; 15.1 to 15.3 preferred. Horses competing must be standard bred or registered nonstandard."

Champion Buttermaker.

Mrs. J. A. Peters of Story county has again won first prize at the Iowa state fair in the women's buttermaking contest. She is champion woman buttermaker in Iowa, having ranked first for many years. Sixty-four women, representing the states of Minnesota, Illinois, Iowa and Nebraska, competed.

The Talmud.

The Jewish Talmud has come down to us only through the heroic efforts of the Jews themselves and the intrepid service of John Reuchlin. Its reading was condemned by various edicts of emperors and kings; its circulation was prohibited by popes and theologians. Twelve thousand copies of this monumental work were burned at Cremona in 1559, and a similar fate befell 5,000 copies of the Koran by order of Cardinal Ximines on the taking of Grenada by Ferdinand and Isabella.—Boston Post.

NO FAT CROPS.

Shortage In Feed Grains This Year and Some Probable Effects.

The government crop report for September is looked upon as one of the most important of the year, showing especially the harvest of small grains and usually indicating fairly well the corn prospect. This year it is less to be depended on than usual as to corn because the crop is late and not out of frost danger at the time the report is compiled. But the conclusions as to corn and the other crops also seem to be pretty well in line with estimates made by commercial authorities.

Leaving out wheat and rye, both of which in price are now out of the list of feeding grains, we find that the shortage in the yield of corn, oats and barley amounts to a total of 601,000,000 bushels. Allowing for a better hay crop than last year and the economy incident to feeding high priced grains, there must still be a serious shortage in the stuff that makes all meat and dairy products and also in byproducts from mills. And there is no reason aside from their cost to anticipate a greatly decreased consumption of these products. In fact, there are reasons for believing that people will have to depend on them more than usual. With exception of potatoes staple vegetable supplies are short. Canned goods, both fruits and vegetables, are not in liberal supply, and prices are higher than usual. Bread must be dearer than usual also. There is therefore not much probability of substitution reducing the consumption of meats and dairy products, though careful consumption may do so. Certainly the feed grain situation justifies expectations of good markets, because prices of feeds now prevailing will restrict feeding as much as prices of products will retard consumption and probably more.

A Shift In the Hog Trade.

For many months light hogs have sold at a substantial premium over heavy ones. Considering the difference in the percentage of meat they yield and the price the light weights have cost $1 to $1.50 per hundredweight more than the heavy when they were hung up. But there will probably be a change in this relation—in fact, a part of the difference has already disappeared. It would not be surprising to see their positions reversed so far as the price on foot is concerned. High priced corn will probably bring about marketing of hogs at lighter weights, and the heavy grades will be relatively scarce. The lard market promises to be good. These influences, with the smaller percentage of waste from heavy hogs, is very likely to put a premium on them before the winter is very old.—National Stockman.

DAIRY COMMENT.

Professor Fraser of the Illinois Agricultural college has struck a new method of teaching in the country district school. There was a bright, sensible lady schoolteacher who wanted to make her school of some practical use to the farmers and their children. So she applied to the professor for a Babcock test machine, and the children have been bringing samples of milk from their homes to be tested. The scheme is working fine, and we are glad to see it inaugurated, says Hoard's Dairyman.

Price of Milk.

Higher prices for milk per 100 pounds as made to farmers by the Borden Condensed Milk company for the next six months are quoted as follows:

October, $1.80; November, $2; December, $2; January, $2; February, $2; March, $1.80.

The Vital Difference.

Do you know that in some of the European countries today they are dairying successfully on land worth from $400 to $1,000 per acre? The same markets are open to our people that are open to those people, and no duty bars the way. The difference is right here—they are dairying intelligently with good cows. Their average is nearly 300 pounds of butter per cow, while ours is about 140 pounds per cow. We need a great awakening.—G. L. McKay, Iowa.

Greater Use of Starters.

A recent Pennsylvania butter scoring contest shows an increase in the number of commercial starters used to be noted, though the scores of the users show that there is much to be learned about the making and using of the starter. A good starter is a great help, a poor one worse than none.

Arrives Just Right.

Pat the fall calf on the back. She arrives in the world at the proper time. She will be six months old before she sees a fly. That means six months of a start, remarks Dorothy T. in Farm Journal. Give her a good place to sleep. Be sure it's dry. Calves like clover hay too.

Complete Ration.

Corn silage and alfalfa, two of the best feeds for dairy cows, make practically a complete or balanced ration in themselves. For the Mississippi valley there is no crop generally grown that will produce more feed to the acre than corn.—W. J. Fraser, Illinois.

Overcoming Fatigue.

From France comes the information that good results have been obtained from the use of sugar to overcome the great fatigue in horses when overworked. The good result obtained by a veterinary surgeon from the use of sugar in large doses in forced marches led him to employ it for the purpose of overcoming fatigue. Two hundred grains of sugar were fed daily, mixed with the horse's food and distributed regularly throughout the day.

Conquered St. Peter.

A Boston clergyman tells how a witty Irishman stood before the gate of the other world asking for admission, says Lippincott's Magazine. St. Peter refused him, however, telling him he was too great a sinner to enter there, and bade him go away. The man went a little distance from the gate and then crowed three times like a rooster. St. Peter at once threw open the gate and cried out: "Come in, Pat! We'll let bygones be bygones!"

A New Dam

Engineer C. H. Martz made a preliminary report to the village council last Monday evening in regard to the proposed building of a new dam across the Red Lake River south of here. While Mr. Martz has not yet completed his survey or made his estimates he has gone far enough to demonstrate clearly that the village can purchase land and build a dam across the river south of here which would give us all the power we need and it can be done much cheaper than the power in the village can be bought.

P. O. HAGGLUND SHOT

Well Known Rocksbury Farmer Shot by His Insane Son in a Fit of Anger.

Wound Not a Dangerous One However and he Will Undoubtly Recover.

This community was startled early last Tuesday morning by the report that P. O. Hagglund, the well known Rocksbury farmer, had been shot by his son, John Hagglund, who has been working for a year or more at his trade as a painter at Grafton, N. D. It was while thus employed that his mind became deranged and about two weeks ago his father brought him home. While it was evident that he was not in his right mind, the family did not feel like having him committed to an insane asylum as he did not show any dangerous tendencies until the night of the shooting.

He had rested badly the night before and that morning got up and found a loaded 38 calibre revolver in a bureau drawer. His brother Ole saw him take it and John said that he was going out to kill himself. A scuffle ensued between the two boys for possession of the revolver, Mr. Hagglund getting out of bed to give Ole assistance. The crazed man getting free, aimed the revolver at his father and fired, the ball striking him in the breast, hitting a bone and glancing into the left arm where it remains. The entire family left the house and went to the home of Anton Aubol about forty rods away. The crazed man followed them in a short time and the neighbors succeeded in disarming him and brought him to town.

He was brought before Justice Peters upon complaint of his brother, Ole Hagglund, but the Justice finding him so evidently insane, ordered the sheriff to take him before the judge of probate where he was taken on Wednesday evening.

At the examination before Probate Judge Tarrant on Thursday at Red Lake Falls, John Hagglund was found to be insane and ordered committed to the asylum at Fergus Falls where he was taken Thursday night.

P. O. HAGGLUND

The above is an excellent likeness of the injured man who stands an excellent chance of recovering soon according to Dr. Cummings, the physician in charge, who says that the patient has the best of chances to recover.

A BIG SUCCESS

The St. Hilaire Fire Department's Ball on January 31 a Success Both Socially and Finacially.

The annual mask ball of the St. Hilaire Fire Department was held in the Imperial hall last Friday evening, Jan. 31, and was one of the most successful ever given by that organization.

The Red Lake Falls orchestra furnished the music for the occasion and it was rendered with the usual harmony and precision characteristic of that organization.

The costumes were many and varied and some of them were quite elaborate and pretty, displaying the artistic sense of their wearers. There were comics "galore" and their make-ups were anything but artistic. The judges required some time to deliberate and finally awarded the prizes as follows:

Best dressed lady—Miss Sathre, a mission clock.

Best dressed man—Mike Anderson, $2.

Most comical character—Albert Hall $1.

The firemen realized approximately $22 after all expenses had been paid.

"Have you a few moments to spare?" "Young man," said the capitalist severely, "my time is worth $100 an hour, but I'll give you ten minutes." "If it's all the same to you," thoughtfully replied the visitor, "I believe I would rather take it in cash."—Exchange.

BIG FARMER'S MEETING

The St. Hilaire Commercial Club and Business Men Will Entertain the Farmers

TO CELEBRATE START OF CREAMERY

Friday, February 21st, is the Day and Preparations for a Big Day are Being Made.

To properly celebrate the sixth anniversary of the starting of the St. Hilaire creamery, the St. Hilaire commercial club and business men will entertain the patrons of the creamery and the farmers of this vicinity at a big agricultural meeting and dinner on Friday, February 21st, beginning at 10:30 a. m., at the Imperial hall.

The committee in charge are striving in every way to make this the best and largest meeting of the kind ever held in Red Lake county. While it is yet too early to announce a completed program, the following well known speakers have already signified their intention of being present.

Hon. John R. Morley, of Owatonna, Minn., secretary of the State Dairymens' Association will deliver the principal address and it will be one that every farmer in Red Lake county, who is interested in dairying, should hear.

The following is the program as far as prepared:

"Cheap Milk Production"
HON. JOHN R. MORLEY

"Proper Feeding of Milch Cows"
O. A. STORWICK

"Horticulture and Hogs"
R. A. SCHUTZ

"Corn Raising"
C. W. HALE

"Dairy Notes"
CHARLES NELSON

The meeting will begin promptly at 10:30 and farmers are requested to be on hand at that time. A free dinner ticket will be given to every farmer attending the meeting.

School Notes.

There were twenty-three examinees at the teachers' examination last week, the twenty-third taking only the last examination on Saturday, that in civics.

Berthilda Peterson, Inez Patterson, and Tyra Wallen visited the primary room between examinations Friday.

H. T. McAnulty was up at the school house a moment Saturday between trains, being on his way to Thief River Falls.

The snow has given great amusement to some of the children. They wallow in it as tho they love it dearly.

The play that the high school pupils propose to give is already beginning to be the topic of interest. The characters have been assigned and the parts already committed, mostly.

ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT.

There was once a boy and his little sister. They were playing near the bank of a river, with their little dog. Their home was not far away, and there were some men working in a field near by. While they were playing the little girl got too near the edge of the bank, and fell into the river.

The boy screamed to let the men know and then he grabbed the girl's jumping rope and threw one end of it into the water. The rope was not quite long enough so the boy jumped into the water which was up to his shoulders. When the girl grabbed the rope, the boy caught hold of the bank and clung to it until the men came and took them out of the water, (after which they were taken home.)

Geo. Morlander,
8th Grade.

ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT.

One day a little child who lived in the country near a railroad track was walking along it picking small stones and otherwise amusing herself. The track makes a turn as it comes out of the large wood from which she was walking. It was time for the train to pass by but she was not thinking of that. The train came, was just rounding the curve. The engineer saw the child and blew the whistle and tried to stop the train in time but saw that he could not. The train was rapidly bearing down upon the unsuspecting child. But just then she looked up, saw her danger and at the same time jumped. She was just off the track when the huge engine thundered by. It was acting on the spur of the moment with her.

Otto Skeie,

Exercise for Brain Workers

Walking is said to be the best exercise for brain workers. This is indeed fortunate, for poets and other "high brows" can seldom afford any other means of transportation. Great is the law of compensation. For over worked brain or muscle we suggest the daily use of golden grain belt beer. Serve this delicious beverage with your meals and you put health and strength into your system. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

TRAGIC STORY OF DISASTER AT SEA

Captain of Cymric Tells of Burning of St. Cuthbert and Loss of Fifteen Lives.

FIGHT FOR LIFE AGAINST FIRE

Rescue of Survivors Is Accomplished With Great Difficulty by Crew of Cymric.

South Wellfleet, Mass., Feb. 6.—A wireless dispatch from Capt. Finch of the White Star line steamer Cymric last night told the thrilling story of the burning of the Phoenix line steamer St. Cuthbert, with the loss of fifteen souls and the rescue of survivors by a lifeboat from the Cymric. According to Capt. Finch's dispatch eleven men were drowned by the capsizing of a boat in which they had put off from the burning steamer, three others in another boat were drowned and a stowaway lost his life by falling through an open hatchway into the midst of the flames.

Loaded With Combustibles.

The wireless dispatch says that St. Cuthbert, bound from Antwerp for New York with a general cargo, including fusel oil, naphtholin, matches and rags, caught fire about 5 o'clock on Sunday morning.

The second officer, Mr. Tuohy, noticed smoke coming from a ventilator and summoned Capt. Lewis. The latter hurried to the deck, the flames which shot from the ventilators choking him as he passed. Hardly had the captain reached the deck when a series of explosions occurred in the forward part of the vessel and Nos. 1 and 2 hatches blew into the air. A call was sounded for all hands, but some of the crew who were forward were unable to reach the after part of the steamer, as the bow seemed instantly to burst into flame.

Fight Flames Desperately.

The flames, fed by the combustible materials in the hold, spread rapidly, giving out a tremendous heat. Throughout the remainder of the day (Sunday) the men fought untiringly to prevent the flames from reaching the stern of the vessel, where the naphtholin was stored. Had the flames communicated to this the steamer must have been blown to atoms and all on board have perished.

Shortly after 9 o'clock Monday the Cymric hove in sight. Her appearance was the signal for a great cheer from the sailors, who nearly went wild as they saw a prospect of rescue.

Rescue Is Accomplished.

The captain of the Cymric signaled that he would stand by and would send a lifeboat as soon as the sea moderated. By afternoon, the weather having moderated a little, the lifeboat was launched from the Cymric. The work of rescue was accomplished with great difficulty.

Three lights were left burning on the St. Cuthbert as a warning of danger to navigation. Her seacocks were also opened, and it was believed that she would founder within eight hours.

ICEMEN BEGIN JAIL SENTENCE.

Toledo Men Convivted of Conspiracy Given Six Months.

Toledo, Ohio, Feb. 6.—Roland Beard and Compton Lemman of the Hygia Ice company, and Joseph Miller, manager of the Toledo Ice and Coal company, were yesterday sentenced to six months in the county jail and to pay costs of prosecution by Judge Kinkaid for conspiracy in restraint of trade.

These men were found guilty last July and at that time Judge Kinkaid sentenced each of them to six months in the workhouse and $2,500 fine.

The case was appealed and a few days ago the supreme court handed down a decision declaring the convicted men could be sent to jail, but not to the workhouse. They were remanded to the common pleas court for resentence, and while the fine was not assessed, the workhouse sentence was changed to the county jail. No further effort will be made in behalf of the defendants, and they at once began their term of sentence. All the men are of prominent Toledo families.

Report From Tangier Tells of Bloody Battle Between French and Natives.

London, Feb. 6.—A London news agency publishes a dispatch from Tangier saying that there has been a battle between the French and Moors in Morocco, in which 10,000 Moors were killed or wounded, and in which the French losses amounted to 160 men, including four officers.

The Moors, with intense bravery, charged to the mouths of the guns, until their forces lay in great piles on the ground.

MADMAN FIRES UP.

Fergus Falls, Minn., Feb. 6.—A man named William Butterworth entered the boiler room of the Fergus Falls Woolen mills at an early hour yesterday morning and built up a red hot fire. The boiler was empty and the scorching ruined the flues, the damage amounting to hundreds of dollars. The police were called and it was found that Butterworth was an escaped lunatic from the Northern Wisconsin insane asylum at Oshkosh.

A Bellboy With Hopes.

A small colored bellboy at one of the hotels was seen by a guest late the other night intently rummaging through the big wicker hamper containing the soiled individual towels used in the wash room.

"What are you looking for there, sonny?" inquired the guest curiously.

"Oh, I'm huntin' fo' a di'mon' ring," says the little bellhop.

"Some one lost their ring, eh?" said the guest, getting interested.

"No, sah," explained the boy, "no one ain't jes' los' no ring, but ev'ry now and then somebody pulls one off their finger when they wipes their han's, and some o' these days they'll drap one in here and not know 'bout it. Then ah'll find it and get the reward and be a man of means."

Rates Too High.

A lanky countryman from the mines came into the Melbourne Argus office. "My old guv'nor's dead and I should like a bit of poetry or something put in the paper about him."

"All right," says the clerk, "hand it over."

"Can't you fix something up for me?" asks the miner. "He was a right good chap."

"Oh, yes," replied the clerk, "we'll manage that for you; our charge for 'In Memorium' notices is sixpence an inch."

"Oh, thunder!" exclaims the mourner, "I can't stand that; my guv'nor was over six feet!"

PANTRY CLEANED

A Way Some People Have.

A doctor said:—

"Before marriage my wife observed in summer and country homes, coming in touch with families of varied means, culture, tastes and discriminating tendencies, that the families using Postum seemed to average better than those using coffee.

"When we were married two years ago, Postum was among our first order of groceries. We also put in some coffee and tea for guests, but after both had stood around the pantry about a year untouched, they were thrown away, and Postum used only.

"Up to the age of 28 I had been accustomed to drink coffee as a routine habit and suffered constantly from indigestion and all its relative disorders. Since using Postum all the old complaints have completely left me and I sometimes wonder if I ever had them."

FRESH STORIES OF ASYLUM HORRORS

Illinois Investigating Committee Learns of More Instances of Brutality.

WOMAN CHOKED WITH TOWEL

Hair-pulling and Rib-smashing Common Diversions of Inhuman Attendants.

Jacksonville, Ill., Feb. 9. — It was learned yesterday that fresh stories of brutalities to the insane patients at the state asylum here were told to the members of the legislative investigating committee at their secret session last night.

One was the story of how a man was set upon by three attendants and beaten until two ribs were broken. He was in the hospital nearly six weeks.

Another story was that of a young woman attendant, who brutally pulled the hair of a patient. Still another was the story of a patient choked with a towel by an attendant.

None of these attendants were discharged.

Patient Beaten to Death.

Representatives Manny and Ireland, who have been conducting the investigation, also are investigating a story, which has yet to be confirmed, of a young man patient who was beaten by an attendant until he died in the hospital of his injuries. The cause of his death was stated to be appendicitis.

In their visit to one ward the legislators saw three patients whose eyes had been blackened by blows. They saw another patient in the violent ward whose shoulder blade had been broken. The attendants say the man was hurt by falling while in an epileptic fit. There were 1,456 inmates from March 1, 1907, to Jan. 1, 1908. Among these there were 547 accidents and 135 deaths.

Attendants Explain Charges.

The patient whose ribs were broken by the attendants was John O'Brien. The nurse who pulled the inmate's hair is declared to be a Miss Gertrude Chiesm. She was not disciplined, claiming she only pulled hair under the woman's head to raise her to administer medicine.

Miss Trella Harneck is the attendant accused of choking a woman patient with a towel which she twisted around the neck. She claimed she only twisted the towel around the woman's neck to keep her from biting.

IS IN CONSTANT TERROR.

Franco Predicts That Passions of People Will Explode With Violence.

Bordeau, Feb. 9.—Former Premier Franco of Portugal arrived here yesterday. He told the manager of the hotel where he and his party took apartments that he would remain over night. He did not say where he purposed going from here, but it is believed that his ultimate destination is Switzerland.

Franco looks haggard and appears to be preoccupied. He looks constantly to the right and left, as if he felt he should be prepared to forestall some impending physical danger.

Suffers No Remorse.

Senhor Franco was approached for an interview. He explained that under the circumstances he preferred to say nothing, but he authorized a member of his party to say for him that he suffered no remorse for his conduct as a statesman. On the contrary, he was firmly convinced that the policy he had pursued was the wisest one possible.

"Portugal was in a state of demoralization," said the spokesman for Senhor Franco, "and every excess of liberty to-day, while having an apparent effect of tranquillity, will in reality only add to the violent passions of the people, which later will explode with greater violence.

No Revolution Planned.

"Senhor Franco does not believe that the murders of the king and the crown prince resulted from an elaborate political plot; they were the acts of mad men instigated by a passion for the money received for their crime. The best proof of this is found in the fact that after the assassinations, when the monarchy was passing through its critical hours and the nation was without a government, no serious attempt was made to proclaim a republic."

All Ready for Funeral.

Lisbon, Feb. 9.—The simple but impressive funeral service to-day will be the final act in the bloody tragedy of Saturday. All the arrangements for the solemn march throughout the city and the ceremonies at the church of San Vincente have been completed. Additional troops were brought into Lisbon yesterday to accompany the cortege and line the route of march.

JUDGE HARGIS KILLED BY SON

Famous Feudist, Accused of Many Murders, Is Shot Down in His Own Store.

Jackson, Ky., Feb. 8. — Former County Judge James Hargis, for many years a member of the state Democratic committee, accused of complicity in many murders, and a prominent figure in the feuds which have disrupted Breathitt county for several years, was shot and instantly killed in his general store here yesterday afternoon by his son, Beach Hargis. The son fired five shots in rapid succession at his father, who fell dead while his clerks were waiting on customers. The exact cause of the murder has not been learned, but it is supposed to have been the result of differences which have existed between father and son for some time.

Son Was Drunk.

The two men are reported to have had a severe quarrel several nights ago, when the father, it is alleged, was compelled to resort to violence to restrain his son. Young Hargis, it is said, has been drinking heavily of late. He came into the store late yesterday afternoon and was apparently under the influence of liquor. Judge Hargis, it is said, spoke to his son about his drinking and a quarrel resulted. Father and son stepped behind a counter in the store, when the son, after only a few minutes' conversation, drew a revolver and fired five shots. Four took effect, the noted mountain character falling dead.

Selects His Own Casket.

Young Hargis was arrested by Town Marshal Goran Smith and Grover Blanton and placed in jail. He was raving like a maniac and the officers were compelled to drag him to jail.

Judge Hargis will be buried in a casket which he himself purchased about a month ago. Some time ago, during the early part of last month, Judge Hargis went to the National Casket company and ordered a coffin costing $1,500.

About 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon the following telegram was received by the company:

"Express to-day casket selected by James Hargis, as he is dead.

—"Mrs. Judge James Hargis."

Judge Hargis has been for years a prominent figure in Kentucky in political and criminal circles. He has figured in the courts in the mountains for years on account of the murders of Dr. Cox, Attorney Marcum and Jim Cockrill.

Hargis had been on trial at various times for complicity in the murder of James B. Marcum, Jim Cockrill and Dr. Cox, but had secured an acquittal on all the charges. He was recently forced to pay a judgment of $8,000 to Mrs. Marcum in connection with the death of her husband, a verdict having been found against him in the circuit court at Winchester.

The Hargis-Cockrill feud, out of which grew the almost innumerable tragedies with which Judge Hargis' name is linked, had its inception in a political contest.

NO RIGHT TO NAME ROSSITER.

President Exceeded Authority in Placing Him in Printing Office.

Washington, Feb. 9. — William S. Rossiter, who on Wednesday last was appointed acting public printer in place of Public Printer Stillings, who is under suspension pending an investigation of the affairs of his office, went to the treasury department yesterday to have his bond approved. The department refused to consider the matter on the ground that the president had exceeded his authority in appointing Mr. Rossiter; that under the law the assistant public printer, Capt. H. T. Brian, succeeds to the vacancy.

Under this informal ruling Mr. Rossiter later in the day stepped aside and his place was taken by Capt. Brian, who will administer the government printing office as acting public printer for the time being. Mr. Rossiter, however, does not relinquish the work of inquiry laid out for him by the president. His position in the government printing office becomes that of the president's personal representative, and he is proceeding with the investigation upon which he is to base his report to the president of conditions existing there and of the best methods of putting the big plant on a business basis.

Capt. Brian took the oath of office as acting public printer and immediately entered upon the discharge of his duties.

Port Hood, N. S., Feb. 8.—Six coal miners and four loaders were crushed to death yesterday as the result of an explosion in the Port Hood mine of the Port Hood-Richmond Railway Coal company. Whether the explosion was due to gas, fire-damp or gunpowder remains to be determined by a coroner's jury.

The accident occurred about 7:30 o'clock yesterday morning, soon after the day's work had begun.

FRUSTRATE PLOT TO FORM REPUBLIC

Elaborate Conspiracy at Oporto Is Nipped in Bud—Leaders Are Arrested.

PAY TRIBUTE TO DEAD KING

Thousands of Portuguese View the Remains—Child Is Killed in Crush at Church.

Marseilles, Feb. 11.—The frustration on Friday last at Oporto of an elaborate plot to proclaim a republic is announced in a telegram which was received yesterday from one of the highest officials in Oporto by his brother, who has just arrived here from Lisbon. According to the telegram a large number of conspirators have been arrested, including the leaders. It was also stated that numerous bodies of militant republicans had been seen about the suburbs of Oporto. The police captured a large store of revolvers and carbines together with the written plans of the conspirators. These plans indicated that it was the intention to take the city by surprise on Saturday night, invade the government house, imprison the governor and other officials, destroy all lines of communication and establish a republic.

Funeral Passes Quietly.

Lisbon, Feb. 11. — With the church bells tolling continually, the bodies of the murdered king and crown prince, in two golden chariots shrouded in black velvet and drawn by eight hooded horses, were escorted by a glittering funeral pageant Saturday across Lisbon to the Portuguese pantheon.

Not a single untoward incident marred the last act of Portugal's recent tragedy. Vague forebodings proved baseless and there is a general feeling of relief in that all passed well.

Pay Last Tribute.

Sunday thousands of Portuguese, poor and rich, humble and pretentious, filed slowly through the noble cathedral of San Vicente and gazed for the last time on the faces of their king and crown prince. When night fell and the doors of the church were closed there was still a large crowd patiently awaiting admission. All the people yesterday wore some emblem of mourning and in passing the coffins placed beneath them floral offerings—some budding wild flowers from the fields; others simple clusters of violets, and others elaborate creations and rare exotic blooms.

Child Is Killed in Crush.

The bodies were guarded constantly by officers of the army and navy, royal archers and the palace guards. During the afternoon the square in front of the church, though guarded by soldiers, became dangerously crowded with people who had poured in from various sections of the city and its environs. Many were knocked down, especially women and children, and women fainted both within the church and while waiting in the streets. A child who was crushed to the ground under the surging mass striving for admission was dead when finally lifted from under the feet of the crowd.

May Be No Coronation.

In official circles it is believed that the ceremonies in connection with the coronation of King Manuel may not occur for two or three months, and perhaps may never occur, as the young king wishes to inaugurate his reign with as little ostentation as possible.

Indications point to relative tranquillity for a few weeks, when republican activity and determination to proclaim a republic, which appear strongly in evidence, may force important developments.

STILL AFTER KELSEY.

Hughes Expected to Ask for Removal of Superintendent of Insurance

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 11.—That Gov. Hughes will renew to the senate this week his recommendation of last year that Otto Kelsey be removed from the office of state superintendent of insurance on the ground of inefficiency is the general expectation here, though the governor will say nothing on the subject. There have been various rumors that Mr. Kelsey would resign and thus avoid an open contest, but these appear to be without substantial foundation.

TROOPS FAIL TO STOP LYNCHING

Two Thousand Enraged Citizens Overpower Armed Guard and Hang Negro.

Brookhaven, Miss., Feb. 12. — Eli Pigot, a negro, who assaulted Miss Williams, a young white woman, near here several weeks ago, was early yesterday taken from the custody of the Jackson military company and a posse of deputies and hanged from a telegraph pole within less than a hundred yards of the court house.

He was to have been tried yesterday for his crime. The military company and the posse were overpowered by a mob of more than 2,000 citizens. Several shots were fired during the melee and two members of the mob were wounded.

Mob Attacks Militia.

Pigot reached Brookhaven from Jackson shortly after 7 o'clock, in custody of Sheriff Frank Greer and under the armed escort of the Capital Light guards, ordered into service by Gov. Noel to protect the negro during the trial.

When the soldiers and negro alighted from the train the mob surged around them, and a fierce hand-to-hand fight ensued. The soldiers clubbed the members of the mob with their guns.

The fight lasted five minutes and the military started with the prisoner to the court house, when the mob, reinforced and reorganized, made another attack, secured the prisoner, dragged him to a telephone pole and hanged him.

All Show Marks of Fight.

Jackson, Miss., Feb. 12.—The Jackson military company, from whose custody a mob secured Eli Pigot, the negro lynched at Brookhaven yesterday, returned to this city late last evening, almost every member of the company bearing some mark of their encounter with the mob. One of the militiamen, Corporal Leslie Arms, was seriously injured.

Capt. Albert Failey, who was in command of the local militia, stated that the soldiers exerted every means to save the negro from the mob, both as to courage and to effort, but that it was a case of fighting against overwhelming odds. The local company was joined at Brookhaven by the company stationed at that place and in all numbered fifty-eight men.

NOW RESTS WITH ANCESTORS.

Bodies of King Carlos and Luis Phillippi Laid Away.

Lisbon, Feb. 12. — The bodies of King Carlos and Crown Prince Luiz Philippe were yesterday laid away beside those of their royal ancestors in the sacred sepulchres of the pantheon. The official closing of one of the most tragical incidents in Portuguese history was done in a scene which almost ended in disaster. A great crowd, numbering into the thousands struggled outside the cathedral San Vicente seeking to enter and view the bodies before the doors were finally closed for the ceremony.

Brushing back the police and guard of Royal Archers, they poured into the church, sweeping everything before them. A panic was threatened and the cavalry was called out to disperse the pushing thousands. Women and children were caught in the crush, and many of them were bruised and trampled upon, but no fatalities have been reported. When the doors eventually were closed to the public the ceremony of entombment was carried out.

JUSSERAND AND ROOT SIGN TREATY

Provides for Arbitration of Any Issue Arising Between America and France.

AGREEMENT MUST BE RATIFIED

Convention Is the Result of Recommendations Made by the Hague Peace Conference.

Washington, Feb. 12. — Secretary Root and Ambassador Jusserand yesterday signed a treaty providing for the arbitration of any issue that may arise between France and America.

The treaty will have to be submitted to the United States senate and to the French executive before it can become effective. Meanwhile its provisions are withheld from publication. It is understood, however, that the treaty is drawn in accordance with the recommendation of the late Hague conference, which, finding it impossible to draft a general arbitration treaty that would receive the full assent and support of all of the great signatory powers, undertake to make special arrangement between themselves for the settlement of disputes by arbitration. The present convention is believed to be in terms very similar to one prepared by Secretary Olney and Lord Pauncefote looking to the arbitration of possible disputes between America and Great Britain, which convention failed of approval by the United States senate.

Reasons for Secrecy.

Owing to the rule that drafts of treaties must not be made public before they have been made the subject of action by the senate, it is impossible to ascertain at present how Secretary Root has been able to overcome the apparently insurmountable obstacle to the ratification of such a treaty arising from the insistence of the senate to its right to pass separately upon any question to be arbitrated.

The failure of the Hague conference to agree upon a general arbitration treaty was caused by the refusal of some of the principal European nations to enter into conventional arrangements of that kind with some of the lesser countries of South and Central America and with Oriental nations.

Surprise to French Papers.

Paris, Feb. 12.—The fact that negotiations looking to a treaty of arbitration between the United States and France were under way was practically unknown to the French newspapers, which have not discussed this subject at all. News that such a treaty had been signed, however, is printed in the morning papers with but little or no comment.

MORSE IS INDICTED TWICE.

New York County Grand Jury Finds True Bills Against Banker.

New York, Feb. 12.—The grand jury for New York county, which has been investigating certain business transactions involving some of the banks with which Charles W. Morse, the organizer of the American Ice company and the Consolidated Steamship company, until recently was identified, yesterday returned five indictments. Three of these indictments had to do with liquor tax cases, while two indictments charged grand larceny.

The indictments were not made public, but in asking that a good-sized bail bond be required, District Attorney Jerome stated to the court that two charges of grand larceny were laid against "a man now on his way over here" from Europe.

Morse Is the Man.

Following the court proceedings, it was stated authoritatively that the man referred to by Mr. Jerome was Charles W. Morse, who sailed for Liverpool a week ago Saturday on the Campania, but is now returning upon the advice of his counsel. Mr. Morse is a passenger on the Cunarder Etruria, due here late next Saturday. The grand jury, it is learned, has ordered other indictments in connection with its investigation into banking affairs. Among the matters which the grand jury looked into was a transaction in which two notes for $200,000 figured. The federal grand jury, which also has been investigating the banking situation, concluded its day's session yesterday without handing down any indictments.

NIGHT RIDERS' MIDNIGHT RAID

Forty-five Thousand Pounds of Tobacco Destroyed in Crittenden County, Ky.

Hopkinsville, Ky., Feb. 11. — Last night at 12 o'clock a band of about 150 night riders, masked, heavily armed and wearing the insignia of a secret clan, invaded Fredonia, Crittendon county, captured James Scarberry, operator of the Cumberland Telephone company, and cut all telephone connections.

They then corraled several citizens in a drug store and held them prisoners.

Leaving a large guard in the town, the others galloped to the village of View, five miles away, and blew up Alfred H. Cardin's tobacco factory, containing 35,000 pounds of tobacco, and set fire to and destroyed Mr. Cardin's barn, containing 10,000 pounds of tobacco.

After firing volleys of shots into the air, the night riders returned through Fredonia and released their prisoners.

Eighty per cent of Crittendon county farmers have tobacco pooled in the Society of Equity. Mr. Cardin is not a member. The Planters' association has no organization in this county.

CHARGED WITH BIG FRAUD.

Publisher and Postmaster Are Indicted by Grand Jury.

Portland, Me., Feb. 11. — George Frederick Terry, general manager of the Sawyer Publishing company, at Waterville, and Henry W. Boshan, who for a number of years has handled the second and third class mail matter in the Waterville postoffice, were indicted in the United States district court for alleged joint conspiracy to defraud the government of postage.

It is alleged that the government has been robbed of many thousands of dollars a year for several years by Terry and Boshan, the amount being as high as $50,000 a year.

There were two counts each against Terry and Boshan. One charged conspiracy to falsify the transportation of second-class mail matter and the making of false statements of the actual circulation of Sawyer's monthly magazine for the purpose of defrauding the government of postage.

The second count charges conspiracy to make false returns as to the weight of second-class mail matter for the purpose of defrauding the postoffice department of postage due on the same magazine.

The Sawyer Publishing company publishes five so-called popular magazines. It is claimed that sample copies have been sent out greatly in excess of the number allowed.

RECEIVER NAMED FOR VILLAGE.

Illinois Town Still Ruled by Laws Made by Louis XIV. of France.

Belleville, Ill., Feb. 11.—Judge B. R. Burroughs, presiding in the circuit court here, granted the petition of the Federal Union Security Company of Indiana for an injunction to restrain George Lepeich from further action as supervisor of the village and common fields of Cahokia and from collecting rentals from the tenants of the 600 acres of valuable lands of that historic settlement. Frederick B. Morrills of Belleville was made receiver.

The court order results from an effort to readjust the affairs of the village, which were tangled.

The office of supervisor of Cahokia was created in 1722 and has been continued since with the same powers. The village is still governed by the laws given it by Louis XIV. of France.

INDIAN BURNED TO CRISP.

Clothes Saturated With Alcohol While Sleeping Near a Campfire.

Menominee, Mich., Feb. 11.—Michigabee, an Indian of the Pottawattamie tribe, near Wabeno, Forest county, Wisconsin, burned to death. Michigabee was returning with his father-in-law, Curly Jack, from Wabeno. Michigabee had a quart of alcohol in his pouch. Night falling upon them, they built a fire near the roadside and lay down.

Rolling around during the night the bottle broke in the pouch and Michigabee's clothes became saturated with alcohol. Coming in close contact with the fire the body was in flames in a second. The body was burned to a crisp.

LID PINCHES TILTERS.

Saloon Men Who Violate Law Are Quickly Punished.

Winona, Minn., Feb. 11. — The lid must not be tilted on Sunday in Winona. Any effort to get around the law causes trouble. Anton Pellowski was fined $20 and costs for keeping his saloon open last Sunday. A couple of his customers sneaked in the back door and bought a couple of beers and some alcohol. They then hastened to the city prison and told the police. Pellowski is the fourth saloonkeeper to be fined since the lid went on.

BIG ONES GET DOCKED.

Presidents of Two Railroads Will Have Salaries Cut 10 Per Cent.

Cincinnati, Feb. 11.—Vice President Murphy yesterday stated that the managements of the Cincinnati, New Orleans & Texas Pacific railway and Alabama Great Southern railroad have determined to put into effect on March 1, 1908, a reduction of 10 per cent in the pay of the president, vice presidents and other general officials and employes receiving monthly salaries of $250 and over.

Congress.

Resume of the Week's Proceedings.

Tuesday.

Washington, Feb. 5. — President Roosevelt's recent message to congress on the relations of capital and labor and of corporations and the public again was the theme of discussion in the house of representatives yesterday. Interest in yesterday's proceedings centered in a speech by John Sharp Williams, the minority leader, who, while lauding the president for some of his sentiments, expressed the belief that others were dangerous.

The senate yesterday passed the urgent deficiency bill, carrying an appropriation of over $24,000,000.

Wednesday.

Washington, Feb. 6.—Senator Beveridge of Indiana yesterday delivered an appeal to the senate to adopt his bill providing for a non-partisan tariff commission, a plan which he declared conformed to modern and business ideas on this subject.

Tariff revision and the president's recent special message to congress again were the main topics of discussion in the house of representatives yesterday. As has been the case for nearly a week, the Indian appropriation bill ostensibly was before the house, but in no quarter was any word spoken in regard to it.

Thursday.

Washington, Feb. 7. — Political speechmaking came to an end in the house of representatives yesterday and actual consideration of the Indian appropriation bill was resumed. A bitter fight was waged on the proposition to abolish non-reservation schools and the subject was discussed throughout the afternoon.

A financial speech by Senator Culberson of Texas and the passage of a bill providing for a government exhibit at the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition were the chief features of interest in the proceedings of the senate yesterday.

Friday.

Washington, Feb. 8.—The session of the house of representatives yesterday was devoted almost entirely to the consideration of the omnibus war claims bill, which was passed after considerable discussion. It carries a total appropriation of $315,000. A ripple of excitement was caused by Mr. Macon of Arkansas, who in the course of the debate defended the senate against what he said were aspersions cast upon that body by Mr. Payne of New York, when he predicted that the senate would load the bill down with a number of unmeritorious claims.

Monday.

Washington, Feb. 11.—Senator Aldrich of Rhode Island, chairman of the committee on finance, opened the debate in the senate yesterday on his bill to provide an emergency currency. He was listened to with great attention.

During the day Senator Foraker made reply to the president's statement concerning the use of the appointing power for political purposes, and had letters read, showing the president's attitude in one case.

A brief but fiery speech by Mr. Leake (Dem.) of New Jersey, in which he outlined his opposition to William J. Bryan as a candidate for the presidency, relieved somewhat the monotony of debate on the Indian appropriation bill in the house.

Considerable progress was made with the Indian appropriation bill.

NO TRUE BILL FOR MRS. GRAY.

Grand Jury Fails to Indict Eastern Magazine Writer.

Helena, Mont., Feb. 12.—The federal grand jury yesterday submitted its final report to Judge W. H. Hunt and was discharged. The expected indictment of Helen Pierce Gray, the Eastern newspaper and magazine writer, on the charge of defrauding the Indians, did not materialize, but the grand jury took occasion severely to criticise officers of the Indian Rights association, who have been active in bringing about her exoneration through counter charges against government employes at the Eastern Montana reservation.

A rigid investigation is unded way.

MARTZ IN OFFICE

Attorney General Holds that law is Constitutional.

Red Lake Falls Gazette—In a recent letter to County Attorney Germo the Attorney General holds that the county board may appoint a person other than the present county surveyor as county superintendent of highways, under Chapter 458, Laws of 1907, provided the appointee is a competent surveyor and road builder.

He states, however, that the constitutionality of the law is in doubt, a district judge at Duluth having held it unconstitutional, that he admits that it is a close question, but is of the opinion it is constitutional. Yet in order to have the question determined at once his office has framed up a case for presentation to the Supreme Court by quo warranto proceedings, and a final determination is expected within thirty days.

This means the retention of C. H. Martz, of St. Hilaire, who at the last meeting of the county commissioners "vetoed" the bids for a new bridge and by calling the attention of the bidders to hew more closely to the plans and specifications saved the county upwards of one thousand dollars.

IMPORTANT

Under a recent ruling of the post office department at Washington newspapers are required to practically collect their subscription price in advance.

Notice to Subscribers

The new order became effective Jan. 1, 1908, and a short time is given publishers in which to get their subscription accounts in shape. Weekly papers, whose subscribers are delinquent for more than a year, will be barred from second class postage privileges, and if mailed must be stamped. The placing of stamps on each paper is of course out of the question, and the order simply means that a publisher must either collect for his paper or cut the delinquent subscriber off his list. The newspaper publisher has no choice in the matter. The SPECTATOR is not afraid to trust its subscribers and our past experience in the newspaper business has convinced us that our subscribers are honest and there are rare exceptions indeed, where they refuse to pay for their paper, but the publisher is up against a proposition where we are obliged to collect all arrearages within a very short time or cut the delinquent subscribers off our list, and place the back subscription accounts in the hands of a collector. We are mailing statements to those in arrears and we trust if the reader of this article knows himself to be in arrears in his subscription account he will call at the office and effect a settlement. We do not want to cut you off our list.

Last Wednesday, February 12th, was the 99th anniversary of Lincoln's birthday.

It looks as if they would keep on imposing restrictions on the country newspaper man until he would have to spend at least six months of each year in jail.

For the first time since St. Hilaire was incorporated as a village, we will have to vote on the question this spring, whether or not we will have saloons for the coming year.

The republican state central committee will meet Feb. 27 in St. Paul. The call for the meeting was sent out Tuesday by Thomas H. Salmon, of Minneapolis, secretary of the committee. This means that the delegate convention cannot be held until April, and the covention to nominate state officers will probably be put over till June.—Norman County Index.

If the people of Minnesota are for William H. Taft for president, the thing to do is to send a delegation to Chicago who will vote for him. The scheme of allowing someone to go to the National Convention as a compliment and have the wishes of the republicans disregarded in the selection of the candidate ought not to win this time. This is no time to extend a compliment to Mr. Lowry.—Fergus Falls Journal.

The Duluth Herald, an independent paper, one that advocates right and justice, comes manfully to the support of President Roosevelt for his courage and clearness of purpose in his late address to congress. Every lover of justice and right can see without glasses the honesty of purpose of the president and it does credit to such journals as the Herald to openly and squarely stand up in the front rank of his supporters. But will congress dare, in the frowning face of Wall street, to act in any attempt to carry out his suggestions? We fear not, unless some heroic members charge the House artillery and some equally courageous senator shall tie the hobbles on the men who have always led the forces of corruption to success.—Cass Lake Times.

The state of Ohio has declared for Taft and it is only a question of getting on the band wagon from now on. The President's message really settled the fight in Tafts favor.

Forced to Quit Business at St. Hilaire

The Kelly Brokerage Company of Minneapolis has been appointed to dispose of the entire $25,000 worth of stock and fixtures belonging to C. A. Jeglum of St. Hilaire. The people of St. Hilaire and surrounding country will be greatly benefitted by this tremendous forced sale at C. A. Jeglum's store, which will begin on Wednesday, February 19th.

The Kelly Brokerage Company of Minneapolis, which is a stock company, who buys and sells all salvage, assignee and bankrupt stocks etc. to settle accounts with creditors, has been appointed to sell this stock in ten days. They are known in all the large western cities to be the world's greatest bargain givers. They inform us that the prices quoted on this stock are in many instances less than they could purchase the same for at the factory in case lots. Their reasons, so they say, for making this great sacrifice is that C. A. Jeglum is compelled to vacate his quarters in a very short time, and in order to dispose of the entire stock quickly, they will give the people of St. Hilaire and vicinity the greatest bargains that have ever been offered in this State.

This sale will surely prove to be a great boon to the people, who are never slow to take advantage of an opportunity such as this great, closing out sale will afford.

The Kelly Brokerage Company say they have prepared for an immense crowd of people, in order to serve all properly.

We bespeak for them a record breaking business during this great sale, as C. A. Jeglum has never carried any except the most dependable and reliable merchandise.

We expect to see hundred of people in attendance at this great sale, as this stock is known for miles around St. Hilaire. It is safe to say that a sale such as this comes but once in a lifetime, and the public, no doubt, will buy out the majority of the combined clothing, dry goods, furnishings, shoes and grocery stocks quickly.

The store will be closed Monday and Tuesday, Feb. 17th and 18th and no one will be allowed to enter without a permit from the Kelly Brokerage Company.

This great sale will give the people of St. Hilaire and vicinity one of the greatest and grandest opportunities of a lifetime to purchase brand new merchandise at less than actual wholesale cost.

It will be necessary to shut up shop in order to re-mark and arrange the stock previous to the sale.

Sale positively starts Wednesday Feb. 19th, at 9 a. m., sharp, lasting ten days only. Come prepared to get great bargains, as this opportunity you will never have again.

New Policy Not Pleasant

As to the new ruling of the postal department of the government regarding the payment of subscriptions in advance, whereby the enormous additional postage required upon papers sent to subscribers over a certain length of time in arrears makes such extension almost prohibitive, many entertain a mistaken impression. One of our friends jokingly remarked the other day that he believed the publishers thruout the country must have come together and caused this ruling to be made. Far from it, readers. The country publishers are bound to suffer some loss at least from the institution of this new order of things. However much we may try to explain the situation it places the editor in, there will be a number of those reliable old time subscribers who will take offense at the unusual imperative demand. The following from a letter written to the American Press by a New York state editor is not far off from the general opinion of the fraternity:

Don't run away with the notion that country publishers are pleased with the new policy of the administration in regard to the payment of subscriptions in advance. It means if enforced a loss of hundreds of dollars to every publisher of a rural newspaper, to whom credit is the keystone of success.

FESTIVAL OF THE DEAD.

Eskimos Provide Food and Clothes For Returning Ghosts.

The natives of the Yukon river region hold a festival of the dead every year shortly before Christmas and a greater festival at intervals of several years. At these seasons food, drink and clothes are provided for the returning ghosts in the clubhouse of the village, which is illuminated for the occasion with oil lamps. Every man or woman who wishes to honor a dead friend sets up a lamp on a stand in front of the place which the dead one used to occupy in the clubhouse. These lamps, filled with seal oil, are kept burning day and night until the festival is over. They are believed to light the shades on their return to their old home and back again to the land of the dead. If any one fails to put up a lamp in the clubhouse and to keep it burning, the shade whom he or she desires to honor could not find its way to the place and so would miss the feast. When a person has been much disliked his ghost is sometimes purposely ignored, and that is deemed the severest punishment that could be inflicted upon him. After the songs of invitation to the dead have been sung the givers of the feast take a small portion of food from every dish and cast it down as an offering to the shades. Then each pours a little water on the floor so that it runs through the cracks. In this way they believed the spiritual essence of all the food and water is conveyed to the souls. With songs and dances the feast comes to an end and the ghosts are dismissed to their own place. The dancers dance, not only in the clubhouse, but also at the graves and on the ice if the dead met their deaths by drowning. On the eve of the festival the nearest male relative goes to the grave and summons the ghost by planting there a small model of a seal spear or of a wooden dish, according as the dead was a man or a woman. The totems of the dead are marked on these implements. The dead who have none to make offerings to them are believed to suffer great destitution; hence the Eskimos fear to die without leaving behind them some one who will sacrifice to their spirit, and childless people generally adopt children lest their shades be forgotten at the festivals.—New York Tribune.

A QUEER TREE

The Tumbo Is a Monstrosity of the African Desert.

The mature tumbo is a tree with a trunk about two feet long, shaped much like an inverted cone. Almost all the trunk is below the surface of the ground, the visible part rarely exceeding a few inches. But the remarkable feature of the stem is that it is often fourteen feet in circumference and becomes more or less a two lobed image. The stem looks more like a great mass of "the burned crust of a loaf of bread," to quote Dr. Welwitsch's letter, than the trunk of a tree. The underground portion becomes greatly elongated, and its continuation is the top root of the plant. This goes down several feet in its effort to get the few drops of water that the arid conditions of the country permit.

There are never more than two leaves after the seed leaves drop off, and very curious leaves they are. Starting from a groove on opposite sides of the depressed mass, they stand straight out on both sides of the plant. They are often six feet long and two feet wide and usually split into ribbons that undulate over the ground in a way strikingly suggestive of the tentacles of an octopus. With its great ugly body and its tentacle-like leaves it is no wonder that it has been the most remarkable plant novelty of the last century. The flowers are borne in scarlet cones on a cymose inflorescence coming from the crown of the trunk.

Tumboa bainesii belongs to the joint fir family, or gnetaceae, and is known only from Portuguese West Africa to Damaraland. This is a region that seldom gets any rain, and desert conditions prevail almost completely, except for the sea fogs. The tumbo is thus a desert plant par excellence, and it is only by a close approximation of these very arid conditions that we can cultivate it.—New York Botanic Garden.

Question of Nationality.

An Englishman, a Frenchman and a German sitting together in the smoking room of an ocean liner, the conversation turned on their nationality, and one of them asked what each of the three would choose to be if he were not of his own nation. The Frenchman said, "If I were not a Frenchman, I would be an Englishman." The Englishman said, "If I were not an Englishman, I would wish to be one." The German, "If I were not a German I would wish not to be a German."—Carl Peters in Deutsche Monatschrift.

On Yawning.

I have come to the conclusion that if a man yawns and you don't want to yawn, too, the only way to prevent it is to blow your nose. A man of my acquaintance boasts that he can set a whole railway carriage full of people yawning by merely taking time over it himself, and I believe he can.—Fry's Magazine.

The Ruins.

First Visitor—Most interesting country round about here. Have you seen the ruins? Second Visitor (who has just paid his bill)—Yes; I suppose you mean the guests leaving this hotel.—London Answers.

Same Old Reason.

"I've played the ponies to my grief year in, year out, day after day."

"Then why do you keep at it?"

"Well, I've got a good thing for tomorrow."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

AN INGLORIOUS WOUND.

The Hard Luck That Was Handed Out to the Old Veteran.

On one of the volunteer ranges in the north of England is a well known old Irish sergeant, who has charge. It may be mentioned that he went through three wars—the Crimean, the Indian mutiny and the Chinese—and during the whole of that time never received a single wound.

Old W., as he is called, occasionally acts as a marker at the targets, and his utter recklessness has become a proverb.

He has been known to walk forth from behind the mantelet without the slightest warning and touch up a bullseye which did not quite satisfy him or to note the exact position of a shot.

At all remonstrances he would sniff contemptuously.

"Me be shot? Me?" he would ask. "Why, I've bin through three war-r-s and was niver shot yet. Pah! Phwat's a bit o' lead flying through the air?" And he would assume an air of disgust.

It actually occurred, however, at last, and he was shot through the shoulder.

For a moment, as frequently happens with rifle shots, such is their terrible force, he did not know he was struck; then when he observed the blood streaming down his sleeve he commenced to walk down the range, right in the line of fire.

It was seen that something was wrong, and they hurried to meet him. As he did so he tottered and had to be carried.

"Shot!" he groaned, with a look of shame. "Shot and by a Saturday afternoon soldier!"—London Tit-Bits.

QUEER TEACHING.

A Glimpse of the One Time Methods In Scotch Schools.

To the work of supervisor of schools in Scotland Mr. John Kerr devoted a number of years. In his book, "Other Memories, Old and New," he has set down some amusing illustrations of the unintelligent way in which the school work was sometimes conducted.

The revised code of education which was introduced in 1862 made provision for nothing but reading, writing and arithmetic in their barest forms. There was no suggestion about grammar, geography, history or intelligence in any study. Explanation of the reading lesson was not demanded, and therefore it was neglected in some of the schools. The following is an example:

The lesson was one giving an account of a clever dog which had rescued a child from drowning. It was said that the dog was caressed by the parents of the child. I asked what was the meaning of the word "caressed," and the answer came at once, "Made of fond led."

On referring to the list of words at the top of the page I found the explanation given was, "made of, fondled."

Wishing to find out if any child in the class had got a glimmering of the meaning, I went from top to bottom and got from every child nothing but "made of fond led," pronounced as four words, to which they attached no meaning whatever.

The teacher was surprised that I was not satisfied with the intelligence of the teaching.

A Tenor's Rebuke.

Roger, the great French tenor, a sensitive soul, was prone to take offense at any slight, whether intentional or not. On one occasion he was engaged for 1,200 francs to sing at the house of a wealthy financier. Roger sang his first song magnificently, but no one paid him the slightest attention, and the guests continued to talk their loudest. Presently the host thought the time had come for another song and sent for Roger. He could not be found and that evening was seen no more. Next day there came a note from him, accompanied by 1,500 francs. The note ran something like this:

"I have the honor to return the 1,200 francs which I received for singing at your function, and I beg leave to add 300 francs thereto for having so greatly disturbed the conversation of your guests."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Beecher's Wedding Fees.

When Collis P. Huntington was married for the second time Henry Ward Beecher performed the marriage ceremony. Huntington's first wife had been dead less than a year, and he desired the second marriage kept secret until his return from Europe. He gave Mr. Beecher a marriage fee of $1,500. When Huntington returned some months later he went through a public ceremony, and Beecher again officiated. He gave Beecher another fee of $1,500. The great preacher had his humor aroused by his second fee. Turning to Huntington, he said, "Collis, I do wish you were a Mormon."—Lyceumite and Talent.

The Retort Venomous.

"So this is your widely advertised dollar table d'hote dinner, is it?" said the indignant would be diner as he pushed aside an entree which he could not masticate. "Why, this is the last place in the world I would recommend to friends."

"Don't blame you, sir," said the sad faced waiter. "Send your enemies here."—New York Press.

No Option.

Barber (pausing in the mutilation)—Will you have a close shave, sir? Victim (with a gasp)—If I get out of this chair alive, I shall certainly consider it a very close shave.

The supreme excellence is simplicity.—Longfellow.

THE ODOR OF SANCITY.

A French Writer's Theory of How It May Be Exuded by Man.

Dr. Georges Dumas is the author of an article in the Revue de Paris on "The Odor of Sanctity." The writer accepts as true the numerous reported instances of saints and mystics of the Catholic church whose bodies after death or during moments of ecstasy emitted peculiarly pleasing odors of various kinds. Then men and women with whom such legends deal, argues Dr. Dumas, were neurasthenes, and it is not impossible that the aroma of sanctity which surrounded them was the product of strictly physiological and chemical changes common to all men, but present in highly intensified form in subjects who, so to speak, burned up the candle of their existence at an unusually rapid rate. He says in part:

"So far, then, we have come across a great variety of perfumes—cinnamon, clove, orange, pineapple, rose, violet, lily of the valley, yellow amber and benzoin. Now, the natural constitution of all of these is well known, and chemistry produces them daily for commercial purposes. We may therefore substitute the equivalent chemical expressions for the ordinary terms we have employed and say that orange, cinnamon, violet and musk owe their perfume to aldehydes and acetones, aromatic liquids derived from the alcohols, just as the artificial essence of pineapple comes from butyric ether. We have, then, to ask whether the human body can produce odorous compounds of the kind we have mentioned and under what conditions. As a matter of fact, it does produce a certain number of such compounds in the destruction of organic matter, which is the constant condition of life, in particular acetones and the volatile fatty acids, butyric, formic, acetic, etc. If the process of combustion is normal all these constituents are burned up, completely oxidized, and give as a residue water, carbonic acid and urea. But let some slackening occur in the inmost nutrition of the tissues and the same constituents will escape through the breath, perspiration and the skin."

MAGIC MIRRORS.

Peculiar Effects In Some of the Polished Bronze Reflectors.

Now and then mirrors of a curious kind are seen in Europe. They are called "magic mirrors" and are of Japanese origin, made not of glass silvered, but of cast bronze, polished on the face and bearing on the back raised patterns, inscriptions, symbolical designs, crests or pictures. When exposed to a bright beam of light from the sun or from an electric lamp they reflect in the light from their polished face the image of the pattern on their backs.

This is a purely optical property and has of course nothing in common with the fortune telling magic crystals of the astrologer or the alleged magic mirrors of necromancy, yet it long puzzled the scientific optician and even now is little known or believed. The researches of various scientific men have established the fact that the phenomenon is due to very minute differences of curvature in the polished face, differences so minute that they do not affect the ordinary use of the mirror as a looking glass and that can be detected only by delicate optical tests.

The only remaining mystery has been as to how these delicate differences of curvature were produced in exact correspondence to the pattern on the back. The makers themselves are often in ignorance of the magic property and do not know which of their mirrors possess it and which do not. The mirrors are cast in molds and afterward polished by hand, and it is held by scientific men that the difference of curvature is caused by the metal's yielding unequally under that pressure of the tools used in scraping and polishing, the thin parts naturally bending more than the thick. This accounts for the mirrors' becoming magic.—Chicago News.

Book Auction Back In 1732.

John Montgomerie, governor of the province of New York, died on July 1. 1731. In the New York Gazette of May 8, 1732, is the following advertisement, the first of the kind:

"On Thursday, June 1, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, will begin to be sold at public auction a collection of valuable books belonging to the library of his excellency John Montgomerie, Esq., late governor of New York, etc., deceased. A catalogue of the books may be seen at the Coffee House in New York, with the conditions of sale."

This is also the first instance where the word "auction" appears, "vendue" being the term in general use.

Heavier Ammunition.

"Is this the man we are to initiate tonight?" asked the illustrious conductor.

"It is," replied the outside guard. The illustrious conductor walked around the 350 pound candidate, inspected him carefully and turned to his assistant.

"Put the goat back," he said, "and bring me a mule."—Chicago Tribune.

A HAPPY DRUMMER.

He Won the Applause of the Eccentric Hans von Bulow.

Hans von Bulow, the famous leader and composer, was one of the most eccentric members of a profession wherein eccentricity is common. It is related that one day, while walking the streets of Vienna, Bulow came upon a regimental band on its way to the castle. Immediately he ran to the middle of the street and joined the small boys about the drummer. Following the band, he kept bowing to the surprised drummer, applauding him at almost every beat.

"That is rhythm!. Excellent! That's the way I like to hear it!" he continued to ejaculate, to the surprise of all and to the great delight of the small boys.

Persons in the street began to recognize the famous pianist and joined the procession, so that the band had one of the largest audiences to which it had ever played.

Bulow listened attentively to the end of the last piece and then made a deep bow before the drummer and his instrument.

"Thank you," he said. "That was refreshing! That puts my nerves in good condition again!"

It is said that when the drummer learned who his strange admirer was he was the proudest man in the regiment.—St. Louis Republic.

TESTING HIS TONGUE.

The Unhappy Experience of a Young Married Woman.

A young married woman in Brooklyn suspected that her husband was indulging in wine. She determined, however, to say nothing till she had confirmed her suspicions. In conversation with her bosom friend she said she would give anything to discover the truth. The friend mentioned that a man even slightly intoxicated cannot pronounce words of length. This gave the young wife an idea, which she proceeded to put into execution.

When the young women met again, the suspicious wife announced that the worst had been ascertained. She burst into tears and took from her hand bag a paper, which she handed to her friend.

"I gave him this," she sobbed.

The friend read from the list the following words: "Philoprogenitiveness, disproportionableness, pseudaesthesia, phthisis, parachronism, hypochondriasis, photochromy, syncategorematic."

"And," added the unhappy wife, with a fresh sob, "the wretch missed nearly all of them!"—New York Tribune.

In a French Chateau In Winter.

It is not all bliss to be invited to a French chateau in midwinter, no matter how distinguished the host or how romantic and artistic the domicile. At least it isn't for the steam heated Bostonian, lapped in the luxury of summer warmth. A visitor to a distractingly lovely abode near Fontainebleau says he put in twenty-four hours of physical anguish there and simply came away wondering how his hosts endured the arctic temperature of the rooms. "If I meant to live in foreign lands," says this shivering person, "I would go through the chilling process which inures human flesh and blood in France. What do these people do to render the blood in their veins to course like fire and act like an eternal furnace?" That's a question Americans abroad might well like to have answered.—Boston Herald.

Heat of the Sun.

It has been computed that the temperature of the surface of the sun would be expressed by 18,000 degrees of Fahrenheit's thermometer, or between eighty and ninety times the temperature of boiling water. This is about five times the highest temperature that man is able to produce by artificial means. The light given off from the surface of the sun is reckoned as being 5,300 times more intense than that of the molten metal in a Bessemer converter, though that is of an almost blinding brilliancy. If we compare it with oxyhydrogen flame, the sun sheds a light equal to 146 times the intensity of the limelight.

Children's Favorite Toys.

A hundred and thirty-two schoolboys of Paris and seventy-two girls were invited to describe their preferences in the way of toys. Among the former thirty-one voted for a railway train, twenty-three for tin soldiers, ten for steam engines, nine for building bricks and eight for toy typewriters and mechanical horses. Forty girls—a solid majority—declared without hesitation that a doll was superior to any other implement of recreation. The superchild seems, happily, a long way off.—Pall Mall Gazette.

LAUGHTER ANALYZED.

The Observations of a Man With a Sensitive Ear.

"Of course you have heard," said the man with a sensitive ear, "a laugh that jarred. I don't mean," he continued, "so much a laugh at an inopportune time—I imagine we have all heard such laughs—as a laugh the quality of which is unpleasant. There is something contagious in laughter of the right kind, even though you may be the object of it. It bubbles from the well of good humor. There is no hidden thought, or 'arriere pensee,' as the French say, behind it. It is the essence of frankness; it is spontaneous and whole souled, and it cleanses the system of the laughter and, too, of the hearer, like a spiritual bath.

"But there are other kinds of laughter. The sneering laugh is perhaps the most familiar. Then there is a quiet laugh, a sibilant, secretive sort of laugh that is quite as certain to mean mischief. Another laugh, disagreeable in its nature, is the high pitched, nervous cachinnation that comes either from embarrassment or is a mere vocal habit. The worst laugh of all, however, to my mind, is that mirthless sound provoked by the distress or embarrassment of others, and it rasps naturally most of all the object calling it forth. A person laughed at and hurt never forgets the experience."—New York Press.

HUMAN LOVE.

The One Joyous Impulse That Rules the Whole Wide World.

There lives somewhere in the depths of every human heart the divine spark that we call love. It is the voice of the universe slumbering in its narrow cell to be awakened by a whisper or to cry out in dear desire and hear the echoing answer from another soul. Without it life would be a pale, relentless episode. Without its quickening force no temples would be reared by human hands, yet hovels wherein it dwells become more glorious than palaces. Ambition, fame and fortune are its slaves. It chains the mind in sweet imprisonment, makes credulity a guardian queen and lulls suspicion to repose.

No censorship of right or wrong can light the way of love. It walks in pathways all its own. It laughs at reason and dispels despair. It is the lisping word of children, the puzzle of philosophers, the talisman of rulers. It is the first and last of life—murmured at the cradle, cherished at the grave. It is the rainbow after tears, the cure for every sorrow, the one joyous impulse that rules the whole wide world.—Wade Mountfortt in Era Magazine.

The Instinct of Design.

When a Japanese cannot mold the shape of an object, when he cannot redeem it by a design, when, in fact, he has no control over its creation at all, but it is placed in his hands as it is finished, says the author of "Kakemono," he will still contrive to add beauty to it merely by arrangement.

"I first noticed this on board the steamer going out," says Mr. Edwards, "where the Japanese boy arranged the extra blanket on the berth in a new design each day. He folded it into lotus leaves and chrysanthemums, into half opened fans and half shut buds. He had one wonderful arrangement which, being patriotic, was more often repeated than the rest. The blankets of the steamship company had at top and bottom two wavy red lines on a white ground. By some wonderful twist of his fingers the boy would fold that blanket into the rising sun, with the four red lines coming out of it like blood red rays. He did it so perfectly that I recognized the flag of Japan the moment I saw it."—Youth's Companion.

Resigned Too Soon.

One Missouri lieutenant governor missed the governorship because he resigned too soon. When Frederick Bates was elected governor, there was chosen for lieutenant governor on the same ticket Benjamin H. Rives of Howard county. Mr. Rives held office a few months and resigned. Shortly after his resignation Governor Bates died, and there being no lieutenant governor the succession fell to the president of the state senate, Abraham J. Williams of Boone county, who served for some six months as governor of Missouri. Governor Williams was a preacher, a shoemaker and had one wooden leg.—Kansas City Star.

Isolated Greece.

Greece is an isolated country of 25,941 square miles that supports a population of some 2,500,000 people. It has no railroad connection with any other country, and, being cut off from the rest of Europe by the mountains of Turkish Macedonia on the north, all commerce is by sea. The principal ports are Piraeus (the port for Athens), Patras and Volo on the mainland and the island ports of Syra and Corfu. The Greeks probably number all told 8,000,000, of whom about 4,000,000 are in Turkey.

Well Tested.

"It seems to me that I have heard most of the ideas advanced in your speech before."

"That," said Senator Sorghum, "merely goes to show that they are good ideas, which will stand wear and tear."—Washington Star.

OPEN WAR ON HINDUS.

Whites Drive Hundreds of Blacks Out of Bellingham, Wash.

Bellingham, Wash., Sept. 6.—Six badly beaten Hindus are in the hospital; 400 frightened and half naked Sikhs are in jail guarded by policemen and somewhere between Bellingham and the British Columbian line are 750 natives of India beaten, hungry and half clothed, making their way along the Great Northern right of way bound for Canadian territory and the protection of the British flag.

The long expected cry, "Drive out the Hindus," has been heard throughout the city and along the water front. The police were helpless. All authority was paralyzed and for five hours a mob of 500 white men raided the mills where the blacks were working, battered down doors of lodginghouses and, dragging the invaders from their beds, escorted them to the city limits with orders to keep on going.

Racial feeling has been growing in intensity lately. Every day whites were being replaced in the mills by Hindus. The invaders had become bold and insolent, in many instances women being pushed into the gutter and insulted on the street cars.

General uneasiness of the whites is given as a reason for the outbreak. The Hindus are all British subjects and their case is being placed before the British authorities.

THREE PERSONS PERISH.

Hotel at Cleveland Springs, N. C., Destroyed by Fire.

Charlotte, N. C., Sept. 9.—Fire destroyed the hotel at Cleveland Springs, N. C., and three people were burned to death. They were Miss Smith of Ellboro, N. C., and two unidentified negroes employed by the hotel. The loss is about $25,000. Little was saved by the guests. Lightning started the fire.

WILL POLICE ALL PORTS

France and Spain to Occupy Moroccan Coast Towns.

Paris, Sept. 7.—A most important change, the Associated Press is informed, has occurred in the political aspect of the Moroccan question, a change which may have a farreaching effect on the future of Morocco and the relations of the powers thereto. France and Spain have the intention to occupy the littoral ports of Morocco with their own forces and establish police organizations. This contemplated action results from the official announcement of the Moroccan government, through the war minister, El Gabbas, that it is unable to guarantee the safety of the European instructors of the international police force, which, under the terms of the Algeciras convention, was to be composed of Moors. The dilemma of France and Spain, who by the terms of the Algeciras convention are compelled to organize the international police force, was submitted to the signatory powers, including the United States, and they all agreed that the situation demanded that France and Spain police Morocco themselves. Although it is distinctly stipulated that such occupation is merely provisional, or until it is safe to recruit the police from among the Moors, there is a strong feeling that the absolute anarchy reigning in Morocco means that this occupation of the ports may be long drawn out, perhaps lasting indefinitely. Moreover the occupation of the ports may cause serious complications, resulting from the continued hostility of the fanatical Moors, a possibility which may compel an enlargement of the police action and culminate in a virtual military control of the Moroccan empire. This, however, will depend on the attitude of the Moors.

SOLDIERS ARE DISPERSED

Plan Attack on Kansas Jail to Release Comrade.

Junction City, Kan., Sept. 9.—A mob of nearly fifty soldiers of the farriers' school at Fort Riley came here for the purpose of releasing a comrade who was confined in the county jail.

The sheriff and city police force were notified of their coming and from positions in windows above the jail opened fire and quickly dispersed the mob as it sought to force an entrance.

The authorities at Fort Riley have placed guards at the jail and are aiding in the effort to find the members of the mob. Two arrests have been made.

Cleveland, Sept. 7.—Congressman Theodore E. Burton, chairman of the house committee on rivers and harbors, has been nominated by acclamation for mayor of Cleveland at the Republican city convention. Francis W. Treadway was nominated for vice mayor.

Bolt of Lightning Kills Groom.

Hot Springs, Ark., Sept. 9.—During a heavy thunder storm Edward Barnes was killed by lightning while riding in a wagon. A boy riding with him was found unconscious. The team of horses lay dead in the road. Wedding guests had assembled in anticipation of the marriage of Barnes and when he failed to appear at the appointed time search was instituted and his dead body was found.

Ferguson's Mascot.

By HARRIET LUMMIS SMITH.

Copyrighted, 1908, by C. H. Sutcliffe.

From the first Ferguson had disliked the pug. The sight of the fat, wheezy little animal following at the heels of his pretty next door neighbor awoke in him an unreasonable desire to prod that pampered pet with his walking stick. All of which goes to show that first impressions are not to be trusted.

Ferguson's interest in the girl next door was fast approaching the critical stage. Perhaps the natural attraction which beauty holds for youth was heightened by the fact that the girl seemed unaware of his existence. Ferguson almost resented the blankness of her gaze, the indifferent tilt of her chin. He had a feeling that if she should look once she might find it worth her while to look again.

The pug took a hand in the game one delicious spring day when Ferguson, who was supposed to be studying law in his room, was in reality watching the pink of the peach blossoms against the blue of the sky and feeling in his heart a vague, exquisite response to the charm of the season.

All at once the current of his thoughts was changed by an asthmatic barking in his neighbor's back yard. A black kitten shot across the grass to the shelter of the peach tree. The pug waddled after and stood guard below, coughing violently as a result of his unusual exertions. Then Ferguson's pulses thrilled at the sound of a girlish voice raised in reproachful summons, "Punch, you wretch, come here this instant!"

The law books had no chance after that. Even the peach blossoms became only the setting of the picture. The black kitten in the branches howled agonizingly. The pretty girl below called her in dulcet tones which would have tempted Ferguson to dare any danger. She brought out a saucer of milk, but even this lure proved unavailing. Then suddenly Ferguson started so violently that the book on his knee fell with a thud to the floor.

HE TOOK HER IN HIS ARMS AGAIN.

"By Jove," exclaimed the young man, "she's going to climb the tree!"

With an instant realization that this was his opportunity, Ferguson went down the stairs in a headlong manner, which gave his landlady the impression that the house was on fire. Explanations delayed him unwarrantably, and when he burst out of the door the kitten was in Miss Morrell's arms, and Miss Morrell was in the peach tree.

Ferguson hesitated, then advanced, halting at a respectful distance. "Might I be of assistance?" he asked.

"I—I think you might," said the girl doubtfully. "You see, it's so much easier getting up than getting down. If only you would take the kitten, I think I could manage."

Ferguson climbed up beside her and attempted to relieve her of her charge, but the black kitten had its own opinion regarding the transfer. It struggled. It spit. It elevated the hairs along its spine. It clawed Ferguson's wrist as if it suspected him of being an emissary of the pug dog.

"Oh, dear, now she has scratched you!" exclaimed the girl. If she had been pretty before she was entrancing now, looking at him through the peach blossoms.

"I'm sure I can get down now," said the girl, and Ferguson set the kitten on the grass and politely looked in another direction. A long minute passed. Then there was a shriek, and Ferguson turned to see the lady of his dreams clutching an overhanging bough and dangling some distance above the ground.

The young man rushed to her assistance. For a heavenly instant he had her in his arms, and then he set her on her feet. Her face was as pink as the peach blossoms, and her shy eyes found difficulty in meeting his, but there was no lack of gratitude in her tone as she said, "I don't know how to thank you!"

Ferguson went home with the feeling that he was walking on air. As he passed the window he saw the pug looking out, but his expression no longer seemed sardonic, but rather benevolent.

"I owe you a silver collar for this, old boy," Ferguson thought gratefully, for Miss Morrell had given him permission to call.

It was some time before it was necessary for the pug to interfere again. Without his good offices the acquaintance progressed rapidly. Miss Morrell's callers were very likely to find a dark, well dressed man sitting on the hammock beside her or occupying one of the rustic chairs on the porch or smoking in the library with the air of one who feels at home. Most of them took the hint. There was one exception, however, an obtrusive young fellow, Randall by name, who continued his visits, though Ferguson did his best to make it clear that they could be quite content without him.

Unfortunately Miss Morrell did not second these efforts as she might have done. She continued to treat her persistent caller with a consideration which Ferguson thought distinctly unnecessary. When he came one night prepared to take her driving and found she had gone boating with Randall he gave a harsher name to the act. He did not sleep that night, and when he presented himself next evening he was in the worst of humors.

Had Miss Morrell been conciliatory all might have been well, but instead she wore an air of studied indifference, and when she did not resent his reproaches she laughed at him. Accordingly in fifteen minutes the interview terminated abruptly.

"In that case," said Ferguson, rising to his feet, "the best thing for me to do is to take my hat and go home."

And Miss Morrell replied, "I quite agree with you."

Only one thing interfered with carrying out this programme immediately—Ferguson could not find his hat. "Good evening," said Miss Morrell in the background as if weary of waiting for him to take the initiative.

"I beg you not to imagine that I am delaying intentionally!" exclaimed Ferguson, with indignation. "But even you can see that it is impossible for me to leave the house bareheaded."

"You put your hat on the chair. I saw you," said Miss Morrell.

"I am quite aware that I put it there," returned Ferguson stiffly, "but it is easy to see that it is not there now."

For some minutes he hunted. Miss Morrell laid aside her offended dignity sufficiently to assist in the search. All at once she started nervously.

"I do hope Punch didn't find it!" she exclaimed. "He's so mischievous sometimes."

But when the hat was discovered it was in Punch's society. Moreover, it had lost its resemblance to a hat. The brim was missing, and the crown was fast disappearing. Punch surveyed them over the wreck and grinned complacently.

The two young people looked at each other, and Miss Morrell's lips twitched. Ferguson thought she was on the point of laughter, and he smiled encouragingly. Then she surprised him by turning her face to the wall and bursting into tears.

"My darling girl," exclaimed Ferguson, almost beside himself. "My dearest Ina, I beg you won't give a thought to the worthless thing."

"But you were going away angry," said a stifled voice.

"Angry with you?" cried Ferguson. "Never!" He took her in his arms again as he had done under the peach tree, but he did not let her go as quickly. And that wise old pug left the ruined hat on the rug and waddled away to the window seat, as if satisfied that they were once more capable of managing their own affairs.

Punch is older now and divides his mistress' devotion with a small pink and white rival said to resemble Ferguson, but he wears a silver collar, and no one grudges him his place as an honored member of the household. Whatever Ferguson's faults, he is not ungrateful.

Why He Was Happy.

He was a baldheaded bachelor, whose heart for the first time had been moved by the tender passion.

"Then you confess," he said in a trembling voice to the object of his regards, "that you like me a little—that you admire certain qualities of my head?"

"Yes," shyly responded the young lady.

"And may I ask," he continued in a tone of emotion, "what those qualities are?"

"I can hardly explain," said the young lady bashfully, "but I think it is because your head is so mellifluent. I can't express it more clearly."

"And you can never know how I appreciate your high opinion," exclaimed the happy bachelor as he pressed her hand. He didn't know just what 'mellifluent' meant, but he was sure it was the synonym for something grand and ennobling, and when he bade her good night he rushed eagerly home, excitedly took down the dictionary and turned feverishly to the endeared word. His blood changed to ice as he read, "Smooth, soft, mellow."

Diamond Salesman's Secrets.

"There is no line in which more care must be exercised than in selling diamonds," remarked one of the oldest dealers in Cleveland. "For instance, we don't dare show a man a larger stone than he can afford to buy. Even a diamond a carat or a carat and a half in size looks like a mighty small affair to pay so much money for, and if a man comes in expecting to pay $75 for a diamond he may get disgusted and not buy at all if the salesman shows him something a little larger for $200. The salesman, if he knows his business, will find to a certainty just how much a customer is willing to pay before he shows him anything. Then it's better not to show a colored stone, such as a ruby or an emerald or a bluish diamond in connection with other diamonds. If you show some customers a colored stone and then put it away and show him a good white diamond, he will declare that the diamond is off color. It does not seem to be a whim so much as the effect on the eyes of the colors in the stones."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Leonie's Favor

By INA WRIGHT HANSON.

Copyrighted, 1908, by M. M. Cunningham.

Against a great rock we sat, Leonie and I, and Leonie was reading aloud. Yesterday we had sat there, and the day before and many days before that, reading or talking or looking silently at the sea foam piling up against other rocks out in the blue distance, and every day I had loved Leonie more.

On this day I had thought to tell her so, but now that the day had come my words were held. Before me stood duty, grim visaged and cruel eyed. Beside me sat Leonie, slim, radiant, entrancing.

"Fair lord, whose name I know not—noble it is;
I well believe the noblest—will you wear
My favor at this tourney?" "Nay," said he,
"Fair lady, since I never yet have worn Favor of any lady in the lists."

Leonie looked up at me, her brown eyes full of the glory of the master poet.

"Shouldn't you like to have lived in those days?" she asked. "Think of receiving your lady's favor and kissing her hand and riding away and riding home again! Ah, but my part—waiting at home while my knight was in danger! That I shouldn't like."

"I SHOULD STAY AT HOME AND PRAY AND WAIT."

"Maybe when he was about to ride away you would have called him back," I ventured. "Maybe you would have said: 'I need you to take care of me. Let others do the fighting.' Would you, Leonie?"

"One can never tell what one will do till the time comes," she answered, and would have turned to her book again, but my hand stayed her.

"Let me tell you a story, Leonie. Once there was an orphan boy, who was adopted by a man and brought up as his own son. The boy had been left money, but the man gave to him other things—love and sympathy, encouragement and trust. When the boy had grown to a man the foster father sent him out into the world to accomplish his heart's desire. Did I say that the boy's ambition was to write?"

"I understand, Arthur," she smiled.

"When the boy was going away he tried to tell the man what he felt of gratitude to him, but the man laid his kind old hand on the boy's shoulder and said, 'Never mind that now, but some time when I make a request of you you will grant it.' And of course the boy thought then, and said so, that any request would be small in comparison with what the man had done for him.

"In a few years the young man had become reasonably successful. In the many times he saw his foster father the request was not mentioned, but the boy had not forgotten. Then one day he met you, and you know what that meant to him. You must know, Leonie."

"I think I understand, Arthur," she whispered, coloring.

"Last night the letter came. My foster father has made known his request."

It was difficult to go on, looking into Leonie's eyes, so full of trust and happiness, and—yes, I could see—so full of love.

"The request is a year out of my life to be spent with him—a year free of all entanglements, as he expresses it, in the matter of love affairs. It means neither to see nor hear from the woman I love. It means that if I grant the favor I may not even tell the woman I love her and ask her to wait till the year is done. Why couldn't he have asked any other thing under the sun? It must be a mere whim," I finished hotly.

Leonie was silent for a time. Her eyes turned away from me, gazing out on the feathery spray in the blue distance.

"We may all be dead in a year," I exclaimed wrathfully.

Then Leonie sighed and turned her face to me and laid her slim hand on my sleeve.

"The future is not ours," she answered gravely. "Only today. It may be a whim, but I think he has a reason, and you promised to grant his request when he should ask it. I know now what I should do if these were the days of knighthood."

"What, Leonie?" I asked sadly, for now I knew that I must go.

"I should give my knight his favor and send him away, and I should stay at home and pray and wait."

"Oh, Leonie!" I whispered. "Leonie!"

She took from the lace at her white throat a tiny blue and gold swastika and pinned it on my coat.

"This is instead of the 'red sleeve broidered with pearls,'" she smiled, though her eyes were wet. "And you shall wear it on your coat instead of your helmet. Do you know what it signifies, brave knight?"

"It brings good luck and is a talisman to ward off the evil eye," I answered, smiling, too, for had she not called me brave?

"That and more. The colors are loyalty and royalty. The up and down points are heaven and earth, the right and left behind you and before you—time and eternity. The symbol means that you are not free from personal responsibility while you wear it. It means noblesse oblige, dear knight. Ride forth to your promise; be brave and strong, and victory will be yours."

So I kissed my lady's favor and then her hand and rode away.

Aside from my desire for Leonie or news concerning her, my year with my foster father was a pleasant one. His library was full of books, his mind a storehouse of ideas concerning travel, history and romance. He gave me my mornings for writing, and I wrote much, glad that out in the world Leonie was reading and waiting.

The request he had asked might have been a whim, but he gave, leaving Leonie out of the question, much more than he could have received. The year was nearing its close when he spoke to me of my future.

"You have no idea of what these months have been to me, Arthur," he said as we were walking one evening by the lake in his meadow.

"And they have been much to me, sir," I answered truthfully.

"What would it mean to you to have them last?" he asked, hitting some goldenrod sprays with his cane, his eyes on the yellow blossoms.

"It couldn't be quite like this, sir," I answered slowly, and then I told him about Leonie and the swastika.

"It wasn't a whim, boy, that has kept you here," he replied, with a smile on his fine old face. "You had begun writing to me of this Leonie, and it happened that I had seen the girl, though she had not known my name. I wanted to test her, boy. You have a future before you which must not be spoiled by the wrong woman. Tomorrow go back to her and if she will come bring her to me. The old house needs you both."

I had thought to find my lady where I had left her, but she was standing under some poplar trees near her own gate. As I came in sight of her a vagrant breeze touched the trees, and a shower of yellow leaves fell around her like golden butterflies. I urged my horse forward and sprang from my saddle.

I had thought to greet her in words of the master poet, in language befitting her true knight come safely home, but all my stammering tongue could utter as her glad, welcoming face was raised to mine was: "Leonie! Oh, Leonie!"

A Historic Settlement.

The first purely American settlement west of the Mississippi river was Cape Girardeau, Mo. Its first settler, however, was Ensign Girardot, a French trader and for some time an officer in the French army, who located on the rocky mountain promontory just north of the present town. From Girardot the county was named. The first permanent settler at Cape Girardeau was Louis Lorimier, a French-Canadian, who in 1782 came from the Miami valley, west of the Mississippi. His wife was a half breed Shawnee woman, and through her great influence with the Shawnees he was given a large grant of land in 1795 by the governor of the territory. Shortly thereafter the Spanish government, deeming it wise to populate upper Louisiana, offered free lands exempted from taxation to settlers. Because these settlers came from Kentucky, Virginia and North Carolina almost entirely Cape Girardeau claimed the honor of being the first American settlement. Previous settlements had been largely Spanish or French. Lorimier was counted as the father of the town, which dates in organization from 1806. He died in 1812, having survived his Indian wife four years. He was buried by her side in Cape Girardeau on a tree crowned hill overlooking the western Mississippi.—Kansas City Star.

A Decoration From Victoria.

The queen, with one of the princesses and a lady in waiting, received me in a small room. She stood with her back to the window, wearing a long white veil which against the light made an aureole around her. Addressing a few kind words to me, to which in my embarrassment I made some inaudible answer, she proceeded to pin the order (the Order of the Crown of India) on my left shoulder. I remember that my black velvet dress was thickly embroidered with jet, so much so that the pin could find no hold, and unwittingly the queen stuck it straight into me. Although, like the Spartan boy, I tried to hide what I felt, I suppose I gave a start, and the queen, realizing what she had done, was much concerned. Eventually the pin was put right, and I courtesied myself out of the royal presence. As I reached the door her majesty suddenly stepped forward, saying, with a smile, "Oh, you have forgotten the case," holding it out to me at the same time. This little touch of nature relieved an otherwise somewhat formal ceremony. Remarking afterward to the lady in waiting that I was afraid I had been awkward and nervous, "You need not be troubled," she answered; "I know the queen felt more shy than you."—Lady Randolph Churchill in Century.

Assisting the Miracle.

By JOHN HARTY.

Copyrighted, 1908, by P. C. Eastment.

Jessie thrilled at the sight of the tall, grave man slowly descending the steps to the boat landing. He was a governor, the governor of her own state, and in his hands he held the power of life and death—the life or death of the man she had promised to marry and who now lay in prison awaiting execution for the murder of a friend.

He smiled brightly upon her as he came upon the float. "I see that it is not worms alone the early bird acquires," he said as he raised his hat. "Apparently boats as well come under that classification."

"Won't you come with me?" she invited. "I am going out alone and shall be only too glad to have you come along."

The governor's face beamed with delight.

"I was afraid that I was to lose my sport," he said as he stepped into the skiff. "I have only a week, and—well, you are a fisherman yourself, it seems."

His eyes fell upon the tackle neatly arranged in the stern, and Jessie nodded her verification. Fishing had done much to help her over the days that had gone by since sentence was passed on Tim Darlington. She swept her tackle to one side, and the governor took his seat after she had declined to let him row.

"It seems that I ought to know you," he said uncertainly as her strong, even strokes carried them rapidly through the water. "Have I not seen you somewhere?"

"At the executive mansion," she answered, coloring. "I came to plead for Tim Darlington."

"Ah, yes," he answered; "I knew that I had seen you before. I seldom forget a face, though sometimes I cannot exactly place it. It was a very unfortunate case. I truly regretted that I could not bring back the roses to your face by freeing your fiance, the evidence was so strongly against him."

"I SHALL SIGN YOUR FIANCE'S RELEASE AS SOON AS I RETURN."

"Purely circumstantial," contended Jessie bravely. "Tim and Jack Sutton were out in a boat, and Jack went overboard. Tim could not save him because he could not swim. The Suttons declared that it was murder and pressed the case."

"But they proved motive," reminded the governor. "It seems that young Sutton had been the dishonest means of losing some of Darlington's savings in a deal."

"But that was all patched up," cried Jessie. "Jack was to have paid back the money in installments. He confessed to Tim that he had spent it instead of investing it, but they had made friends again."

The governor shook his head. He had stern ideas on the abuse of the pardoning power. To him the case seemed clear.

"I am sorry," he said gently, "but let us not discuss the matter. I am firmly convinced that with a flat bottomed boat the man could not have fallen overboard. That is the weak point in the defense—the statement that the man fell out of the boat while changing places. Why, I have changed places in a boat hundreds of times and never lost my balance!"

"I didn't mean to annoy you," cried Jessie penitently. "You are down here for a rest, not to be bothered with affairs of state."

"You do not annoy me," he assured. "I only wish I could be convinced that the defense was accurate. If you could argue a new point I would gladly listen."

"I can only tell you how it happened," said Jessie dolefully. "There is no new point. But here is the best place to fish," she added as she moved lightly to the bow and threw over the anchor. "I found this place last week. It's the best on the lake."

The governor hurriedly threw out his hook, and presently the two were busily engaged in hauling in fish. The sport was excellent, and the tired lines about the governor's mouth relaxed as he pulled in the finny beauties.

Jessie was having even better luck, and at last the governor straightened up, with a sigh of regret. "I am afraid we shall have to stop," he said, with a kindly smile, "unless we wish to depopulate the lake at one session. I am under deep obligation to you, Miss Grandin. It is the best morning's sport I have had since I came."

"I'm glad there were no more boats," said Jessie simply. "No one else appears to have found this hole."

The governor looked with admiration at the catch and then half rose to his feet.

"You must let me row back," he insisted. "You are tired with your fishing. Sit here in the stern."

Cautiously they exchanged places, and the governor went into the bow to raise the anchor. He had brought the hook aboard and rose to a crouching position to regain the rowing seat when his knees bent under him, and the next moment he was floundering in the water. Like a flash Jessie had caught up the oars and was rowing toward him. It was the work of a moment for him to climb aboard over the bow again.

"You had better row," suggested Jessie. "That will keep you from taking cold."

The governor took the oars, and the light boat shot over the water. For a time neither spoke; then the man looked up.

"Do you know," he said, with an odd expression on his face, "I feel as though this is a message. I have always believed it to be impossible for a man to fall overboard if he took care. I shall sign your fiance's release as soon as I return."

In the stern Jessie was sobbing out her thanks, and it was not until they came in sight of the landing that she recovered her self possession. None of the other parties had seen the accident, and the governor, much to his relief, was able to slip into the hotel without attracting attention.

Nothing more was said regarding the matter, but Jessie's heart sang as she saw the governor take his departure and realized that one of his first official acts would be the signing of the pardon for Tim.

But it was two weeks before the machinery of the law at last released its grip on the person of Tim Darlington and he walked out of the death house to freedom. He had arranged to come straight to Jessie, and they were floating over the same fishing pool where the governor had taken his plunge.

"It seems like a miracle that the governor should have gone overboard just after you had brought my case freshly to his mind," said Tim as he drew in a fish.

"It wasn't exactly a miracle," confessed Jessie. "I remembered what he said about that being the only point. When I saw him standing there in the bow I rocked the boat just a tiny bit. It wasn't really wrong, was it?"

"Do you expect me to say 'Yes' to that?" demanded Tim, with a laugh as he bent to kiss the happy face. "I should call it assisting the miracle."

Too Observant.

Much is said in these days about the importance of training the young to habits of observation. It is well to keep one's eyes open, but as there are two sides to every shield, so there are times when it is not a man's first duty to see everything that is going on.

A farmer hired a man, the story goes, and put him into his field to work. After awhile the farmer came along and accosted the new hand:

"Did you see a carriage go down the road awhile ago?"

"Yes, I did. One of the hosses was a gray hoss, and the other was a roan and lame in his hoff leg."

"I thought I heard some men shooting over there on the edge of the woods."

"Yes; one of them was Colonel Cotton; he was the tall one. The second one was Major Peters, and the third one was Tom McSniffer. Colonel Cotton had one of them newfangled breechloadin' guns what breaks in two."

"Did you see those wild pigeons fly over just now?"

"See 'em! Rather. There was nineteen of them. They lit in that old cornfield down yonder."

"Well, you see too much for a man that is hired by the day. Here's your wages. When I want a man to keep watch of what is going on I'll send for you."—Pearson's Weekly.

How They Found Out.

When the Lawtons had lived in Willow Park about a month they were invited to a succession of little dinners at the houses of their new neighbors. Mr. Lawton was on a dyspeptic's diet, and Mrs. Lawton was endeavoring to reduce her weight. "I suppose we shall have to eat all sorts of things we don't wish (or else seem rude)," said Mrs. Lawton mournfully as they set out for the first dinner.

To their growing surprise, the bills of fare placed before them at each dinner, although not remarkably varied, were all composed of such dishes as they could both enjoy.

"I don't see how you all hit on just the right things when Mr. Lawton and I really are such difficult guests," said Mrs. Lawton in a burst of confidence one afternoon when the neighbors were taking tea with her.

The ladies looked at each other, and then one of them spoke.

"You know Mary Sloan, who comes to wash for you Tuesday mornings?" she said. "Well, I have her Mondays, and Mrs. Green has her Wednesdays, and she irons for Mrs. Porter Thursdays and scrubs for Miss Homer Fridays, so you see"—

Her voice trailed off into silence, but Mrs. Lawton no longer wondered. She "saw."

An Easy Way Out of Trouble.

"We simply can't go on as we have been going," he declared. "We are spending more than I'm making. You surely must be able to understand that such a state of affairs can't last long."

"Then, dear," she soothingly replied, "why don't you make more?"—Chicago Record-Herald.

A petition containing the names of twenty legal voters of St. Hilaire was filed last Monday with village clerk Johnson asking that at the annual village election to be held on March 10th the question be voted on whether or not license to sell intoxicating liquors be granted for the coming year in this village. The law requires that when ten or more legal voters so petition, it shall be the duty of the council to cause the question to be voted on at the next election; so it will be a question to decide between now and March 10th.

HELPFUL ADVICE

You won't tell your family doctor the whole story about your private illness—you are too modest. You need not be afraid to tell Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., the things you could not explain to the doctor. Your letter will be held in the strictest confidence. From her vast correspondence with sick women during the past thirty years she may have gained the very knowledge that will help your case. Such letters as the following, from grateful women, establish beyond a doubt the power of to conquer all female diseases.

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND

Mrs. Norman R. Barndt, of Allentown, Pa., writes:

"Ever since I was sixteen years of age I had suffered from an organic derangement and female weakness; in consequence I had dreadful headaches and was extremely nervous. My physician said I must go through an operation to get well. A friend told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I took it and wrote you for advice, following your directions carefully, and thanks to you I am today a well woman, and I am telling all my friends of my experience."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration.

Women Expert With Rifle.

Women who have recently joined the Wandsworth (England) Rifle club have proved so expert in the use of the rifle that scores of 35 out of a "highest possible" of 40 have frequently been recorded. The club committee is desirous of securing other women sharpshooters in order to arrange a match between women and men.

The passengers were suddenly startled by a shower of rice that fell from the bride's parasol when she took it from the rack. The bridegroom, a dark, stalwart chap, observed the smiles, placed his arm about his blushing bride and then faced the passengers with the following remarks:

"I reckon there ain't no need for me to say we ain't been married long; but I can tell you all one thing. You don't want to smile any more than's perlite; for she's my violet and I'm her sheltering oak, and I weigh 208 pounds."

PURE FOOD.

No Food Commissioner of Any State Has Ever Attacked the Absolute Purity of Grape-Nuts.

Every analysis undertaken shows this food to be made strictly of Wheat and Barley, treated by our processes to partially transform the starch parts into a form of Sugar, and therefore much easier to digest.

Our claim that it is a "Food for Brain and Nerve Centres" is based upon the fact that certain parts of Wheat and Barley (which we use) contain Nature's brain and nerve-building ingredients, viz.: Phosphate of Potash, and the way we prepare the food makes it easy to digest and assimilate.

Dr. Geo. W. Carey in his book on "The Biochemic System of Medicine" says:

"When the medical profession fully understands the nature and range of the phosphate of potassium, insane asylums will no longer be needed.

"The gray matter of the brain is controlled entirely by the inorganic cell-salt, potassium phosphate.

"This salt unites with albumen, and by the addition of oxygen creates nerve-fluid, or the gray matter of the brain.

"Of course, there is a trace of other salts and other organic matter in nerve-fluid, but potassium phosphate is the chief factor, and has the power within itself to attract, by its own law of affinity, all things needed to manufacture the elixir of life. Therefore, when nervous symptoms arise, due to the fact that the nerve-fluid has been exhausted from any cause, the phosphate of potassium is the only true remedy, because nothing else can possibly supply the deficiency.

"The ills arising from too rapidly consuming the gray matter of the brain cannot be overestimated.

"Phosphate of Potash, is to my mind, the most wonderful curative agent ever discovered by man, and the blessings it has already conferred on the race are many. But 'what shall the harvest be' when physicians everywhere fully understand the part this wonderful salt plays in the processes of life? It will do as much as can be done through physiology to make a heaven on earth.

"Let the overworked business man take it and go home good-tempered. Let the weary wife, nerves unstrung from attending to sick children or entertaining company, take it and note how quickly the equilibrium will be restored and calm and reason assert her throne. No 'provings' are required here. We find this potassium salt largely predominates in nerve-fluid, and that a deficiency produces well-defined symptoms. The beginning and end of the matter is to supply the lacking principle; and in molecular form, exactly as nature furnishes it in vegetables, fruits and grain. To supply deficiencies—this is the only law of cure."

Please observe that Phosphate of Potash is not properly of the drug-shop variety but is best prepared by "Old Mother Nature" and stored in the grains ready for use by mankind. Those who have been helped to better health by the use of Grape-Nuts are legion.

"There's a Reason."

BRAIN POWER.

Increased by Proper Feeding.

A lady writer who not only has done good literary work, but reared a family, found in Grape-Nuts the ideal food for brain work and to develop healthy children. She writes:

"I am an enthusiastic proclaimer of Grape-Nuts as a regular diet. I formerly had no appetite in the morning and for 8 years while nursing my four children, had insufficient nourishment for them.

"Unable to eat breakfast I felt faint later, and would go to the pantry and eat cold chops, sausage, cookies, doughnuts or anything I happened to find. Being a writer, at times my head felt heavy and my brain asleep.

"When I read of Grape-Nuts I began eating it every morning, also gave it to the children, including my 10 months old baby, who soon grew as fat as a little pig, good natured and contented.

"I wrote evenings and feeling the need of sustained brain power, began eating a small saucer of Grape-Nuts with milk, instead of my usual indigestible hot pudding, pie, or cake for dessert at night.

"I grew plump, nerves strong, and when I wrote my brain was active and clear; indeed, the dull head pain never returned."

NO RULE TO GUIDE

OFFICIAL TITLES A DIFFICULTY FOR THE UNINITIATED.

Changes Made in the Forms of Addressing the President and Others in High Position—"Congressman" Not Used.

"Should I address him as 'Your Excellency,' as 'Mr. President' or as just 'President'?"

"I'm sure I don't know. Just murmur 'President,' and I guess he won't know the difference."

This conversation, overheard at one of the White House receptions, is indicative of the difficulty with titles encountered by visitors to the national capital. Nor is there any printed guide to follow. These things must be learned from well-posted friends, or mistakes will be made.

In ye olden times no one ever thought of addressing the chief executive of the United States less formally than as "Your Excellency," but that expression is now relegated to the list of things that were. "Mr. President" is the correct form, both in speaking and writing. Mr. Roosevelt has even eliminated "The Executive Mansion" as the name of the president's official residence, and his stationery bears the simple inscription: "The White House."

It is not only with the title of the chief executive that the uninitiated find difficulty, for there are many forms to be learned. For instance, cabinet officers are not addressed as "Secretary Root," or "Secretary Garfield," but as "Mr. Secretary." On the other hand, senators are addressed by their titles, as "Senator Lodge," "Senator Hale." A few people prefix "Mr." saying "Mr. Senator," but it is not considered as necessary, and by some is pronounced an affectation.

Polite usage requires, invariably, the prefix to the titles of members of the supreme court. For instance, one addresses the chief justice as "Mr. Chief Justice," and the associate justices as "Mr. Justice," although in making an introduction one would add the name, as: "Mr. Justice White."

The rule which applies to the president applies also to the vice-president and to foreign ministers, who are addressed as "Mr. Minister," but in the case of ambassadors the form "Your Excellency," is used except where one is reasonably well acquainted, when the simpler "Mr. Ambassador" is adopted, and in every instance one or the other of these terms is used instead of the diplomat's personal title of baron, count, or whatever it may be.

Throughout the government service there are officials who are addressed by their titles with the prefix "Mr.," such as the civil service commissioners, the interstate commerce commissioners, the controller of the treasury, and it is always safe when in doubt to so address a man who holds a public office.

With members of the house the simple "Mr." should be used, and not "Congressman," which is regarded as provincial, despite the fact that President Roosevelt is apt to use that form. There are some members of the lower house of congress who like to be addressed as "Congressman," and it is probably in deference to such preference that the president has adopted that expression. The speaker of the house is always addressed as "Mr. Speaker."

Army and navy circles also present no little confusion because of the conflict between official titles and social usage. For instance, those who know never address socially a lieutenant by his title, despite the fact that he is so designated in the army register, and is so addressed by his brother officer when on official business. He is simply "Mr. Smith," or whatever his name may be, and receives his title in the social world only when he reaches the grade of captain. But, you may object, every one refers to and addresses the leader of the Marine Band as "Lieutenant Santelmann." Very true, and that is because Lieutenant Santelmann is not a commissioned officer. He receives the title by virtue of his position as leader of the Marine Band, which carries with it the rank of lieutenant, and therefore every officer, whether speaking socially or officially, is punctilious to use the title. And so, too, is the same care exercised by every officer, should he have occasion socially to speak to or communicate with an enlisted man of any arm of the military service, to address him by his rank alone, as: "Sergeant," "Corporal," "Private."

Cat with Knowledge of Music.

At a meeting of a Washington short story club the other evening a young woman from the northeast section, whose mind is said to run to innovations, produced from her handbag a roll of manuscript written on the daintiest of ecru-tinted paper delicately perfumed with violet, and read her literary offering. It proved to be an account of the wonderful doings of her pet pussy cat, "Sweet Pea," as she had named the animal. She read how she had trained the cat to sing "Auld Lang Syne," "Annie Laurie" and other venerable airs in the high falsetto voice for which the feline family is noted. Then the young woman related how, in the balmy summer nights, in the romantic moonlight, her pet cat would station itself on some neighboring fence and suddenly fill the neighborhood with strains of music instead of the usual caterwauling that is produced by marauding pussy cats and Toms.

"The only thing I can recommend in your case," said the surgeon, "is a long journey."

"Well, if it has to be, doc," the patient groaned, "get out your whittling tools and go ahead with the operation."

His Own Interest.

A Richmond lawyer was consulted not long since by a colored man, who complained that another negro owed him $3, a debt which he absolutely refused to discharge. The creditor had dunned and dunned him, but all to no purpose. He had finally come to the lawyer in the hope that he would give him some good advice.

"What reason does he give for refusing to pay you?" asked the legal man.

"Why, boss," said the darky, "he said he done owed me dat money for so long dat de interest had et it all up, and he didn't owe me a cent."

CARE OF THE KITCHEN.

Clean Walls Are an Essential to Sanitary Cooking.

It is not only important to know how to cook, but it is equally important to know where to cook. Cooking in a dirty kitchen can never produce good food. The idea is simply preposterous, yet kitchen walls are left for months—sometimes for years without cleansing.

In the first place the kitchen wall should have a light tint that the merest fleck of dirt can be seen; that the sheerest cobweb can be brushed away; that the tiniest water bug can be discerned. It is all folly expecting clean food in a kitchen with dirty walls.

Never put a wall coating on a kitchen wall that is mixed with hot water, or that has glue in it, or sour milk in it if mixed with cold water. Glue walls made from horses' hoofs colored up with cheap colorings do not indicate good housekeeping. The glue is constantly flecking off, falling into the food and the idea of food flavored with glue made from horses' hoofs is not appetizing.

Kitchen walls to be thoroughly satisfactory should be alabastined the same as every other wall in the house. They should be coated regularly in the spring and fall of each year with a light tint.

The care of the pantry requires constant attention. The walls should be brushed over every year, the dishes removed from the shelves which should be thoroughly wiped with hot water. If there are ant holes or any other insects in the pantries a thick putty of the wall coating can be made and all the ant holes, even small mice holes can be filled with it which will protect the pantry from the incursions of disagreeable insects and mice.

Told of Kaiser's Mother.

Kaiser Wilhelm's mother was born the princess royal of Great Britain. This story is told of her childhood days: "In speaking to her tutor she dropped the 'Mr.' and called him merely Brown. Queen Victoria, her mother, threatened her with bed if the offense was repeated. When next morning the tutor appeared his pupil said: 'Good morning, Brown, and good night, too, for now I must go to bed.'"

For Months—Burning Humor on Ankles —Opiates Alone Brought Sleep —Eczema Yielded to Cuticura.

"I had eczema for over two years. I had two physicians, but they only gave me relief for a short time and I cannot enumerate the ointments and lotions I used to no purpose. My ankles were one mass of sores. The itching and burning were so intense that I could not sleep. I could not walk for nearly four months. One day my husband said I had better try the Cuticura Remedies. After using them three times I had the best night's rest in months unless I took an opiate. I used one set of Cuticura Soap, Ointment, and Pills, and my ankles healed in a short time. It is now a year since I used Cuticura, and there has been no return of the eczema. GETS SEVERE TEST

WORK OF "BREAKING IN" NEW LOCOMOTIVE.

Before Being Put Into Actual Service It Is Tried First in the Yards and Later Sent Out on Regular Runs.

Few persons outside the realm of the operating department of a railroad know anything of the ofttimes vexatious peculiarities and not infrequently seeming intelligent capers of a locomotive when being "broke" to its mission in the world. Each new engine must undergo a set training or test before it is put into actual service, and each locomotive which has gone through the shops for repairs is given a certain working out before it is returned to its erstwhile duties.

Some locomotive manufacturing companies complete their engines ready for actual service before sending them out, others ship them to the destination in a partial "knockdown" state and they are completed in the shops of the road to which they are delivered.

When a new engine is taken into a shop it is turned over to a mechanic whose duty it is to fit it up and make all connections and adjustments of the interior mechanism. This completed, the engine is turned over to a fireman, who steams it up and blows it off in order to remove any grease that might have accumulated in the boiler or any such foreign substance as might cause a boiler to "foam" while in service. The engine is then turned over to an engineer, whose duty it is to "break" it in. The engine is steamed up again, and if it will run is taken for a little tryout about the yard.

The science of locomotive building has been developed to such a fine point that there is little danger now of an engine "bucking" on its first trial. The main feature in the test is to see that there is no heating in the journals or rod brasses. If there is no heating the engine is run about the yards for about half a day and the steam is again blown from the boiler.

The engine is then steamed up and taken for a long run on the main line. If during this test there are no capers cut the engine is sent out for its first trip with about 500 tons to draw. If it runs all right the tonnage is gradually increased to 950 tons. The tonnage depends greatly upon the size of the engine. The average engine of to-day will draw about 950 tons on a mountainous road and from 1,200 to 1,500 tons over a level haul. The test speed is from one to 20 miles an hour.

Heating is one of the principal diseases of an engine, and it is this feature the engineer looks to more than anything else. The mechanical sense of the engineer is so developed that he can detect the least defect about his engine.

John Miller, the "locomotive buster" for the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis Railroad company, breaks on an average 20 engines each month. He has been breaking engines for this company for the last five years.

DEATH ROLL OF RAILROADS.

Railroad Commissioner Presents "Figures That Stagger."

If I were to tell you that an earthquake had shaken down San Francisco and killed 100 persons, if I were to read a telegram that yellow fever had become epidemic in all southern cities, if I should announce that war had been declared between Spain and the United States, and 1,000 men killed in battle, your attention would be instantly attracted. But I am not so sure of persuading your practical interest when I present to you the solemn, disgraceful fact of the railroad death roll. During the eight years from 1897 to 1904, inclusive, there was a steady increase in the number of casualties. The total number of killed during that period was 62,213—as if a community as large as Salt Lake City had been wiped out by a sudden and terrible catastrophe—while 451,262 were injured—as if every man, woman and child in Buffalo had been maimed or otherwise hurt. If casualties continue to increase at the same rate for eight succeeding years, from 1905 to 1912, there will be 115,389 killed and 1,431,083 injured. That is, at this rate there are upward of 100,000 people in the United States under sentence of death, to be executed on the railroads before the close of 1912, and a larger number are doomed to be maimed or otherwise injured than the entire population of the District of Columbia, Delaware, Montana, Arizona, Wyoming, Nevada, Alaska, Idaho and the Hawaiian islands.—W. J. Wood, Indiana Railroad Commissioner, in Leslie's Weekly.

Railroad Developing Mexico.

The military railroad which the Mexican government built from Mexico City to Quintano Roo for the purpose of affording means for the quick transportation of troops and supplies for use in the campaign which is being waged against the Maya Indians is to be extended and several branches are to be built.

The road has been found exceedingly useful in the development of the remote territory traversed by it and many settlers have established plantations along its lines. By building the projected extensions and new lines other portions of a rich region will be made available for settlement.

The chief engineer in charge of the government work has made a report highly recommending the project.

CHICAGO IN GRASP OF FIERCE STORM

Most Violent Blizzard in Many Years Rages All Day and Night in Chicago.

SEVERAL DEATHS REPORTED

Positively Dangerous to Cross Streets—Extra Police Put on to Pilot Women.

Chicago, Feb. 19.—Several deaths, many injuries and much suffering followed yesterday in the wake of one of the worst blizzards experienced in this section in several years. Traffic on surface and suburban lines is practically tied up and down-town hotels are filled with residents of outlying districts who found themselves unable to reach their homes. The storm, which broke early in the day, raged with increasing fury until nightfall, subsiding somewhat toward midnight.

Two Perish in Wreck.

One of the most tragic occurrences in connection with the storm was the wrecking in the harbor at Waukegan of the fishing boat Auspach, in which two men lost their lives and six others had narrow escapes from death.

At 5 o'clock, when the home-going crowd was at its thickest, the wind was blowing so heavily and the snow was falling in such blinding sheets that it was positively dangerous to attempt to cross Michigan avenue at its intersection with either Jackson boulevard or Van Buren street.

Police Pilot Women.

These crossings are used by thousands of people every night to reach their homes in the southern part of the city and in the suburbs by means of the Illinois Central railroad. It was found necessary to station a large number of city and park police at these corners to assist women, and often it was more than one officer could do to pilot a woman across without assistance. It was out of the question for a woman to cross the street by herself. An officer was stationed a half square west of the crossing at Jackson boulevard and Michigan avenue with orders to send women back or to bring them through the Stratford hotel, by which means the worst portion of the crossing was evaded.

Snow Plows Kept Busy.

The street car companies and the elevated roads fared well throughout the day, but the heavy increase of snow that came in the late afternoon made desperate work for them. Every available man and all the snow plows were constantly at work in keeping the tracks clear. In the distant suburbs the trolley lines were operated with great difficulty because of the constantly increasing drifts, and locomotion became constantly more difficult.

Run Down by Train.

At Hammond, Ind., two men, blinded by the storm were run down by a train and fatally injured. In the same vicinity a woman, overcome by exhaustion, was found dying in the snow.

But little effort was made during the night to remove the constantly drifting snow, even in the business district of Chicago, and it was said by transportation officials that traffic would be greatly impeded to-day before the lines can be cleared.

Worst in Twenty Years.

Omaha, Neb., Feb. 19. — Following a continuous fall of snow the last twenty-two hours, accompanied by a wind which formed it into drifts and almost tied up all kinds of street traffic, the mercury began a downward course last evening. All railroad trains were late.

Nearly fourteen inches of snow fell, the heaviest in twenty years. There was a heavy run of live stock at the yards yesterday and much suffering from the storm was the result.

Traffic Demoralized.

Milwaukee, Wis., Feb. 19.—A forty-mile gale, a swirling, blinding, drifting mass of snow, and a temperature steadily falling toward the zero mark enveloped Milwaukee in another blizzard last night which threatens to be even more disastrous than the previous storms of the winter. Traffic is again demoralized.

Iowa Storm Swept.

Des Moines, Iowa, Feb. 19. — The whole State of Iowa was storm swept yesterday and trains generally were badly delayed, while telegraph and telephone companies also suffered.

Two Bodies in Ruins.

Pittsburg, Feb. 19.—The bodies of David Reed and Edward Hobbs were last night removed from the ruins of two houses on Penn avenue which on Monday collapsed because of the flood undermining the foundations.

To Log Only Two Years More.

Marshfield, Wis., Feb. 19. — B. F. McMillan is responsible for the statement that two years more will see the end of logging at his mill in McMillan. This year's cut will be in the neighborhood of 8,000,000 feet.

Kills Wife and Self.

Denver, Colo., Feb. 19.—Oscar Kirby, son of a Colorado Springs grocer, shot his bride of two months and killed himself with the same weapon. The couple had lived apart since the week after their marriage.

STEENERSON NOT A SUICIDE

Naval Board Finds That Drowning Was Accidental—Had Not Been Drinking.

Newport, R. I., Feb. 19.—That Private Benjamin G. Steenerson of the marine corps, who with his comrade, John M. McIntosh, was drowned off a tugboat in Narragansett bay last Sunday, did not commit suicide and had not been drinking, was the report last night of the naval board which has been investigating the deaths of the two men.

It had been suggested that the two men had committed suicide or that there had been foul play. The naval board learned that McIntosh had fallen overboard and that the tug had turned around and had been reaching for him for about twenty minutes when Steenerson, thinking he saw his comrade's body, reached for it and losing his balance fell overboard. He cried for help and tried to reach the lifebuoy which had been thrown out, but the buoy drifted rapidly away and Steenerson sank. These facts, the board declares, prove that Steenerson did not commit suicide, and it has been established that the young man had not been drinking.

Congressman Steenerson of Minnesota, who came here from Washington to investigate his son's death, corroborated the report of the board. He will remain here to direct the search for his son's body.

MANY TRAINS ARE STUCK IN DRIFTS

Thirteen Passenger Trains Snowbound in Michigan; Traffic Paralyzed.

WORST STORM IN MANY YEARS

Two Trains Buried in Snow in Illinois; Seven Doctors Lost in Fierce Blizzard.

Des Moines, Feb. 20.—In the prescthirteen passenger trains poked their pilots into snowdrifts throughout Michigan yesterday, and late last evening reports from out in the state indicate that some of these trains were still snowbound. Traffic was completely abandoned yesterday on the Kalamazoo, Lake Shore and Chicago railroad and on the Port Austin division of the Pere Marquette, only one train being sent over the line.

The Allegan division of the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern was completely blocked, as was also the Bay City-Vassar division of the Michigan Central.

Flyer Buried in Drift.

The west-bound Wolverine flyer on the Michigan Central buried itself near Comstock in a drift, out of which five locomotives were unable to release it. But the passengers were transferred to another train and were carried past the drift to the east-bound track, while one hundred men set at work with shovels to dig out the snowbound flyer.

Interurban and electric line traffic was thoroughly demoralized, as also was the rural route postal delivery.

The snowfall continued in many sections until late yesterday afternoon. In Battle Creek snowdrifts are piled ten feet high on Main street.

Passenger Trains Stalled.

Peoria, Ill., Feb. 20.—Two passenger trains, one on the Big Four and the other on the Chicago, Peoria & St. Louis, are stalled in snowdrifts fifteen to eighteen miles south of Peoria. The Big Four train was due here at 7:30 o'clock yesterday morning and is now near Leslie, a small station, with a huge snowdrift in front, and the wind has filled in a snow bank at the rear of the train.

Worst in Many Years.

Rescuing parties are working in both directions and ice shovelers are demanding $5 a day. The Chicago, Peoria & St. Louis train is confronted by a ten-foot snow bank at Masito. All freight train service is abandoned and the freight terminal yards, are idle. The storm is the worst in the history of railroading in many years.

PAY EVELYN, THEN DISOWN HER

Harry Thaw to Divorce Wife, for the Love of Whom He Killed Stanford White.

New York, Feb. 20.—Harry K. Thaw and his beautiful young wife, Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, have reached the parting of the ways. Several proceedings by which their legal separation can be accomplished are being considered by Mrs. William Thaw and her lawyers, on one side, and young Mrs. Thaw and her legal advisers on the other.

The determination of the members of the Thaw family to bring about the separation was reached months ago, based on reports of detectives who watched Evelyn Thaw's every movement day and night.

Numerous conferences already have been held, and the negotiations have reached a point where the only obstacle that remains is the amount of money which the Thaw family shall settle on the former chorus girl and artist's model.

Stories to the effect that Thaw is about to divorce the woman for love of whom he killed Stanford White gained fresh impetus yesterday from the story that the young woman had been the unchaperoned guest of E. R. Thomas, the racing man and banker, at the Cafe Boulevard, on Monday night. Both, however, deny that they were in the restaurant.

This incident, it is said, had furnished Harry Thaw and his devoted mother the excuse they had been waiting for to rid the family of the younger Mrs. Thaw.

Just what Evelyn Nesbitt demands from the Thaw treasury is not known, but persons in authority say a sum of six figures is under consideration.

Mrs. Thaw has not visted her husband in Matteawan for nearly a week, and has told her friends she never would go there again.

CALLS LAW SEVERE.

Mother Pleads for Kidnappers of Her Child.

Chicago, Feb. 20.—After an intensely dramatic trial, in which both she and her husband appeared as witnesses against the kidnappers of their eight-year-old daughter, and during which the mother interrupted the proceedings of the court by hysterical sobbing as the little girl told of the cruelty which she had suffered at the hands of her captors, Mrs. Oscar Wulff cried out in protest when Judge Kersten sentenced the abductors. William Jones and his wife, Alzina Jones, to thirty years and twenty-five years, respectively, in the state prison at Joliet.

It was too severe, she declared. She had not supposed the law would impose any such penalty as that. The child was safe now, and she was sure there was no need of such fearful punishment.

The mother's plea, uttered in intensely dramatic tones, brought the case to a close. It was with difficulty that Mrs. Wulff finally was quieted sufficiently to be led away by her husband. The judge refused to be moved by her words and allowed the sentence to stand.

ENFORCE TERMS OF LAND GRANTS

Attorney General Asks Congress for Authority to Bring Suit in Oregon.

MANY MILLIONS ARE INVOLVED

Charged That Roads Have Refused for Forty Years to Comply With Terms of Grants.

Washington, Feb. 19.—The fact that the department of justice has made all preparations to begin a suit to enforce the terms of government land grants in the state of Oregon was brought out in the senate yesterday when Senator Fulton of the committee on judiciary reported a resolution authorizing the department to bring such suits and asked for its immediate adoption. Senator Heyburn asserted that hundreds of millions of dollars would be found to be involved if the proceeding was made general.

The resolution was generally discussed by senators, the only objection urged against it being based on the idea that the attorney general was now empowered by law to do all that was sought by the resolution.

Wants Sanction of Congress.

During the discussion of the resolution Senator Fulton announced that the department was ready to proceed and merely wanted the authority of congress to meet any possible question that may be raised against the legality of the proceeding.

The resolution also applies to the grant made to aid in the construction of a telegraph line from Portland to Ontario and McMinnville, Or., under the act of May 4, 1870. The resolution authorizes the attorney general to ascertain and enforce all the rights existing in favor of the United States if it appears that the lands are forfeited to the United States by violations of the conditions of these acts.

Millions of Acres Involved.

Senator Fulton said there was no question but that the roads had violated the terms of these grants, as the violation had been admitted before the subcommittee of the committee on judiciary.

Senator Heyburn said the same conditions referred to in the resolution exists in all land grant states, although only Oregon is referred to by the resolution. For forty years the railroads, he said, had refused to comply with the terms of these grants. The settler could not proceed against the railroads to force them to comply with the terms of their grants to the land because the proceeding could only be brought by the government which gave the grant.

"This question," he added, "involves millions of acres of land, worth hundreds of millions of dollars."

VOLUMES MIGHT BE WRITTEN

Of the Success That Awaits the Farmer in Western Canada.

The story of wheat farming in Western Canada (that portion of Canada lying north of Dakota and Montana) has been frequently told, but it will stand a lot of telling, and still retain its touch of interest. During the year just closed 277,376 persons made their homes in Canada as compared with 215,912 for the year 1906, an increase of 61,464. Those from the United States numbered 56,551. A writer in "Industry" recently said: "To-day the "Dominion of Canada is witnessing a "mightier movement of population "than ever stimulated a Biblical writ-"er to pen a chapter of Scripture." The same writer says: "From the Rhine "and the Rhone river valleys; from "the port cities of Germany and the "farms of the Fatherland, from the "peasant soil of Russia; and out from "the grimy Lancashire and over-popu-"lated Yorkshire, the discontented "and ambitious of every clime are "seeking to take advantage of the "opportunities afforded by the fertile "soil and exhilarating climate of the "Empire of the North."

Continuing the same writer says: "While a million human beings throng "the shores of the United States every "year, the smaller number arriving in "Canada come with a more well-de-"fined purpose." The question has been asked why do these people come to Canada? The available land between the Mississippi and the Pacific has been exhausted, and the farmers within that territory find that their sons have to seek newer climes. Canada offers one hundred and sixty acres of land free to each. This land yields from 20 to 40 bushels of wheat to the acre. In Southern Alberta, the winter wheat belt of Canada, as high as 60 bushels per acre have been harvested. Less yields than the one mentioned have netted the farmer as much as $35 per acre. There are no words that tell the tale so effectively as those of the farmer himself, the man who has ploughed the fields, sowed the grain, and with folded hands rests while nature, bounteous in that country, in less than three months, placed at his disposal hundreds of acres of ripened grain, now waiting the arrival of the reaper, and therefore we reproduce the following letter.

Any agent of the Canadian government will be pleased to give information regarding the district mentioned or any of any other that may be desired.

E. T. Holmes, Esq.,
Canadian Government Agent,
St. Paul, Minn.

Dear Sir:—

In 1905 I located on a claim about 30 miles from the town of Wadena, on the Canadian Northern Railroad, have lived on my claim most of the time since. I consider this to be one of the best districts in the country for grain growing. In 1906 wheat averaged from 30 to 51 bushels per acre on some of my neighbors' farms, within 4 miles of my claim. Oats go from 75 to 100 bushels. It is also a good country for stock. Where I am there is plenty of fuel. Homesteads nearly all taken the settlement being largely Germans, and Americans, all well-to-do. I left Wadena in February, 1907, returning April 25, so that I missed part of the winter, which the old settlers tell me was one of the worst they ever saw, but there was no suffering, as the people are pretty well fixed, and there are no blizzards in that country, at least there never has been known to be one. Wild land sells at from $10 to $15; closer to town it is higher.

In the summer we have all sorts of wild fruits very plentiful, and I never saw better vegetables, and game is so plentiful a man need not starve for want of something to eat. Plenty of good water, too. You need not hesitate to recommend this district, but the homesteads are nearly all taken, most of the homesteaders are living right on their claims.

Bees Race Pigeons.

It is not generally known that bees are swifter in flight than pigeons—that is, for short distances. Some years ago a pigeon fancier of Hammé, Westphalia, laid a wager that a dozen bees liberated three miles from their hives would reach home in less time than a dozen pigeons. The competitors were given wing at Rybern, a village nearly a league from Hamme, and the first bee reached the hive a quarter of a minute in advance of the first pigeon. Three other bees reached the goal before the second pigeon. The bees were also slightly handicapped, having been rolled in flour before starting for the purpose of identification.—The Reader.

No Liar.

A policeman saw a man acting rather suspiciously near a jewelry store in Germantown one evening, so, going over to him, he demanded to know who he was and what he wanted.

"I'm thinking of opening a jewelry store in this neighborhood," replied the man, "and I'm watching to see if there is much trade."

The policeman went on his way satisfied. Next morning word was received at the station-house that the jewelry store had been entered and robbed during the night. The policeman who had accosted the stranger said reflectively: "He may be a thafe, but he's no liar."

SERIOUS LABOR DISPUTES AHEAD

President Directs Interstate Commerce Commission to Get Data in Advance.

WOULD BE READY TO MEDIATE

Railroads Threaten, Owing to Drastic Laws, to Reduce the Wages of Their Employes.

Washington, Feb. 20.—Serious prospective disputes were in the mind of President Roosevelt when he wrote a letter to the interstate commerce commission indicating the importance of the commission's action with respect to the limitation of the hours of labor of railway employes and pointing out the possibility of serious differences arising between the railroad companies and their employes with respect to wages and hours of labor. The letter was made public yesterday.

The president strongly deprecates the making of any issue between railroad companies and their employes in the matter of wages if that can be avoided, and he instructs the commission to secure all possible information in advance, so that the responsibility may be fairly placed and to hold itself in readiness to mediate.

Drastic Laws Blamed.

In his letter the president says that information has reached him that on account of the enactment of drastic laws by the congress and by the various state legislatures, it is regarded as necessary by railroad companies to reduce the pay of employes. He pointed out that under the law either party may demand the services of the chairman of the interstate commerce commission and of the commissioner of labor as a board of conciliation.

He suggests, therefore, that the interstate commerce commission make such an investigation as will enable it to furnish data concerning wage conditions on various railroads as may relate directly or indirectly to the possible impending controversy.

It is further reported that a French column stationed not far from Rabat has been defeated by the tribesmen with great loss.

The Dog is Here.

If anyone was of the opinion that there was "nothin' doin'" along the line of the county seat fight just read the following from the Thief River Falls News:

A case which bids fair to rival the famous automobile litigation of last summer, has been started in the municipal court of this city. Last fall W. J. Labree lost a dog. There are various and conflicting opinions as to the value of this dog, and the News is not going to express any opinion. Advertisements were inserted in various papers of the county and it was finally discovered that a farmer by the name of Joe Harish, who lives a few miles from Red Lake Falls had the dog. Mr. LaBree notified Mr. Harish to send the dog, and the latter gentleman complied with the request. The spirit of graft permeating the air of Red Lake Falls and vicinity had a bad effect upon the honest farmer however, and the dog was sent to Thief River Falls C. O. D. $9. The $9 it is thought was for feeding the dog, although from all appearances the dog had not eaten much more than Elder's automobile did during its stay there. Mr. LaBree refused to pay the $9, but got out replevin papers and now has the dog in his possession. The case will come up for trial before Judge Bishop on next Tuesday morning, and the judge is spending all his spare time reading up on dog decisions of the past in order that absolute justice may be done. With the remnants of Sheriff Nelson's deputies and our new state malitia it is safe to say that no fool attorney from Red Lake Falls can come up and take possession of this dog.

to practically collect their subscription price in advance. The new order became effective Jan. 1, 1908, and a short time is given publishers in which to get their subscription accounts in shape. Weekly papers, whose subscribers are delinquent for more than a year, will be barred from second class postage privileges, and if mailed must be stamped. The placing of stamps on each paper is of course out of the question, and the order simply means that a publisher must either collect for his paper or cut the delinquent subscriber off his list. The newspaper publisher has no choice in the matter. The SPECTATOR is not afraid to trust its subscribers and our past experience in the newspaper business has convinced us that our subscribers are honest and there are rare exceptions indeed, where they refuse to pay for their paper, but the publisher is up against a proposition where we are obliged to collect all arrearages within a very short time or cut the delinquent subscribers off our list, and place the back subscription accounts in the hands of a collector. We are mailing statements to those in arrears and we trust if the reader of this article knows himself to be in arrears in his subscription account he will call at the office and effect a settlement. We do not want to cut you off our list.

The Minnesota Editorial Association is in session at Minneapolis this week.

Today is the anniversary of the birth of the father of his country—George Washington.

Just keep your eye on Peter E. Hanson when figuring on the next governor of Minnesota.

The people in general in this part of the state will extend their sympathy to Congressman and Mrs. Steenerson in the loss of their only son.

Warren Sheaf—We in the west where food is produced in abundance and where the larder in every farm house is filled clear to the ceiling with good things to eat, can hardly realize the conditions that exist in many of the industrial centers in the eastern states. In the Kensington mill district of Philadelphia, Pa., there are $50,000 men, women and children needing relief at this very time. Why so many people prefer going hungry in the overcrowded centers of population, to living on a farm, where they can always have plenty to eat and wear, with pure air and freedom thrown in is more than we can understand.

A Record Breaker

The commercial club sent out about four hundred invitations to farmers to attend the big farmers' meeting that was held here yesterday and very few failed to respond. From the time the meeting commenced in the morning until it closed it was almost impossible to get a seat and a great deal of the time, to even get into the hall. Those present seemed to follow the speakers closely and all seemed interested in what was said.

While there has been large gatherings of this kind here before, the one yesterday was, in point of attendance, by far the largest in the history of this town. There is no doubt but that the farmers of this vicinity are interested in dairy topics and the meeting will do an immense amount of good. While all did not avail themselves of the hospitality of the commercial club, still over three hundred farmers did and the hotel and restaurants were kept busy. It was a big meeting and a good way to celebrate the birthday of the St. Hilaire creamery.

By the Business Men of St. Hilaire to Help Defray the Expenses of the Farmers' Meeting Held Yesterday.

We, the undersigned citizens and business men of St. Hilaire, Minn., being interested in the welfare of this community and believing that what is a benefit to the community at large is a benefit to each individual and that any meeting gotten up for the purpose of educating the farmers and encouraging them to use more up-to-date methods in their farming operations, especially along dairy lines, is a very great benefit to the community, we promise to pay the amount here set opposite our names, said money to go towards paying the expenses of the farmers' meeting to be held here February 21st, 1908.

Dairymens' Contests

The Red River Valley Dairymens' Association was organized for the promotion of the dairy industry in the Valley and one of the best ways to do this is to educate the farmer in the art of breeding and selection of dairy stock and teach them to feed more intelligently. A good method to work up some interest along this line by means of contests between individual cows and also between different herds in the production of butter fat per cow.

By means of these contests it can be shown what a great difference there is in cows as to the amount of butterfat they will produce under the same conditions and it will also be shown what effect the different methods of feeding and caring for cows has upon the production of butterfat. By means of these contest it will be discovered where some of the best cows are located and what their records are and they will to certain extent be taken as a standard by other dairymen in the Valley who are keeping unprofitable cows and so, on the interest in the matter will continue to grow.

The Red River Dairymen's Association conducted a cow contest last year and much enthusiasm was worked up and good accomplished. This contest is being conducted again this year along the same line and quite a large number of cows have been entered. For any who have been keeping a record of the butterfat production of their cows since September or October it is not too late to enter the contest yet.

This Association will also conduct a creamery patrons' herd contest during the coming year. Ten dollars in cash will be given to the patron receiving the largest amount of cash per cow from the creamery between January 1st and October 1st 1908. In order to get at the right number of cows milked during the period it will be necessary to figure the number of cows milked each month and take the average at the end of nine months. This contest is open to any dairyman in the Red River Valley who is a patron of some creamery except those who have already entered the cow contest.

An affidavit must be made out and sworn to by two disinterested parties besides the owner of the herd as to the number of cows milked during the period. A picture of the winning herd will be framed and hung in the hall at the next convention of the Red River Valley Dairymens' Association and the owner's picture will be printed on the programs. The names of all those entering the contest with amount received for the nine months will be published in the Dairy Record of St. Paul. If some desire not to have their names published they should notify the secretary at the end of that period.

All those wishing to enter this contest should notify the secretary by March 15th, 1908.

Geo. L. Austin,
Secretary.

School Notes.

"The best laid schemes o' mice and men
Gang aft a-gley".

Hence "School Notes" are conspicuous by their absences sometimes.

The attendance during the last week or so has been quite small owing to sickness around. The regularity in attendance is very different from what it was during January. There were 75 who were neither tardy nor absent then.

A Lincoln program was given by the pupils of Miss Olson's room on the afternoon of his birthday. The pupils and teachers of the first intermediate, the grammar, and the high school rooms were invited in to listen to it, and the three-quarters of an hour they spent there was enjoyable indeed. Both the teachers and pupils can well feel satisfied over their effort to commemorate the anniversary of probably America's foremost citizen. A fine framed picture of Lincoln, one purchased by the pupils of that room, was placed on a chair before the school and beautifully draped with the nation's emblem. It was all very appropriate and well done.

Misses Katherine and Mabel Patterson and Irene and Marie Caldwell were visitors in Miss Olson's room for the program.

The play the high school pupils have been working with will have to be dropped for the time being. So many are suffering with the "grip," that it seems best to lay it aside for a while.

WHEN LINCOLN WAS A BOY.

ETHEL HOFF, 3RD GRADE.

Lincoln was born in Kentucky in 1809. His father was born in Virginia. Abraham lived in a house with no floor. He went to school and was not there long before he knew as much as the teacher. In those days teachers thought they could not teach without using a rod and a high dunce cap. Lincoln was very good, he never had to wear the dunce cap. He learned to write on a shovel. The first paper Lincoln ever wrote was "Freedom to All". Lincoln was our president. An Indian shot his grand father. When Lincoln was working in a store he gave a lady too little tea so he walked many miles to pay it. Abraham read a book many times because he had so few. Lincoln once rowed some men across the river, the men put two silver dollars in his boat and he thought he was very rich then.

Lincoln went to the woods once and when shooting he killed a robin and he was very sorry then.

WHEN I WAS HOMESICK.

ANNA PATTERSON, 7TH GRADE.

"Good-bye" was the last thing I heard as I started to auntie's. When I had been there a week I was homesick because I was tired of climbing upon top of the barn. The speckled hen wouldn't let me lift her from her nest to see if there were any eggs. The pig was too dirty play with.

If I went to pick strawberries the goat would think it her privilege to knock me, berries and all, over. I was tired of looking at the books because I had looked at them time and time again. At last auntie asked me if I was sick. I told her "yes" that I was homesick. She said that the only medicine that would cure it was to let me go home. I was very glad to get that medicine because it made me a good deal better.

Mission Conference

The Red River Valley Swedish Mission Conference was held at the Erickson school house east of here on Thursday and Friday of last week.

Those in attendance were;
Rev. Petrus Johanson, Tien, Minn.
Rev. A. Tornell, Viking, Minn.
Rev. Werner Drotts, Viking, Minn.
Rev. B. A. Werklund, Dunowen, Minn.
Rev. C. W. Olson, Roseau, Minn.
Rev. C. L. Anderson, Hallock, Minn.
Rev. O. K. Moberg, Crookston, Minn.
Rev. Chas. A. Jacobson, Warren, Minn.
Rev. Aug. Roadfolt, Roseau, Minn.

Two sessions were held daily.

After the regular business was transacted the time was used in discussing doctrinal questions. Religious services were held each evening.

The meeting was a success in every respect.

Forced to Quit Business at St. Hilaire

The Kelly Brokerage Company of Minneapolis has been appointed to dispose of the entire $25,000 worth of stock and fixtures belonging to C. A. Jeglum of St. Hilaire. The people of St. Hilaire and surrounding country will be greatly benefitted by this tremendous forced sale at C. A. Jeglum's store, which will begin on Wednesday, February 19th.

The Kelly Brokerage Company of Minneapolis, which is a stock company, who buys and sells all salvage, assignee and bankrupt stocks etc. to settle accounts with creditors, has been appointed to sell this stock in ten days. They are known in all the large western cities to be the world's greatest bargain givers. They inform us that the prices quoted on this stock are, in many instances less than they could purchase the same for at the factory in case lots. Their reasons, so they say, for making this great sacrifice is that C. A. Jeglum is compelled to vacate his quarters in a very short time, and in order to dispose of the entire stock quickly, they will give the people of St. Hilaire and vicinity the greatest bargains that have ever been offered in this state.

This sale will surely prove to be a great boon to the people, who are never slow to take advantage of an opportunity such as this great, closing out sale will afford.

The Kelly Brokerage Company say they have prepared for an immense crowd of people, in order to serve all property.

We bespeak for them a record breaking business during this great sale, as C. A. Jeglum has never carried any except the most dependable and reliable merchandise.

We expect to see hundred of people in attendance at this great sale, as this stock is known for miles around St. Hilaire. It is safe to say that a sale such as this comes but once in a lifetime, and the public, no doubt, will buy out the majority of the combined clothing, dry goods, furnishings, shoes and grocery stocks quickly.

The store will be closed Monday and Tuesday, Feb. 17th and 18th and no one will be allowed to enter without a permit from the Kelly Brokerage Company.

This great sale will give the people of St. Hilaire and vicinity one of the greatest and grandest opportunities of a lifetime to purchase brand new merchandise at less than actual wholesale cost.

It will be necessary to shut up shop in order to re-mark and arrange the stock previous to the sale.

Sale positively starts Wednesday Feb. 19th, at 9 a. m., sharp, lasting ten days only. Come prepared to get great bargains, as this opportunity you will never have again.

Free Text Book Practice Is Growing in Minnesota.

The total value of school property in this state for the year ending July 31, 1907, including the school houses, apparatus and books, was $25,370,021, according to a statement compiled by J. W. Olsen, superintendent of public instruction. This is an increase over the total value at the end of the preceding school year of $1,247,910. For the erection of new school buildings alone there was expended in the state during the past year $1,083,998.

The statement shows that the practice of lending text books to pupils free of cost is growing in the state. During the past year there 5,907 districts in which the text books were lent free, compared with 5,673 the preceding year, while the districts in which the text books were sold at cost to the pupils had decreased from 895 in 1905-06 to 723 last year.

The average cost to the districts of lending text books free in the independent and special districts was 71 cents per pupil, which is just what it cost the year before. In the common school districts, however, the cost per pupil was 51 cents, as compared with 48 cents for the preceding year. The difference in the cost of text books in the common school districts and the others is due to the fact that those used in the primary grades are cheaper than those used in the more advanced grades.

The estimated value of all the school libraries in the state last year was $582,408, compared with $531,703 for the preceding year. The number of libraries had increased from 5,586 in 1906 to 9,344 last year. During the past year there were added 99,833 volumes to the school libraries, making the total number of volumes 875,549. During 1906 the number of volumes added was 104,950, making the total number at the end of that school year 795,369, the value of which was estimated at $531,703.

The total number of schoolhouses erected during the year was 224, of which 157 were frame, 46 brick, 4 stone and 17 log structures. The total cost of these new buildings was $1,083,998. During the 1906 school year 287 new schools were built, of which 206 were frame, 56 brick, 3 stone and 22 log structures. Their aggregate value was $1,249,638. The total number of schoolhouses on July 31, 1906, was 8,067, and on July 31 last year is was 8,354. The total value of the school houses last year was estimated at $21,574,638, and on July 31 last it was $22,865,437.

The value of the seats and desks was $1,246,657, and the value of the apparatus $676,119.

CAN'T FIND CLUE TO MURDERER.

New Ulm Authorities Hear Coroner's Jury Report.

The coroner's jury empaneled shortly after Christian Walther, the recluse, was found murdered in New Ulm on Jan. 9, has completed its labors. The county attorney, coroner, local police, detectives, sheriff, mayor and private citizens have been unable thus far to find any tangible clue, and the verdict of the jury is to the effect that the murdered man came to his death at the hands of some party or parties unknown to them.

During the last twenty-five years four murders have occurred in New Ulm, and not one of them has been avenged by the discovery and conviction of the guilty parties. Mrs. F. Gommel, wife of a policeman, disappeared and her remains never have been discovered, the murderer removing all traces.

Night Policeman Albert Winkelman was shot dead while walking his beat. Dr. L. A. Gebhart was stabbed to death in his office and Christian Walther was killed by blows on his head in his home. All these murders occurred during the night.

TOURNAMENT DATES FIXED.

Northern Minnesota Firemen to Meet at Park Rapids in June.

The executive committee of the Northern Minnesota Firemen's Tournament association held a meeting at Cass Lake Saturday evening at which plans were formulated for the annual meeting of the association next June.

Delegates representing departments from Park Rapids, Grand Rapids, Ely and Cass Lake were present. After a general discussion it was decided that the dates for the annual meeting and the races at Park Rapids should be June 23, 24, 25 and 26.

Byron F. Knapp of Park Rapids was elected president, to succeed Mr. Arundal, who resigned.

TRAPPER IS IN RARE LUCK.

Gets Silver Gray Fox Besides Good Run of Other Pelts.

M. D. Tilton of Dover, famous as a hunter and trapper, has the skins of six minks, fourteen white weasels, three foxes and a large number of muskrats and civets to show for the season. But his best stroke of luck was when he captured a silver gray fox a few days ago, whose skin is worth from $75 to $125. The silver gray fox is rarely seen and exists in the ratio of about one in a hundred.

TAKE UP WARRANTS.

State Treasury Is Repaying Money Borrowed Last Fall.

State Treasurer Dinehart has caused to be paid $250,000 in school warrants sent out last October and for which the state had to borrow money in order to accommodate the districts needing it. This wipes out the heavy rate of interest which the state has been paying since that time.

Most men with swell heads wear awfully small hats.

REFUSES TO GET OUT.

City Engineer of Mankato Turns Deaf Ear to Council's Request.

The Mankato City council has voted unanimously to request City Engineer M. B. Haynes to hand in his resignation at once. Mr. Haynes has refused to do so and has asked what the charges against him are. Under the charter the council can remove him from office, but not until charges have been preferred and a hearing had. In this instance the council would be the accuser and the trial court, but it is not known whether it will go to this extreme.

Mr. Haynes served as city engineer for fourteen years, ending his service some years ago, but was appointed again last spring, to succeed J. R. Thompson, who is now city engineer at Brookings, S. D. He was the engineer when the Minnesota river bridge was put in and when a large part of the water and sewer systems were put in, culverts constructed, streets graded, etc.

During his present term, however, the aldermen have been dissatisfied, feeling that Mr. Thompson ought not to have been removed by Mayor Andrews. His work has been the subject of criticism and there has been a good deal of friction. The confirmation of his appointment was even in doubt. The construction of the street railway line made more engineering work the past season than ever before, and members of the council felt that they were not consulted enough. It was also claimed that Mr. Haynes made mistakes, but this he denies.

Expressions on the part of the public seem to be largely with Mr. Haynes, who is over seventy years old and who has given faithful service to the city.

SELL LOTS AT PUBLIC SALE.

Auction Will Be Held at White Earth March 10.

Notice has been issued to the effect that all unappropriated lots containing no permanent improvement in the townsite of White Earth will be offered for sale at public auction to the highest bidder on Tuesday, March 10, 1908. The lots will be offered for sale under the provision of the act of congress approved March 1, 1907.

The sale will take place on the townsite. No lots will be sold at less than the appraised value. The purchaser of each lot will be required to deposit 25 per cent of the purchase price on the day of sale, payments to be made either in cash or by certified checks or drafts. Balance of purchase price to be paid on delivery of the patent therefor. Patents will be executed and delivered to the purchasers as early as practicable after the approval of the deeds. A plat of the townsite is on file at the White Earth agency subject to examination by prospective purchasers. J. R. Howard, the newly appointed Indian agent, is expected there soon. A large contingent of Mille Lac Indians arrived Friday night.

Simon Michelet, the outgoing agent, is very busy closing his accounts in connection with this agency, preparatory to leaving about April 1. The people in general regret very much that Maj. Michelet is to leave them. During the seven years as Indian agent he has, by fair and impartial treatment of all questions pertaining to his office, ingratiated himself with the people of the reservation.

PUT TREASURY IN GOOD SHAPE.

State Treasurer Says Taxes of Railroads Have Helped Out.

By March 1 State Treasurer C. C. Dinehart expects to see the state treasury richer by $3,500,000 than it was on Jan. 1. This will be because of the heavy tax payments now due.

Payments of gross earnings taxes by the North-Western, Omaha, Milwaukee and Duluth & Iron Range railroads in the past week has permitted Mr. Dinehart to pay off $550,000 which the state borrowed a short time ago from St. Paul banks to pay warrants for state school aid. There is about $400,000 of this indebtedness yet to be met, but Mr. Dinehart believes this will all be taken care of when the Mesabe road pays its tax, which, because of the ore traffic on that line, will be very large. By March 1, the state treasurer looks to see the state clear of all indebtedness and on "easy street" so far as cash on hand is concerned.

Mr. Dinehart figures that the gross earnings taxes paid by the railroads this year will be about double the amount raised by direct taxation of the people. The railroad gross earnings taxes are estimated for the year at $3,500,000. The state valuation for taxation is $1,000,048,000. The levy is 1.7 mills. This means that direct taxation will raise $1,700,000, or about half as much as the railroads will pay.

Flowage Cases Settled.

The commision appointed to hear the claims of all parties interested in lands affected by the condemnation proceedings instituted by the United States court for the district of Minnesota in what is known as the flowage cases, met in Bemidji last week and heard the claims of all parties who reside in the territory affected by the government dams and reservoirs of the Upper Mississippi river.

The commission consisted of S. C. Rugland of Ashby, John O'Neil of Park Rapids and F. C. Sibley of Bemidji, they having been appointed several months ago for the purpose of hearing the claims and reporting the same. All claimants were present and all of the claims were settled satisfactorily.

The difference in the sums allowed for damages were due to the fact that some of the lands involved were flooded, while ohers were but partly damaged. Altogether there were 178 pieces of land which is claimed were affected by the reservoir system and which were involved in the settlement.

PERUNA EDITORIAL NO. I.

Dr. Hartman is now offering Peruna to the public as a regular pharmaceutical product. It is just as ethical as any compound put up for the medical profession. No straining of medical ethics can find any fault with it. THE PRINCIPAL ACTIVE INGREDIENTS are prominently incorporated in the label on the bottle, that the people may know that the claims made for Peruna have a true justification.

The only departure we shall make from medical ethics in the conduct of Peruna affairs in the future, is the fact that we shall continue to advertise and sell our product TO THE PEOPLE.

If we would agree to sell to doctors only, to advertise for doctors only, then the medical fraternity would be obliged to recognize Peruna as being entirely within their approval.

BUT WE SHALL NOT DO THIS.

We shall continue to offer Peruna to the people. We shall continue to convey to the people our claims for Peruna as a household remedy. We shall continue to supply the people with free literature, teaching them how to use our medicine, teaching them how to avoid disease, teaching them many things of benefit to the home. We shall continue to do this, whether the medical profession like it or not.

We are proposing from this time on to take the public into our confidence. Notwithstanding that some imitators and substitutors will be attempting to put up something which they consider just as good as Peruna, we are going to draw aside the veil of secrecy and allow any one who chooses to know exactly OF WHAT PERUNA IS COMPOSED.

This ought to disarm all honest criticism. We expect, however, that criticism will continue. On some pretext or other those who are envious of the success of Peruna will continue to find fault. But we are determined to give such people no just complaint. PERUNA IS A GREAT MEDICINE.

It has become a household word in millions of homes. Our faith in the remedy is stronger than ever. Every year we expect to establish new plants in foreign lands until the people of all the world are supplied with this valuable household remedy.

People Who Object to Liquid Medicines Can Now Secure Peruna Tablets.

WE CLAIM PERUNA TO BE A CATARRH REMEDY. Buy a bottle and try it. If it helps you, be honest and acknowledge that it has helped you.

If you want us to we will publish your statement exactly as you furnish it to us. We will add no words, take away no words. If you wish us to we will publish your portrait in connection with it. We will not do this without your written request, without your entire consent.

Peruna has cured thousands of people of chronic catarrh, in many phases and locations. At least, that is what the people say to us, through unsolicited testimonials. Peruna will cure many thousand more, in spite of fabricated slanders to the contrary.

WE GUARANTEE EVERY BOTTLE OF PERUNA TO CONTAIN THE INGREDIENTS PRINTED ON THE LABEL.

We guarantee that every testimonial we use is absolutely true—in the exact language of the testifier.

We guarantee that every photograph published is the photograph of the person whose name it bears, that every word of every testimonial was authorized by the hand that signed it.

We are determined to beat our opponents by being fairer than they are, by dealing squarer than they dare to. We are determined to meet falsehood with truth, duplicity with candor, insincerity with sincerity.

We know that the users of Peruna will appreciate our stand. We believe that the dealers in Peruna will applaud our course. We expect even our opponents will be obliged to acknowledge finally that Peruna is not only an honest and useful remedy, but one of the GREATEST HOUSEHOLD MEDICINES ON THE CONTINENT.

GREAT TUNNEL IS FORMALLY OPENED

Thousands Transported by Subterranean Route From New York to Jersey.

PRESIDENT GIVES THE SIGNAL

Governors of Two States Join in Celebrating Completion of Hudson River Tunnel.

New York, Feb. 27. — "Over to Jersey" gave way to "Under to Jersey" last night, and while the ferry boats wended their laborious way overhead thousands of persons were being transported by a subterranean route from shore to shore in about the time that it takes the surface craft to warp into their slips.

The Hudson river tunnel connecting New York city and Hoboken, N. J., by a passage made far below the river bottom was formally opened yesterday when President Roosevelt pressed a button and the governors of New York and New Jersey made speeches, but it got its real christening last night, when on the stroke of midnight the tunnel was opened to the public and a regular service of eight-car trains, running under five-minute headway, was installed.

Thousands Take Ride.

The public opening was in time to catch the theater crowds bound for home in the sister state, but there were thousands of other passengers bent on having an early ride under novel conditions. The early trains were operated without a hitch. From Nineteenth street, under Sixth avenue, the present Manhattan terminal, to Hoboken, was made in about ten minutes, the under-the-water section being covered in three minutes.

While the first nighters were paying the Hudson Tunnel company its first return on the $60,000,000 investment, the promoters of the enterprise were dining the executives of New York and New Jersey at Sherry's and drinking toasts to the everlasting success of the interstate all-under-the-river route.

Governors Make Speeches.

The engineers and officers of the constructing and financial companies were present, as well as the heads of the different departments and officers of the various New Jersey towns affected by the new connecting link. Members of the state and national governments were also present. The toastmaster was Walter G. Oakman, president of the Hudson company which did the actual construction work. The governors of the two states made the principal speeches.

DID BROWNSVILLE SHOOTING.

Majority of Senate Committee Holds Negro Soldiers Responsible for Affray.

Washington, Feb. 27. — That the shooting in the affray at Brownsville, Tex., on the night of Aug. 13-14, 1906, was done by some of the negro soldiers of the Twenty-fifth United States infantry, and that the testimony taken before the senate committee on military affairs fails to identify the guilty parties, is the opinion of eight members of the committee. Four members of the committee voted against this decision and one member did not vote. The resolution declaring the guilt of the negroes was submitted by Senator Lodge and was adopted after five resolutions by Senator Foraker, one by Senator Dupont and one by Senator Scott, all of which were offered as substitutes, had been voted down.

The vote yesterday was reached after prolonged investigation, extending over two sessions of congress, and evidence had been taken covering thousands of pages. Throughout the entire controversy the anti-administration campaign has been directed by Senator Foraker. In the final vote in the committee a majority of the Republican members came to his support. The Ohio senator expressed himself as gratified at this, and it was apparent from the outset that all of the Democratic members were convinced that the negroes did the shooting.

The fight will be carried to the floor of the senate. The reports of the committee will not be made for about ten days.

CARRIERS MEET AT GLENCOE.

Rural Organization Is Formed by Postal Employes.

Langdon, Minn., Feb. 27.—The rural letter carriers of McLeod county held a meeting in the Hibernian hall at Glencoe and organized with eighteen charter members. Prospects are good for ten more in the near future. State president Crippen of Langdon, Minn., explained the benefits derived from association to the carriers, the department and the rural patrons.

Two Incendiary Fires.

Marquette, Mich., Feb. 27. — Four hundred men lost all their digging clothes when the dry house at the Austin mine at Princeton burned. At the same time a small sawmill half a mile distant was destroyed. Both fires were of incendiary origin.

Play With Musket Costs Fingers.

Lyle, Minn., Feb. 27.—Louis Torgeson was brought to the local hospital yesterday with two fingers missing and his hand badly maimed as a result of playing with an old musket.

REFUTE CHARGES AGAINST NAVY

Experts Appear efore Senate Committee to Answer Charges in Magazine.

Washington, Feb. 27. — Experts in naval construction — Rear Admiral Converse, retired, president of the board of construction, and Rear Admiral Capps, chief of the bureau of construction and repairs—were before the senate committee on naval affairs yesterday in the investigation of charges made against the navy by Henry Reuterdahl in a recent magazine article.

The charges were taken up in the order they appeared in the article, and at the conclusion of the extended refutations by Admiral Converse, Senator Perkins said to the naval officers:

Apology Due Officers.

"We ought to apologize to you for calling on you to refute such articles as these."

"That is true," said Chairman Hale, "but it's written in such a vein that a layman could not understand how absurd the charges are. It attracted the attention of the whole country and we had to investigate."

Senators Martin, Perkins and Gallinger laughingly suggested that Mr. Reuterdahl, who is now with the battleship fleet in the Pacific, should be set off the fleet if a convenient barren island could be found.

Development of Interest.

The development of principal interest in the testimony of Admiral Converse was that two of the charges made by Mr. Reuterdahl were in language similar to that used by Lieutenant Commander Sims, naval aid to the president, and Lieutenant Commander Hill, on duty with the general board of the navy, in articles which they prepared and submitted to the secretary of the navy at his request. He disclaimed any purpose to indicate that these articles or statements of officers had been the inspiration for the Reuterdahl attack upon the navy. Nevertheless, these officers are to be called before the committee in the near future. Secretary Metcalf also will be a witness.

Sims and Hill Explain.

At the navy department during the day Lieutenant Commander Hill submitted to Secretary Metcalf his reply to the questions addressed to him and Lieutenant Commander Sims as to their knowledge of the source of information alleged to have been furnished writers who criticised the constructive features of the navy. Commander Hill declined to discuss his reply.

WILL NOT LIFT PAPER TARIFF.

Congressmen Reply to Vigorous Protests Coming From Publishers.

Washington, Feb. 27. — Vigorous protests are coming here from leading publishers in the Northwest against the decision given by Chairman Payne of the ways and means committee against taking up the measures proposing the free admission of print paper and wood pulp and other paper materials during the present session of congress.

The claim is made by some publishers that congress should take the same action with respect to the paper and wood pulp duties as was taken by congress several years ago in placing coal on the free list. The reply made by members of the house who have been urged to support the policy is that a much different condition of affairs exists with respect to the paper and wood pulp matter than obtained during the session of congress when coal was placed on the free list.

It is asserted that in the case of coal a general famine of this necessary fuel existed, owing to a strike, and that so urgent was the demand for bringing in coal from foreign countries that President Roosevelt urged in a message to congress that relief be given through the free admission of coal. It is pointed out that President Roosevelt does not take this position with reference to paper and wood pulp, and that there is no general demand either through public meetings, or even numerous letters to senators and representatives, urging action by congress, in favor of placing paper and wood pulp on the free list.

In this situation it is claimed by the Northwestern representatives that it would be futile to expect congress to act at present.

WOMAN COOK IS BURNED.

Dress Takes Fire and in Fright She Dashes Lard Over Self.

Waterloo, Iowa, Feb. 27. — Miss Maude Wilson is lying at the point of death at Independence, where she was badly burned. Miss Wilson is employed as second cook in the Gedney hotel, and while carrying a bucket of grease near the big range her apron was drawn into the firebox. In her fright she threw up her arms and the melted lard was dashed over her. The flames quickly spread and she became a living torch.

The woman's nose and mouth were burned from her face and her body was charred so badly as to be almost unrecognizable.

Traffic Paralyzed by Storms.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 27—Railroad traffic in Central Russia is almost completely paralyzed by a succession of heavy snow storms, which still continue. Many towns are cut off from all communcation.

Jurors Fined $50 Each.

New York, Feb. 27.—Justice Gug, in the New York supreme court, set aside the verdict of a jury yesterday and fined the twelve jurymen $50 each for deciding the verdict by the flip of a coin.

Denver Priest in Sermon Urges Country to Suppress Operations of Anarchists.

Chicago, Feb. 27.—"A murder will be committed in Chicago within a month similar to the Denver assassination in which Rev. Father Leo Heinrichs was shot down while administering holy communion in St. Elizabeth's Catholic church," asserted Chancellor E. M. Dunne of the Chicago archdiocese.

"I am positive that anarchists have prepared a list of priests and clergy to be killed, and am certain that some Chicago man has been marked," he said.

Is Logical Victim.

"I am the most logical man for assassination, for although I have thouasnd of friends in the Italian colony, I also have many bitter enemies."

Father Dunne said if he was not chosen to be murdered the candidate would be either Archbishop Quigley, Very Rev. F. S. Angellucci of the Church of Assumption or Rev. Father Francis Gordon, C. R.

Detectives Bernache and Longabardo of the assistant chief's office reported to Chancellor Dunne at the chancery office and told him they were instructed to serve as his personal bodyguard.

Threat Against His Life.

The Irish priest, who for a number of years was pastor of an Italian congregation on Forquier street, simply shrugged his shoulders and replied:

"For a number of years I have been threatened with having numerous knives shoved between my ribs, but so far I have come out alive. I'll just go ahead and do my duty and work and try to take care of myself."

Cloth was pasted over the windows before it was broken to make the entrance noiseless in both cases, and the articles taken are almost identical. Paliwoda is now in jail and the authorities claim that the last job was done by friends of the prisoner, intent upon throwing them off the scent.

WILL CRUSH OUT THE OIL OCTOPUS

Attorney Kellogg Says That in Twelve Months Oil Trust Will Be Dissolved.

GETS DAMAGING TESTIMONY

Methods Employed by Standard Oil Are Exposed by Officials of Southern Railroad.

Washington, Feb. 27. — By far the most damaging evidence yet produced against the Standard Oil company to prove it guilty of conspiracy under the Sherman anti-trust law was brought out during the hearing yesterday before the referee.

Special Attorney Frank B. Kellogg put Traffic Manager Culp, Freight Superintendent Greene and other officials of the Southern railroad on the stand and by their testimony exposed the methods employed by the Standard Oil people to grant rebates and special rates to their favored customers.

Pretty much of the entire territory south of the Ohio river in the thickly populated sections of the country was covered by these secret rates by the Standard Oil.

Scheme Was Ingenious.

Their scheme was very ingenious. They secured a division rate from Whiting, Ind., to a little place in Southern Tennessee called Grand Junction. From Grand Junction hundreds of barrels of oil were shipped on a freight schedule that had never been subjected to the interstate commerce commission. In some instances the oil that went via Grand Junction went nearly a thousand miles out of the way in order to escape the interstate commerce commission.

The officials of the Southern railway who testified have incurred hostility of the Standard Oil company to such an extent that a boycott is threatened. But Mr. Kellogg made the assertion that in twelve months' time there would be no holding company and that the Standard Oil monopoly would be dissolved.

The county attorney's office promises something sensational in the next twenty-four hours. This office entirely discards the tramp theory and is looking closer to home for the criminals.

TYBURN TREE.

Lord Ferrers' Tragic Journey to the Famous Old Gallows.

Park lane was Tyburn lane, and it seems as if the gallows—described in an old document as movable—at one time stood at its east corner. It was there the ferocious Lord Ferrers was hung in 1760 for murdering his servant. Horace Walpole's words paint the picture well: "He shamed heroes. He bore the solemnity of a pompous and tedious procession of above two hours from the Tower to Tyburn with as much tranquillity as if he were only going to his own burial, not to his own execution." And when one of the dragoons of the procession was thrown from his horse Lord Ferrers expressed much concern and said, "I hope there will be no death today but mine."

On went the procession, with a mob about it sufficient to make its progress slow and laborious. Small wonder that the age of Thackeray, with Thackeray's help, set up its scaffolds within four high walls. Asking for drink, Lord Ferrers was refused, for, said the sheriff, late regulations enjoined him not to let prisoners drink while passing from the place of imprisonment to that of execution, great indecencies having been committed by the drunkenness of the criminals in the hour of execution. "And though," said he, "my lord, I might think myself excusable in overlooking this order out of regard to your lordship's rank, yet there is another reason, which, I am sure, will weigh with you—your lordship is sensible of the greatness of the crowd; we must draw up at some tavern; the confluence would be so great that it would delay the expedition which your lordship seems so much to desire." But decency—so often paraded by those who outrage it—ended with the murderer's death. "The executioners fought for the rope, and the one who lost it cried—the greatest tragedy, to his thinking, of the day!"—London Sketch.

There is nothing so true that the damps of error have not warped it.—Tupper.

IMPORTANT

Notice to Subscribers

Under a recent ruling of the post office department at Washington newspapers are required to practically collect their subscription price in advance. The new order became effective Jan. 1, 1908, and a short time is given publishers in which to get their subscription accounts in shape. Weekly papers, whose subscribers are delinquent for more than a year, will be barred from second class postage privileges, and if mailed must be stamped. The placing of stamps on each paper is of course out of the question, and the order simply means that a publisher must either collect for his paper or cut the delinquent subscriber off his list. The newspaper publisher has no choice in the matter. The SPECTATOR is not afraid to trust its subscribers and our past experience in the newspaper business has convinced us that our subscribers are honest and there are rare exceptions indeed, where they refuse to pay for their paper, but the publisher is up against a proposition where we are obliged to collect all arrearages within a very short time or cut the delinquent subscribers off our list, and place the back subscription accounts in the hands of a collector. We are mailing statements to those in arrears and we trust if the reader of this article knows himself to be in arrears in his subscription account he will call at the office and effect a settlement. We do not want to cut you off our list.

One week from next Tuesday occurs the annual village election. All is quiet and serene so far.

It is generally conceded that the republicans are going to have harmony this year if they have to fight for it.

Nearly all the sentiment in Minnesota seems to be for Taft and he will undoubtedly have the solid delegation from this state.

The Standard Oil Company is reported to be spending money freely to beat Taft out of the nomination. They had better save the money and pay up that fine.

If you have so far failed to pay your personal property tax you had better move lively and do it today or it will cost you ten per cent more.

The republican convention to nominate delegates to the national convention has been called to meet at Minneapolis April 16, and the convention to nominate a state ticket for July 1st at St. Paul.

MERMAIDS OF LEGEND

Sea Women That Were Vouched For by Ancient Writers.

ORIGIN OF THE DELUSION.

These Traditional Creatures Were Probably Dugongs and Manatees. Seal Maidens of Fable—Mermaids of Fiction and the Seal of Fact.

There is a decided fascination about the mermaids of legend. Considering their traditional form, it does not seem quite certain whether they can be included among the fair "humanities" of old religion, but it would be extremely interesting to see one. In all seriousness the truths and poetry underlying and inherent in the old myths are well worth attention, but apart from these there is something distinctly entertaining in the quasi-historical accounts that we have of mermaids and the heroic attempts at rationalistic explanation. The fancy has taken firmer hold on popular imagination than many of the old legends. Of course they are recognized as nonexistent; but, unlike the majority of mythological beings they are invested colloquially with a sort of humorous reality.

A "History of the Netherlands" gives a circumstantial account of a great tempest which washed ashore near Haarlem a "sea woman" as she was swimming about. She was captured and cleansed from the "sea moss that had grown about her" and became a humanized creature, except that she was always trying to escape into the water. And it is added, "Many persons worthy of credit have justified in their writings that they had seene her in the said towne of Haarlem." In the sixteenth century off Ceylon some sailors captured "seven mermen and mermaids," several priests and physicians testifying to the fact and the latter leaving it on record that after examination and dissection they found the external and internal structures resembled those of human beings. Hudson, the famous navigator, declared that his ship's company had seen a mermaid, the upper part of her body like a woman, skin very white and long black hair. An old Iceland history tells of one near Greenland, "the neck and head in all respects like a human being." The Norwegian Bishop Pontippidan, who wrote in the eighteenth century, "records the appearance of a mermaid which was deposed to on oath by the observers." And not to multiply quotations proving the belief even of the learned in the actual existence of the mermaids, Pliny asserts authoritatively that "as for the meremaidens it is no fabulous tale that goeth of them, for looke how painters draw them, so thay are indeed."

It seems hard after all these weighty testimonies that we should be assured that the "historical" mermaids were only dugongs or manatees, seals or sea lions, especially as some of these interesting creatures measure some eighteen feet in length and are by no means attractive in appearance. Something in the shape of the head and the breast is relied on by the rationalistic scientists as explaining the delusion, but one is at a loss to understand how this can account for the circumstantial descriptions that have come down to us. Coevals of those old writers have proved to us by their paintings that they held very much the same views as to what constitutes feminine beauty as we have, and we should certainly not discover in the dugong or manatee anything whatever to suggest in the very faintest degree the idea of a pretty woman. Yet there is generally the implication of comeliness in the verbal pictures the old writers give of their mermaids, though Columbus, who reported that he had seen two or three, admitted that he saw no beauty in them. The seal explanation perhaps does the least violence to one's traditional ideas, as, whatever may be thought of its resemblance to a woman, it is in itself graceful and its face and eyes are pleasing.

There is, at any rate, a rather suggestive coincidence in the view that the mermaid of fiction is the seal of fact, for closely allied if not identical with mermaids were the "seal maidens" of a thousand fables. The accepted tradition was that these maidens assumed the form of seals, which they could relinquish at any moment by divesting themselves of the sealskins. Only if while they were disporting themselves in quasi human guise their seal integuments were stolen or hidden they would have to remain as "maidens" and could not resume the form of seals. We know on the authority of many a song and legend that willingly or unwillingly a man has been

"married to a mermaid
At the bottom of the deep blue sea,"

but in the case of the fortunate purloiner of a seal maiden's "troublesome disguise" there was no need for a submarine descent. She could quite comfortably live on land and, indeed, had to unless she found her sealskin again, though always longing, like the mermaid of Haarlem, to become a sea dweller once more. There is therefore unquestionably a certain poetic propriety in the scientific identification of the mermaid with the seal.—London Globe.

Renunciation.

"I have always been a good friend to you, Mrs. Jinx," said Mrs. Lapsing with blazing eyes, as she rose to go, "but I am a friend no longer. You have talked about my husband. Right here is where our paths divulge. Good afternoon."—Chicago Tribune.

Combating Sheep Ailments.

Internal parasites and hoof ailment are the bane of flockmasters, the latter chiefly because in summer it invites the blow fly, parent of the maggot which causes a more terrible death than the stomach worm. Some simple remedy that the sheep will readily eat has long been sought for the internal parasites, and something with which the sheep can treat their hoof ailment themselves is equally desirable. I believe I have found both, writes H. P. Miller in National Stockman and Farmer. Though I have not carried flocks through a summer with them, my faith in them is so strong that I want to give others a chance to try them next summer. Provide a box six or eight feet square and four inches deep and cover the bottom one inch deep with air slaked lime. In the center of it place a small box containing dry tobacco leaves and keep them sprinkled with salt, making that the only source of salt supply. Cover all to protect from rains. The sheep will do the rest.

Keep Him Fat.

Texas ponies taken up north for polo or other purposes, grown animals eight or ten years old, ranch horses mostly, commence to grow when fed on the good northern oats and timothy hay, is stated as an interesting fact by William Anson in Texas Farm and Ranch. "They not only grow in weight and height, but improve in appearance in the most marvelous manner," which leads Mr. Anson to the suggestion that if you wish to get a top price for the horse you bred you must keep him reasonably fat from the time he is born till he is sold.

WYLIE.

Roadmaster Gibson, of the Great Northern railway came down on a special Monday and proceeded on the overland route to Ferdinand Gother to see and find out why the latter broke up fenced in the abandoned road bed and right-of-way of the G. N. formerly known as the Crookston, Wylie and St. Hilaire T line. It is the concise opinion of everybody along this line that Mr. Gother did the proper thing as long as Jim Hill pulled up the iron and ties and left it in such a condition that it is a veritable paradise for noxious weeds to do their best—and they generally do it—and the farmers along the line reap the benefit of the noxious weeds. If it is in the power of the railroad commissioners they should see that the roadbed and right-of-way be turned over to the original owners or that Jim Hill be compelled to lay steel over the line in question—between Wylie and Shirley.

Mrs. T. E. Smidersang and her mother, Mrs. F. Gother, returned Monday after a brief visit at Crookston.

Carl Carlson, one of our general merchants was transacting business at Red Lake Falls Tuesday.

Wylie has them all beat when it comes to shipping hay—both timothy and upland prairie. Messrs. Cruzen, Powers, Severy and McKercher being the largest shippers.

John Naplin, vice president of the Farmers Elevator Co., was in the village Tuesday, likewise Director P. A. Hallstrom.

Henry Lindblom, the tallest man in Red Lake county, was here Monday enroute to the county seat to pay taxes. He was accompanied by his sister Clara.

The new mail carrier between Dorothy and Red Lake Falls, via Wylie gives the very best of satisfaction. It is prompt and accomodating.

The nice showers of rain on Feb. 24, which lasted over two hours, had the desired effect on the pussy willows by bringing them out of their bulbs. This is no "robin" story.

Andrew Letvig, formerly of this place but now of St. Hilaire, is again in this vicinity drilling wells. He struck a nice flow at a depth of 255 feet on Nels Person's farm and another on Charlie Erickson's place at 178 feet.

With the cheese factory again in operation next spring (April), a new hardware store and a bank, Wylie will be as good as it ever was—and that is saying a good deal. We have a good country, good farmers, and that is sufficient to make a good town.

WOMAN'S BACKACHE

The back is the mainspring of woman's organism. It quickly calls attention to trouble by aching. It tells, with other symptoms, such as nervousness, headache, pains in the loins, weight in the lower part of the body, that a woman's feminine organism needs immediate attention.

In such cases the one sure remedy which speedily removes the cause, and restores the feminine organism to a healthy, normal condition is

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND

Mrs. Will Young, of 6 Columbia Ave., Rockland, Me., says:

"I was troubled for a long time with dreadful backaches and a pain in my side, and was miserable in every way. I doctored until I was discouraged and thought I would never get well. I read what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done for others and decided to try it; after taking three bottles I can truly say that I never felt so well in my life."

Mrs. Augustus Lyon, of East Earl, Pa., writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"I had very severe backaches, and pressing-down pains. I could not sleep, and had no appetite. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cured me and made me feel like a new woman."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration.

Married women should let their husbands be right once in a while—just for a change.

ECZEMA FOR 55 YEARS.

Suffered Torments from Birth—In Frightful Condition—Got No Help Until Cuticura Cured Him.

"I had an itching, tormenting eczema ever since I came into the world, and I am now a man 55 years old. I tried all kinds of medicines I heard of, but found no relief. I was truly in a frightful condition. At last I broke out all over with red and white boils, which kept growing until they were as big as walnuts, causing great pain and misery, but I kept from scratching as well as I could. I was so run down that I could hardly do my work. I used Cuticura Soap, Ointment, Resolvent, and Pills for about eight months, and I can truthfully say I am cured. Hale Bordwell, Tipton, Ia., Aug. 17, 1907."

"I cheerfully endorse the above testimonial. It is the truth. I know Mr. Bordwell and know the condition he was in. Nelson R. Burnett, Tipton, Ia."

IMMIGRATION FROM SOUTH EXPECTED

U. S. FARMERS ARE RECOGNIZING SPLENDID OPPORTUNITIES OFFERED BY WESTERN CANADA.

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 9, 1908.—Present indications are that the Canadian Northwest will draw an exceptionally heavy movement of new settlers from the United States this year. It should surpass the banner record for 1907. This is not only based on the fact that the Americans have come to realize generally that the Canadian Northwest offers splendid opportunities, but also because the railroads have awakened to the fact and are offering rates to the Canadian Northwest which are exceptionally favorable.

The lines which lead to St. Paul from the east and south are offering homeseekers' rates to the Canadian Northwest this year which are on a parity with those in existence to the southwest for a couple of seasons.

These rates can be obtained from any agent of the Canadian government, who will be pleased to give all information possible regarding those districts, which offer the greatest inducements to settlers. The weather throughout Western Canada has been remarkably good this year. A telegram from the winter wheat belt of Southern Alberta dated at Cardston, Alberta, January 29th, says:

"This winter up to January 25 was nothing short of a marvel, in fact, it was the finest anyone can remember for twenty-five years though there have been others nearly as good. The days were fine, sunny and warm with light frosts at night. Overcoats and gloves, etc., were discarded by most people in the day time. There was so little frost in the ground that post holes could be dug without any trouble after the first inch was broken through. Winter wheat remained fresh and green although there has been no snow since the September storm. If there is an early spring, winter wheat should gain a great start."

Amongst the reports of the yield of last year the following extracts are taken:

H. Howe, of Magrath, Alta, writing on November, 1907, says: "I have 70 acres in crop, 50 acres of wheat and seven acres of oats. My average yield of oats was 35 bushels to the acre, and of wheat 45 bushels. The value to me was $35 per acre."

J. F. Haycock, of Magrath, writes in November: "I had 65 acres in winter wheat, which went 60 bushels to the acre; oats averaged 80 bushels. I also had 12 tons of hay worth $10 per ton. I got 600 bushels of potatoes from three acres of land; I got eight tons per acre from five acres of sugar beet."

J. F. Bradshaw, of Magrath, had 1,030 acres of winter wheat last year which averaged 39½ bushels to the acre. The value of his farm products per acre was: Wheat, $31.60; oats, $11.20 and barley, $25.15.

Product of Tainted Money.

The big touring car had just whizzed by with a roar like a gigantic rocket, and Pat and Mike turned to watch it disappear in a cloud of dust.

"Thim chug wagons must cost a heap av cash," said Mike. "The rich is fairly burnin' money."

"An' be the smell av it," sniffed Pat, "it must be thot tainted money we do be hearin' so much aboot."

Infantile Politeness.

Tommy had been invited to dine at a learned professor's house, and his mother was anxious for his good behavior at table. She gave him elaborate instructions.

"Well, Tommy, how did you get on?" she asked on his return. "You are quite sure you didn't do anything impolite?"

"Well, no, ma—at least nothing to speak of."

The mother's anxiety was aroused. "Ah, then, there was something wrong? Now tell me all about it, Tommy."

"Oh, it wasn't much. You see, I was trying to cut my meat when it slipped off the plate on to the floor."

"Oh, my dear boy; what ever did you do?"

"I just said, sort of carelessly, 'That's always the way with tough meat,' and went on with my dinner!"

BRAIN POWER

Increased by Proper Feeding.

A lady writer who not only has done good literary work, but reared a family, found in Grape-Nuts the ideal food for brain work and to develop healthy children. She writes:—

"I am an enthusiastic proclaimer of Grape-Nuts as a regular diet. I formerly had no appetite in the morning and for 8 years while nursing my four children, had insufficient nourishment for them.

"Unable to eat breakfast I felt faint later, and would go to the pantry and eat cold chops, sausage, cookies, doughnuts or anything I happened to find. Being a writer, at times my head felt heavy and my brain asleep.

"When I read of Grape-Nuts I began eating it every morning, also gave it to the children, including my 10 months old baby, who soon grew as fat as a litle pig, good natured and contented.

"Within a week I had plenty of breast milk, and felt stronger within two weeks. I wrote evenings and feeling the need of sustained brain power, began eating a small saucer of Grape-Nuts with milk instead of my usual indigestible hot pudding, pie, or cake for dessert at night.

"Grape-Nuts did wonders for me and I learned to like it. I did not mind my housework or mother's cares, for I felt strong and full of 'go.' I grew plump, nerves strong, and when I wrote my brain was active and clear; indeed, the dull head pain never returned."

Congress.

Resume of the Week's Proceedings.

Thursday.

Washington, Feb. 20.—A speech by Senator Johnston of Alabama on the Aldrich bill and a statement by Senator Hale, chairman of the committee on naval affairs, concerning the proposed investigation of charges of defects in construction of battleships, were the chief subjects of interest before the senate yesterday.

The bill providing for the taking of thirteenth census occupied most of the time of the session of the house yesterday. Progress with it was slow because of numerous amendments offered.

Friday.

Washington, Feb. 21.—Because of the death in this city yesterday of Senator Asbury C. Latimer of South Carolina both branches of congress adjourned, the senate almost immediately after convening, and the house an hour afterward, upon receiving official notification of the senator's demise. In each chamber resolutions of regret were adopted and a committee appointed to accompany the body home.

Saturday.

Washington, Feb. 22.—Senator Perkins of California yesterday spoke in the senate in justification of expenditures for the upbuilding of the American navy and of the policy of sending the fleet into the Pacific ocean. The senate adopted the Tillman resolution authorizing the attorney general to prosecute the transportation companies of Oregon that have received public lands and have violated the terms of the grant.

The time of the house of representatives yesterday was devoted to the consideration of what is known as the District of Columbia street railway act—that is, the bill including extension of street car lines to the new union station.

Monday.

Washington, Feb. 25.—The unusual spectacle of the committee on rules being overruled by its chairman, the speaker, on the floor of the house of representatives, was witnessed in that body yesterday, much to the discomfiture of Mr. Dalzell, a member of the committee. Mr. Dalzell brought in a resolution providing for an investigation of peonage in the Southern states, but the speaker, on an objection by Mr. Mann (Ill.) held it was not privileged. Despite Mr. Dalzell's argument the speaker refused to alter his decision and the resolution was recommitted.

The army appropriation bill, carrying $85,007,566, was taken up. Ocean mail subsidy and currency legislation were both the subjects of speeches in the senate yesterday.

An hour was devoted to further consideration of the bill to revise the criminal code.

Tuesday.

Washington, Feb. 26.—Currency legislation was the chief topic before the senate yesterday. For nearly three hours Senator Robert L. Owen of Oklahoma spoke on the Aldrich bill, claiming that he had, through former Senator Jones of Arkansas in 1900, proposed legislation somewhat similar to the bill under consideration, but with the essential differences which he declared would have prevented the recent panic had it been enacted into law.

General debate on the army appropriation bill in the house of representatives yesterday again furnished opportunity for free expression of opinion in the issues of the day.

The seven hours allowed for general debate on the bill will expire to-day, when the measure will be read for amendment.

REPORT FILED IN HART CASE.

Referee Sends in Account of Disbarment Proceedings.

St. Paul, Feb. 27.—Gideon S. Ives, who was appointed referee to take the testimony in the disbarment proceedings brought against Francis B. Hart of Minneapolis, filed his report with the clerk of the supreme court yesterday. Accompanying the report is a brief of the attorneys for the prosecution, in which they answer the points made by Capt. Hart in his defense and close with a request for his disbarment. The special supreme court appointed to act in this case will meet on March 10 to hear the final arguments.

OMAHA WILL NOT CUT WAGES.

Arranges Schedule to Meet Requirements of New Law.

St. Paul, Feb. 27.—Practically all arrangements have been made by the Omaha road for compliance with the federal law governing working hours of operatives, which goes into effect March 4, according to a statement made yesterday by General Superintendent S. G. Strickland. There will be no decrease in wages whatsoever in connection with the change.

GET NO TRACE OF REV. WARD.

Clue to "Sky Pilot" Who Has Disappeared is Sought in Vain.

Walker, Minn., Feb. 26.—Rev. L. C. Ward, evangelist, who disappeared from Walker on the evening of Feb. 19, has not yet been found nor can any trace of his whereabouts be found. Searching parties are still out looking for him among the hills surrounding the village. Word has been received from all the lumber camps in the vicinity, and the evangelist has not been to any of the nearby camps.

Thirty Were Killed.

Berkeley, Cal., Feb. 23.—The latest reports from the scene of the terrible dynamite explosion at the Hercules powder plant in Pinole place the number of dead at thirty. Four of these were white men, the others being Chinese.

Robber Uses an Auto.

The General Demand

In supplying that demand with its excellent combination of Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna, the California Fig Syrup Co. proceeds along ethical lines and relies on the merits of the laxative for its remarkable success.

That is one of many reasons why Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna is given the preference by the Well-Informed. To get its beneficial effects always buy the genuine—manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., only, and for sale by all leading druggists. Price fifty cents per bottle.

MURDEROUS "RED" KILLED BY SHIPPY

Chicago Chief of Police Shoots Would-be Assassin—Is Attacked in Home.

CHIEF'S SON BADLY WOUNDED

Shippy and Coachman Also Injured; Anarchist Plot Threatens Other Officials.

Chicago, March 4.—Chief of Police George M. Shippy, his son Harry and his driver, James Foley, were wounded by an anarchist, who attempted to assassinate the police official in the hall of the latter's residence yesterday morning. The desperate struggle, in which Mrs. Shippy and her daughter joined, was terminated when the chief drew his own revolver and killed his assailant.

The anarchist was identified as Lazerus Averbuch, twenty-three years old, a Russian student who came to America three months ago from Austria, whither he fled two years ago from Kishinev to escape the persecution of the Jews in that city.

The attack is believed to have been the result of a widespread conspiracy to harm officials who have been active in suppressing manifestations of anarchy in this community.

Other Officials Threatened.

Other city officials are said to have been threatened and a police spy has recognized the corpse of the man who invaded Shippy's home as that of a person who regularly attended an anarchist meeting. He asserted that the man was chosen by lot to do away with not only the chief of police, but Mayor Busse as well. The ramifications of the plot are said to extend to other cities and to be closely connected with the killing of the Rev. Leo Heinrichs, a Roman Catholic priest, who was shot down at the altar of his church in Denver.

Chief Stabbed in Arm.

Harry Shippy is the most severely hurt of those injured in yesterday's affray. At a late hour he was said to have a very good chance of recovery. His father was stabbed in the arm, while Foley received a bullet in the wrist. Mrs. Shippy was kicked by the desperado, but her hurts are slight.

Following the attack squads of police were sent into the Italian and Ghetto districts of the city. Places known as headquarters of secret societies suspected of anarchistic tendencies were raided and before midnight a score or more of arrests had been made. State's Attorney Healy announced that the grand jury will be given an opportunity to investigate anarchistic organizations in an attempt to fasten responsibility for the attack upon its instigators. It was also reported that Mayor Busse intends to issue an order forbidding all street meetings.

Hands Chief a Letter.

That the attempt to kill Chief Shippy resulted in failure was due largely to the policeman's quickness in anticipating the purpose of his visitor's presence is apparent. When the man rang the doorbell the chief himself answered the call.

"As I opened the door," said Mr. Shippy later, describing the attack, "the man raised his hat, and I allowed him to step into the hallway. He handed me an envelope. I glanced at it and the thought struck me that the man was up to some wrong. He looked like an anarchist. I grabbed his arms and called to my wife, who was in another room. When she ran into the hallway I said: 'Mother, see if this man has a revolver.' She felt one of his pockets and said that he had.

"I tried to hold him with one hand and drew my revolver with the other, but he jerked away and fell against the door. I caught him again, and while we were struggling my son, who was upstairs, started to my aid.

Put Six Bullets in Red.

"He was only a few steps from the bottom of the stairs when the man freed one hand, drew his revolver and fired two shots at Harry. Then Foley, who had been summoned by my daughter, stepped into the hallway and the man shot him. The anarchist kicked my wife to one side, and by this time I had secured my own revolver and both Foley and I opened fire. At my first shot, which struck him in the head, he fell. I fired three more, one in his head and two in his body. Two of Foley's shots also struck the assassin."

Policemen from all sections of the city were at once put to work on the case. The police are firm in the belief that the attack on their chief was due to an anarchistic plot.

Both the chief and Mrs. Shippy assert that the former's life was saved by the bravery of their son.

SAYS HE IS NO ANARCHIST.

Father Heinrichs' Slayer Disdains Connection With Any Society.

Denver, March 4.—District Attorney George A. Stidger said yesterday that he used every means to secure from Giuseppe Alio a confession of the connection of others in the assassination of Father Leo Heinrichs. The prisoner, however, stands firm in his declaration that he is not an anarchist and is not a member of any society, and that no one was conected with him in the killing of Father Leo.

SUSPECTS ARE ROUNDED UP

Immigration Officials Ordered to Unite With Police in Effort to Drive "Reds" Out.

Chicago, March 5.—While city, state and federal authorities put plans on foot yesterday to stamp out anarchy in Chicago, the police department pursued with new vigor its search through the haunts of radicals in the Ghetto district for anarchists who might have a possible connection with the attempted assassination of Chief of Police Shippy Monday. The net results of police activity during the day and the evening was the rounding up of nine suspects. Three arrests, which the police considered important, were made in the afternoon. A man who gave his name as Harry Goldstein, and who is said to be an agent of the Edelstadt society, an anarchistic organization at 427 Union street, was taken into custody while distributing handbills of a rabid anarchistic nature.

Names of Suspects Withheld.

Two other suspects, whose names were withheld, were arrested and subjected to a rigid examination at the city hall. The others under arrest were held more because of their affiliation with anarchistic societies than from any expectation of connecting them with the attempted assassination of the police head.

The organized movement against anarchy by the department began with a conference at the home of Chief Shippy, which Mayor Busse and Assistant Chief of Police Schuettler took part. It resulted in a meeting being arranged for to-day, at which the mayor, the police officials and State's Attorney Healy will try to work out a plan of co-operation.

To Suppress Anarchy.

District Attorney Sims also met a number of city officials in the mayor's office, and the question of federal assistance in the rooting out of anarchy was taken up. It was considered on all sides that the efforts of the various branches of authority should be directed toward the suppressing of the propaganda of anarchy and of meetings where incendiary harangues are made. Mr. Sims, after the conference, declined to discuss the measures contemplated, but said that any steps that may be undertaken by the federal authorities will depend upon the procedure of the city and state officials.

Planned by Anarchists.

That Lazarus Averbuch, in attempting to assassinate Chief of Police Shippy, carried out a commission intrusted to him by a group of Chicago anarchists, was declared by Assistant Chief of Police Schuettler last night to have been proved beyond a doubt. The discovery was made just as the police were about to accept the theory that the young anarchist acted upon his own impulse and that the attempt was not the result of a conspiracy. The group of anarchists also plotted, according to information in the hands of the authorities, to assassinate Mayor Busse and Capt. P. D. O'Brien of the detective bureau. The principals in the plot have not yet been discovered.

Federal Co-operation.

Washington, March 5.—The secretary of commerce and labor yesterday issued a sweeping order to all commissioners of immigration and immigrant inspectors in charge, directing them to confer with the police in their respective jurisdiction with a view to securing the "co-operation of the police and detective forces in an effort to rid the country of alien anarchists and criminals falling within the law relating to deportation."

ARSON PLOT DISCOVERED.

Two Former Convicts Tell Chicago Police of Gigantic Plot.

Chicago, March 5. — Confessions made by two former convicts to Fire Attorney Hogan last night in the office of Chief of Detectives O'Brien revealed one of the biggest arson plots that have ever come to the notice of the Chicago police.

Joseph H. Mack, manager of a detective agency, is accused in the confession of being the person who furnished the funds for carrying on the work. Another man, well known to the police for his connection with hotels of disrepute, is said to be the chief conspirator. Mack, it is said, acted as his agent. William Dempsey, one of the men who have confessed the alleged conspiracy; Thomas Kennedy and Mack were arrested.

Fire Attorney Hogan alleges that the three prisoners made two attempts to destroy two buildings occupied by firms that manufacture rubber goods. The hotelkeeper is engaged in the same business and it was this competition, the police say, that is at the bottom of the arson plot.

Dempsey and Kennedy confessed having received about $500 from Mack during the last three months for wrecking the rubber factories.

160 CHILDREN ARE BURNED TO DEATH

Fire Wipes Out Suburban School at Cleveland in Less Than Half an Hour.

TOTS PERISH IN JAM AT DOOR

Panic-stricken Children Unable to Reach Lower Floors in Time to Escape Flames.

Cleveland, March 5.—Death in one of its most terrible forms claimed between 160 and 170 school children of the North Collinwood school, in the village of Collinwood, an eastern suburb, yesterday, when the school building, catching fire from a defective furnace in the basement, was gutted in the space of half an hour.

The building being inadequately protected by fire escapes, the children were unable to make their way to the lower floors in time to escape the flames as they shot up from the basement and cut off egress.

Die Within Reach of Safety.

Starting about 9:30 o'clock in the basement from the over-heated furnace, the fire gained tremendous headway before its presence was noted. The fire drill was inaugurated at once and those in the rooms on the lower floors quickly moved out of the building. But when the panic-stricken little ones in the upper room attempted to make their way to the stairway the jam of uncontrollable and fear-stricken children grew until but few were able to extricate themselves, and they perished almost within reach of safety.

Unable to Evade Flames.

Various and unconfirmed statements are made as to the cause of the fire and also that the doors of the building had been locked at the front entrance, while but one door of the rear entry was unfastened. The janitor, Fritz Herter, himself bereaved of three children, says the doors were open, according to custom. At any rate the congestion of fleeing children in the hallway below effectually barred the way, and the little ones went to their death totally unable to evade the flames.

Nearly all the children were killed in the mass at the first floor door, which finally was opened by men from the Lake Shore railway shops, who hurried to the scene.

Blocked by Wall of Flames.

A wall of flames had formed across it and most of the children already were dead by the time the doors were swung open. Approximately 300 children attended the school.

Miss Catherine Weller, one of the nine teachers in the school, lost her life in a vain effort to marshal her pupils and lead them to safety. She died in the crush at the rear door. Burning through the cross supports of the first floor, the flames passed upward until all three floors crashed into a smoldering pile in the basement.

Work of Horror.

The gruesome task of taking out the blackened torsos and bits of human remains was one of horror. Desolation unspeakable hangs over the vicinity of the school and the whole village of Collinwood. The school board met in special session at the temporary morgue late yesterday afternoon to discuss the calamity, while the coroner prepared to hold an inquest to determine the cause and place the responsibility for the fire.

BESIEGED NEGRO GIVES UP

Murderer Whisked Into Jail by Armed Deputies and Threatened Violence Prevented.

Clarksburg, W. Va., March 5.—With drawn rifles a company of deputy sheriffs surrounded Frank Johnson, a negro murderer in charge of Sheriff Flanagan, forced a way through a mob of 2,000 people who surrounded the county jail, at 5 o'clock last evening, and the prisoner was safely taken through the parlor of the sheriff's residence into the prison. So quickly was the prisoner hurried through the crowd that there was little opportunity for the violence that had been feared. Johnson surrendered to Sheriff Flanagan in the middle of the afternoon by voluntarily coming out of the log barn on the Yates farm on Sycamore creek, nine miles from here, and giving himself up to the big posse that had surrounded the place and held the negro in siege since Tuesday night, exchanging many shots with him. The three members of the posse who were shot during attacks on the barn early in the day will recover. Johnson yelled defiantly to the posse all night and all day that he would not surrender and that he would die first, but when the sheriff and his deputies began making preparations to blow the barn to pieces with dynamite the negro gave himself up. The Harrison county jail is the strongest in the state, and it is not thought that attempts will be made to storm it.

Commissioner Staples Refutes Charges Against Grain Inspection System.

FARMER COMES TO DEFENSE

Works Satisfactorily to Producer; McCumber Criticises Minnesota Inspection.

Washington, March 5.—A sturdy defense of the Minnesota grain inspection and grading system, and a complete refutation of all charges brought against it, was presented to the committee on interstate commerce of the house yesterday by C. F. Staples of the state railroad and warehouse commission.

Mr. Staples came here to appear before the committee on account of the charges that have been made against the Minnesota inspection by the North Dakota senators and representatives, who have charged that the grain from their state which passes through Minnesota to the mills of Minnesota or terminals at Duluth does not receive proper grading and is compelled to be sold on grades lower than it is believed by them the grain shows on the gradings which it receives on leaving the terminal elevators.

Satisfactory to Producer.

R. J. Hall of Morris, Minn., a farmer, also appeared before the committee as a representative of farmers' associations in the state, to testify to the belief entertained by the farmers of Minnesota that the grain inspection and grading system in operation under the laws of the state work satisfactorily to the producer.

The morning was occupied before the committee by Senator McCumber of North Dakota, who originated the proposed legislation on this subject in the senate and whose bill is now before the interstate commerce committee of the house, as introduced by Mr. Gronna of that state.

McCumber Scores System.

Senator McCumber was severe in his criticism of the Minnesota inspection, but he based his criticism mainly upon the investigation by the bankers' association of his state, and upon the proceedings of 1899, when the whole matter was considered by the legislature of Minnesota and modifications made that were designed to strengthen the law.

Senator McCumber was insistent in the assertion that a federal system of grades and inspection not only would strengthen the standing of American grain in foreign markets but would tend to satisfy the sellers and buyers that the inspection and grading made under federal authority at the principal terminal points was correct and efficient.

Chicago, March 5.—Continuing their efforts to unravel the supposed plot to assassinate city officials which led to the attack upon George M. Shippy, chief of police, Monday morning, the local police yesterday arrested two more men who are alleged to be anarchists. The prisoners, Charles Yaniatis and William Stadlweiser, were taken in different parts of the city, and each denied knowledge of the plans of Lazarus Averbuch to kill Shippy.

Harry Shippy, son of the police official, and who was badly wounded while assisting his father to overcome the anarchist, was declared by physicians at the Augustana hospital to have good chances for ultimate recovery.

White Hand Helps.

The arrest of Yaniatis was made on information given to Assistant Chief of Police Schuettler by investigators of the White Hand society, an organization formed to combat the activity of the Black Hand. A complete list of suspected Italian anarchists now resident in the city has been furnished by the society.

Stadlweiser was arrested because he was unable to give a policeman a satisfactory account of himself. When taken to the police station a revolver was found in his possession and he was held on a charge of carrying concealed weapons while efforts are being made to trace his supposed connection with anarchistic societies.

To Suppress Emma Goldman.

State and city officials were again in conference at Mayor Busse's office yesterday. Although no announcements were given out as to the subjects to be discussed, it is known that the announced intention of Emma Goldman to speak at an anarchists' meeting in West Taylor street Friday night was one of the matters considered. IMPORTANT

Notice to Subscribers

Under a recent ruling of the post office department at Washington newspapers are required to practically collect their subscription price in advance. The new order became effective Jan. 1, 1908, and a short time is given publishers in which to get their subscription accounts in shape. Weekly papers, whose subscribers are delinquent for more than a year, will be barred, from second class postage privileges, and if mailed must be stamped. The placing of stamps on each paper is of course out of the question, and the order simply means that a publisher must either collect for his paper or cut the delinquent subscriber off his list. The newspaper publisher has no choice in the matter. The SPECTATOR is not afraid to trust its subscribers and our past experience in the newspaper business has convinced us that our subscribers are honest and there are rare exceptions indeed, where they refuse to pay for their paper, but the publisher is up against a proposition where we are obliged to collect all arrearages within a very short time or cut the delinquent subscribers off our list, and place the back subscription accounts in the hands of a collector. We are mailing statements to those in arrears and we trust if the reader of this article knows himself to be in arrears in his subscription account he will call at the office and effect a settlement. We do not want to cut you off our list.

One more week for Mr. Ground Hog to sleep and then we may look for spring.

Taft has the call as far as Minnesota is concerned and it is all over except choosing the delegates.

There will be no tariff revision this year and all on account of the speaker. If that Cannon lived up here we would "fire" him.

Each week makes it more certain that Taft will be nominated by the republicans and Bryan by the democrats. What a snap for the big fellow.

Carlson Bros., the noted dairymen of Erskine claimed to have made each of their cows produce $108.98 last year. Of this amount $66.36 was for cream sold and the balance for young stock.

At the caucus tonight and at the election next Tuesday, nominate and elect only men who have interests in the village to work for and you will have officers who will do the best they can.

We sometimes wonder if newspaper men generally appreciate the old subscriber at his true value. We mean the old standby who takes the home paper year after year, through evil as well as through good report, and pays his subscription regularly just the same as he would any other honest debt. As a general thing the old subscriber is patient and slow to wrath. He will overlook many little things which the man who borrows his readings would not stand for a minute.—Lansing (Ia.) Mirror.

The financial statement of the village which we publish in full this week shows that it has cost us $4,790.64, of which $2,000 was for bonds paid, leaving $2790.64 as the cost of running the village for the past year. Of this amount $1,000 was received from saloon licenses, leaving the balance of about $800 to be raised by direct taxes. While we do not wish to accuse the present council of extravagance we still think that this sum should be materially reduced this coming year. The heaviest items of expense have been road work and sidewalk repairing and the new council should try the coming year to reduce this expense.

The Election

The village election next Tuesday gives promise of being a fairly lively affair. From present indications it is not probable that there will be a lack of candidates. It is rumored that those who are opposed to granting saloon licenses will put a complete ticket in the field. Another ticket will be nominated at the caucus tonight. We are informed that there are at present four candidates for village clerk. The real heavy work will be done after the caucus tonight and before Tuesday morning.

Always Wanting What We're Not

We are a restless people. Every thin woman longs to be fat. Every fat woman wants to grow thin. Every town man longs for the time when he can retire to the quiet of the country and every farmer hopes to some day quit work and move to town. For that restless, tired feeling try a good malt tonic such as golden grain belt beer. Its life giving, health sustaining qualities will put health and strength into your system. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

School Notes.

(Left out last week on account of the lack of time in which to set them and condensed this week on account of the lack of space.)

The eighth grade is now reading "The Vicar of Wakefield".

Mrs. Austin, substituted for Miss Gigstad Monday forenoon.

Dr. Swanson talked very interestingly and instructively to the grammar room and high school pupils Friday afternoon. He spoke about hygienic precautions against the contracting of diseases and also told some interesting things about the behavior of disease germs in the blood. We are much indebted to him for his trouble.

The physical geography class has just finished the text book and will now study Red Lake county, emphasizing its physical features.

There is nothing so true that the damps of error have not warped it.—Tupper.

SAVED BY QUICK WIT.

The Escape of Sir Archibald Douglas at Poitiers.

In the battle of Poitiers (1356) a number of Scottish soldiers fought on the side of the French, and several of them were taken prisoners by the English. Among them was Sir Archibald Douglas, half brother of Lord William Douglas. Being dressed in a suit of splendid armor, the victors thought they had captured—as indeed they had—some great nobleman. Several of the English were about to strip off his armor when Sir William Ramsay of Colluthie, who was also a prisoner happening to catch Sir Archibald's eye, gave him a meaning look. Pretending to be very angry, he cried out: "You rascal, how is it that you are wearing your master's armor? Come here and pull off my boots!" Douglas, seemingly thoroughly cowed, went humbly forward and drew off a boot, with which Sir William began to beat him. The English onlookers at once interfered on Douglas' behalf, saying that he was a person of great rank and a lord. "What!" shouted Ramsay, shaking with laughter. "He a lord? Why, he is a base knave and, I suppose, has slain his master. Go, you villain, and search the field for the body of my cousin, your master, and when you have found it let me know, that I may give it decent burial." All this was acted so naturally that the English allowed Ramsay to ransom the pretended manservant for 40 shillings. The money having been paid, Sir William gave Douglas another thrashing and then bade him begone. Sir Archibald lost no time in effecting his escape, which he owed solely to the ingenuity of his friend.

Red Lake Falls Gazette—Julius J. Mr. Schroeder was a bright and learned man, but having lost his wife about a year ago and with ten small children to support worried him considerable and it is supposed lost his reason. The aid society canvassed and obtained a number of subscribers for the Journal and they furnished the entertainment as a recompense. The entertainment was hardly up to the standard as two of the principal members of the troupe left just before coming here and the performance was curtailed. Some parts of the entertainment were very good and gave general satisfaction, but other numbers were not particularly good. The Ladies' Aid did fairly well however as something over $30 was cleared.

After suffering for seven years, this woman was restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Read her letter.

Mrs. Sallie French, of Paucaunla, Ind. Ter., writes to Mrs. Pinkham: "I had female troubles for seven years—was all run-down, and so nervous I could not do anything. The doctors treated me for different troubles but did me no good. While in this condition I wrote to Mrs. Pinkham for advice and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I am now strong and well."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

Don't hesitate to write to Mrs. Pinkham if there is anything about your sickness you do not understand. She will treat your letter in confidence and advise you free. No woman ever regretted writing her, and because of her vast experience she has helped thousands. Address, Lynn, Mass.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Age and Inebriety.

Rt. Rev. Edward King, bishop of Lincoln, who is now nearly eighty, was once taking an airing at the seaside when he found some difficulty in rising from his low chair. Seeing his predicament, a young fisher girl hastened to his assistance and helped his lordship to his feet. Dr. King was profuse in his thanks, but the girl, who had no idea of his identity, begged him not to mention it. "That's all right, sir," said she with a laugh. "I'm used to it. I've often had to take father home when he's been a good deal drunker than you!"

Quite So.

"I've just been reading about Montaigne."

"What of him?"

"Well," declared the saturnine jokesmith, "he had the right idea for running a humorous column."

EXCELLENT FOR COLDS.

Mix two ounces of glycerine with half pint of good whiskey and add one-half ounce of Concentrated Oil of Pine. The bottle is to be well shaken each time and used in doses of a teaspoonful to a tablespoonful every four hours. The true Concentrated Oil of Pine comes put up for medicinal uses only in half ounce vials sealed in air-tight cases and is a product of the laboratories of the Globe Pharmaceutical Co., Dayton, O. The ingredients all can be gotten at any drug store.

"Sir, may I speak to you?"

"Go ahead."

"Can you spare me a small hand-out?"

"The very idea of an able-bodied man asking for a hand-out! Why don't you go to work and manage somebody's boom?"

Hog Cholera.

The greatest drawback to the hog industry which breeders in this country have to contend with is what is known as "hog cholera" and "swine plague."

Hog cholera is a highly contagious disease and unless checked is liable to carry off a great number of hogs in a very short time.

Mr. A. P. Williams, of Burnetts Creek, Ind., tells of an experience which he had with some hogs that had the cholera. "Five years ago," says Mr. Williams, "I was in the employ of Mr. J. D. Richardson, Lafayette, Ind., as his barn foreman. Some fine hogs that I was feeding took the cholera. I gave them Sloan's Liniment and did not lose a hog. Some were so bad they would not drink sweet milk and I was compelled to drench them. I have tried it at every opportunity since and always find it O. K."

Write for Dr. Sloan's free book on the treatment of Horses, Cattle, Hogs, and Poultry. Address: Dr. Earl S. Sloan, 615 Albany Street, Boston, Mass.

Why They Roared.

The Ormond beach was gay.

"What are the wild waves saying?" inquired the girl.

"From their sullen roar," he answered, "it is probable that they are merely reiterating the general kick against the high prices that prevail here."

CURED HER CHILDREN.

Girls Suffered with Itching Eczema—Baby Had a Tender Skin, Too—Relied on Cuticura Remedies.

"Some years ago my three little girls had a very bad form of eczema. Itching eruptions formed on the backs of their heads which were simply covered. I tried almost everything, but failed. Then my mother recommended the Cuticura Remedies. I washed my children's heads with Cuticura Soap and then applied the wonderful ointment, Cuticura. I did this four or five times and I can say that they have been entirely cured. I have another baby who is so plump that the folds of skin on his neck were broken and even bled. I used Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment and the next morning the trouble had disappeared. Mme. Napoleon Duceppe, 41 Duluth St., Montreal, Que., May 21, 1907."

Probably nothing makes a girl so angry as the failure of some other girl to notice her new engagement ring.

Drainage operations in Northern Minnesota will be started considerably earlier this year than ever before, according to big contractors who have many projects under way in that section of the state. The reason for this is that the winter has been so mild that the frost is not nearly so deep this year as it generally is and that it will have opened up by May 15.

One of the biggest projects for drainage in the state is the deepening of the Roseau river, which will be finished this summer as far as it can be done on the American side. The big floating dredge which was used for the last two years in deepening the upper portion of the river will be used again and another dredge just as big also will be put in operation. These two dredges will be the two largest in the state.

Dredges will also be used on several of the judicial ditches and county ditches in Polk, Norman, Red Lake, Roseau, Marshall, Beltrami, Clearwater and Kittson counties.

HER GOOD FORTUNE.

After Years Spent in Vain Effort.

Mrs. Mary E. H. Rouse, of Cambridge, N. Y., says: "Five years ago I had a bad fall and it affected my kidneys. Severe pains in my back and hips became constant, and sharp twinges followed any exertion. The kidney secretions were badly discolored. I lost flesh and grew too weak to work. Though constantly using medicine I despaired of being cured until I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills. Then relief came quickly, and in a short time I was completely cured. I am now in excellent health."

RACE WAR BREAKS OUT IN KENTUCKY

Night Riders Turn Against Negroes, Shooting and Beating Colored Workers.

RAID FATAL TO FOUR PERSONS

Young Man Found Dying in the Road; Warehouse Contents Burned at Brooksville.

Paducah, Ky., March 12.—One hundred masked night riders rode into Birmingham, Marshall county, late last night, shot six negroes and whipped five others. The riders took possession of the town and shot into negro cabins. In one of these, John Scruggs, his wife and three children and a granddaughter were struck by bullets.

Scruggs' two-year-old daughter was killed and the father and two other children were fatally wounded.

The riders then took five other negroes to the banks of the Tennessee, where they whipped them. After warning them to leave the place, the masked men rode away. The raid followed a warning of two weeks ago to all negroes to leave Birmingham.

Young Man Found Dying.

Clarksville, Tenn., March 12.—Near Woodford, about fifteen miles from this city, Brown Bennett, a young man, the son of an association tobacco raiser, was found in the public road in a dying condition with a bullet hole through his head. Near Bennett were two dead horses and three empty shotguns.

It is believed that young Bennett was a night rider and was shot down by parties whom he and his gang had attacked, and that his comrades, in their haste to get away, had left him dying on the scene of the fight.

Burn 15,000 Pounds of Tobacco.

Brooksville, Ky., March 12.—Fifty or more night riders came into town early yesterday in buggies and on horseback, and before they left 15,000 pounds of tobacco belonging to Robert Stanton, one of the wealthiest planters in this section, had been burned. The men were heavily armed with shotguns and revolvers. A number of the men went to the local exchange of the Bracken County Telephone company and kept guard over the operator, Miss Holton, so that no word could be sent for assistance.

MADMAN SEEKS HAAKON'S LIFE.

Crazy Swede Uses Palace of Norwegian King as Target.

Christiania, March 12.—Johannes Gren, a Swede, apparently insane, fusilladed the royal castle here with a repeating rifle at noon yesterday. He fired altogether a dozen bullets, several of which crashed through the windows and embedded themselves in the interior walls of the castle.

The man was promptly seized by the police and disarmed. At the police station he declared that it was his intention to kill King Haakon. He still had forty or fifty cartridges in his pockets.

King Haakon and Queen Maud were not in the castle at the time of the shooting, having recently moved to the royal residence at Voxenkollern.

None of the palace officials or servants was injured.

The name of the Swede is Gren. He has lived here for several years and followed the trade of a blacksmith. His grievance appears to be that King Haakon received too large a salary from the public funds, and to the police he declared that the king had no right to be in this country. It is said that Gren spent several years in an asylum in Denmark.

CORDIAL TO KING ALFONSO.

Spanish Monarch Given Warm Welcome at Barcelona.

Barcelona, March 12.—The first day of King Alfonso's visit to Barcelona was unmarred by a single regrettable incident. True to their promise, the Republicans and Separatists not only refrained from any hostile manifestations, but all classes among the people apparently joined in acclaiming the sovereign.

The king's day was one of remarkable activity. There was an imposing display of troops and police throughout the city, which, while testifying to the nervousness of the authorities, seemed to be out of place amid the numerous friendly demonstrations of the multitude. The king was greatly pleased at his enthusiastic reception, which he believes will have a marked effect in winning over the affections of the Catalonians.

Play Is Called Immoral.

Newark, N. J., March 12.—At the close of the close of the performance of "A Millionaire's Revenge" at the Columbia theater here last night, the police arrested George W. Jacobs, the manager of the theater; John T. Pearsall, manager of the Mittenthal Bros. Amusement company; Harold Vosburgh, Guy Rhea and Louis C. Miller, members of the company. They are charged with producing an immoral play, which was founded on the Thaw tragedy.

DEFECTS IN BIG BATTLESHIPS

Naval Officers Tell Senate Committee What Is Matter With Naval Construction.

Washington, March 12.—That there are serious defects in the construction of American battleships was charged yesterday by Capt. C. McR. Winslow, assistant chief of the bureau of navigation of the navy department, and Commander A. L. Key, former naval aid to President Roosevelt. The former officer said the ships under Admiral Evans were all over draft when they left Hampton Roads. He defended Admiral Rojestvensky for taking the Russian ships into battle with the Japanese with full bunkers of coal, saying that the Russian commander could not have done otherwise, for he did not know how far he would be compelled to steam. Commander Key attempted to direct the form of his own testimony and incurred the displeasure of the committee on that account. He criticised the armor belt and the gun decks as being too low and the ammunition hoists unsafe. He attempted to dispute the testimony of other officers, especially Chief Constructor Capps, but was not permitted to do so. Finally the committee held an executive session, at which it was decided that Key should be heard today, but that his criticism should be confined to ships and not directed against officers.

ALIA TRIAL NEARS ITS END.

Prosecution in Case of Denver Priest's Assassin Nearly Fnished.

Denver, March 12.—The prosecution in the case of Giuseppe Alia, charged with the murder of Father Leo Heinrichs in St. Elizabeth's church Feb. 23, nearly completed the presentation of its evidence yesterday, and the defendant's fate will rest in the hands of the jury by to-night.

The developments showed that there were only two witnesses to the actual killing, and, although there were seven or more people in the church at the time none of them saw the shot fired.

Joseph Hines, aged nine, altar boy at St. Elizabeth's church, told of the actual shooting. He said that Father Leo handed the accused man the sacred wafer during holy communion and that Alia spat out the wafer, and drawing a pistol with his left hand fired at the priest. As Father Leo staggered back Alia rushed down the aisle waving his pistol.

NEGRO STUDENTS IN FIGHT.

Razors and Revolvers Are Used in Southern College.

Augusta, Ga., March 12.—At Walker Baptist institute, a negro college named for Rev. C. T. Walker, a negro minister who frequently preaches to John D. Rockefeller, more than a dozen students and visitors were more or less injured in a free fight which followed a moving picture entertainment yesterday. As the audience was leaving the hall an argument arose between two negroes and in an instant a fight was started, being made lively by razors, bricks and revolvers. Seventy-five shots were fired and knives were freely used. The school authorities have expelled several students and are investigating further.

SCHMITZ GOES FREE.

Case Must Be Sumbitted to Another Grand Jury, Says the Judge.

San Francisco, March 12.—Eugene Schmitz, former mayor of San Francisco, convicted of extortion, will, unless some unforeseen event occurs, be set at liberty to-day, but will remain under bonds to answer charges of bribery in connection with public service corporations. In the superior court Judge Frank H. Dunne made an order dismissing Schmitz from custody, but directed that the case against the former mayor be submitted to another grand jury.

JAP "SPY" CHEWS FINGERS.

Nevada Draftsman Says He Resented Offer of Assistant "Spyship."

Ely, Nev., March 12.—A Japanese was arrested at Riepeton last night after a hard struggle, in which he almost chewed off two fingers of a man named Clinton. Clinton, who is a draftsman, was approached by the Japanese, who asked him if he would go with him to San Francisco to get drawings of the fortifications there. Clinton indignantly refused, he says, and held onto the Japanese until officers arrived.

DOUBLE TRAGEDY AT GIRLS' SCHOOL

Former Associate of Principal Shoots Head of School, Then Commits Suicide.

ESCAPED FROM SANATORIUM

Miss Weed Breaks Down From Overwork, and in Mad Fit Kills Friend and Ends Life.

Boston, Mass., March 12.—Suffering from melancholia, due to overwork, Miss Sarah Chamberlin Weed of Philadelphia shot and killed Miss Elizabeth Bailey Hardee of East Savannah, Ga., and then committed suicide at the Laurens school, a fashionable boarding school for girls in the Fenway district, yesterday. The bodies of the two women were found in bed by Mrs. Page, the matron of the school. The Laurens school was established last fall by Miss Hardee and Miss Weed. On Oct. 1, the day the school opened, Miss Weed broke down as a result of overwork and was committed to a sanatorium in Newton to be treated for nervous prostration.

Awakened by Matron.

Tuesday night Miss Weed escaped from the sanatorium and made her way to the school. She appeared to be badly deranged mentally. A fruitless attempt was made to communicate with the authorities of the sanatorium, and at length Miss Hardee succeeded in getting Miss Weed to go to bed in Miss Hardee's chamber on the third floor of the school building. Miss Hardee retired with Miss Weed. Both women were awakened by Mrs. Page about 6 a. m. and notified that they must get up if they were to catch the 7:35 train, on which Miss Weed was to be taken back to West Newton. Mrs. Page then left them, and a few moments later the shooting occurred. Mrs. Page thinks the mention of returning to the sanatorium must have excited and angered Miss Weed and induced the shooting.

From the nature of the wounds, Medical Examiner Stedman decided that Miss Weed had committed suicide by shooting herself through the right temple, after having shot Miss Hardee through the base of the brain.

DYNAMITE STORE BLOWS UP.

Shock Shakes Earth for Miles Around Buford, Wyo.

Cheyenne, Wyo, March 12.—A carload of dynamite exploded at Buford, twenty-eight miles west of Cheyenne, last night. The dynamite had been stored in abandoned barracks, to be used in the gravel pits of the Union Pacific road. The building caught fire and caused the dynamite to explode fifteen minutes later. The terrific explosion shook the earth for miles around. No one was hurt. Telegraph poles and wires were torn down and communication west practically suspended for a time.

Salt Lake, March 12.—Mrs. Carl Gunkle, wife of a restaurant keeper of Bingham, Utah, laced a new pair of corsets so tightly that she crushed her heart, causing the blood to shoot to the head and fell to the floor in a swoon.

Her husband summoned a physician, but Mrs. Gunkle was dead before the doctor arrived. He said that she had caused cardiac paralysis by the tight lacing.

GOV. JOHNSON IS FORMALLY IN RACE

Democratic Committee Adopts Resolution Indorsing Him for President.

ST. PAUL GETS CONVENTION

Delegates to National Convention Will Be Named on May 14—Bryan Men Organize.

St. Paul, March 8.—The Democratic state committee of Minnesota yesterday afternoon adopted a resolution indorsing Gov. John A. Johnson of Minnesota for the Democratic presidential nomination.

As the meeting of the committee was presided over by Frank A. Day, private secretary to the governor, and who voted for the Johnson resolution on every test and on the final ballot, the action of the committee is held by political leaders as placing the governor formally in the race for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Forced Two Test Votes.

The Johnson resolution was carried by a vote of 68 to 23, after the Bryan adherents had forced two test votes, on both of which they were defeated. The Bryan men insisted on a roll call on every vote and gave notice in their speeches on the original resolution that they would not be bound by the action of the state committee, but would make a fight for a delegation from Minnesota instructed for the nomination of Mr. Bryan. Moreover, a meeting of Bryan adherents, held at the Ryan hotel immediately after the adjournment of the state committee, formed a Bryan organization which proposes to carry the contest for a Bryan delegation into every precinct of the state.

Will Meet in St. Paul.

The state committee, besides adopting the Johnson resolution, voted that the state convention to elect delegates to the national vonvention should be held in St. Paul on May 14. The matter of calling a convention to nominate state officers was left to a committee of five to be appointed by State Chairman Frank A. Day.

The meeting of the committee yesterday was the most largely attended in the history of the Democratic party in Minnesota. Of the 111 members, 92 were present or were represented by proxies.

Bryan Men Organize.

The state committee adjourned shortly after 4 o'clock and soon thereafter the Bryan men assembled at the Ryan hotel and organized the Bryan Volunteers of Minnesota.

The meeting was called to order by T. T. Hudson of Duluth, Democratic national committeeman from Minnesota. Herbert Sesler of Duluth was elected president of the organization. An executive committee composed of one member from each congressional district in the state was appointed, as follows:

First district, H. L. Buck; Second district, T. J. Knox; Third district, James Manahan; Fourth, J. W. Craven; Fifth, S. A. Stockwell; Sixth, C. O'Brien; Seventh, Samuel Odell; Eighth, T. J. McKeon; Ninth, W. E. Rock.

ALBERT L. COLE PASSES AWAY.

Republican Nominee for Governor in 1906 Dies in Texas.

St. Paul, March 8.—Albert L. Cole, Republican nominee for governor of Minnesota in 1906, and a well known citizen of Minnesota for twenty-five years, died late Thursday at San Benite, Tex., of acute Bright's disease.

Mr. Cole was handicapped by ill health throughout his campaign and collapsed at its conclusion. He went to Florida and elsewhere in search of health, finally returning to Fergus Falls. He disposed of all his interests except his store at Pequot. After giving up active business he went to Texas last November and invested in real estate. He had planned to spend his winters in Texas and to return to Minnesota for the summers.

Dr. A. B. Cole, a brother, has been with Mr. Cole almost continuously since the campaign and accompanied him on his return to Texas. Mr. Cole's condition was not considered dangerous and the idea that he was at the point of death was not entertained.

ELECTIONS IN GOPHER TOWNS

Prohibitionists Carry Eighteen Towns, While Twenty Vote License.

St. Paul, March 12.—Town and village elections were held throughout Minnesota yesterday, the contests for the most part turning on local issues. In many places the question of license or local prohibition was submitted to the voters. Returns received up to a late hourt last night show that the prohibitionists were victorious in eighteen towns and villages and the license people in twenty. The village of Haska, in Brown county, in which there are five breweries, was carried by the prohibitionists.

Trouble was feared at Cass Lake and it had been charged by supporters of the citizens' ticket that non-residents would attempt to vote. As a precaution Gov. Johnson sent Assistant Attorney General Weeks to the town and also instructed the sheriff to preserve order. Two men were arrested on a charge of attempting to vote illegally and there was no further trouble.

The following towns voted for license: St. Hilaire, McIntosh, Menter, Uten, Climax, Karlstad, Lancaster, Fosston, Halsted, Hallock, Stephen, Roseau, Spring Valley Eyota, Madelia, Slayton, Garfield, Aitkin, Bird Island and Paynesville.

ORCHARD PLEADS GUILTY.

Tells Judge He Has Considered Matter Fully and Made Up His Mind.

Judge Wood will sentence Orchard on March 18.

Orchard pleaded guilty to having killed Former Governor Steunenberg. Judge Wood questioned Orchard as to whether he fully understood the status of the case. Perfectly calm, Orchard answered that he had gone over the matter thoroughly with his attorney and had made up his mind definitely. Judge Wood allowed the plea to be changed and set a date for sentence.

HART AGAIN HITS AT SUPREME COURT

Minneapolis Attorney Continues Defiant and Pleads Truth in His Defense.

DISBAR ME, HE SAYS TO COURT

St. Paul, March 12.—Strenuously insisting upon the truth of his charges against the supreme court of the state and asserting his right as a citizen of the state to make such charges, Francis B. Hart of Minneapolis yesterday presented his own answer to the petition for his disbarment. The proceedings were before the special supreme court appointed by Gov. Johnson to try the case.

Without retracting any of his statements, he invited the court to disbar him if it felt that such is its duty.

Prefers Disbarment.

"I would rather be disbarred," he said, "than to practice before a court that for some reason will not regard the established law as its authority. Disbarment would be preferable rather than, at my age, and with my pretended experience, I should be allowed to continue inveigling people into my office to give them advice when the action that I advise is to be subjected to such treatment as I have received at the hands of the supreme court of Minnesota. In any event, I am through practicing before the supreme court of Minnesota until conditions are changed."

Capt. Hart reviewed the decision of the supreme court in the cases which he cited in the letters upon which the disbarment proceedings are based and quoted other authorities in support of the position he had taken. He insisted that as a citizen he had the right to criticise the court.

Criticised Court's Rulings.

P. J. McLaughlin made the principal argument for the prosecution.

The proceedings against Capt. Hart were based on a letter sent Chief Justice Start on Dec. 7 last. A copy was also sent to Gov. Johnson together with another letter, in which he suggested to the governor that impeachment proceedings be instituted against the court. Copies of the letter were also sent to the press, and it was to this that the prosecution strongly objected. In the letter Capt. Hart cited the court's decision in four cases and charged that in each case the decision of the court was contrary to the well established law as laid down in former decisions. The court has taken the case under consideration.

FIGHT IN CELL IS FATAL.

Men Over Fifty Years Old Are Allowed Struggle in Drunken Fury.

Des Moines, March 12.—His head beaten, his skull crushed and his body badly cut, Mike Hartney died at Mercy hospital yesterday from the effects of a midnight fight with Tom Cooney in the "bum" cell of the city jail ten days ago.

There was an old grudge between the two men, and when both intoxicated men were thrown into the same cell they quarreled and fought. Cooney struck Hartney and knocked him down, the latter's head striking the cement floor. Cooney is now held by the police charged with murder.

Both men were over fifty years old Cooney claims that he was attacked and fought only in self-defense.

There is said to have been no interference in the fight until after Hartney was knocked unconscious.

WHAT WINTER WHEAT IS DOING FOR SOUTHERN ALBERTA.

Splendid Crops on the Former Ranching Plains of Canadian West.

That portion of the country in Western Canada formerly recognized as ranching country has developed into one of the best winter wheat districts in the continent. Yields are quoted running from 30 to 60 bushels to the acre, and giving a return to the farmer of from $25 to $50 per acre. These lands are now selling at from $12 to $20 per acre, and pay well at that figure. H. Howes of Magrath, Alberta, Western Canada, had 50 acres of land in wheat, which averaged 45 bushels to the acre; his yield of oats was 35 bushels. The value to him per acre of wheat was $35.00. J. F. Haycock of the same place, says: "I had 65 acres of wheat, 35 acres of oats and four acres of barley. My average yield of oats to the acre was 80 bushels; wheat—winter—60 bushels and red fyfe, 33 bushels, and barley, 50 bushels. The value to me per acre was, wheat, $28.00; oats, $32.00, and barley, $24.00." J. F. Bradshaw of Magrath, had 1,030 acres of wheat in crop that averaged 39½ bushels to the acre, his oats, 32 bushels; barley, 53 bushels. He threshed 31,000 bushels of wheat from 540 acres. He also had 250 tons of sugar beets from 25 acres worth $5.62½ per ton. W. S. Sherod, of Lethbridge, says: "I came to Lethbridge from Souris, North Dakota, in April, 1907, having purchased 900 acres of land in this district last fall. I had 128 acres of Alberta Red winter wheat which was put in on breaking in the fall of 1906, which yielded 41½ bushels to the acre, for which I received 87½ cents per bushel, which paid me $36.30 per acre. I had 190 acres "stubbled in" that is disced in on the stubble, which yielded 22 bushels to the acre at 87½ cents per bushel, which paid me $19.25 to the acre. I also had 350 acres of strictly volunteer crop, which it was intended to prepare in the summer; but when it was seen that it was a good looking crop, it was allowed to go. From this we threshed 15 bushels to the acre, which paid us at the rate of 87½ cents per bushel or $13.12 per acre. Our total crop yielded us 14,742 bushels of first-class wheat. Taking it as a whole, I consider that I had a first-class crop all through; and, taking into consideration the fact of part of the crop having been "stubbled in," and part strictly volunteer (which was never touched at all until the binder was put into it), I consider I had a heavy crop. I might say that I was in North Dakota five years, and never grew as heavy a crop during that time. This is the 25th day of November, and my teams are still ploughing, and, from the appearance of the weather, will be for some time yet." R. W. Bradshaw of Magrath, says: "I had this year 400 acres in crop, viz.: 200 acres of wheat and 200 acres in oats. My average yield of oats to the acre was 50 bushels, and wheat, 22½ bushels. The value to me per acre for wheat was $19.00; and oats, $17.00. The highest price obtained by me this year or offered me for my grain was for wheat 82 cents per bushel, and $1.05 per hundred for oats. I also had 100 tons of hay worth $12.00 per ton, and will say my wheat was all volunteer this year. Lots of wheat is averaging from 50 to 60 bushels per acre on summer fallow and on new breaking, when the breaking was done early in the spring. Writing from Spring Coulee, Alberta, W. L. Thompson says: "I had this year 3,000 acres in crop, viz.: 2,000 acres of wheat and 1,000 acres of oats. My average yield of oats to the acre was 30 bushels and of wheat 35 bushels. The value to me per acre for wheat was $27.00 and for oats $15.00."

(Information regarding the districts mentioned, best way to reach them, low rates, certificates, etc., can be secured from any agent of the Canadian government, whose advertisement appears elsewhere.—Ed.)

Very Kind.

The young husband looked up, a little dubiously, from the household accounts.

"By the way," he asked, "how are you getting on, love, with the new grocer?"

"Oh, delightfully," the bride replied. "He is the most generous man! Do you know, Harold, whenever I order a six-pound turkey, he sends one weighing eleven or twelve pounds at least?"

WHISKEY FOR RHEUMATISM.

The increased use of whiskey for rheumatism is causing considerable discussion among the medical fraternity. It is an almost infallible cure when mixed with certain other ingredients and taken properly. The following formula is very effective: "To one-half pint of good whiskey add one ounce of Toris Root compound and one ounce of Syrup of Sarsaparilla Compound. Take in tablespoonful doses before each meal and before retiring." Toris Root Compound is a product of the laboratories of the Globe Pharmaceutical Co., Dayton, O.

A prominent druggist states he fills this prescription often and has seen its good results. It is surely worth trying by anyone who may be afflicted.

Encouraged by the Clergy.

"Marriage," remarked the moralizer, "is a lottery."

"Yes," rejoined the demoralizer; "but it's one of the games of chance that clergymen do not try to discourage."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

"She says life is a blank."

"That kind of talk is foolish."

"There are extenuating circumstances in her case. She married once for love and once for money, and got buncoed both times."

IMPORTANT

Under a recent ruling of the post office department at Washington newspapers are required

Notice to Subscribers

to practically collect their subscription price in advance. The new order became effective Jan. 1, 1908, and a short time is given publishers in which to get their subscription accounts in shape. Weekly papers, whose subscribers are delinquent for more than a year, will be barred from second class postage privileges, and if mailed must be stamped. The placing of stamps on each paper is of course out of the question, and the order simply means that a publisher must either collect for his paper or cut the delinquent subscriber off his list. The newspaper publisher has no choice in the matter. The SPECTATOR is not afraid to trust its subscribers and our past experience in the newspaper business has convinced us that our subscribers are honest and there are rare exceptions indeed, where they refuse to pay for their paper, but the publisher is up against a proposition where we are obliged to collect all arrearages within a very short time or cut the delinquent subscribers off our list, and place the back subscription accounts in the hands of a collector. We are mailing statements to those in arrears and we trust if the reader of this article knows himself to be in arrears in his subscription account he will call at the office and effect a settlement. We do not want to cut you off our list.

If our friends in Canada will only stop sending down frozen chunks of weather we will prepare for spring.

The Jacobson supporters seem to think that republican harmony means that the other fellows should quit kicking and support Jake.

The present congress has been well named "The Do Nothing Congress" and they are adding to their reputation every day.

The Greenbush Journal has suspended for lack of patronage. It is certainly not a very progressive community that lets a paper die for lack of support.

It looks as if the message of the Minnesota democrats was the one that came too late to help Governor Johnson win the democratic nomination for president.

Although the Great Northern made over one million more last year than the year before they are still discharging men and reducing expenses in every way. Looks as if they were trying to make the times as hard as possible.

Red Lake Falls Gazette.—For the first time Minnesota has a full-fledged candidate for the presidency. At the meeting of the democratic state committee last Friday Governor Johnson's name was recommended to the state convention as a fitting candidate for the highest honor human ambition can seek. It is fair to assume that there will be little opposition in Minnesota to the presentation of the governor's name.

The Gazette is mistaken in saying that Governor Johnson is Minnesota's first candidate for the presidency. In 1884 Minnesota republicans instructed for William Windom and the state delegation voted for him at the national convention.

Wanted His Money's Worth.

"Have you any choice as to the wedding march?" asked the church organist.

"The wedding march?" echoed the father of the bride.

"Yes; the march that is played when the bridal procession moves down the aisle. Which one would you prefer—Mendelssohn's or the march from 'Lohengrin?'"

"Any difference in the expense?"

"Oh, no!"

"Then play the one that's the longest."

Something About the School

Casper E. Berg.—I think this is an opportune time for considering what we have and what we have not as fire protection for the school. There is a general apprehension now anyway about this, and knowing the facts, even tho they are not what we might like them to be, will at any rate help us to know where we are at.

It should be reassuring to all parents to know that the children are practicing fire drills and that they are doing them beautifully. When the gong sounds the alarm the pupils all drop their work rise quickly, fall in line and march out without the least crowding and pushing whatever, altho some do feel pretty excited and are eager to get out. The doors that swing inward have been changed so that they all now swing outward, which insures an open passage. With five ways of getting out and all doors opening outward and the children drilled to march out quickly and orderly, it is hard to think how anyone could get caught in any part of the building.

But the saving of the building is less provided for. There are fire extinguishers to be sure, outside of them, nothing, and as we are now provided the extinguishers can be used only when the fire might start inside and within reach by the aid of a chair or step ladder. Should the fire start in the roof or attic or in the wall and break out outwards the extinguishers would not be of any use at all because of the lack of ladders. Here a 'phone would speak for its right to a place in the school house. By the use of it ladders and help could both be gotten in time. In winter no water is to be had unless one might borrow a few pailfuls at the creamery—half pailfuls they'd be if children were to carry them. Here's another hitch where the 'phone would demonstrate its usefulness and value. In the spring and fall there is usually some water in the creek (as it is called). I do not know if it is near enough to be reached with the hose. At any rate there is water and with the speedy operation of a bucket brigade it might do the business. But—here again a 'phone is needed to get together the "brigade".

Since that 'phone bobs up all the while I might as well point out other uses it could be put to—uses that will show it to be even more indispensable.

There is no other place in town, except once or twice a year in the hall where so many people are together, 180 days a year, 6 hours a day and more. Where many people are together accidents are more likely to happen, according to the law of averages. When one bears in mind that these 190 to 200 who are here every day are pupils, mere children—in an accident wouldn't a quick way of summoning help be worth something to the parents of this town? Would it be worth more or less than to have a quick way of finding out if there is some freight at the depot or if the train is on time? Then, again, wouldn't it ease a mother's heart when she lets a child return to school after an illness if she could call up the teacher and hear the teacher's assurance that she would give her child special attention as to its health and comfort for a day or two? See to it that the child doesn't sit in a draft or run out bare-headed at recess and help bundle it up when it leaves for home. I know the teacher would be better satisfied with the work if she could have such calls and communications. So I could continue enumerating but I refrain. The foregoing facts should indicate somewhat the needs of the school and that covers my purpose in penning these statements.

[illegible] CROPS.

[illegible]

The government crop report for September is looked upon as one of the most important of the year, showing especially the harvest of small grains and usually indicating fairly well the corn prospect. This year it is less to be depended on than usual as to corn because the crop is late and not out of frost danger at the time the report is compiled. But the conclusions as to corn and the other crops also seem to be pretty well in line with estimates made by commercial authorities.

Leaving out wheat and rye, both of which in price are now out of the list of feeding grains, we find that the shortage in the yield of corn, oats and barley amounts to a total of 601,000,000 bushels. Allowing for a better hay crop than last year and the economy incident to feeding high priced grains, there must still be a serious shortage in the stuff that makes all meat and dairy products and also in byproducts from mills. And there is no reason aside from their cost to anticipate a greatly decreased consumption of these products. In fact, there are reasons for believing that people will have to depend on them more than usual. With exception of potatoes staple vegetable supplies are short. Canned goods, both fruits and vegetables, are not in liberal supply, and prices are higher than usual. Bread must be dearer than usual also. There is therefore not much probability of substitution reducing the consumption of meats and dairy products, though careful consumption may do so. Certainly the feed grain situation justifies expectations of good markets, because prices of feeds now prevailing will restrict feeding as much as prices of products will retard consumption and probably more.

A Shift In the Hog Trade.

For many months light hogs have sold at a substantial premium over heavy ones. Considering the difference in the percentage of meat they yield and the price the light weights have cost $1 to $1.50 per hundred weight more than the heavy when they were hung up. But there will probably be a change in this relation—in fact, a part of the difference has already disappeared. It would not be surprising to see their positions reversed so far as the price on foot is concerned. High priced corn will probably bring about marketing of hogs at lighter weights, and the heavy grades will be relatively scarce. The lard market promises to be good. These influences, with the smaller percentage of waste from heavy hogs, is very likely to put a premium on them before the winter is very old.—National Stockman.

DAIRY COMMENT.

Professor Fraser of the Illinois Agricultural college has struck a new method of teaching in the country district school. There was a bright, sensible lady schoolteacher who wanted to make her school of some practical use to the farmers and their children. So she applied to the professor for a Babcock test machine, and the children have been bringing samples of milk from their homes to be tested. The scheme is working fine, and we are glad to see it inaugurated, says Hoard's Dairyman.

Price of Milk.

Higher prices for milk per 100 pounds as made to farmers by the Borden Condensed Milk company for the next six months are quoted as follows:

October, $1.50; November, $2; December, $2; January, $2; February, $2; March, $1.50.

The Vital Difference.

Do you know that in some of the European countries today they are dairying successfully on land worth from $400 to $1,000 per acre? The same markets are open to our people that are open to those people, and no duty bars the way. The difference is right here—they are dairying intelligently with good cows. Their average is nearly 300 pounds of butter per cow, while ours is about 140 pounds per cow. We need a great awakening.—G. I. McKay, Iowa.

Greater Use of Starters.

A recent Pennsylvania butter scoring contest shows an increase in the number of commercial starters used to be noted, though the scores of the users show that there is much to be learned about the making and using of the starter. A good starter is a great help a poor one worse than none.

Arrives Just Right.

Pat the fall calf on the back. She arrives in the world at the proper time. She will be six months old before she sees a fly. That means six months of a start, remarks Dorothy T. in Farm Journal. Give her a good place to sleep. Be sure it's dry. Calves like clover hay too.

Complete Ration.

Corn silage and alfalfa, two of the best feeds for dairy cows, make practically a complete or balanced ration in themselves. For the Mississippi valley there is no crop generally grown that will produce more feed to the acre than corn.—W. J. Fraser, Illinois.

Overcoming Fatigue.

From France comes the information that good results have been obtained from the use of sugar to overcome the great fatigue in horses when overworked. The good result obtained by a veterinary surgeon from the use of sugar in large doses in forced marches led him to employ it for the purpose of overcoming fatigue. Two hundred grains of sugar were fed daily, mixed with the horse's food and distributed regularly throughout the day.

The Name Bismarck.

Few people know how Bismarck and his ancestors got their name. Bismarck is the name of one of those ancient castles a short distance from Stendal, on the road from Cologne to Berlin, in the center of the old marquisate of Brandenburg. The castle had this name because it defended the "marca," or the line where the river Biese formed a boundary in former times or mark of defense against intruders; hence the name of Bismarck.

THE MAGIC OF MUSIC

Power of the Melody of the Voice Over Man and Beast.

SINGERS WHO SAVED LIVES.

The Way Lablache, the Basso, Conquered a Bear and a Burglar—Grisi's Control of a Madman With a Razor. A Musical Wife's Presence of Mind.

That music really has charms to soothe the savage beast is proved by the many times that the power of song has been the means of saving life. On one occasion when Luigi Lablache, the great opera basso, was aimlessly strolling through a French fair he was surprised by a sudden stampede of the sightseers, who rushed by him in a great panic, crying that one of the great bears had escaped from the menagerie. So surprised that he scarcely realized his danger, the singer stood his ground and almost immediately found himself face to face with the maddened beast, which halted for a moment before making its final rush. In that moment Lablache began to sing one of his favorite airs in a voice so deep and terrifying that the bear slunk away, thoroughly cowed.

It was this same singer who, when confined to his bed by a broken leg, was surprised by his landlady, who burst into his room, crying that a robber was in the house and was about to kill her husband unless he revealed the hiding place of their money and plate. Lablache, unable because of his injury to give other assistance, began to sing an aria in such thunderous tones as to terrify the robber, who fled.

Mme. Giulia Grisi was once traveling from the south of France to Paris in company with several companions of her own sex, when their privacy was intruded upon by a man who entered their apartment at a wayside station. Before long he began to act so oddly as to make the women apprehensive and at last terrified them by drawing a razor, which he began to flourish, at the same time demanding that he be permitted to sever their heads. The women realized that they had a madman in the carriage with them and also that they were without protection until the next stop of the train. In consequence they became hysterical—all save Grisi, who with great coolness suddenly began to sing in a soft voice that gradually assumed volume as she gained the attention of the man, whose threatening attitude gave way to rapt attention as the song advanced. Song after song did Grisi sing, and not another movement did the man make until the next station was reached, when the alarm was given and he was taken into custody. It transpired afterward that he had escaped from a lunatic asylum.

Jennie Lind once saved not only her own, but hundreds of other lives by her gift of song. A fire broke out back of the stage in a small theater in her native land where she was singing. The audience became alarmed, and there might have been a panic had not Jennie Lind stepped coolly out upon the stage and begun singing a favorite folk song. Reassured and entranced, the audience reseated themselves, and the fire was soon extinguished.

Another well known opera star while traveling with some friends in Mexico was surprised by a company of half breed bandits, at whose approach the escort fled, leaving their charges to the mercy of the robbers. The attitude of the latter on finding that their captives had little money and valuables was menacing in the extreme, and the travelers all expected to be murdered that night. When the robbers were eating their supper the star began to sing, and his captors were so delighted that they demanded more. For a time he gratified them, but at last suggested that he should sing for the freedom of himself and his friends. To this the bandits, cheered by wine and song, agreed, and after having sung for an hour he and his companion were free.

Kneissel, the notorious Bavarian brigand, once planned to rob a house in the neighborhood of Munich and, if necessary to secure the money and plate he knew was in the house, murder the inmates, a young married woman and her two female servants. His approach was heard by the wife, who instead of losing her head, sat down to her piano and began to sing. The brigand listened for awhile and was on the point of forcing an entrance into the room when the song ceased and a man's voice struck up a rollicking air, to be followed in a few moments by a third man's voice singing a familiar chorus. Kneissel paused. The husband evidently had returned unexpectedly and had brought with him a friend. He was not prepared to attack the house against two men, so he beat a hasty retreat, little thinking that the voice he had heard proceeded from the lips of the young wife, a fine singer, who was an adept at mimicry.

Some years ago a released convict went to the house of the Indiana judge who had sentenced him to prison with the intention of shooting him. As he crept nearer to the window beside which the judge was sitting and raised his revolver to fire the sweet voice of the judge's wife floated out on the summer air from the bedroom, where she was singing her baby to sleep, all unconscious of her husband's peril. The lullaby she sang was one that the convict's mother used to croon to him, and, throwing aside his revolver, he walked boldly into the house and confessed to the judge his intention. The judge befriended him, and he is today one of the most influential and respected citizens of a town in the far west. —Addie Farrar in Chicago Record-Herald.

Brass Becoming Popular

Brass is becoming popular again. It is especially the vogue among the member of the 400. It is suitable, of course, for table decorations. Brass center pieces filled with flowers and brass candlesticks make a very pretty table. Another popular fad that is here to stay, and one that can be enjoyed by rich and poor alike, is that of serving golden grain belt beer at meal time. This nutritious beverage pleases the palate and satisfies the thirst. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

Ladies, you will find those durable and perfect fitting corsets you have been looking for at M. L. Hanson's.

Dr. Gamble Lectures

Dr. F. H. Gamble of Thief River Falls came down on Wednesday evening and delivered his exceedingly interesting lecture on "Alaska" at Imperial Hall for the benefit of the school library. Dr. Gamble spent several years in Alaska as the government superintendent in charge of the herds of reindeer. His lecture is based wholly on his experiences and his talk was pleasing as well as instructive. He brought with him a large number of curios which he had collected that proved very interesting to his audience.

A song by Mrs. Hathaway, of Thief River Falls, a piano duet by Misses Josephine Gigstad and Eleanor Currie, and a piano solo by Mrs. H. B. Borneman added to the program. An admission fee of ten cents was charged to defray expenses the remainder being turned over to the school library fund.

School Notes.

Messrs. Patterson and Jackson looked over the school building Monday morning. As a result a number of doors are being changed so as to open outward.

The children are gradually getting over the effects of their sickness and the attendance is becoming more full and more regular. The whole school has a healthier and brighter appearance and the work is done better and easier.

Miss Sjostrom, who teaches in the Swenson district southeast of town, visited school Tuesday afternoon. Her school house was used for a voting place so she had a vacation.

Miss Eda Brink was up at school Wednesday afternoon. She is preparing to enter the Moorhead Normal at the opening of the spring term. It speaks well for the young people of St. Hilaire that so many are seeking higher learning and many of them are paying their way themselves, which speaks highest for them all.

I. Dahlen is doing the work of changing the doors so as to make them swing the right way.

THE SPIDERS

ROY WALLEN, 5th GRADE.

Some spiders have eight eyes. The spiders that live in the ground have their eyes in the middle of their head, but the spiders that live on the top of the ground have their eyes scatterd all around their head. The spiders have a sack on their back in which they have their eggs. After the eggs have hatched the little ones cover the spider all over. One kind of spider builds a house out of silk thread which she makes herself. They shape their house like a bell or cradle and then it is hung in a tree and every breeze makes the cradle rock. They lay forty or fifty eggs in each house. Then the house is covered with clay so that insects cannot eat the little spiders. Another kind of spider that lives in the ground, digs a tunnel in the ground for his house and over the top of the tunnel she makes a kind of a door. When any little insect steps on the door it falls down and then the spider kills it. There is another kind of spider that goes around at night and kills the little birds in their nest or any little insect it can find. There are many kinds of spiders.

Might Start a Forest.

A lady told a party of friends that she had quarreled with her husband and had planted a tree in memory of their first falling out.

"What a splendid idea," whispered another lady in her husband's ear; "if we had adopted that plan we might have had by now a fine avenue of trees in our garden."

Blind to Them.

"Never be critical upon the ladies," was the maxim of an old Irish peer, remarkable for his homage to the sex. "The only way that a true gentleman ever will attempt to look at the faults of a pretty woman is to shut his eyes."

COMPLAINTS BEAR FRUIT.

St. Paul Road Ordered to Improve Service in Southern Minnesota.

As the result of complaint made regarding poor service on the southern division of the St. Paul railway the state railroad and warehouse commission has ordered a number of reforms. The commission has written to the attorneys for the complainants as follows:

"In the matter of the train service on the Southern Minnesota division of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway, the commission made the following arrangement with the company:

"First — Commencing with the spring change of time, which will be in about thirty days, the train now terminating at Jackson will run to Eagan and return.

"Second — Company will provide toilet rooms in cars and keep them thoroughly clean and disinfected.

"Third — Company will have cars thoroughly cleaned at each end of the route, scrubbed once a day and oftener if necessary to keep them clean and have litter picked up along the route and clean windows daily.

"Fourth — Provide toilet rooms with stationary basins, etc.

"Fifth—Trainmen will see that cars are properly ventilated and that passengers are seated, and that in crowded cars no person occupies two seats

Seventh — A smoker and two day passenger coaches (ladies' cars) will be provided on Train No. 1, from Austin to Edgerton, and returning from Edgerton to Austin on Train No. 1 and on occasions like fairs, circuses and other gatherings where an extra amount of travel can be anticipated will put on an additional coach.

"Eighth—Keep the depots and outbuildings clean.

"The greatest difficulty the commission has had in this matter is to provide some schedule that would bring the trains near on time and make the connections which are necessary to accommodate the traveling public, and so far the commission has been unable to devise such a schedule, but in connection with the company hopes to arrange one that will gove better service.

"Some of the witnesses testified that if the train that stops at Jackson was continued through to Pipestone it would be sufficient to relieve the congestion. This has been arranged for, and besides an additional coach is to be put on Trains 1 and 8, and further provide sufficient coaches to take care of the travel on extraordinary occasions. A great effort is to be made by the company to have their trains on time."

UNCLE SAM PAYS BILL DUE IN '65

Former Adjt. Gen. Libbey Gets Check for $44.10 From Government.

Uncle Sam may be slow pay, but he is honest, and if given time enough will pay off his debts. This at least has been the experience of E. D. Libbey, formerly adjutant general of Minnesota. The government has owed Mr. Libbey $44.10 ever since the close of the Civil war, in 1865, forty-three years ago, and just got around to pay it. But it paid it all right.

Mr. Libbey served through the Civil war and in January, 1865, was given a commission. He was mustered out in June of the same year, but received only the pay of a sergeant during the time he had been a commissioned officer. The difference amounted to $44.10 and it has been coming to Mr. Libbey ever since.

Forty-three years seems a long time to wait, but Mr. Libbey has waited and has received a check for the amount.

1,713 WOLVES WILLED.

State to Pay Out $1,404 for Animals Slaughtered.

Warrants for the quarterly payment of wolf bounties are being prepared in the office of the state auditor and will be sent out to the county treasurers in a few days. The payments aggregate $11,404, which pays the bounty on 1,713 animals, of which 1,407 were full grown wolves and 306 cubs. The bounty is paid at the rate of $7.50 for full-grown wolves and $3 for cubs, although some of these payments are at the old rate of $1 for cubs, the animals having been killed before the new law became effective.

Roseau county heads the list in the amount received, with $1,252.50, with Polk county next with $1,029, while Kittson gets $367.50 and St. Louis $855. Ramsey county gets $67.50 and Hennepin county gets nothing.

STATE TO GET INTEREST.

Interest hereafter will be collected on the pension money of the inmates of the state soldiers' home and be turned over to the state treasurer to be credited to the home support fund. A resolution to this effect was adopted at a meeting of the home board in St. Paul upon the report of a committee appointed to consider the report of Public Examiner Anton Schaefer of an examination of the affairs of the home.

The public examiner recently called attention to the fact that this pension money was deposited by S. H. Towler, president of the board, in a Minneapolis bank and that no interest was collected on the fund. The board decided that the money should be deposited in the Security National Bank of Minneapolis and should draw not less than 2 per cent interest.

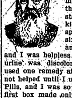
A WELL MAN AT 81.

The Interesting Experience of an Old Settler of Virginia.



Daniel S. Queen, Burrell Street, Salem, Va., says: "Years ago while lifting a heavy weight a sudden pain shot through my back and after that I was in constant misery from kidney trouble. One spell kept me in bed six weeks. My arms and legs were stiff and I was helpless as a child. The urine was discolored and though I used one remedy after another, I was not helped until I used Doan's Kidney Pills, and I was so bad then that the first box made only a slight change. To-day, however, I am a well man, at 81, and I owe my life and health to the use of Doan's Kidney Pills."

The Ambitions of Youth.

"Johnny, why don't you be a good bay like your brother Willy?" the mother was sternly admonishing her naughty son. "Willy here may be president some day, while you will have to dig in the sewer."

"But, mother," wailed Willy, "can't I dig in the sewer sometimes, too."

A Logical Answer.

A teacher observed what he thought a lack of patriotic enthusiasm in one of the boys under his instruction.

"Now, Tommy," said he, "tell us what you would think if you saw the stars and stripes waving over a field of battle."

"I should think," was the logical reply of Thomas, "that the wind was blowing."

THREE CURES OF ECZEMA.

Woman Tells of Her Brother's Terrible Suffering—Two Babies Also Cured —Cuticura Invaluable.

"My brother had eczema three different summers. Each summer it came out between his shoulders and down his back, and he said his suffering was terrible. When it came on the third summer, he bought a box of Cuticura Ointment and gave it a faithful trial. Soon he began to feel better and he cured himself entirely of eczema with Cuticura. A lady in Indiana heard of how my daughter, Mrs. Miller, had cured her little son of terrible eczema by the Cuticura Remedies. This lady's little one had the eczema so badly that they thought they would lose it. She used Cuticura Remedies and they cured her child entirely, and the disease never came back. Mrs. Sarah E. Lusk, Coldwater, Mich., Aug. 15 and Sept. 2, 1907."

Naming Boys.

"Whatever you do, never name a boy after yourself," was a saying of Uncle Lafe Hume of Columbia, and it is a wise conclusion for more reasons than one.

In after years the father and son are referred to as "Big John," or "Ragged John," "Little John So and So" or "Old Tom and Young Tom," and "Big Dick," "Little Peel Head" and the like. In the family the youngster is generally called "brother," "babe," "buss," "Dock Cud" or "Maunch," and the like, while the old gentleman is dubbed "the old man," or "dad," "pap" or "paw." Just as well give your boy a nickname at the start as to name him after yourself.

Selling Flour in West Africa.

The method of doing business is to sell the goods on credit to the women who are the principal traders of the country, and who in turn resell it in smaller quantities. For instance, the woman trader will come along and purchase one barrel or ten barrels of flour. This will be taken to her hut, where she will peddle out the flour in smaller quantities, her principal customers being the native bakers, who are also women.

The principal foods of the country are native corn, sweet potatoes, yams, plantains and bananas. It is through the education of the trader that these West Africans are coming to use and appreciate commodities which are the necessities of life in this country.

THE DOCTOR'S GIFT.

Food Worth Its Weight in Gold.

We usually expect the doctor to put us on some kind of penance and give us bitter medicines.

A Penn. doctor brought a patient something entirely different and the results are truly interesting.

"Two years ago," writes this patient, "I was a frequent victim of acute indigestion and biliousness, being allowed to eat very few things. One day our family doctor brought me a small package, saying he had found something for me to eat, at last.

"He said it was a food called Grape-Nuts, and even as its golden color might suggest, it was worth its weight in gold. I was sick and tired, trying one thing after another to no avail, but at last consented to try this new food.

"Well! it surpassed my doctor's fondest anticipation and every day since then I have blessed the good doctor and the inventor of Grape-Nuts.

"I noticed improvement at once and in a month's time my former spells of indigestion had disappeared. In two months I felt like a new man. My brain was much clearer and keener, my body took on the vitality of youth, and this condition has continued."

IN YOKOHAMA HARBOR

An Encounter Between the Officer of The Deck and the Sailor Lad.

Just as the port watch was returning from its seventy-two hours' leave, two of our guns were fired. I asked Andy why they saluted the port on return, and not us? He pointed toward the Bund and at the signal on the Homoka lightship, and told me they had sighted an American mail, and that it was up to us to proclaim it to all Americans in Yokohama, says St. Nicholas.

"Another mail!" It made me so happy that I walked to the rail and began whistling "Two Little Girls in Blue;" but before I had finished the second line, the officer of the deck came up and told me that the boatswain could do all the whistling that was required on the ship, and that my services could be dispensed with.

Whew! It was the first moment I had ever felt like whistling since that day I went to attend a battle of roses in Santa Cruz; saw, for the first time, a ship for battle—fell in love with her, ran away, giving up everything in the world to go with her. There had been so much to learn I had not noticed that no one whistled, and I asked Andy why he had not, in the slang of the ship put me wise." He answered with old Mac's recipe, which was ungrammatical but not untrue: "Don't never do nothing that you want to do. What's comfortable on board ship is agin orders."

There is a sequal to my whistle. When silenced, I merely stood looking into the bay. The officer could not stand that, so he asked:

"What are you doing?"

"Nothing, sir."

"Nothing?"

"No, sir."

"Nothing at all?"

"No, sir."

"Work all done?"

"Yes, sir."

"Bright work shined?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well, well, well, this is a sad state of affairs; a man-o'-war's man with nothing to do. Count the sails on the bay, and, when you get through, come and report to me how many there are."

Grumbling under my breath, I stood looking over the hammock netting. Finally I saw the mail boat coming; I caught the rhythm of the oars and applied it to my turbulent spirits, and just as the sampan came alongside, I walked, deferentially, up to the officer of the deck, saluted him, and said:

"There are 7,011, sir."

He could not question the statement —for neither he, nor any other man living, could any more count those sails than he could count the stars in the milky way.

"DIDOES."

Does the Word Come to Us From The Relict of Sychaeus?

The phrase "kick up didos"—for the plural is formed either with or without the "e"—is allowable. It occurs for example, in Quiller Couch's "Delectable Duchy," but the more common form is "to cut," or "to cut up didos." The word is a dictionary one. Mr. Murray says that it is "United States slang;" he defines it as a prank, a caper, a disturbance, row, shindy; he quotes, as the earliest use in English literature, this sentence from "Sam Slick in England" (1843-44): "Them Italian singers recitin' their jabber * * * and cuttin' didoes at a private concert." He says that the origin of the word is uncertain.

But Haliburton used the term in "The Clockmaker" in 1835, and Prof. Joseph Wright in his "English Dialect Dictionary" says that the term is known in Ireland, Kent, Isle of Wight, Cornwall, and also in the United States. Haliburton used it with reference to a Nova Scotian: "I met a man this mornin' from Halifa, a real conceited lookin' critter * * * all shines and didoes." Prof. Wright gives as the first definition, a disturbance, noise, fuss, as in the speech heard on the Isle of Wight: "He kicked up a middlen dido about it;" then, plural—tricks, antics, eccentric feats—as in Kent: "Drecklyle be backturned, there he be, a-cutting all manner o' didos;" and, lastly, a plaything, also used as a term to denote articles which do not give satisfaction to the owner, as trimming on a dress or bonnet.

Yet the learned Professor Wright does not venture to explain the derivation of the word, he does not suggest a possible derivation. Did the term come from the fuss made by Queen Dido after the pious Aneas left her? An obsolete word "dido"—a thrice told tale may have been originally "a tale of Dido." Tait in his "Quatrnions" speaks of a Didonian curve, with reference to the story of Dido, who bargained for as much land as could be covered with a hide, and then cut the hide into a long and narrow strip. Why not say glibly that "to cut up didos" is to cut up as Dido did? Let us honor the name of that noble dame in every way.

Running No Risk.

"What," asks the maiden aunt. "Going to marry that Mr. Newwun? Why, you hardly know the man, Imogene. In the few days you have been acquainted with him you cannot possibly have learned anything of his family or antecedents or habits or personal circumstances."

"That is true, Aunt Keturah. But you have always told me that no woman who knows anything about a man will marry him."

No other medicine has been so successful in relieving the suffering of women or received so many genuine testimonials as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

In every community you will find women who have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Almost every one you meet has either been benefited by it, or has friends who have.

In the Pinkham Laboratory at Lynn, Mass., any woman any day may see the files containing over one million one hundred thousand letters from women seeking health, and here are the letters in which they openly state over their own signatures that they were cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has saved many women from surgical operations.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is made from roots and herbs, without drugs, and is wholesome and harmless.

The reason why Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is so successful is because it contains ingredients which act directly upon the feminine organism, restoring it to a healthy normal condition.

Women who are suffering from those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not lose sight of these facts or doubt the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health.

Couldn't Find It.

Smith was a great cyclist, but had very rarely been on a horse. One day, when staying with a sporting uncle, he thought he would like to follow the hounds, which were to meet near by, so he borrowed a young horse from his relative which was not much accustomed to the hunting field.

At first he went steadily, until the horse, being startled by a rabbit darting from a clump of grass, broke into a mad gallop. The rider was flung forward on to the horse's neck.

"What are you doing, my lad, with your arms there?" jokingly called out his uncle.

"I'm feeling for the brake," was the muffled reply, "but I can't find it."

"Ten or Twenty Maybe."

She kissed him from the window of the Florida special.

"Now, remember," said he, "the minute you reach Ormond, telegraph."

"All right," she answered, gratefully. "And how much shall I telegraph for?"

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

SPERRY WILL GET BOB EVANS' PLACE

Is Named by President to Take Battleship Fleet Around the World.

SHORT COMMAND FOR THOMAS

Admiral Evans Will Be Relieved After the Big Naval Review at San Francisco.

Washington, Machr 19.—Rear Admiral Charles S. Sperry will be commander-in-chief of the Atlantic battleship fleet when it leaves San Francisco in July to encircle the globe. This important detail was decided on by President Roosevelt and his cabinet yesterday.

Rear Admiral Evans, on his personal request, will be relieved of the command at the conclusion of the big naval review at San Francisco, May 8. The admiral considers this the completion of the work he was assigned to do—to take the Atlantic fleet to the Pacific coast. Admiral Evans retires in August.

To Rear Admiral Thomas comes the honor of commanding the fleet on its visit to Puget sound, and until the homeward journey begins. He has been second in command during the voyage and retires in October.

Schroeder and Wainwright Go Up.

These retirements make possible two promotions to the grade of rear admiral, and these are to be filled by the advancement of Capt. Seaton Schroeder and Capt. Richard Wainwright, who will command, respectively, the third and fourth squadrons of the fleet, and Rear Admiral Emory the second.

Admiral Sperry, who is to bring the "Big Sixteen" back to the Atlantic coast by circling the globe, has had long and distinguished service in the navy. He became a rear admiral in May, 1906. During the war with Spain Admiral Sperry was equipment officer in the New York navy yard.

Afterward he was given command of the Yorktown in Philippine waters and directed the movements of the landing party on the eastern shore of Luzon, which is now regarded as one of the most thrilling adventures of the campaign against Aguinaldo.

Was Delegate to The Hague.

As one of the officers under Admiral Walker, Sperry helped to make successful the picturesque voyage of the "White Squadron" which visited Europe and South America in 1892-93. From the command of the New Orleans, on the China station, Admiral Sperry became president of the war college. His next detail was to the last Hague peace conference, where he went as one of the American delegates. Returning from The Hague, he was given sea duty and assigned to command the fourth division of the Atlantic fleet, in which capacity he has made the trip around the Horn with Admiral Evans.

PREMIER'S CONDITION GRAVE.

Campbell-Bannerman's Strength Is Ebbing Daily.

London, Mrach 19.—The strength of Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, the British premier, is ebbing daily and his friends take the gravest view of the dropsical symptoms which have appeared in his extremities. The medical bulletins continue disquieting. The one issued yesterday says the premier's strength was not well maintained, but that he had a good night and takes his nourishment well.

The general anxiety aroused by the news filtering out from the sick room of the premier is evidenced by the constant stream of inquirers at his house in Downing street. The fact that the queen and the dowager empress of Russia called personally yesterday afternoon at the premier's residence to inquire as to his condition shows that the illness of the patient is more critical than the bulletins given to the public indicate. Up to the present time the queen had sent an equerry to inquire concerning Sir Henry's condition.

Late last night the condition of the premier was unchanged, but on account of disquieting symptoms the physicians decided to remain in attendance throughout the night.

USES GUN WITH FATAL EFFECT.

Drunken Man Kills Officer, Wounds Bystander and Then Shoots Self.

Chicago, March 19.—Edward C. Heffernan, a special police officer, was shot and killed last night, and J. L. Morlin, a bystander, was seriously wounded by Donald Starr, whom the officer had ejected from the elevated station at Jackson Park avenue. Starr, who was intoxicated, then shot himself, inflicting a wound which will probably prove fatal.

EXPLOSION SHAKES TOWN.

Three Men Killed and Four Injured By Powder Blast in Indiana.

Linton, Ind., March 19.—Three men were killed and four injured, two fatally, yesterday by the explosion of one of the ten wheelhouses of the United States Powder company, near Coalmont, fourteen miles from here. Nothing is known as to the cause. The force of the explosion was heard and felt for miles. All windows in Coalmont were destroyed and several buildings were damaged.

WARSHIPS GIVE HAITIENS SCARE

British Cruiser Announces Arrival by Cannon Shots and Causes Panic.

Port au Prince, March 19. — The British cruiser Indefatigable and the German cruiser Bremen have arrived here under orders from their goven-ments to give full potection to any foreign residents in Port au Prince in case their lives are threatened. An American warship is expected to arrive here at any moment. At present the city is quiet, but there is an undercurrent of anxiety, as evidenced by the fact that a veritable panic was caused by the booming of a heavy gun on the British cruiser when she came to anchor in the port last evening. The Indefatigable announced her arrival by three cannot shots, and the detonation almost terrorized the people.

Causes a Panic.

Surprised by the sudden alarm, officers and soldiers alike rushed precipitately to their posts; women and children ran about hither and thither, in seeming despair, crying hysterically, and it was some time before they could be reassured and calmed.

Positive denial is made by the Haitien officials of the reports that other executions have taken place than those on Sunday morning, when ten or twelve conspirators found, according to the government's statement, with arms and ammunition for revolutionary purposes in their possession, were shot to death.

Foreigners Are Safe.

Gen. Celestin, the minister of war, has returned to Port au Prince at the head of his troops, after having put down the revolution at Gonaives. He made a statement yesterday in which he denied absolutely that the government entertained hostile sentiments toward foreigners. President Nord Alexis and his ministers also gave assurances of the utmost good feeling towards all foreigners who were pursuing their duties peacefully in Haiti.

While conditions have been disturbed here for a considerable length of time, reaching their climax during the last week, there appears to be no present danger to foreigners residing here. The president and the government hase proclaimed that order will be maintained at whatever cost.

UNION MINERS START RIOT.

Several Are Clubbed and Some Arrests Made in Alaska.

Fairbanks, Alaska, March 19. — Members of the Western Federation of Miners engaged in a riot yesterday. They molested and threatened men going out on the train to the creek to work and prevented railroad men's loading the baggage on the train. The deputy marshal was hurriedly called and found it necessary to club the rioters.

Louis Daazat took five shots at Deputy Phil North, who returned the fire, but no one was injured except a number of Federationists, who were clubbed. Daazat was arrested.

Tom Steffensen, organizer and leader of the Western Federation; W. E. Priesley, editor of the miners' paper, and Frank Cullen, secretary of the local union, were arrested for harboring prisoners in union headquarters after the shooting. Their bails were set at $5,000 and they were sent to jail in default.

EASY FOR BURNS.

Knocks Out Irish Champion In First Round of Fight.

Dublin, March 19.—Tommy Burns, the American heavyweight champion, made short work of Jem Roche, the Irish champion, in their contest last evening at the Theater Royal for the world's heavyweight championship. Practically only one blow was struck, Burns knocking Roche out when barely more than a minute of the first round had been completed by a short hook to the jaw. So quickly did the end come that the great crowd which filled the theater in the expectation of seeing the Irishman put up a good fight for the title, hardly realized what had happened.

Outlaw Wanted by Italian Government Caught in New York.

New York, March 19.—Following a ten years' search by the Italian government for the leader of an outlaw band charged with a sensational kidnapping in the island of Sicily a decade ago, Pellerino Mule, a baker, was arrested here last night on a federal warrant. Mule is charged with murder and robbery.

No Pardon for Stoessel.

St. Petersburg, March 19.—The emperor yesterday confirmed the death sentence passed upon Lieut. Gen. Stoessel and the court's recommendation for commutation of the sentence to ten years' imprisonment in a fortress. The former commander of Port Arthur ineffectually petitioned for a full pardon.

INVENTS WIRELESS PHONE.

Farmer Inventor, Injured by Accident, Has Instruments Guarded.

Crookston, Minn., March 19.—Lionel Snelling, the Angus farmer who was burned about the face and hands by molten brass on Sunday, had been successfully operating a wireless telephone over a distance of 4,000 yards during quiet weather. While the injured man is not yet able to see, he has members of the family stand guard over the little shed in which the machinery is quartered.

BRAHAM SWEPT BY A NIGHT FIRE

Only Two Stores Are Spared by the Flames in the Isanti County Town.

HIGH WIND FANS THE FLAMES

Fire Starts in Mercantile Company's Building—Loss Between $100,000 and $200,000.

Braham, Minn., March 19. — For five hours yesterday, from 3:30 until 8:30, every citizen of Braham fought the second big fire in a week, which threatened to destroy the business district. A high wind, driving a fine snow, swept down from the north, scattering the firebrands and requiring the utmost vigilance to prevent the spread of the flames in the outlying residence sections.

How the fire started no one yet knows, but it was in the large frame building of the Braham Mercantile company. The flames soon aroused the town, and the fire department, which has two chemical engines, was put to work and in a comparatively short time every man and boy was helping the firemen.

Fire Spreads Rapidly.

The large frame building of the Mercantile company was dry as tinder and the flames swept through and over it. In a half hour the roof of the building had fallen and the ruin was complete. No part of the stock was saved.

The flames jumped to Soderberg's drug store, a two-story building, partly brick. This was wiped out in short order, and the fire quickly spread and burned the following:

A. G. Johnson, confectionery and billiard hall; First National bank; Dr. Charles Swenson, office; Frank Hesselroth, billiard hall and barber shop; S. E. Erickson, jewelry store and furniture building; S. Mattson, general merchandise and postoffice; Ed Nordquist, barber shop and saloon building.

Only Two Stores Left.

All of the above business places are a total loss, with the exception of the postoffice and the goods in the Mattson building.

The fire burned a solid block of buildings on the principal streets of the town. When there was little left in the immediate vicinity for it to attack it centered in an old icehouse, and at 8:30 a. m. was well under control.

Only two stores are left in town, but a third will be opened at once in a vacant building which was spared by the flames.

Loss, Between $100,000 and $200,000.

The total loss is estimated at from $100,000 to $200,000. The town of Braham is on the Coon creek cutoff of the Great Northern's Duluth line, and is about sixty miles due north of St. Paul. It has a population of about 500 people.

AGED MAN BURNED TO DEATH.

Store Catches Fire While Wife Goes on Errand.

St. Paul, March 19.—J. M. Bachelder was burned to death in a fire that started in his room in his grocery at 11 o'clock yesterday morning.

Mr. Bachelder was seventy-eight years of age, and had been an invalid for many years. He had been left in charge of the store while his wife went to the meat market. He was sitting on a chair in a room that gives a view of the store. The supposition is that he tipped over a wood stove in the room, but in just what manner the fire started is not known.

LOSE BALLOT SQUARE CASE.

Temperance Fighters Fail in Suit at Pierre.

Pierre, S. D., March 19.—The supreme court yesterday, in a case from Webster, held that it is not necessary to place a square before the words "Yes" or "No" on a ballot submitting the liquor license proposition to the voters. License was carried in Webster with a ballot which did not contain the squares, and the temperance people attempted to prevent the issuance of licenses on the result of the vote, on the technical grounds of lack of the squares.

BLACK HAND AT CLOQUET.

Threats to Blow Up Church and School Said to Have Been Made.

Duluth, March 19.—There is a Black Hand scare at Cloquet, Minn. It is reported there that the principal of the public school and the priest of the Catholic church had received letters signed by the Black Hand threatening to blow up both of those edifices. The report has affected the attendance of children at the school.

Russian Generals in Duel.

St. Petersburg, March 19. — Lieut. Gen. Smirnoff was probably fatally wounded in a duel fought here yesterday with Lieut. Gen. Fock. The duel was caused by the memorandum written by Gen. Smirnoff on the siege of Port Arthur, in which he questioned the courage of Gen. Fock.

Senator Penrose on Sick List.

Philadelphia, March 19. — United States Senator Penrose is confined to his home here suffering from a severe attack of grip.

MAN MISSING; MURDER FEARED

Minneapolis Barber Disappears With $2,700 on His Person—Missing Since March 2.

Minneapolis, March 19.—Otto Huebner, a barber, left home March 2 with $2,700 in bills on his person, and his whereabouts is now unknown, his wife beliving he has been murdered for his money.

The police of Minneapolis and St. Cloud are attempting to locate the man. Huebner told his wife when he left home that he intended going to British Columbia to purchase a barber shop. He stopped off at St. Cloud for two days, but since then no trace of him has been found. While there he sent the key to his safety deposit vault to his wife in order that she might have access to the box. No further word has been received from him, and as he has always made it a point to communicate frequently with his family, his wife takes the long silence to mean that something most unsual has happened.

FATAL END TO FAMILY ROW.

George Belknap of Stillwater, N. D., Is Dead.

Dickinson, N. D., March 19. — George Belknap is dead as the result of a blow on the head, inflicted by a poker in the hands of his wife or brother-in-law. The scene of the trouble was near Stillwater, N. D.

Belknap had been married about a year, but did not get along well with his wife, who went to the home of George Ladd, her brother. The husband followed, and in a fight in the yard, it is claimed, the wife hit him. He went bleeding to his home, a short distance away, where he was found alone and unconscious the following morning. Fred Belknap, his brother, went for a doctor, but it was too late.

LADYSMITH MEN INDICTED.

Alleged Acts Which Would Have Been Outlawed Saturday.

Madison, Wis., March 19.—As a result of an investigation of the affairs of the defunct Ladysmith National bank at Ladysmith, Rusk county, the federal grand jury in session here yesterday returned true bills against the following three former officials of the bank: President G. F. Newman, Vice President L. E. McGill and Cashier Corbett. They are charged with violating the federal law which forbids and places a penalty upon making false reports to the government. All other alleged violations of the law have been outlawed, and this one surviving charge would have been extinguished by the statute of limitations next Saturday.

WOMAN WITH RECORD DIES.

Mrs. Marion Russell, Early Resident of Twin Cities, Passes Away.

Minneapolis, March 19.—After having lived continuously in Minneapolis for sixty years, Mrs. Marion Russell, widow of R. P. Russell, died yesterday at her home, 2633 Humboldt avenue south.

She came to Minneapolis in 1847 with her parents, Mr. and Mr.s Luther Patch, and Rev. E. D. Neil, the historian, gives Mrs. Russell and her daughters credit for being the first resident white women in St. Anthony.

Marion Patch was married to R. P. Russell, Oct. 3, 1848, and theirs was the first wedding in St. Anthony.

John Santica Is Found Wandering in the Woods, Badly Hurt.

Adrian, Mich., March 19. — John Santica, whose home is in Stone City, Iowa, jumped through the window of a Wabash passenger coach early yesterday while the train was near Sand Creek. Section men found him nearly dead from his injuries. He had been wandering about in the woods. The man, who was traveling from Fall River, Mass., to Stone City, said that he jumped from the train to escape enemies who were pursuing him. He was taken to the Wabash hospital at Peru, Ind.

LETS STATE SHOW THEFTS.

Court Admits Evidence in MacKown Arson Case.

Webster City, Iowa, March 19.—The state has been permitted to introduce evidence of embezzlement as a motive in the attempt to convict George MacKown of burning to the ground the Webster City felt shoe factory. This probably will prolong the trial at Clarion, and a verdict is not looked for before the first of next week.

ALL IOWA MINES TO CLOSE.

Complete Shutdown Is Expected on April 1.

Des Moines, March 19.—Des Moines is facing a coal famine. On April 1 every mine in the State of Iowa will close down, and not a ton of coal will be mined. How long the mines will remain closed cannot be told now, but coal dealers believe that the shutdown will be for a month at least.

Goes for Water; Drowns.

Moorhead, Minn., March 19. — The body of Bertha Breitner, a young girl in the employ of the family of Oscar Hallenberg of this city, was found floating in the river yesterday. She had gone to the river near the Hallenberg residence to get a pail of water and evidently fell into the stream.

Boston, March 19.—It was announced last night that Gov. Curtis Guild, who has been ill for two weeks, is in a critical condition.

HITCH IN PROGRAM FOR LABOR LAWS

Difference of Opinion Threatens to Block the Proposed Legislation.

WANT THE BOYCOTT LEGALIZED

President Refuses to Indorse Labor's Chief Demand—Seth Low Is Discouraged.

Washington, March 19.—Details of a conference held yesterday between Seth Low of New York, president of the Civic federation, and Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, which are slowly coming to light, indicate that labor is not yet committed to legislation about to be urged by President Roosevelt along the lines of recommendations made by the Civic federation.

That there is a difference of opinion that threatens to overturn the program was learned from an authoritative source.

Mr. Low is said to have returned to New York much discouraged. He had expected to be able to harmonize the points on which the labor interests, represented by Mr. Gompers, failed to conform with the program of the Civic federation.

Want Boycott Legalized.

The officials of the American Federation of Labor are said to be withholding their support from the program because the president feels that he cannot indorse legislation which would legalize boycotts by the labor unions.

The expressions heard at the capitol are opposed to a bill at this time which would deal with overcapitalization of corporations or attempt to regulate stock gambling.

Labor leaders, however, are preparing to demand, in connection with a general relief bill such as is in mind, provisions to prohibit the issuance of injunctions without due notice of the proceedings to the person to be enjoined, and also prohibiting the imposition of penalties in contempt cases which had not been submitted to juries.

POLICE AFTER STUDENTS.

More Friction Occurs at University of Michigan.

Ann Arbor, Mich., March 19.—Friction between University of Michigan students and the city police has continued since Monday night's riot. Two students were arrested Tuesday night charged with stealing a cuspidor from the Cook hotel. The hotel management refused to enter a complaint against the boys for larceny, but the students were brought into court, nevertheless, charged with being drunk and disorderly, pleaded guilty and were fined each $10 and $5.20 costs.

Chicagoan Formally Elected Director of Illinois Central.

New York, March 19.—The directors of the Illinois Central Railroad company yesterday voted to authorize the holding of a special meeting of stockholders to vote on an increase of 30 per cent in the company's capital stock.

At yesterday's meeting J. Ogden Armour was elected a director, to succeed Stuyvesant Fish.

NEED PAY NO EXCESS FARE.

Wisconsin Railroad Patrons Favored by Ruling.

Madison, Wis., March 19.—An excess fare cannot be charged passengers on the railroads of Wisconsin when tickets are purchased on the train unless provision is made to refund the amount overcharged. NEWSBOYS START VICIOUS BATTLE

Make Fierce Onslaught on Chicago Street Cars—Use Stones on Guards.

POLICE MAKE THREE ARRESTS

Right to Sell Papers Will Be Contested in Court—Newspapers Back the Boys.

Chicago, March 19.—Hurling themselves in a body at the entrance gates, several scores of newsboys last night made a second attempt to force their way into one of the new pay-as-you-enter street cars, in defiance of an order issued by the street car officials. Warned by the previous trouble, the street car company had placed extra guards on the cars, and a vicious battle, which lasted for several minutes, was fought.

Hammer Guards' Toes.

The guards were perched on the railings and kicked at the newsies. Several of the boys were hurled back by their blows and some of the youngsters seized heavy granite paving block from a pile nearby and hammered with them on the toes of the defenders, while their fellows renewed the onslaught on the entrances. At last the police were summoned and they forced the boys back. Three arrests were made.

Circulation agents of various papers have taken up the newsboys' fight, and have engaged counsel to represent the prisoners when their cases come before the courts.

The trouble is due to an order of officials of the city railway company forbidding the vending of the papers on the new cars.

Cash Fares Refused.

The company officials say that the constant bombarding and debarking of the boys interfere with the schedules and reduces the efficiency of the car service. The company was asked by circulation agents of various newspapers to enter into some agreement whereby the fare of the boys would be paid. This was refused and the agents thereupon told the boys to offer cash fares. The conductors on the lines in question were instructed to refuse these fares, and the circulation agents then determined to test the question by trying to force the company to abandon its stand.

CHARGED WITH FIVE MURDERS.

Woman Accuses Former Lover of Wholesale Murder.

Oklahoma City, March 19.—Fannie Ritchie and Harry McCuen, the woman's former lover, were arrested in Denison, Tex., yesterday after the women had accused McCuen of being responsible for the death of five persons in this city last August. Five bodies were found in the ruins of Anne Bailey's resort, which had been burned. The Ritchie woman alleges that McCuen murdered a stranger in the Bailey resort for the purpose of robbery. Three women in the house and one man had been given "knockout drops" in order that the murder plot might be carried out without interference. A negro porter, she alleges, set fire to the building to destroy blood stains left after the murder. In the fire that destroyed the building Lillian Raye, Vergie Wallace, Sadie Ward and Walter Ward perished.

IMPORTANT

Notice to Subscribers

Under a recent ruling of the post office department at Washington newspapers are required to practically collect their subscription price in advance. The new order became effective Jan. 1, 1908, and a short time is given publishers in which to get their subscription accounts in shape. Weekly papers, whose subscribers are delinquent for more than a year, will be barred from second class postage privileges, and if mailed must be stamped. The placing of stamps on each paper is of course out of the question, and the order simply means that a publisher must either collect for his paper or cut the delinquent subscriber off his list. The newspaper publisher has no choice in the matter. The SPECTATOR is not afraid to trust its subscribers and our past experience in the newspaper business has convinced us that our subscribers are honest and there are rare exceptions indeed, where they refuse to pay for their paper, but the publisher is up against a proposition where we are obliged to collect all arrearages within a very short time or cut the delinquent subscribers off our list, and place the back subscription accounts in the hands of a collector. We are mailing statements to those in arrears and we trust if the reader of this article knows himself to be in arrears in his subscription account he will call at the office and effect a settlement. We do not want to cut you off our list.

Spring commences today according to the calendar but it does not look that way in this vicinity.

It seems almost too easy to have Taft run against Bryan. It will hardly make an interesting campaign.

Albert Kaiser looks like a sure winner as one of the delegates from this district to the republican national convention.

A newspaper correspondent has sprung a story that Bryan will retire in favor of Johnson. This, however, has been denied. Mr. Bryan has not a retiring disposition.

Sunbeam:—While several of the counties south of us have started the campaign for county office, the Red Lake county boys seem to be inclined to wait until the six weeks retirement of the Ground Hog is out, before they venture out in the sunlight. Some of them may be afraid there is a cat watching them, ready to take them by the back of the neck, as soon as they stick their head above ground, and give them such a shaking up that they will crawl back into the hole, and pull the hole in after them.

A number of newspapers in Minnesota are claiming to be the first to favor Taft for president. We re-print the following editorial from THE SPECTATOR of April 27, 1907, and very naturally claim that THE SPECTATOR was one of the first, in this part of the state at least, to declare itself in favor of Secretary Taft for president.

Secretary of War Taft will probably be the man selected by President Roosevelt and his friends as their candidate for the republican nominee for president. It looks now as if Taft would be selected to carry out the plans and ideas of the president, and we hope he will as he has every appearance of being a man of enterprise and integrity with plenty of hustling ability and thoroughly in accord with the president on anti-trust matters. For these reasons THE SPECTATOR is in favor of Taft—and besides, we fat men stand together.

The Confidential Banker: Mining stock should be bought in the dark of the moon from a total stranger. If possible, pay him in lead money. Mining stock is useful for several things. The long and narrow certificates are good for laying upon pantry shelves. The short, fat ones can be used in the bottom of drawers. The handsomely engraved certificates, on hand-made paper, can be rolled up and used for killing flies. You should, of course, buy your stock carefully and choose the size which will come in handiest. Low-grade mining stock should be bought just before house cleaning. It can then be laid under the carpets during the summer. Late in the fall it can be taken up and used for bedding the horse.

Republican County Convention.

A Republican County Convention for the County of Red Lake, in the state of Minnesota, at the village hall, is hereby called to be held on Thursday, April 9, 1908, at one o'clock p. m. in the village of St. Hilaire, Minnesota, for the purpose of electing twelve (12) delegates to the Republican District Convention at Crookston, Minn., April 15, 1908, and twelve (12) delegates to the State Convention at Minneapolis, Minn., April 16, 1908.

Representation in this Convention shall be the average of all the votes cast for the Republican Candidates for Governor, Lieutenant Governor, Secretary of State, Auditor, Treasurer and Attorney General, at the general election of 1906; that each precinct is entitled to one delegate at large and one delegate for every fifty votes or fraction thereof, so determined from the votes for the said Republican State Candidates herein named; that each of the following precincts which were not organized at the General election of 1906, shall be entitled to one delegate at large, as follows: Township of Hickory, Star and Reiner; that each precinct is entitled to the following representation in this covention.

She Thought He Was Dead.

Maginnis had been ill for some time and, like a great many invalids, he was somewhat irritable, and when things failed to meet his approval the next unfortunate who came within range was pretty apt to be reminded of it in a way far more forcible than polite. He lingered in this condition for several weeks, daily growing weaker, but still holding his own sufficiently to make things lively and more or less interesting for those about him. Finally one day when the family doctor called he met the long suffering Mrs. Maginnis coming out of the sickroom, and, rubbing his hands, he cheerfly remarked: "Ah, good morning, Mrs. Maginnis! How is our patient today?"

"It's dead the poor mon is, O'im afther thinkin', hivin rist his sowl!" was the resigned reply.

"You think he is dead? Don't you know whether he is or not?" demanded the doctor.

"Not fer shure," responded Mrs. Maginnis briskly, "but thin he bethrays ivery symptom of it. I wint into his room jist now, an' he didn't t'row anything at me!"—London Tit-Bits.

Snuff as Medicine.

"Oh, yes," said the tobacconist, as he tapped a jar filled with a cinnamon colored powder, "I sell an ounce or two of snuff occasionally—to the old, as a rule. The young will seldom look at snuff. And those who do use it impute medicinal virtues to it. Thus old fashioned watchmakers, gem cutters and tailors think that a pinch of snuff now and then improves the eyesight. They think it refreshes and fortifies weary eyes as a cup of tea refreshes and fortifies a weary brain. Others think snuff cures a cold. Others take it for the headache. Others still believe that it wards off contagion. Personally I believe that snuff taking is less harmful than smoking. Its effect, too, is pleasanter than the effect of smoking—it is a most soothing and fascinating effect once you get used to it—but the habit is untidy and therefore it can get no hold upon us in this aesthetic age."—Los Angeles Times.

The Talmud.

The Jewish Talmud has come down to us only through the heroic efforts of the Jews themselves and the intrepid service of John Reuchlin. Its reading was condemned by various edicts of emperors and kings; its circulation was prohibited by popes and theologians. Twelve thousand copies of this monumental work were burned at Cremona in 1569, and a similar fate befell 5,000 copies of the Koran by order of Cardinal Ximines on the taking of Grenada by Ferdinand and Isabella.—Boston Post.

Cleaning Supremacy.

New and greatly improved methods are now employed in the art of cleaning and dyeing with the consequent result that articles of delicate texture, elaborate party gowns, fine laces, rich draperies, fine house furnishings, etc., etc., are now successfully cleaned or dyed and made to look almost like new without the slightest possibility of injury.

We have kept pace with the times in this respect and through a close study of our business and the constant application of new and improved methods have perfected a cleaning plant and gathered an organization of cleaning experts unequalled anywhere.

Having a thorough knowledge of the cleaning business, a consciousness of our ability to please the most exacting, and with facilities far more complete and perfect than has any competitor, we are better able to execute orders for cleaning and dyeing than any other concern in this line.

Think for a moment of the many discarded articles in your home which may be made serviceable through our efforts. Remember that the expense for cleaning and dyeing is moderate. We respectfully solicit your patronage with a guarantee of perfect satisfaction.

Historic Old New York.

Greenwich village, in New York city, was first brought into prominence when Sir Peter Warren, descended from an ancient Irish family and vice admiral of the British fleet, settled there in 1744. He married Susannah De Lancey and settled on a fine estate of more than 300 acres, running from Christopher street to West Twenty-first. It was laid out like an English park, with splendid hedges and avenues of trees and a fine old mansion, which was the resort of all the quality of old New York. His three daughters all made brilliant marriages in England. One became the Countess of Abingdon, and her name is preserved in Abingdon square. On the division of the estate at Sir Peter's death the homestead fell to her. She sold it to Abijah Hammond, who sold it to Abraham Van Nest, and it is still remembered by many as the old Van Nest house, demolished in 1865. Among other distinguished persons who have lived in Greenwich were Oliver De Lancey, William Bayard, Washington, Vice President and Mrs. John Adams, Aaron Burr and Tom Paine. Barrow street was originally named Reason street in compliment to the great infidel's best known book, "Age of Reason."

Useful Teeth.

Many different reasons are assigned by people for their unwillingness to submit to the extraction of teeth. But it was no fear of pain which was uppermost in the mind of Miss Mehitable Lamson of Willowby when told by the dentist that she would be much benefited by the loss of two of her prominent teeth.

"You say they can't be filled," she said, in evident distress, "and you couldn't get any others in for me for more'n a fortnight?"

The dentist admitted reluctantly that it was so.

"Well, then, I suppose I'll have to get on as best I can." And Miss Mehitable seated herself in the torture chair. "But I don't see how I shall make out. Here I am, chambermaid to the Willowby inn during the summer, and it's chock full of folks, with lots o' translents coming and going, and those are my pillowcase teeth!"

Weight of the Brain.

There is just five ounces less amount of brain matter needed to keep a woman from idiocy than there is needed for a man. The average weight of a man's brain is forty-nine and one-half ounces and that of a woman forty-four ounces. When a brain falls below thirty-seven and a half ounces in a man idiocy usually occurs. A woman's brain has to fall to thirty-two and one-half ounces before she reaches the same condition. Man has a larger brain in proportion to his stature than woman, while, on the other hand, woman has a larger brain in proportion to her weight. The female brain begins to lose weight after the age of thirty; that of the man not till ten or fifteen years later. The loss in a woman is slight, however, and she keeps up a high brain weight much later than a man.

The Deadly Dull Bachelor.

"It is always easy to see how long a couple have been married by noting whether the house is full of his friends or hers," according to a writer in the London Ladies' Field. "A man invariably begins by inviting all his bachelor friends to his house. He is anxious to show off his wife, and he fondly imagines that they will like her and that she will like them, which rarely happens." The writer then goes on to dissect the bachelor and concludes, "I don't know why one's husband's bachelor chums should, as a rule, be so deadly dull, but they usually are, and, as a matter of fact, it was probably their dullness which originally drove him into matrimony, only he has not the sense to see it." There would be fewer married if it weren't for the bachelors.

As a Last Extreme.

Once a number of legal lights in Washington were gathered in the smoking room of a lawyers' club when the talk turned to a discussion of the veracity of lawyers. "The average man," remarked one disciple of Blackstone, "seems only too ready to assume we are all liars, a very unjust position, it seems to me. Do we not sometimes tell the truth?" he asked of his neighbor, a well known criminal lawyer.

"Certainly," promptly responded the latter. "We will do anything sometimes to win a case."

Toads' Hatching Places.

Every tiny toad lays a stupendous number of eggs. A scientist received 11,545 eggs from one toad, a necessary fertility, since the chances of an egg developing into a toad are less than one in a thousand. Within two weeks after the eggs are laid the young tadpoles begin to appear and feed first on their gelatinous envelope. Next the slimy deposits common to ponds and swamps are attacked. Steadily grow the young wrigglers until their bodies enlarge to the size of thumb nails by the end of June. The long tail now is absorbed and the legs develop. They begin to hop on the bank and disperse, never to return save in the breeding season. It is at the spring of the year that the toads awake from their winter sleep below the rocks and scrub. They often have been literally frozen stiff, but they return to life as healthy as ever and on the first balmy night migrate toward the nearest breeding pond. Usually this is the old homestead where they were born, for the toad is a domestic animal and will travel a mile or more for the sake of returning to the place of its hatching.—Chicago Tribune.

"Trying on" Furniture.

When you go to buy a suit of furniture nowadays in one of our department stores you don't have to speculate as to how it will look in your room nor whether it will fit in or not. As soon as the salesman sees that a particular suit has met your fancy he calls for a porter or two and turns them loose in one of several rooms fitted up around the main showroom, setting them at work removing all the furniture in it. Then the suit that you seem to be hankering after is placed in appropriate positions in this room, and you can see at a glance just how the bedroom or parlor or dining room will look if you buy that particular suit.

There are a dozen of these smaller rooms around the main showroom, and as each one is decorated in a different manner it is easy to pick one out that approximates the scheme of your room at home. Like many modern ways of selling goods it is expensive in the beginning, but it pays in the end, for this plan of showing goods seldom fails of its intended effect.—New York Press.

"Of course. Many a woman has broken down her constitution getting her husband up in time for breakfast."

"She Certainly Will Appreciate It; She Certainly Will."

Have you read "The Southern Maiden's Reply?" It is a touching little love poem by Mr. Charles Frederick Stansbury, now going the rounds. Under the magnolias the youth is telling his love in language hot as lava from Vesuvius. He speaks thoughts that breathe in words that burn to the extent of about thirty lines of verse.

"And this is what the maiden said—
Her words were choice and few:
'I certainly do appreciate it;
—I certainly do.'"

One of the things that women certainly do appreciate—they certainly do—is a full page advertisement of bargains in a store near enough for them to visit. In the big cities such pages appear daily. Why? Because the merchants know that the women appreciate it. They certainly do know it.

All women are very appreciative in the matter of shopping bargains. They are so appreciative that they make mental note of the things they want, as advertised, and make a bee line for the store that keeps those things on hand and lets them know about it.

If the merchants in the smaller cities and towns—this one, for instance—would do more of this kind of advertising, the women certainly would appreciate it; they certainly would.

AND THE MERCHANTS CERTAINLY WOULD BE BENEFITED; THEY CERTAINLY WOULD.

Mr. and Mrs. Mike McAndress entertained a party of young people from St. Hilaire at their palatial home two miles north of the village, last Wednesday evening. A highly enjoyable time was reported by those in attendance.

It is rumored that Wm. Eickhoff, who has been the village marshall the past year, will not be a candidate for re-election this spring as he is figuring on going into the patent medicine business in Wisconsin in the near future.

George Hughes has been having trouble on account of the crow story he told last week. He still insists that he saw a crow but it must have been one of the foolish kind as the weather has been far from springlike the past week.

W. G. Hunt, the versatile editor of the Sunbeam was a visitor here last Saturday. Mr. Hunt together with McAndress were here trying to interest Highway commissioner Martz to draw plans for a bridge which they are badly in need of at Highlanding.

Prof. Casper E. Bergh has informed the school board that he will not be a candidate for re-election as principal of the St. Hilaire schools this coming year. It is, we understand, Mr. Bergh's intention to enter the state university next fall. He has given general satisfaction as an instructor here and a great many will regret to see him go.

Gunstad Bros., brush artists, have been busily engaged in re-painting the I. O. O. F. hall during the past week. Oscar Gunstad, the senior member of the firm, informed a representative of The Spectator in a very lengthy private interview that they would not be exclusive but were ready for all comers as soon as their present job was finished.

The prices of lumber, other building material and labor in the Red River Valley, is lower now than it has been for years, and the question arises: How long will such conditions last? Statistics show that all manufacturers of lumber are curtailing their output, which means a scarcity before another year goes by, even with a very normal demand. A scarcity always tends towards higher prices and it might be business policy to take advantage of present markets.

School Notes

The State examinations in English Grammar, Arithmetic and U. S. History were given on Monday and Tuesday forenoon. Myrtle Eickhoff scored the highest mark, 99 in arithmetic.

The pupils in the high school room a while ago "chipped in" ten cents each and sent for a picture. It came to hand Tuesday and is a fine portrait of Francis E. Willard framed in dark oak, the picture being 22x28.

Napoleon and Lily Payment have quit school because of their parents leaving for Bemidji. Napoleon was in the 5th grade and Lilly in the 4th. Also, Gustave Peterson has left the 3rd grade upon his parents moving to Cass Lake. However, the number of new pupils exceeds the number of those leaving. The pupils who have recently entered school are: Leva Sumpter and Martin Palm, 4th grade; Lydia Palm and Annie Norman, 3rd grade; and Ruth Sumpter 2nd grade.

The pupils of the 4th grade are enjoying the reading of "Ways of Wood Folk," a book of nature stories by Wm. D. Long. The stories are true and accurate observations of the ways and habits of wild animals, and they are simply and delightfully told. Just to quote the headings arouses ones interest,—"Fox ways", "Merguser, the duck" "Br'er Rabbit", "Moose calling", etc.

MARCH

IDA ROLLAND, 6th GRADE.

One day March met the frost giant. "Hello, friend frost face," said March. "Hello," came feebly from the giant. "What's the matter with you this bright morning," quoth March. "It's too hot," answered the giant, "I'll have to go back to the far north." "Well don't worry about that my friend," said March, "I'll make it alright for you, good bye." Next morning when March met the giant, he was smiling.

MARCH

SELMER BENSON, 6th GRADE.

"My name is Mr. March and I live in a place far away. I visit the earth once every year, being the third man to appear on the calendar."

Sometimes when Mr. March appears he comes like a fierce enemy with cold air and storms all about him. Sometimes he comes like a kind friend with warm air and pussies all about him.

Mr. March is the first man to appear in the spring and sometimes when he stays with us paints the windows with his magic brush and sometimes he pinches the children on the fingers and face as they are playing or going to school.

Sometimes Mr. March removes from brooks, rivers and lakes, the ice that Jack Frost has put there. This will make the waters in the streams flow and it will soon be on its way to the ocean or some other body of water.

When Mr. March comes it is a sign that spring is beginning to appear and the trees, flowers and other plants will soon wake from their winter sleep and begin to grow and bloom and they will then thank Mr. March for being so kind as to wake them so that they may by their sweet smell and appearances tell the world that spring is here.

A Candidate for Sheriff

Thief River Falls News:—A. R. Jones, of St. Hilaire, was in the city yesterday interviewing the voters here regarding the advisability of becoming a candidate for the office of sheriff. Mr. Jones is one of the old time and highly respected citizens of St. Hilaire and has strong backing in is home town. He reports meeting with a great deal of encouragement here and it is quite likely that he will enter the race for republican nomination.

Will Meet Assessors

Gazette.—County Auditor J. B. O'Brien has been notified by Frank L. McVey, chairman of the Minnesota Tax Commission, that a member of the commission will meet with the assessors of the cities, villages and townships of Red Lake county at the auditors office in the city of Red Lake Falls on Tuesday afternoon, May 5th, at one o'clock. This meeting is in accordance with the revised laws of 1905, and is held for the purpose of arranging the next personal and real estate tax assessments. The board will hold similar meetings in every county in the state. Notices will be sent to all assessors in the different sections of the county to be present, as it is hoped that much good in way of uniform and proper assessing may be accomplished by these meetings.

A Wonderful Cow

Northfield News:—"People frequently read about the production of milk and butter by cows of Holstein breed and the most of the cows are kept where the readers of the News cannot easily see them but there is one cow at Spring Brook farm a mile from Northfield that is among the great ones and is giving as much milk daily as ten average cows of the state. On Thursday she gave eighty-eight pound of milk or eleven gallons.

"The average family that is using a quart of milk a day would be at a loss to know just what to do with the surplus if they had a cow that was giving 44 quarts daily. And the end is not yet as this cow has been gaining on an average of two pounds a day for two weeks and will before many days go well to the 100 pound mark as she is eating heartily.

"She is milked four times a day. At two twelves and sixes and the milk is being weighed to the tenth part of a pound. This cow is eating less than forty cents worth of feed a day and at twelve cents per gallon wholesale, the value of her milk is $1.32. Or at retail the same at six cents per quart the milk would bring $2.64. A few cows like this in the neighborhood will soon make it famous for producing the very best in the world."

HOW TO KNOW PURE PAINT.

A Way in Which It May Be Identified Before Using.

After a building has been painted long enough for a weather test, it is easy to tell if the paint used was made of pure White Lead or not. But such belated knowledge comes like locking the barn after the colt is stolen.

What one wants is a test that will tell the quality of the paint before it and the labor of putting it on are paid for.

Nature has provided a way in which genuine White Lead may be positively distinguished from adulterated or fake White Lead before you spend a cent on your painting.

Pure White Lead is made from metallic lead, and, under intense heat, such as is produced by a blow-pipe, pure White Lead will resolve itself back into metallic lead. If, however, it is not genuine White Lead, or if it contains the slightest trace of adulteration, the change will not take place. Therefore the "blow-pipe" test is an absolute and final one.

The National Lead Company are urging everyone interested in painting to make this test of paint before using it, and they guarantee that the pure White Lead sold under their "Dutch Boy Painter" trade-mark will always prove absolutely pure under the "blow-pipe" or any other test. To make it easy for you to perform the experiment they will send you free upon request a blow-pipe and everything necessary for you to make the test, together with a valuable booklet on paint. Address, National Lead Company, Woodbridge Building, New York City.

CLIMATE IS IDEAL.

GREAT WEALTH ACQUIRED IN GROWING GRAIN.

Writing from Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, Canada, W. H. Ellwanger, who was formerly a resident of Green Mountain, Iowa, says: "The climate in summer is ideal for growing grain. Long, clear days of sunshine, no bad storms. We never need to guard against cyclones; I never saw a better climate in my life. We made more money during the season of 1906 than any previous five years in central Iowa—one of the best districts in the state." But Mr. Ellwanger was a resident of the town, and it might be more interesting to read what a farmer has to say about Western Canada. From hundreds of letters all filled with words of praise, recounting success in Western Canada there has been one selected. It is as follows:

Paynton, Sask., Canada,
Dec. 10th, 1907.

To Whom This May Concern:

I moved to this address February 3, 1907, from Montgomery, Iowa, and took a homestead 35 miles north of Paynton. It was cold when I moved here but it did not stay cold long; it broke up the 8th of February, and was not so cold after that but the spring was late on account of the heavy snow fall, but in spite of the late spring I saw better grain than I ever saw in the states, raised this year. I helped a man finish sowing oats the 4th of July and they made fair oats. In a good year oats will go 100 bushels to the acre and wheat 25 to 50; all root crops do well here. I saw turnips weigh 7 and 8 pounds. I raised potatoes this year that measured 11½ inches one way and 18½ the other in circumference. This is a fine stock country; hay in abundance, good water, plenty of fuel, free and plenty of building material—the government gives us timber to saw into lumber and we can get it sawed for about $6.00 per thousand. All small fruit grows wild here, then there are ducks, geese, grouse, pheasants, deer, moose, elk and fish in abundance. I was over to Turtle Lake yesterday where there is lots of fishing being done this winter. I saw about a carload of white fish in one pile. I gave 25 cents for 86 pounds of fish. What do you think of that, Brother Yankee? I think this is a fine place both to make money and to live. There was an old man up here visiting his brother-in-law. Now this man owns land close to Des Moines, Iowa, and is in good circumstances, but he took a homestead and says he will be contented if he can only put in the rest of his days in Canada. He would get up in the morning and look out of the door and say: "Well, who wouldn't live in Canada?" Now I have been in 13 different states in the United States, and I never saw the chance that there is here for a man that has a little muscle and a little brains. Three cheers for Canada!

(Signed.)

EYESIGHT WAS IN DANGER

From Terrible Eczema—Baby's Head a Mass of Itching Rash and Sores —Disease Cured by Cuticura.

"Our little girl was two months old when she got a rash on her face and within five days her face and head were all one sore. We used different remedies but it got worse instead of better and we thought she would turn blind and that her ears would fall off. She suffered terribly, and would scratch until the blood came. This went on until she was five months old, then I had her under our family doctor's care, but she continued to grow worse. He said it was eczema. When she was seven months old I started to use the Cuticura Remedies and in two months our baby was a different girl. You could not see a sign of a sore and she was as fair as a new-born baby. She has not had a sign of the eczema since. Mrs. H. F. Budke, LeSueur, Minn., Apr. 15 and May 2, '07."

MINNESOTA RATE LAW KNOCKED OUT

Declared Unconstitutional by Reason of Heavy Penalties It Imposes.

YOUNG FOUND IN CONTEMPT

Attorney General Loses on All Points; Decision Opposes Both State and Its Courts.

Washington, March 25.—In refusing to grant to Attorney General Young of Minnesota a writ of habeas corpus releasing him from the penalty imposed by the United States circuit court for the district of Minnesota on the charge of contempt of court in instituting a proceeding in a state court for the enforcement of the railroad rate law after the federal court had prohibited such a course and in affirming the decision of Judge Pritchard of the United States circuit court for the Western district of North Carolina discharging from imprisonment James H. Wood, a ticket agent of the Southern Railway at Asheville, after he had been sentenced by the Asheville police court to serve a term on the rockpile on the charge of collecting for a ticket on that road a greater price than was permitted by the state railroad law, the supreme court of the United States yesterday added another to the series of decisions which have rendered notable the present term of that court.

Opposes State and Its Courts.

In both cases the right of the states to fix rates for railroads transportation was the issue and both involved conflicts between the federal and the state courts. The decision in each case was opposed both to the states and the courts. The opinion of the court in both cases was announced by Justice Peckham, and with the exception of Justice Harlan all the other members of the court stood behind him in the announcement of the court's finding. Justice Harlan read a dissenting opinion in the Young case, in which he took the view that the suit was practically a proceeding against the state and therefore not permissible under the eleventh amendment to the constitution. He therefore characterized the opinion as era making in the history of the court, said it had the effect of closing the courts of a state against the state iself and predicted that the result would be disastrous.

Young Loses on All Points.

The two cases were so similar that both practically were decided in one opinion. The particular pronouncement was made in the Minnesota case.

The decision was against Attorney General Young on all points. Substantially, the court decided:

That the circuit court of the United States had jurisdiction.

That the proceedings against the attorney general were against him as an individual, because he was attempting to enforce a law that was clearly unconstitutional by reason of the heavy fines imposed; and

That the state law was unconstitutional in that it denied to all person the equal protection of the law.

History of the Case.

The Minnesota rate law was passed at the last session of the legislature. Certain stockholders of the Northern Pacific railway company secured an injunction in the federal court for the district of Minnesota restraining the state officials from enforcing the law. This injunction was violated by Attorney General Young, who secured a writ of mandamus in the Ramsey county district court commanding the Northern Pacific company to comply with the rate law. This proceeding precipitated a sharp conflict between the federal and state courts. Mr. Young was summoned before the federal court and fined $100 for contempt. He appealed to the United States supreme court, which yesterday decided the case against him.

MINERS KILLED.

Caught Under Tons of Earth, Two Lives Are Crushed Out.

Norway, Mich., March 25. — John Beard, an Englishman, and John Orlie, an Austrian, both miners, were killed instantly at the Central Vulcan mine.

John Orlie hesitated on entering the drift and said that he thought it was not safe to work, but John Beard said it was all right, and they began to timber the drift. Just as they started their work the ground gave way above them, falling on them, killing them instantly. John Beard is single and is survived by three brothers and an aged mother in England. John Orlie is married and leaves a wife and four children.

Three Ticketed for Reformatory.

Tracy, Minn., March 25. — Three boys were arrested here on the charge of committing minor burglaries and carrying concealed weapons. One was found with a 38-caliber revolver on his person. They will undoubtedly be sentenced to the reformatory.

CAPTURE BRILLIANT WOMAN

Masquerading Countess Is Loaded Down With Choice Assortment of Burglars' Tools.

Paris, March 25.—A series of mysterious hotel robberies on the Riveria, extending over many years, has been explained in the arrest of the beautiful, dashing but masquerading countess of Montell. For years she countess of Montell had entertained lavishly both at Paris and the Riveria. Her wealth and jewels have drawn comment and admiration from far and near. Now she is declared one of the most ingenious, successful and audacious hotel thieves that has ever troubled the hotel proprietors of France. Her arrest at Nice reveals her not as the captivating brilliant countess, but as a thoroughly up-to-date burglar.

Robberies Baffle Police.

Wherever the countess stopped there always did mysterious and inexplicable robberies baffle the police. Gradually but vaguely the suspicion began to be directed toward the countess of Montell. The police investigated quietly the history of the countess. They found that she had been born of a respectable family and that her maiden name was Amelia Condemine. She married a man named Portal and came to live in Paris. Afterwards they separated and Mrs. Portal went to the United States. Two years later she returned to France as the countess of Montell. For several years she held brilliant sway in society.

Is Caught in the Act.

It was several years ago that the first thoughts of police suspicion drifted towards the countess, and her sensational arrest at Nice at one of the famous hotels is the culmination of long and patient watchfulness by the French detective service. Her undoing came in a moment of overeagerness to rob. Waiting detectives found her enveloped in a long and beautiful cloak bending over the door of the room of a wealthy American tourist. When the woman was searched the police found hidden in special pockets of her clothes pinchers, files, skeleton keys, screw drivers and no fewer than twenty-seven pairs of small, delicately made nippers used by burglars to unlock and lock a door with its own key when the key is on the inside of the door.

STORM DEVASTATES THE SOUTH.

Rain and Wind Cause Much Damage in Southern States.

New Orleans, La., March 25.—As a result of a heavy wind and rain storm which has raged in portions of Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama during the last twenty-four hours, much property has been destroyed, many persons have been injured and at least one person has been killed.

Hurricanes have been reported from East Feliciana parish, Louisiana, and Jefferson Davis county, Miss., while much damage was done in the neighborhood of Flomaton, Ala., by heavy rains. Washouts along the line of the Louisville & Nashville railroad north of Mobile have seriously interrupted traffic. All telegraph and telephone wires in the sections visited by the storm have been prostrated, and details regarding the damage done are in many instances lacking.

At Silver Creek, Miss., four stores were partially destroyed and about twenty other buildings were damaged. There was, however, no serious damage in the vicinity of this city.

Wind storms of cyclonic intensity were reported in several parts of Louisiana, being worse near the Mississippi river at Norwood. In East Feliciana parish a man named Rawlins was reported killed during a wind storm, which badly damaged the town

BATTLE RAGES IN CONVENTION

Turbulent Scenes Mark the State Gathering of Tennessee Republicans.

CHAIRMAN BADLY BEATEN UP

Black Eyes, Skinned Heads and Bruised Faces Testify to Fierceness of the Battle.

Nashville, Tenn., March 26. — Republicans of Tennessee assembled here yesterday morning for a state convention. Last night black eyes, skinned heads and bruised faces testified to the riot that marked the gathering. In the list of casualties Chairman Newell Sanders of the state executive committee figured prominently. His experience in the hall was one never to be forgotten by him, and to witnesses of the turbulent scene it seemed almost incredible that he suffered no real physical harm. As it was he presented a sorry picture when he emerged from the veritable battle which occurred between the two factions, one supporting the interests of Congressman W. P. Brownlow, and the other those of Former Commissioner of Pensions H. Clay Evans.

Overpowered by Numbers.

The Brownlow forces wanted W. J. Oliver of Knoxville for national committeeman; the Evans men favored the candidacy of Congressman N. W. Hale for that position. Incidentally Richard Austin is a candidate for congress against Mr. Hale. By sheer force of numbers and fighting powers the Brownlow-Oliver-Austin crowd took and held the hall. They nominated Ernest Caldwell for supreme court judge. Jesse L. Rogers, D. C. Swab, Jesse M. Littleton and H. B. Anderson were chosen for delegates at large to the national convention.

The convention adopted a motion that delegates to the national convention go uninstructed.

The Evans-Hale forces held no convention, but will meet to-day and get out a ticket.

FLOATING THEATER SUNK.

Parkersburg, March 26. — The steamer Columbia, towing a Marietta (Ohio) show boat, was sunk at Lock 18 in the Ohio river, above this city. The boat ran into the lock wall and sank in two minutes. The crew and actors on the show boat were saved. A misunderstanding of signals is said to have caused the accident.

ROW OVER $2.50 ENDS IN MURDER

Peter Karanen of Calumet Shoots John Ahlgren.

Calumet, Mich., March 26.—Yesterday afternoon, during a quarrel over $2.50, the price of a load of wood, Peter Karanen, a prominent Finn of Calumet, shot and almost instantly killed John Ahlgren, a well-to-do Swedish farmer. Ahlgren and Karanen were slightly intoxicated at the time.

TWO FATAL ACCIDENTS.

One Killed on Railroad Track and Another on Trolley Line.

Livingston, Mont., March 26. — James Coleman, an old-time resident of this city, employed as a trackman for the Northern Pacific, yesterday caught his foot in a frog and was run down by an engine and killed. Joseph Zerphink was hit by a block on the trolley line and killed.

"Bim the Button Man" Dead.

New York, March 26. — Meyer R. Bimberg, known widely as "Bim the Button Man," was found dead in bed last night. A week ago Mr. Bimberg contracted a cold which developed into tonsilitis. An hour or two before he was found dead a physician had sprayed his throat and Bimberg settled himself in bed for a nap.

STATE FAIR TO BE A HUMMER

Best Horses in Country Will Be in Races—Attractions Will Break All Records.

St. Paul, March 26.—The Minnesota state fair will be held Aug. 31 to Sept. 5 this year. It will be "bigger and better" than ever before.

This fact was fully established at the regular meeting of the board of managers, held all day yesterday in the office of Secretary C. N. Cosgrove, at the state fair grounds. Enough was accomplished at yesterday's meeting to make it certain that the state fair attractions this year will outclass all previous efforts of the board to furnish the people with interesting and high-class state fair features.

C. M. Griggs, vice president of the state fair association and superintendent of the grand stand attractions, is assured of being able to present this year nearly every trotting and pacing horse of note in the country, a fact made possible by the liberality of the board in hanging up such magnificent purses, and so get the very cream of the harness horse attractions of the United States. In all the state fair association will offer a total of $30,000 for the harness horse events.

The evening spectacle this fall will be "Minnesota in 1862." Old Fort Ridgely, as it was in the days of frontier life in Minnesota, will be reconstructed in the inclosure, and each night the fort will be attacked by a band of real Indians.

While the board did not finally close yesterday with regard to the proposed air ship races it has ample assurance that this marvelous means of annihilating space will be amply demonstrated on the fair grounds next fall.

At yesterday's meeting the board appropriated a total of $26,000 for improvements to the grounds and buildings. A number of concessions were granted for the erection of new machinery exhibition buildings and other exhibits. Indications also point to the greatest exhibition of cattle, horses, sheep and other live stock ever seen at the fair, as well as in the other exhibits.

EMMA GOLDMAN TALKS.

Anarchist "Queen" Delivers Her Chicago Speech in Minneapolis.

Minneapolis, March 26. — Emma Goldman, queen of the anarchists, spoke in Holcomb's hall, on Fourth street south, last night to 700 men, boys, police officers and detectives, many of whom kept awake throughout the entire discourse, which was the one that Emma had prepared to give in Chicago, changing her mind about it after the police said she shouldn't.

Along about 9:30 she attracted some attention by saying that "liberty in this country is a vast lie. This was never more manifest than in the famous Haywood-Moyer-Pettibone trial. There is a conspiracy in this country against anarchists that is going to cause trouble. Some people think anarchy means violence, but it doesn't. Why, anarchy is the most beautiful theory in the world."

OVATION FOR TILL.

"Plaster" Doctor of Somerset, Wis., Has 1,300 Visitors.

Stillwater, Minn., March 26.—Great throngs of people are gathered at Somerset to be treated by John Till, the plaster doctor. Many bus loads of people left this city, and it is said that there were 1,300 people there yesterday, getting there by train and buses. When Till was discharged in Hudson Tuesday on the theory that no valid complaint had been made against him he left for home. He was met by a great throng of people from Somerset some distance from the village, headed by a brass band and escorted home. There was a big demonstration of welcome by villagers and applicants for the healing art in the village Tuesday night.

FIRE SWEEPING PRAIRIES.

Region Near Chamberlain, S. D., Is Being Devastated.

Chamberlain, S. D., March 26.—The most disastrous prairie fire this section has known in many years started yesterday afternoon between Pukwaa and Kimball. A very high wind carried it over a large area and at last reports it was still traveling southeast. A number of farmers lost all their buildings.

Another fire on American Island, Chamberlain's city park, did considerable damage, hundreds of evergreens and other trees being destroyed before the fire was put out.

TWO SCORE HURT IN TROLLEY WRECK

Interurban Car Jumps the Track and Crashes Into a Store in Detroit.

TWO OF THE VICTIMS MAY DIE

Front of Two-story Building Is Demolished—Defective Rail Is Cause of the Accident.

Detroit, Mich., March 26. — Two score of people were injured yesterday when an interurban car was derailed by defective rails near Thirty-first street and plowed across the brick pavement into a store building. The car was wrecked and the front of the two-story building was demolished. Twenty persons were taken to the hospitals for treatment, and nearly another score received minor injuries which were dressed at the scene of the accident. Two of the injured are reported to be in a serious condition.

Defective Rail Is Cause.

The car, running at about twenty to twenty-five miles an hour when it struck the defective rail, left the track and started for the curbstone. The forty-five-foot car crushed through a large telegraph pole and into the two-story brick dry goods store of A. Silberstein. It was hurled into the building for a distance of six feet. The roof of the car was torn off, while the body continued on into the store.

When the car had stopped it was lying on its side with the passengers wedged in among the seats on the lower side. They were covered with broken glass and woodwork, and it is miraculous that more of them were not fatally injured. Most of them had to be taken out through the windows.

CHIEF SHIPPY IS EXONERATED.

Coroner's Jury Declares That Chicago Chief Was Justified.

Chicago, March 26. — A coroner's jury last night declared Chief of Police Shippy and J. F. Foley, his driver, to have been justified in killing Averbuch, the young Russian Jew who attacked the chief in his home recently. The verdict was rendered after a short deliberation, following an exhaustive inquiry into the circumstances surrounding the shooting. More than a score of witnesses were examined, chief among them being Miss Olga Averbuch, sister of the dead man; Chief Shippy himself; his son Harry, who is recovering from an all but fatal shot through the chest received in the affray, and other members of the chief's household. The verdict, after a perfunctory recital of the jury's finding as to the cause of Averbuch's death, read:

"From the testimony presented we, the jury, believe that said shooting was justifiable and exonerate said George M. Shippy and James F. Foley from blame."

DUKE OF DEVONSHIRE DEAD.

England Loses a Famous Political Leader.

London, March 26.—Spencer Compton Cavendish, eighth duke of Devonshire, died at Cannes of heart failure. He was born July 23, 1833.

The news of the death of the duke of Devonshire came unexpectedly to England and has caused widespread regret. Although the duke had been ailing since he suffered a sudden attack of heart weakness at Windsor castle last June, and in spite of some alarming reports that reached London during his sojourn in Egypt this winter, the recent accounts of his health had been so reassuring that the news of his death has come almost as a surprise.

NO OPERATOR ON DUTY.

Result Is Fatal Wreck on Queen & Crescent in Kentucky.

Lexington, Ky., March 26.—Twenty persons were injured, three fatally, in a head-on collision between a passenger train on the Queen & Crescent and a special freight train at Cardville crossing. The night operator for the Queen & Crescent had been relieved several weeks ago and the day operator had not yet reported for duty.

Gruesome Discovery by Hunters Near Granite City, Ill.

Granite City, Ill., March 26.—Four hunters walking along Cabaret slough saw a human hand extending above the surface of the stream. Seizing hold, they dragged out the body of William Stein, who disappeared two weeks ago. A bullet hole in the head leads to the belief that he was murdered.

FRIGHT KILLS AGED IOWAN.

Sees Helpless Victims on Operating Tables and Collapses.

Creston, Iowa, March 26.—Walter Wycoff, a Masenna pioneer, died of fright, while waiting his turn on the operating table at the Creston hospital. He lay in such a position that he saw a number of patients go to the table and later be wheeled away apparently lifeless. The sight so wrought upon his mind that he collapsed and died of heart failure.

ROBBED OF $5,000 PAY ROLL

Highwaymen Hold Up Paymaster—Two Are Captured, but Third Escapes With Booty.

Peoria, Ill., March 26. — Frank Frorer, president of a Lincoln (Ill.) bank and owner of the Lincoln Mining company, was held up by highwaymen yesterday afternoon and robbed of $5,000—the monthly payroll of the company. Three men did the work and two of them are caught, but the third escaped with the money after a running fight with the police and deputy sheriffs. The robbery occurred within two blocks of the public square. Frorer was on the way to the mine in a light wagon, carrying two satchels containing the money in small amounts, already counted for the miners. He was approached on the street by three men in a buggy and two of them got out of the buggy and jumping into Frorer's rig quickly bore him to the ground and grabbed the satchels, threw them into the buggy, jumped in and started out of the city at a fast clip. Frorer, who was not seriously injured, returned to the office and notified the officials. The sheriff and night captain of police started at once and pursued the robbers two miles, at which point two men left the buggy and took to the cornfields. After a short time they were discovered and a duel began. Five shots were fired before the two surrendered, but neither was injured. The men refuse to give their names, and so far have not been identified. The third man, who escaped, was dark complexioned, about five feet ten inches tall and wore brown clothes.

An inquest was held and the jury returned a verdict that Manderud came to his death in the manhole of the city sewer, cause unknown.

San Francisco, March 26.—Durham W. Stevens, who was shot by a Korean Monday, died last night at 11:30 o'clock, a few minutes after recovery from the anaesthetic administered when the operation was performed earlier in the evening.

Alarming symptoms appeared late last night and an operation hastily performed revealed that peritonitis had set in. The intestines were found to be punctured in six places.

FIERCE FIGHT WITH ROBERS.

Attempt to Murder Man So They Can Rob Bank Unmolested.

Danville, Ill., March 26. — Robbers last night broke into the State bank at Chrisman, and fearing to dynamite the bank safe because of the presence upstairs of J. W. Daily, who lives over the bank, attempted to murder him in his room. He fought a duel with the robbers and wounded one after about twenty shots had been fired. The men escaped and Daily is at the head of a posse which is pursuing them.

Congress.

Resume of the Week's Proceedings.

Wednesday.

Washington, March 19.—General debate on the pension appropriation bill continued for over four hours in the house of representatives to-day. The subjects discussed took a wide range—politics, finance, the trusts and the president's last special message all receiving attention.

At 4:24 the house adjourned out of respect to the memory of the late United States Senator William Pinckney Whyte of Maryland.

The senate was in session but ten minutes, adjourning in respect to Mr. Whyte.

Thursday.

Washington, March 20. — Continuing his speech begun in the senate last Tuesday, Senator La Follette of Wisconsin yesterday devoted considerable time to discussing a proposition for the physical valuation of railroads. The blind senator from Oklahoma, Mr. Gore, attempted to draw Mr. La Follette into a criticism of the actions of the president and Secretary Cortelyou in connection with the recent financial disturbance, but failed. The Wisconsin senator expressed opinion that the president had acted in a way which he believed at the time to be in the interest of the country.

After several hours of spirited discussion over the proposition to abolish seventeen of the eighteen existing pension agencies and consolidate pension disbursements in Washington, the house of representatives yesterday passed the pension appropriation bill, carrying $150,869,000, the largest sum ever authorized by that measure.

Friday.

Washington, March 21.—Nearly the entire session of the senate yesterday was consumed by the consideration and final vote on the ship subsidy bill, which was passed without a division of the senate being called for.

A bill was also passed increasing the salaries of men employed in the life-saving service.

More criticism of President Roosevelt was indulged in the house of representatives yesterday, when he was roundly denounced by Mr. Hardwick of Georgia for failing to send to congress all information regarding corporations which had come into his possession. The president, however, found a ready and vigorous defender in Mr. Mann of Illinois, who asserted that the president had acted with the utmost good faith in sending to congress all the information that had come to him.

Saturday.

Washington, March 23.—Without being materially amended in any form, the fortification appropriation bill was passed by the house Saturday. During the closing debate the war department was criticised by several members regarding the money spent on fortifications at Subig bay, which it was charged was wasted in view of a later recommendation that the defenses at Cavite be strengthened.

Monday.

Washington, March 24. — A scene somewhat out of the ordinary was enacted in the house of representatives yesterday because of a charge made by Mr. Mann of Illinois that Mr. Sulzer of New York had put in the Congressional Record what purported to be a speech delivered by him last Saturday, but which Mr. Mann charged was not the one delivered. It all had to do with Mr. Sulzer's claim that he and not Mr. Mann was the author of the legislation which brought the department of commerce and labor into being. A resolution offered by Mr. Mann to expunge the printed speech from the record was adopted by a strict party vote, but not until after the house had been treated to a bitter denunciation of Mr. Mann by Mr. Sulzer and several lively tilts between the latter and the speaker.

The senate after a brief session adjourned out of respect to the memory of Senator Bryan of Florida, who died Sunday.

Tuesday.

Washington, March 25.—Determination to conduct a filibuster on all accasions where opportunity presented itself in order to force the Republicans to action on an employers' liability bill and other measures deemed necessary of enactment was announced by Mr. Williams of Mississippi in the house of representatives yesterday during the consideration of the agricultural bill. He said he had waited to see some evidences of an intention to transact business which the people were demanding, but finding none had reached the conclusion that the time was ripe to force the hand of the Republican party. The Democrats cheered the announcement.

General debate on the agriculture appropriation bill continued throughout the day.

The currency bill was practically given exclusive right of way in the senate yesterday until it is disposed of by an announcement by Senator Aldrich that he would move to-day to give it that status in the senate. Senator La Follette concluded the third installment of his speech on the currency bill.

Last Notice

This the last issue of THE SPECTATOR before April 1st when the new law goes into effect. To a large number of our subscribers this is the last issue of THE SPECTATOR they will receive. It will not pay us to put a one cent stamp on a paper to man who refuses to pay. If you want THE SPECTATOR in the future you will have to pay for it. We think we have given our delinquent subscribers sufficient notice.

A Norman county farmer made four dollars a day above expenses this winter with one thousand hens.

A great many seem to think that Jacobson is destined to be the political Moses who will lead the republicans this year.

Wm. McGinty is the first political aspirant in Red Lake county having filed for the democratic nomination for sheriff.

District court has been in session at Red Lake Falls this week. This community was peaceful and furnished no litigants.

If newspaper men had the pull that the railroads have we would all make our delinquent subscribers jump like jack rabbits.

Congressman J. Adam Bede of Duluth says that the present congress is a very industrious one. J. Adam is a noted humorist.

The supreme court decision would indicate that the railroads are above the laws of our state. Laws are made for the poor people to observe, anyway.

Joel P. Heatwole, former congressman from the 3rd district and well known over the state as a clever politician is out for governor on a local option platform.

Sunbeam—We understand that Charles Fellman, of St. Hilaire, has decided to become a candidate for sheriff of Red Lake county. He will file for the nomination of the republican party at the September primary election. Mr. Fellman is a man that is well qualified for the position, and of him it can truly be said, that all who know him are his friends.

Cass Lake Times—Senator LaFollette has discovered what he believes to be a new version of the cause of the late panic and last Monday aired his views in the senate to an admiring audience. He does not believe in the idea advanced by the Roosevelt haters that the president, in his zeal to make honest men out of rogues caused the disturbance, but that our pious friend John D. Rockefeller and our bloated bond-holder E. T. Morgan laid a plan to put the country in a financial turmoil, and then, with their millions of ready cash to reap the harvest of heavy per cents money always commands in panics. The speaker flayed these pious frauds for an hour or more and left the Roosevelt haters in an unenviable condition. He forgot to say that John D. went to his prayers next evening and fervently prayed and sang his familiar hymn beginning with, "Praise God from whom all blessings flow," and went to bed fifty millions richer.

Hurrah for Patterson

Thief River Falls—H. E. Ives, the St. Hilaire editor, was in the city yesterday. Mr. Ives says that the residents of St. Hilaire are urging Daniel Patterson to become a candidate for delegate from the Ninth district to the national convention to be held in Chicago this summer. There is no man in Red Lake county that the News would be more pleased to see honored, and there is no man in the ninth congressional district better qualified to represent the sentiment of the district. From now on, Mr. Patterson's friends in Red Lake county are going to conduct an active campaign in his behalf and their chances of success are good.

Mr. Patterson is one the old and highly esteemed residents of St. Hilaire, and has a host of friend in all parts of the Red River Valley. He has been a life long Republican, and stands for the "square deal" three hundred and sixty five days in the year.

In regard to the above we will say that a number of friends of Mr. Patterson in this vicinity have decided to ask that the Red Lake county republican convention instruct its delegates to the district convention to use their best efforts to elect Daniel Patterson as one of the delegates to the national convention. Mr. Patterson has been a resident of t is section since 1882 and has always been a consistent republican and a hard worker for the party, and has never been a candidate for any position in the gift of the party.

There is probably no man in this congressional district more entitled to recognition than he, and he has a host of friends who will naturally aid him in the fight. If elected there is no question but that he will cast his vote for Taft.

SENIOR CLASS PLAY TONIGHT

"Dot, the Miner's Daughter" to be Presented By the Senior Class of the Thief River Falls High School at Imperial Hall.

The Seniors of the Thief River Falls High School will present "Dot, the Miner's Daughter" as their class play at the Imperial Hall this evening, the performance to begin promptly at 8 o'clock and everybody should make it a point to be there at that time. Admission will be 35 and 25 cents.

The play will be given under the auspicies of the St. Hilaire public schools and there is no reason why it should not be greeted by the largest audience that St. Hilaire can produce.

This well known drama abounds in thrilling scenes thruout and will furnish two hours of excellent entertainment. It has been prepared under the most careful supervision and the individuals representing the several characters of the caste are well qualified to assume their respective parts. It is well up to the standard of former class plays, and this is saying not a little. The following is a synopsis of the play:

David Mason, a farmer, writes a confession of how he killed George (Bancroft) Clifton, took Dot Clifton, the daughter, and fled. Floyd, the villian, secures fatal paper, decides to marry Dot, to secure her fortune. Royal Meadows, Dot's lover endeavors to prevent this. Herbert, Mr. Mason's son, just home from school, loves Winnifred Clifton, Dot's friend. Winnifred, while at school, has secretly married Floyd, but loves Herbert. Floyd threatens to disclose Mr. Mason's crime to secure his consent to marriage with Dot. Dot consents to save her supposed father. Winnifred is kidnapped to keep Dot from knowing the truth about Floyd. Herbert finds her. They return just in time to prevent the marriage. Floyd exposes Mr. Mason. Both are imprisoned. Floyd escapes and is drowned. George Clifton, who had only been injured, appears on scene in time to save David. Reconcilliation between Mr. and Mrs. Clifton. Dot and Winnifred find they are sisters. Dot and Royal, Winnifred and Herbert receive blessings from their parents who consent to their prospective marriages. Hopzibah and Ebony negro servants of Mr. Mason, furnish the fun.

$64,000 to Farmers

Crookston Daily Journal.—Charles Gustafson who spent last Sunday as guest of his sister at 414 Stewart Avenue in Sampsons adition, is the treasurer of the St. Hilaire creamery, if not the most prosperous, a close second to any creamery in the northwest. This creamery made $64,000 for its patrons last year paying out that amount over the counter in hard cash.

The creamery's high grade of product thru the efforts and intelligence of the buttermaker George Austin, is largely responsible for this large amount of earnings of a creamery of such a size. The premium in the way of better creamery butter is sometimes three or four cents above the market price.

School Notes

Notice to Parents:

A "beginner's class" will be started right after vacation. All those having children that will attend school next fall should send them now even tho they are less than six years old. This will give them a good start in their work and an even start as a class. Send them the first day after vacation so that they attend 40 days and thereby draw apportionment money. Children will not be allowed to enter after April 8.

Casper E. Bergh, Supt.

Vacation next week. Do you think you'll skate or go boating?

Make it a duty to attend the Thief River Falls high school play Saturday evening. You'll enjoy it immensely and besides you'll be doing something for our own school.

The high school room now looks better, in fact its walls are decorated as they should have been long ago. Three large pictures now grace the walls—portraits of Francis E. Willard, Phillip H. Sheridan on his war horse and a picture entitled, "The Shepherdess". The last one obtained, that of Sheridan, was bought with the money taken in at the lecture.

The third grade pupils are eager over "Stories of our Humble Friends," a supplementary reader just received. They read a story and then tell many of their own which are brought to mind by the one just read. This is a good test of the book—it arouses thought on the past of the pupils. A teacher's highest and most important service to a pupil is being attained when she makes him think for himself.

MAPLE SAP

DORA EICKHOFF, 3rd GRADE

In the spring the men go out in the woods to get the maple sap.

The boys like to go with their fathers when they go to get the sap because they can have so much maple sugar to eat. The men make a hole in the maple tree and let the sap run into a pail. They have two poles fixed together and a fire under it and they have a kettle filled with maple sap.

They have a tank filled with maple sap and a tube goes from the tank to the kettle.

First it turns to maple syrup and then if you leave it there longer it will turn to maple sugar. Maple sugar is very expensive.

MAPLE SAP

ECHO OLSON, 3rd GRADE

Maple sap is sweet. There are many kinds of sap. Some is sweet and some bitter. Maple sap is at the bottom of the tree in winter and comes up in summer. When it comes up men put holes in the trees and put a spout in so the sap can run out.

The sap is then put into a large tank and from there is put into a large kettle. Soon the sap is syrup and then it turns to sugar.

People build houses or sheds out in the woods and have a great pile of wood in front. They generally stay there six weeks.

There is a certain young in this village, whose name we will withhold, of whom the following may be said:

He wears his once proud look no more,
His egotism has departed;
In fact, he seems morose and sore
Who once was jaunty and light-hearted;
He wears the look we know as "drawn."
His tones are tinctured with regret;
A quarter of the leap year's gone,
And not a girl has asked him yet.

STORIES WORTH WHILE

William James, the famous psychologist of Harvard, said: "The oldest, the most momentous associations oftentimes attach themselves to the most trifling things.

"Thus at a dinner that I once attended the hostess said to a sour-faced man on her left:

"'May I help you to some of the rolled rice, Mr. Smith?'

"'Rice? No, thank you; no rice for me,' Smith answered, vehemently. 'It is associated with the worst mistake of my life.'"—Rochester Herald.

Signing Pledge Illegal.

The clergyman recorded complacently the twenty-seventh New Year pledge taking:

"Excellent work. A glorious day," he said. "And yet do you know that there was once a time when all this sort of thing was criminal?"

"No!"

"Yes. It was in India, at the beginning of the English occupation. Medical men believed in those days that a white man could not live in India without drinking. They thought he needed half a pint of whisky, or its equivalent, every day. And they insisted on his taking it.

"Temperance societies, total abstinence and the signing of the pledge were things forbidden in India. Such things were thought injurious to the white man's health out there. Hence to go in for them was to be arrested, fined, imprisoned, banished.

"But to-day in India total abstinence is encouraged, for it has been found that the abstainer stands the heat far better than does the man who drinks."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Bad Scares.

At a dinner given a few nights ago Speaker Cannon, Representative Tawney and many others were discussing the times in their lives that they had really been scared. "Uncle Joe" told of an experience on the prairies of Illinois in the early days and said he guessed that was the occasion when he was more frightened than on any other.

"Possibly so," said Tawney; "but if you were ever any worse scared than you were the other night when I raked in that juicy jackpot with a bobtail I don't see how you survived to tell about it."

"That's so, and I must say no one but an expert on appropriations could have turned the trick so cleverly," retorted the speaker.—Washington Correspondence New York World.

Proposing to a Widow.

He—Would you think me very—I mean, would it be bad taste on my part——

She (hastily)—Not a bit.

He—But you don't know—you can't know—what I was going to say. I was going to say, would it be very impertinent of me if I——

She (tenderly)—I think I do know, Harry, and I can assure you that I should not resent it in the least.

He—Ah, but it was something much more serious than you imagine—something about——

She (looking down)—Something about your future life?

He—No; not quite so serious as that. Something about my present life.

She—That's what I meant—the second half of your present life.

He—Oh, I'm only twenty-seven, you know.

She—I know; but when a man contemplates a great change in his life——

He—You did know, then?

She—Months ago, dearest. I read it in your eyes the first day we met.

He—By Jove! Then—why, I've done it!

She (weeping a little)—Harry, you have swept me off my feet!

He—My love! I know I was brutally frank, but don't cry.

She—You men! How irresistible you are!—Sketch.

Mrs. Drew's husband had bought an automobile, and its commanding merits formed the sole topic of Mrs. Drew's conversation.

"You just ought to take a ride in it, Mrs. Farrell," she said to a neighbor who, as she knew, had no automobile. "It's almost noiseless, it never gets out of order, has all the modern improvements, goes like the wind, and it's as easy as a rocking chair. No Matter.

Alfred Edwards of Santa Barbara, cashier of the Commercial bank and a well-known Elk, arrived at the Jefferson yesterday with his boy.

While he was showing the youngster the sights along Van Ness avenue something happened to the elevator. On the door of the cage had been hung the usual sign, "Not running."

"Jack," directed the watchful father, when they returned to the hotel office, "before you go out to see your grandmother, you must have your shoes repolished, and right now you'd better take the key and go up to our room, it's on the top floor, remember, and get yourself a handkerchief."

The sign had just caught the boy's eye. "Do I have to go, papa?" he whined. "It's 'not running.'"

"That doesn't make any difference. I want you always to keep one in your pocket."—San Francisco Chronicle.

An Annuity.

Shortly after Congressman Maddox of Georgia had turned over part of his law practice to his son, the young man came into the office with a flushed, triumphant face.

"Pap," he began, "you know that Wilkins case you've been trying for the last ten years?"

The congressman nodded.

"Well," said the young man, "I've settled it?"

"Settled it!" ejaculated his father, "Settled it! Why, my boy, I gave you that case as an annuity!"—Woman's Home Companion.

"Ah, g'wan wid yez," retorted the cabby. "D'ye think I'm goin' to put in the whole day drivin' you around for two hours? Gitap!"

I AM A MOTHER

How many American women in lonely homes to-day long for this blessing to come into their lives, and to be able to utter these words, but because of some organic derangement this happiness is denied them.

Every woman interested in this subject should know that preparation for healthy maternity is accomplished by the use of

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND

Mrs. Maggie Gilmer, of West Union, S. C., writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"I was greatly run-down in health from a weakness peculiar to my sex, when Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended to me. It not only restored me to perfect health, but to my delight I am a mother."

Mrs. Josephine Hall, of Bardstown, Ky., writes:

"I was a very great sufferer from female troubles, and my physician failed to help me. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound not only restored me to perfect health, but I am now a proud mother."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

DEEP CRACKS FROM ECZEMA

Could Lay Slate-Pencil in One—Hands in Dreadful State—Permanent Cure in Cuticura.

"I had eczema on my hands for about seven years and during that time I had used several so-called remedies, together with physicians' and druggists' prescriptions. The disease was so bad on my hands that I could lay a slate-pencil in one of the cracks and a rule placed across the hand would not touch the pencil. I kept using remedy after remedy, and while some gave partial relief, none relieved as much as did the first box of Cuticura Ointment. I made a purchase of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and my hands were perfectly cured after two boxes of Cuticura Ointment and one cake of Cuticura Soap were used. W. H. OATS YIELDED 90 BUSHELS TO THE ACRE.

The following letter written the Dominion Government Commissioner of Emigration speaks for itself. It proves the story of the Agents of the Government that on the free homesteads offered by the Government it is possible to become comfortably well off in a few years:

Regina, Sask., 23rd Nov., 1907.

Commissioner of Immigration,
Winnipeg.

Dear Sir:

It is with pleasure that I reply to your request. Some years ago I took up a homestead for myself and also one for my son. The half section which we own is situated between Rouleau and Drinkwater, adjoining the Moose Jaw creek, is a low level and heavy land. We put in 70 acres of wheat in stubble, which went 20 bushels to the acre, and 30 acres of summer fallow, which went 25 bushels to the acre. All the wheat we harvested this year is No. 1 hard. That means the best wheat that can be raised on the earth. We did not sell any wheat yet as we intend to keep one part for our own seed, and sell the other part to people who want first-class seed, for there is no doubt if you sow good wheat you will harvest good wheat. We also threshed 9,000 bushels of first-class oats out of 160 acres, 80 acres has been fall plowing which yielded 90 bushels per acre, and 80 acres stubble, which went 30 bushels to the acre. These oats are the best kind that can be raised. We have shipped three car loads of them, and got 53 cents per bushel clear. All our grain was cut in the last week of the month of August before any frost could touch it.

Notwithstanding the fact that we have had a late spring, and that the weather conditions this year were very adverse and unfavorable, we will make more money out of our crop this year than last.

For myself I feel compelled to say that Western Canada crops cannot be checked, even by unusual conditions.

I am, dear sir,
Yours truly,
(Signed) A. Kaltenbrunner.

LARGEST BATH IN THE WORLD.

Swimming Pool Near London, Eng., Opened, Holds 1,360,000 Gallons.

The biggest swimming pool in the world has just been officially put in commission at Tooting Bee Common, England. It is 300 feet in length and is 99 feet wide. With a capacity of 1,360,000 gallons of water it is so arranged that 80,000 gallons can be pumped into it daily, thereby insuring a partial flow all the time. By this plan it will not be necessary to clean the bath more than once a year. To empty the bath and refill it means an expenditure of $200. The depth of the pool is 6 feet 6 inches. It has no covering overhead, but all around there is ample accommodation for spectators.

The work of construction was begun about a year and a half ago, and was so far advanced last fall that it was used for general purposes. The fixtures, of course, were only in a rough state; nevertheless about three thousand persons visited the big pool every day for their dip. One day in the week is set aside for women, and on these days the bath is taxed to its fullest. There is no admission charge. In spite of the large number of bathers no fatality has so far occurred, but the bath attendants have rescued thirteen persons, and they received the Royal Humane society medal last year for saving two persons from the deep end. The bath is situated in the most picturesque part of the common.

HAPPY OLD AGE

Most Likely to Follow Proper Eating.

As old age advances, we require less food to replace waste, and food that will not overtax the digestive organs, while supplying true nourishment.

Such an ideal food is found in Grape-Nuts, made of whole wheat and barley by long baking and action of diastase in the barley which changes the starch into sugar.

The phosphates also, placed up under the bran-coat of the wheat, are included in Grape-Nuts, but left out of white flour. They are necessary to the building of brain and nerve cells.

"I have used Grape-Nuts," writes an Iowa man, "for 8 years and feel as good and am stronger than I was ten years ago. I am over 74 years old, and attend to my business every day.

"Among my customers I meet a man every day who is 92 years old and attributes his good health to the use of Grape-Nuts and Postum which he has used for the last 5 years. He mixes Grape-Nuts with Postum and says they go fine together.

"For many years before I began to eat Grape-Nuts, I could not say that I enjoyed life or knew what it was to be able to say 'I am well.' I suffered greatly with constipation, now my habits are as regular as ever in my life.

"Whenever I make extra effort I depend on Grape-Nuts food and it just fills the bill. I can think and write a great deal easier."

WAS STANDING IN 1800.

Wooden Structure Then Occupied Site of Treasury Department.

The great seat of government was moved from Philadelphia to Washington in 1800. When, in the autumn of that year, Abigail Adams, the first mistress of the White House, took up her residence in that historical dwelling, her impressions of the national capital were decidedly unfavorable. In a letter of about that date she refers to the town as "only a city in name—here and there a small cot without a glass window interspersed among the forests."

Not far from the White House, however, on the very site of the present building, was a wooden structure, then newly finished, which was occupied by the treasury department.

This wooden building, which faced Fifteenth street, was three stories high, but of such inadequate size that 50 clerks who at that time composed the fiscal staff of the government, did not find comfortable room in it. On which account the official records of the department, which had been brought over from Philadelphia, were deposited in Sears' store, near by, where they were partly destroyed by fire soon afterward, many priceless historical documents being thus lost.

The structure occupied by the treasury was itself partly burned in 1801, and 13 years later was entirely wiped out by fire, together with most of its files and archives. Rebuilt in 1817, it was burned again in 1833, and this led in 1836 to an appropriation of money by congress for a new building.

This new building, which was finished in 1842 at a cost of $661,000, stands to-day. It is the one that is now about to be torn down—at all events, the whole front of it.

WASHINGTON TO HAVE PRINCE.

Austria Sends Scion of Ancient Line as Military Attache.

Austria has come to the rescue of the American capital, says the New York Press. In the new year assignments to the embassy are a prince, a count and a baron, all bachelors and belonging to the old aristocracy. Counts and barons are rather common, but the prince may cause a flutter. He is known in the official records as Vincent Alfred Guillaume Marie Gabriel, prince of Windisch-Graetz and Baron de Waldstein, and he will inherit from his father other high-sounding titles. The prince belongs to a mediatized family of Austria, and, though he may marry royalty, he is not compelled to do so. It may be he would like a wife such as his friend, Count Szechenyi, has won.

Prince Vincent is 25 years old, and is described as one of the representative aristocrats of his generation. He figures merely as an honorary attache on the Austro-Hungarian embassy staff, and that will leave him free to follow his social bent. The family owns a large estate in the Syrian mountains, long famous for game and for historic hunting parties. It has fine houses in Vienna and Prague and a superb chateau in Tachau.

Novel Method of Advertising.

A merchant in State street took a novel method of advertising his wares last week, says the Chicago Inter Ocean. Two show cases of the upright variety stood in front of his door, and on each was planted a dog dressed in gaudy blankets and bedecked with miniature "plug" hats. Each held a stick in its mouth, from which were suspended in banner fashion placards setting forth the merits of the merchant's goods. One of the dogs was a splendid specimen of a brindle bull; the other was an Irish terrier, the saucy expression of whose face was accentuated by the "plug" hat cocked rakishly over one ear. The two eyed the crowd somewhat bashfully and anon looked at each other as though to say: "To what base uses may we come at last?" Judging from the expressions heard in the crowd, which almost blocked the thoroughfare, the dogs were more a detriment to the storekeeper's trade than an ad. They shivered in the keen air, despite the protecting blankets, and looked so wistfully toward the store door, as though begging to be released from their exposed position, that the people were more moved to pity them and condemn the storekeeper than to purchase his goods.

Had to Give Up Decoration.

About four years ago a prominent army officer was sent abroad to witness some army maneuvers. After they were over he was decorated by the foreign government, but until congress gave him permission to accept the distinction he could not wear the order. His sister, well known in Washington society, saw the order and admired it very much, so she calmly wore it at a public reception, and then at numerous dinners. One day the ambassador who represented the country which had conferred the decoration upon her brother called upon her. After a few minutes' conversation he broached the errand that brought him there.

"Madam," he said, courteously, "I have called upon a rather delicate matter. My government has been informed that you are wearing the decoration given to your brother. Such an order is never worn by men or women unless conferred upon them personally for some special act or occasion. I must therefore request you to return it to your brother."

Easy Jobs at Washington.

There are some strange jobs around the United States capitol. One favored constituent of an influential congressman draws a fat salary for sprinkling tooth powder in the capitol telephones. Once a week this happy mortal, with a smile upon his face, makes the rounds of the various committee rooms and carefully dusts into the receivers of the telephones a little pink, scented tooth powder. Thus statesmen are enabled to breathe sweet perfume as they talk over the phone. There is another employe who is the "official measurer" of the house of representatives. Whenever a bookcase needs a new curtain he drops around and takes the measurements, but he never does any real work.

PRESIDENT PUTS IT UP TO CONGRESS

Special Message Calls Attention to Measures Which Demand Attention.

TAKES THE PART OF LABOR

New Employers' Liability Act; Modification of Injunction Power; Tariff Revision.

Washington, March 27. — A special message from the president was read in both houses of congress yesterday. The president calls attention to certain measures upon which he thinks action should be taken by congress before the close of the present session. As regards most if not all of the matters, bills have been introduced into one or the other of the two houses, and the president thinks it is not too much to hope that action will be taken one way or the other on these bills at the present session. The president says that he has repeatedly suggested action on most of these measures.

The message was closely followed in the house. The declaration that the time had come for a revision of the tariff was applauded by the Democrats. The Republicans confined their applause to the message as a whole.

Briefly stated the measures upon which action is urged are:

Prohibition of child labor throughout the nation.

An immediate re-enactment of an employers' liability law conforming to the recent decision of the United States supreme court.

A law giving compensation to government employes for injury or death incurred in its service.

Action in regard to injunctions in labor disputes.

Amend the interstate commerce law so as to give the railroads the right to make traffic agreements subject to the approval of the interstate commerce commission.

Encouragement of trade agreements between employer and employe.

Nothing should be done to legalize either a blacklist or boycott that would be illegal at common law.

Prompt action on financial legislation and postal savings bank.

The time has come when we should prepare for a revision of the tariff. Provision should be made at this session for collecting full material which will enable the congress elected next fall to act immediately after it comes into existence.

Our forests need protection and one method of protecting them would be to put upon the free list wood pulp, with a corresponding reduction upon paper made from wood pulp. The president expresses the opinion that this change in the tariff could be made with advantage forthwith.

STOLE $1,105,000 FROM BANK.

Pittsburg Bank Scandal Reaches Astounding Proportions.

Pittsburg, March 29. — With the peculations from the Farmers' Deposit National bank officially declared to be $1,105,000 and new informations filed against the self-confessed embezzlers, it is insistently rumored that within the next twenty-four hours informations will be filed against business men in other cities as well as against citizens of Pittsburg not yet mentioned in connection with the affair.

Government officials are astounded at the amount of the thefts and declare that never before has a national bank been victimized to such an extent in such a manner. The accused teller and auditor have confessed to the most open and barefaced falsity in their conduct of the bank's affairs, and more than half the amount taken is declared to have been appropriated within the last eight months.

A sensation was caused here yesterday when Bank Examiner W. L. Folds made a third information against Henry Reiber, paying teller, and John Young, auditor, of the Farmers' Deposit National bank, charging them with misapplying funds of the bank amounting to $1,105,000. The previous amounts named were $85,000 and $300,000.

Reiber and Young are in the county jail, where they were placed following their arrest last Monday night. They are held in $250,000 bail.

POSSE CHASES FEUDISTS.

Two Italians Fatally Wounded as Result of Imported Vendetta.

South Bend, Ind., March 29.—As a result of a feud which had its inception at Mirano, Italy, Anthony Comporti and Selementa Montelani were shot and probably fatally wounded here last night. Their would-be murderers have been traced to a wood five miles northeast of Niles, Mich. Armed officers are in pursuit.

Barracks Burned.

Panama, March 29.—A dispatch received here yesterday from San Salvador reports that a fire has occurred in the soldiers' barracks of Zapote and in the polytechnic school, but that all the arms and ammunition were saved.

Widow Is Robbed of $2,000.

Moorhead, Minn., March 29. — Charged with robbing an aged widow of $2,000, John Olson was arrested here yesterday and will be taken back to Harvey, N. D., to be tried.

FRENCH MINISTER IS ALARMED

Advises Refugees Asylumed in Legation to Arm Themselves to Resist Attack.

Port au Prince, April 2.—The spirit of uncertainty and of unrest still prevails in Port au Prince. The recent abortive attempt at a second uprising here, in which Gen. Larraque, chief of the cavalry, and several other army officers are alleged to have been implicated, has given the government a cause for searching all quarters of the city, in the hope of finding others it suspects of being involved in the plot.

The French minister to Haiti, M. Carteron, has recently shown considerable alarm concerning the action the Haitien government may take against the refugees now asylumed in the French legation.

Tells Refugees to Get Guns.

Some of the refugees themselves say that the minister has advised them to get pistols and as much ammunition as possible, so that they may be prepared to defend their lives. According to the refugees, Mr. Carteron told them that he was unable to guarantee protection in the event of an attack upon the legation by government troops.

The French minister, when asked yesterday with regard to this statement, declined to deny or affirm it, but he did say that he had made a representation of the case to M. Borne, the minister of state, pointing out to him the French contention that giving sanctuary to the refugees was an absolutely legitimate proceeding.

Say Alarm Is Unfounded.

It is generally believed here that the alarm of the French minister is unfounded. Up to the present the government's attitude has been a conciliatory one, and it seems to be its intention not to offer the slightest excuse for foreign intervention.

There are rumors here that summary executions continue in nearby country districts.

The French cruiser D'Estrees has not returned here from the island of St. Thomas, where she took the refugees from Gonaives. The German cruiser Bremen returned yesterday from Kingston, and the United States cruiser Des Moines and the gunboat Marietta are still here.

FOUR MEN BREAK JAIL.

Alleged Depot Burglars Unlock Prison Doors During Supper Hour.

Hot Springs, S. D., April 2.—W. R. Wrad, George Lewis, Robert Page and B. F. Eldridge of Edgemont, who have been confined in the county jail for the last month, charged with breaking into the B. & M. railway depot at Edgemont, S. D., made their escape from the jail last night while they were eating their suppers. The sheriff had two doors locked to keep them in, but they in some way unlocked them and escaped. A reward has been offered for their capture.

KILLED BY BLOW OF FIST.

Negro Slays a Des Moines Horseman in a Crowded Restaurant.

Des Moines, April 2.—With a single blow of his fist Randall Greene, a burly negro, killed Louis Ritenour, white, while a dozen patrons of an East side restaurant looked on in horror. Ritenour was a well known horseman. They quarreled over a bowl of soup which the negro insisted belonged to him. Ritenour resented the negro's impudence. Greene is under arrest.

SIX DAYS' NOSEBLEED KILLS.

Man Bursts a Blood Vessel When He Stoops to Unlace His Shoe.

Iowa City, Iowa, April 2. — T. W. Fitzpatrick, a pioneer of Cedar Valley, bled to death at his home east of Iowa City, in spite of the combined efforts of several surgeons to save him. He stooped to unlace a shoe one night recently and blood gushed from his nose. Thereafter, with slight periods of cessation, the weakening flow continued six days, when he died.

Pays Taxes; Drops Dead.

Marshalltown, Iowa, April 2. — While waiting for his train at the union depot in this city J. E. Outland, a well-to-do farmer of near La Grasa, dropped to the floor dead. Outland had been in the city to pay his taxes and had just reached the depot when he was stricken.

Dies of Laughter.

New York, April 2.—Overcome by laughter at a joke told by a member of the company at a party she was attending, Mrs. Anna Ferrer, a widow, forty-two years of age, was unable to stop the laughing paroxysm and died before a physician could be summoned.

Bridge Collapses; Three Drown.

Bluefield, W. Va., April 2.—Three men were drowned yesterday at Rock by the collapse of a suspension bridge spanning Blue Stone river.

Girl's Parents Accuse Man.

Sioux Falls, S. D., March 29. — Frank Loftus, a local colored man, is in a serious predicament as the result of his arrest on a serious charge preferred by the parents of Jennie Satre, a seventeen-year-old girl.

Destroyed by Night Riders.

Ripley, Ohio, March 29.—The residence and barn of John Osborn, at South Ripley, half a mile below here on the Kentucky side of the river were destroyed by night riders last night.

250,000 MINERS LAY DOWN PICKS

Bituminous Mines Will Be Closed Down Until Wage Settlement Is Reached.

WILL NOT BE LONG STRIKE

Practically Agreed That Present Scale Will Be Continued—Lewis Succeeds Mitchell.

Indianapolis, Ind., April 2. — Two hundred and fifty thousand picks dropped from the hands of as many bitunminous coal miners of the United States last evening, not to be used again until a wage settlement has been reached and a scale adopted between the members of the United Mine Workers of America and the coal operators of the various fields. To-day 250,000 men are idle and thousands of coal mines of the country are deserted.

The situation, however, does not indicate a prolonged strike. An open winter and industrial depression have left a large stock of coal on hand and the differences between miners and operators are very slight.

Suspension Is Temporary.

It is practically agreed that the present scale will be continued, but some politics in connection with the change last night in the national officers of the miners' organization and local differences between operators and miners have resulted in temporary suspension from work until a new wage scale is agreed to either by districts or individual mines.

Until two years ago the bituminous coal mining wage of the country was based upon the agreement reached in the central competitive field, consisting of Illinois, Ohio, Indiana and Western Pennsylvania and considered as a unit. This unit system was broken two years ago when President Mitchell signed a scale with Pittsburg operators who agreed to pay the scale demanded after operators of the other three states had refused, and the miners won their fight in consequence. Operators signed the scale individually throughout the country.

Want Unit Rule Restored.

Since that time the miners have tried to get back the unit rule of interstate agreement, but operators of Western Pennsylavania, Ohio and Illinois, after negotiations lasting all the past winter, have refused to meet in interstate convention with the miners. As a last resort President Mitchell called the miners in national convention, and ditsrict settlements were authorized with the present wage scale as a minimum, and failing to agree by districts miners were authorized to sign the present scale with operators individually.

Vice President Lewis, who succeeded President Mitchell to-day, is endeavoring to revive the interstate unit rule. In the meantime district joint meetings are being held in the various states.

HALE WILL SUCCEED LOCHREN.

Senators Clapp and Nelson Pick Minneapolis Man for U. S. Bench.

Washington, April 2.—As a result of a conference held yesterday morning between Senators Nelson and Clapp it is agreed that the name of Attorney W. E. Hale of Minneapolis shall be indorsed for the judicial position to be vacated in the United States district court for Minnesota by Judge Lochren.

The formal announcement by the senators of Mr. Hale's name was prepared and will be presented to President Roosevelt to-day by Senator Nelson. Mr. Nelson will go to the White House and inform President Roosevelt that advices have been received here of Judge Lochren's resignation and that it is the wish of the senators that W. E. Hale be named as his successor.

The action taken by the Minnesota senators yesterday was based upon the fact that they are advised that Judge Lochren's resignation will reach here to-day, and they are desirous that the recommendation they make in regard to his successor shall reach the president at the same time.

Chicago, April 2.—Gov. Johnson of Minnesota will deliver the chief address at the commencement exercises of the Armour Institute of Technology, to be held on the evening of June 4. Dr. F. W. Grafton, N. D., April 2.—W. N. Vergowa, station agent on the Soo at Kenmare, was arrested by Sheriff Hankey and brought for trial before H. A. Ball, justice of the peace for Walsh county. The charge was grand larceny and alleged the theft of fourteen suits of clothes valued at $218.75 from a freight car that was sidetracked during the tie-up of the road in 1907.

HILL'S NAME SENT TO SENATE

Formally Nominated by the President as Ambassador to Germany—Closes Incident.

Washington, April 2. — The president yesterday sent to the senate the nomination of David Jayne Hill to be ambassador extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to Germany. He also named Arthur M. Beaupre of Illinois to be minister to Argentina. The resignation of Charlemagne Tower, now ambassador at Berlin, has been accepted to take effect June 1. At that time Dr. Hill will assume his new duties.

This statement, made at the White House yesterday, is said to be taken as a happy ending of the Hill incident.

The attitude of the American administration is that Mr. Hill's eminence as a statesman, scholar and diplomat has not suffered the slightest impairment in view of the disclaimer of the German emperor or any adverse expression regarding him and of the hearty recognition of Mr. Hill's personality and standing contained in the statement of President Roosevelt issued from the White House last night.

At the German embassy it was stated yesterday that nothing more is to be said regarding the Hill matter from that quarter.

TO USE BIG STICK.

Senate Gets Correspondence Relating to Claims Against Venezuela.

Washington, April 2.—The long-expected correspondence between America and Venezuela respecting pending American claims against the latter country was submitted to the senate yesterday, and is almost certain to create a profound impression. It will be difficult to digest the vast mass of material which Secretary Root has placed before congress, but even a cursory inspection of the documents makes it evident that negotiations have reached a critical phase.

Senate Will Get Busy.

Venezuelan foreign trade, and 90 per fact is shown by his transmission of the matter to the senate without any comment regarding the correspondence, and especially Secretary Root's strong presentation of the American case is sufficient to instantly enlist the attention of congress.

All of the correspondence and documents were referred to the senate committee on foreign relations. Secretary Root will appear before the committee to-day, ostensibly to discuss some of the treaties negotiated at The Hague, but it is expected he will take up the Venezuelan affair and suggest some action. Those members of the committee who have already familiarized themselves with the situation have arranged tentatively a program which consists of three propositions, as follows:

Plan Retaliation.

Place a prohibitive tariff on Venezuelan coffee, the exports of which constitute 45 per cent of the entire Venezuelan foreign trade, and 90 per cent of the coffee is taken by the United States.

Exclude all importations of asphalt from Lake Bermudez, the product of which has been taken almost entirely by the United States.

Authorize the president to exercise the general power invested in him to take whatever steps he may consider necessary to treat with Venezuela in the future.

The correspondence shows that all of United States Minister Russell's efforts to secure an amicable adjustment of the matters in issue received scant consideration at the hands of the government of Venezuela.

CONSUL TAKES CHINA'S PART.

Representative in Manchuria Refuses to Recognize Russian Authority.

St. Petersburg, April 2.—The Russian government is disturbed by the attitude assumed by Fred D. Fisher, the American consul at Harbin, in the matter of recognizing the jurisdiction of Russia in Manchuria. Mr. Fisher insists that Chinese sovereignty in Manchuria is supreme and furthermore he has supported the protest of China against the establishment by Russia of municipalities in the railroad zone at Harbin and Chailar, independent of the Chinese government, and his attitude in this Russo-Chinese difficulty has prompted Russia to seek an explanation of his course both at the American embassy here and in Washington.

Mr. Fisher is accredited to China, and since his arrival in Harbin in January, 1907, he has consistently refused to recognize or admit that he should have anything to do with the Russian administration of the territory.

He has been firm in his assumption that he was accredited solely to China, and he has declined to act on the suggestion coneveyed to him by an official of the Russian railroad administration that he should secure the permission of Gen. Horvath, the Russian governor of Harbin, before opening his consulate or raising the American flag over the building.

ASKS OPERATORS TO MEET MINERS

New President Wants Interstate Convention to Decide the Wage Question.

MANY ACCEPT THE INVITATION

President Lewis Is Confident That Move Will Result in General Resumption of Work.

Indianapolis, April 2.—The first official act of President T. L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers of America in assuming his office yesterday was to send telegraphic invitations to the principal operators of the central competitive fields, consisting of Western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois to attend a meeting in this city Monday, April 6, with representatives of the miners to make an effort to agree upon a call for an interstate wage convention, and if necessary to decide upon a general resumption of mining operations in the field.

The telegrams were couched in the form of a question of a preliminary nature, asking the operators if they would be willing to attend such a meeting.

Many Operators Accept.

President Lewis said last night he had received a number of replies, the most of which were favorable to the move, but he had not yet received enough to determine finally the result. He is confident, however, that the move will result in a resumption of work in the mines of the district, the rehabilitation of the interstate movement in this field, and in consequence the rehabilitation of the interstate movement in the southwest field and the outlying districts.

Ohio operators have wired their acceptance of the invitation. Indiana operators during the negotiations this winter have expressed a willingness to go into the joint conference any time. The Indiana mines are running. The result will lie in the hands of Western Pennsylvania and Illinois operators.

NO BREACH IN GOULD FAMILY.

Mme. Gould Sanctions Statement That There Is No Trouble.

New York, April 2.—Evidence was forthcoming last night that efforts were being made to check a family breach occasioned by Mme. Anna Gould's reported determination to accept the hand of the Prince Helie de Sagan.

Last night Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Gould visited Mme. Gould at the Hotel St. Regis, where she still is in bed, suffering from bronchitis. Other relatives, including Helen M. Gould and George J. Gould evinced their concern by repeated telephone inquiries, which were promptly answered.

Mrs. Tyler Morse, at whose apartments the prince and Mme. Gould met in New York, caused the issuance in the evening of a formal statement denying an interview attributed to her yesterday.

Mrs. Morse says that there is no disagreement in the Gould family concerning Prince de Sagan and that she knows of no existing engagement between Mme. Gould and the prince. She says Mme. Gould was taken ill while visiting her and has since been unable to leave her room. To this statement Mme. Gould gave her sanction.

HUGHES BILLS MAKE GAINS.

Measures Against Race Track Gambling Advanced.

Albany, N. Y., April 2. — Another long and apparently decisive step toward the statute books was taken by the bills to abolish the legal protection of gambling at race tracks in accordance with the recommendation of Gov. Hughes when the senate late last night, by a vote of 26 to 23, struck out the amendment which would have deferred the taking effect of one of the bills until Sept. 1, and then advanced both of them to the order of final consideration.

TELL WHOLE STORY IN HOUSE

Witnesses Deny Knowledge of Undue Influences Exerted by the Boat Company.

Washington, April 2. — Franklin A. Taylor of Waterbury, Conn., yesterday testified before the special house committee investigating the charges against the Electric Boat company he had heard Representative George L. Lilley, the author of the charges, make the statement in the Waterbury club a week ago last Saturday that it was quite likely he would get an adverse decision from the committee, and in that event he would tell all he knew about the whole matter of submarine boats on the floor of the house.

In addition to Mr. Taylor, the witnesses yesterday were Elihu B. Frost, vice president of the Electric Boat company; Maurice Barrett, secretary-treasurer of the Electric Boat company, and Charles Ferry of the Bridgeport Brass works.

Deny Undue Influence.

They all denied knowledge of undue influence being used toward members of congress to secure legislation favorable to the Electric Boat company, although Mr. Taylor and Mr. Ferry admitted that they had asked Mr. Lilley to vote for the appropriation, as they thought it would help their business should these boats be authorized.

"He would not commit himself one way or the other," Taylor said.

The last conversation the witness had with Mr. Lilley was a week ago Saturday in Waterbury. During that conversation Mr. Lilley, according to the witness, said that he proposed to see that the Lake people had a fair chance.

DAVIS IS FINED.

Senator From Alabama Given Fine of $25 for Disturbing Peace.

Little Rock, Ark., April 2.—United States Senator Jefferson Davis was fined $25 in the police court for disturbing the peace. The fine was administered for the senator's action in getting a pistol and appearing on the street yesterday, where he had been attacked and beaten a few minutes before by Thomas Helm, deputy prosecuting attorney. It is alleged Davis flourished the revolver and made threats of taking a shot at his antagonist, who had vanished. Helm was fined $10 for assault.

Crookston, Minn., April 2.—The entire Red river valley is in the grip of the worst blizzard of the winter. The Great Northern and Northern Pacific had both taken down their snow fences, and all trains are late as result. The storm has been raging since last night. A foot of snow has fallen.

SHOOTS SON; BEATS WIFE.

Farmer Lodged in Jail at Black River Falls—May Be Insane.

Black River Falls, Wis., April 2.—Thomas Dunnigan, a farmer living a few miles west of this city, was lodged in jail, charged with shooting his son, sixteen years old, and beating his wife. It is reported that insanity is the cause. The boy is shot through the hips, but probably not fatally.

Three Perish in Storm.

Maysville, Ky., April 2.—The worst storm in the history of Maysville passed over here yesterday afternoon, damaging property and merchandise to the extent of $75,000. Mrs. D. Boone, son and daughter, on Lawrence creek, just west of here, were in their home, which was washed away, all being drowned.

Boy Is Trampled; May Die.

Huron, S. D., April 2. — The fourteen-year-old son of Samuel Lowe, who resides on a farm southeast of this city, received injuries that may prove fatal. He was holding a team of horses, when they became frightened, throwing him to the ground and tramping upon him.

Cashier Arrested.

Deadwood, S. D., March 29. — George Horras, cashier of the Hot Springs (S. D.) National bank, which failed last October, was arrested yesterday on the charge of embezzling $25,000.

Congress.

Resume of the Week's Proceedings.

Thursday.

Washington, March 27.—Although senators went to the capitol yesterday expecting to devote their time to considering the currency bill, their attention was diverted to the credentials of Senator-elect John Walter Smith of Maryland. The result of a long debate was the admission of Mr. Smith to his seat.

The currency bill was then taken up and amendments were considered.

More shafts of sarcasm and invective were aimed at President Roosevelt in the house of representatives yesterday. In one of the most scathing arraignments of a public officer ever heard in that chamber Mr. Beall of Texas charged the president with having been guilty of a "disgusting usurpation of power," not only toward the national legislature, but the judiciary as well.

Monday.

Washington, March 31.—Charges of a serious nature against Gifford Pinchot, chief of the forestry bureau, were made in the house yesterday by Messrs. Smith of California and Mondell of Wyoming during the consideration of the agricultural appropriation bill. Mr. Smith accused him of entering into a secret understanding with the city of Los Angeles with the view of securing to the city valuable water rights in the Ownes river valley. Mr. Mondell denounced him for, as he charges, illegally paying the expenses of forestry officials attending conventions in the West, in which the government had no part, and also of spending government money to boost his bureau in the newspapers.

The passage of a large number of bills of minor importance and an extended discussion of a measure to authorize the damming of the Snake river, Washington, occupied the entire time of the senate yesterday.

Tuesday.

Washington, April 1. — After having undergone many changes the paragraph of the agricultural appropriation bill relating to the bureau of forestry was finally passed by the house of representatives. Messrs. Mondell of Wyoming and Smith of California continued their attacks on the bureau and in this they were supported by Messrs. Bonynge of Colorado and Cushman of Washington. These embraced charges that the bureau had created timber monopolies in favor of large corporations, illegally assumed jurisdiction over water rights belonging to the Western states and juggled with figures in order to obtain large appropriations from congress.

Nearly the entire session of the senate yesterday was consumed in consideration of a bill to permit the building of a dam on the Snake river, Washington.

Washington, April 2. — Debate of the agricultural appropriation bill in the house yesterday was devoid of the charges and imputations which marked its consideration on Monday and Tuesday. More progress was made with the measure than on any previous day, and the indications are that it will finally get through to-day.

The passage of a bill authorizing the construction of a dam across the Snake river in the state of Washington, and the consideration of a measure for adjudicating the claims of states against the government on account of the disposition of the proceeds of public lands occupied nearly the entire session of the senate yesterday.

MRS. VANDERBILT BRINGS SUIT

Alfred Vanderbilt Made Defendant in Divorce Case an Hour After Sailing for Europe.

New York, April 2.—Within an hour after he had sailed for Europe yesterday Alfred Gynne Vanderbilt was made the defendant for absolute divorce filed with the supreme court by his wife, Ellen French Vanderbilt. Mrs. Vanderbilt was Ellen French, daughter of the late Francis Ormond French, president of the Manhattan Trust company and director of many railroads.

She was married to Alfred Vanderbilt on Jan. 11, 1901. A year later their only child, William Henry, was born.

Mr. Vanderbilt, as the second son of the late Cornelius Vanderbilt, inherited something like $60,000,000. He has been regarded as the head of the family since the estrangement which followed the marriage of Cornelius, the eldest son, to Miss Grace Wilson. During the past year or so Mr. Vanderbilt has spent much of his time abroad.

The domestic affairs of Mr. and Mrs. Vanderbilt have engaged public attention since March 24, when Mrs. Vanderbilt, accompanied by their son and maids, left Oakland farm, near Newport, and went to the home of her brother, Amos Tuck French, at Tuxedo Park, this state. Much of the furnishings at the Newport home have been shipped to Tuxedo Park. The French cottage at Tuxedo Park, which is known as "Tuck's Eden," has been put into shape, it is said, for continued company. Mr. Vanderbilt while here had apartments at the Plaza hotel. Neither he nor his wife would discuss the reports which gained circulation after her removal from Newport.

Red Lake county democrats claim that this county will send a solid delegation for Governor Johnson.

Prospective county officers will be compelled to pay $20 filing fees this year for the privilege of running for a county office.

The candidacy of Daniel Patterson for delegate to the republican national convention seems to meet with hearty approval and will have the solid support of this county.

Governor Johnson has at last announced that he will accept the nomination for president if it comes his way, but that he will not make an active canvass for the nomination.

The republican convention held here next Thursday gives promise of being very well attended as a large number of farmers from the surrounding towns have already signified that they would attend.

Red Lake county democrats will hold their convention at Thief River Falls on Saturday, May 9th. The primaries for electing delegates will be held on May 6th. St. Hilaire is entitled to 3 delegates, Black River 3, Bray 2, River Falls 2 and Wyandotte 2.

Sunbeam—There is no use of any other newspaper in Minnesota trying to beat the St. Hilaire Spectator out of the honor of being the first to support Taft for president, as editor Ives opened the campaign so early that we thought he was joking. We copy the following from The Sunbeam of June 7th, 1907.

"The St. Hilaire Spectator is for Taft for president. Harry believes in supporting a man of heft for the position."

News—Both Otter Tail and Clay Counties have candidates for delegates to the national republican convention from the Ninth district. Clearwater county has two candidates—only one of which of course will be present—while Red Lake county will present Daniel Patterson, of St. Hilaire. It has always been the custom to select one delegate from the northern part of the district and one from the southern. We believe that Mr. Patterson has an excellent show of success. There is surely no better man in the Ninth district to represent the republicans.

Prof. Berg Resigns

Prof. C. E. Bergh, the principal of the village schools has tendered his resignation to take effect at once, in a letter received by the school board yesterday. Prof. Bergh is compelled to take this action by the advice of his physician who insists that he shall quit work at once as his health will not permit his continuing his years work. The school board does not know at present what action they will take as they have no one in sight to fill the vacancy.

The Health Department Muddle

News—There has been a great deal of talk in the city of late regarding violations—or alleged violations—of the rules and laws governing the local board of health. The matter came to a head yesterday when County Attorney Germo, of Red Lake Falls and Justice of Peace Jens Nelson came to Thief River Falls and caused a warrant to be issued for the arrest of Municipal Judge J. M. Bishop charging him with violating the quarantine laws and resisting a health officer. Three other prominent citizens are to be arrested as soon as the Bishop case is disposed of. The trial of Judge occurs at 2 o'clock today and next week the News hopes to give a full account of the trial.

Justice Jens Nelson, acting in the above case went up to Thief River Falls on Wednesday. The question was raised that he did not have jurisdiction and the matter was referred to County Attorney Germo and the case was adjourned until Thursday when the county attorney rendered an opinion that Justice Nelson had not the right to try the case, so it was dismissed.

The above shows the number of pounds of butterfat, the value of the same, cost of feed and net profit. Where the cost of feed exceeds $11.50 the cow has been getting ground feed, the amount depending on the time she dropped her calf.

I value the hay at $3 per ton and 3½ ton per cow, allowing $1 for pasture. The above record shows up in favor of the cow that dropped her calf in the spring. If a balanced ration was fed the records would likely show up different. My records show that changes in feed during the winter are objectionable, as changes always cause shrinkage in milk.

Over 500 Cars

Henry Schroede, of Sabin, who is extensively engaged in the growing and marketing of potatoes and an eminent authority on that tuber, says that the season for the crop of 1907 is now practically over and that he has only one car to ship, and his son has only three cars more on hand. In all, the two have shipped about 500 cars to different parts of the country. He thinks that on the basis of 500 bushels to a car, the minimum allowed, about 1,500 cars would represent the shipments of potatoes from Clay county. On the average price obtained by farmers this would mean an income to Clay county of at least $375,000 for potatoes alone.

Sworn Statement is Necessary

Every personal property holder in the entire state is required to furnish the assessor with a sworn statement showing a full list of his personal property items, or the county auditor cannot grant the $100 exemption provided by law.

This is a recent ruling of the tax commission, and the attention of county auditors is now being called to this matter before the assessors begin their work on May 1st.

The Commission holds that county auditors cannot issue certificates to assessors whose books do not show that they have complied with the law in all its requirements. This means that the assessors must have their books complete in every detail before they will receive compensation for their work.

GOT HIS SHIRTS.

Comical Prank a Princeton Student Played Upon a Tutor.

In "Princeton—Old and New," by James W. Alexander, is the following story:

"The mode of life was simpler in those days than now, but the same humor which still makes collegians so comic effervesced in the old days. When, for example, William Pennington, son of a former governor of New Jersey and himself afterward speaker of the national house of representatives, roomed next door to Senior Tutor Topping it was the custom for each man to hang on the outside knob of his door the bag containing his soiled clothes for the laundry.

"Pennington stuffed his own skirts one day in Tutor Topping's bag and waited for the day when the clean linen was returned and laid out on Topping's bed. Then, knowing that two of the younger tutors were in Topping's room, Pennington knocked at his door. On entering he put on an embarrassed air, as if hesitating to speak in the presence of the other tutors.

"Topping in a lofty way said: 'These gentlemen are my friends. I have no secrets from them. Say what you wish.' Pennington still hemmed and hawed, but, again urged to speak, blurted out: 'It is not my fault, Mr. Topping. I did not want to say anything about it now, but as you insist I must ask you to please return the skirts I lent you, as I am in need of them.'

"Topping's rage and horror at being thus addressed before the younger tutors, who looked up to him as a Magnus Apollo, may well be imagined. He began to upbraid Pennington, who interrupted him by saying: 'It's no use, Mr. Topping, trying to deny the fact. I see the shirts there on the bed with your own things.' The tutor stood aghast, but Pennington stepped to the bed and picked out his own shirts marked with his name."

ST. LOUIS' GOLD MINE.

Traces of the Metal Once Found Within the City Limits.

St. Louis has never been known as a gold mining center, but there was once a gold mine within the limits of the city, and, what is more, it yielded gold, which is more than a great many gold mines in the Rockies have done.

In the sixties of the last century there was a well dug on a hill just east of Carondelet park, and the well diggers, noticing some bright, sparkling yellow particles in the clay at the bottom, did a little washing on their own account and found several grains of gold in the pan. The news soon got abroad, and two ex-miners from the west who were living in the neighborhood quickly got the idea that there was money to be made in St. Louis gold mining, so they sank a shaft not far from the well, fully expecting rich returns from their work. They did actually find gold, but in quantities so small that they estimated a yield of about 15 cents per ton of clay, so they filled up the hole and gave up the undertaking in that place as a bad job.

But they had all the miner's enthusiasm, and the fact that they found gold at all merely stimulated their zeal to try in another place, so they went to the side of a hill where the Glaize creek had washed away the earth and made a clay precipice. They dug a hole there, where they also found traces of the precious metal, but in no greater quantities than before. Then they went up the creek about a quarter of a mile and sank another shaft, with no better result. They spent the whole spring and summer digging holes around in the neighborhood of the park, but the only benefit they realized from their work was the sobriquet "two lunatics," and people laughed at them so much that both left and went back west, where digging holes in the search for gold was taken more seriously than in St. Louis.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

A Widow Who Was Calm.

A lawyer was entertaining dinner guests recently with stories from his personal experiences.

"A woman came into my office one afternoon and said she wanted to see a lawyer on a rather important matter," he said. "She was very prim and self possessed."

"'What can I do for you?' I asked.

"'Well,' she said in an easy tone, 'my husband was hurt in the wreck the other day.'

"I noticed she was dressed in mourning, but from her indifferent tone I gathered that it had no connection with her husband's accident.

"'Was your husband badly injured?' I asked.

"'Yes,' she answered in the same quiet voice. 'He got his head cut off.'"—Kansas City Times.

Do You Belong to "The Citizens' Committee?"

"THE CITIZENS' COMMITTEE"

This committee is made up of the men who sit around an excavation for a new building, whittle pine sticks, spit tobacco juice on the fresh dirt and watch the other fellows work.

It's all right to show interest in new buildings, in town development and progress, but there's a better way.

You can do more good for yourself and the community by resigning from "The Citizens' Committee" and getting into the General Progress Committee.

This committee is the one that PUTS UP THE NEW BUILDINGS, brings new business into town to occupy them, paints the old houses, keeps the sidewalks in good repair, beautifies the front yards, cleans up the back yards and otherwise makes this town a better town to live in.

The General Progress Committee is the Unofficial Town Booming Committee. It really ought to be organized and made official. Let all of us work together for the advancement of the town we live in, and there will be more room around new excavations for the fellows at work to throw out the dirt.

Eternal industry is the price of progress.

Let's all fall in line for the General Progress Committee—and then

JUST WATCH THE OLD TOWN GROW.

Carl August Johnson, the second son of Johan Johnson of Rocksbury, died of heart trouble at his home last Thursday at the age of fourteen. He had been sick for several years and death came as a relief to the little sufferer. The funeral was held at the Swedish Lutheran church last Sunday afternoon Rev. Sand officiating.

The prices of lumber, other building material and labor in the Red River Valley, is lower now than it has been for years, and the question arises: How long will such conditions last? Statistics show that all manufacturers of lumber are curtailing their output, which means a scarcity before another year goes by, even wit a very normal demand. A scarcity always tends towards higher prices and it might be business policy to take advantage of the present markets.

Anton Peterson, of Wyandotte, was here on Wednesday on his way home from Red Lake Falls where he had been serving as a juror. He informs us that Chas. Peterson and Chas. Samuelson who have formed a partnership to dig wells and saw wood, recently finished a well for him but when they tackled the wood pile they broke the main shaft on their horse power engine and had to come to town for repairs.

WANTED—1,000 young men to study telegraphy at the Crookston College. There is a great call for operators and beginning with next spring the railroads will put on nearly twice as many men as they have at the present time. Our last year's graduates are now receiving from $60 to $80 per month. Our teacher in this department is one of the chief operators on the Great Northern Railway. Send for catalog to J. C. Sathre, Crookston, Minn

Joseph Wessel of St Paul, the well known candy salesman who makes this territory regularly, was a visitor here yesterday. Mr. Wessel it is said will probably be appointed on the Game and Fish Commission by Governor Johnson. Mr. Wessel has many friends and is well qualified for the position. In travelling over the northern part of the state he would prove a valuable member on the commission.

An April Blizzard

The weather man played a good joke on this part of the country on April first in sending us the only genuine blizzard of the season. It was one of the old fashioned kind and a strong northwest wind piled the snow high in many places. Nearly a foot of snow fell during the storm which was easily the worst of the season.

Tons of Butter

There is something doing all the time at the creamery these days. Over two tons of butter were made at the churgings of last Saturday and Tuesday and yesterday Buttermaker Austin informs us that he received 7,500 pounds of cream. Receipts so far this year are running about twenty per cent over a year ago.

On The Anxious Seat

There is an air of anxiety, of suspense, of dread uncertainty among the young men in town. It is all on account of the leap year ball which the young ladies propose to give in the near future and some of the young men have not been any too good either. They have been in the habit of attending dances and shows all alone. Will they get left? We don't know the answer, do you?

SEEDS

CREAMERY PATRONS I have placed a large order for medium red clover seed and will be able to supply the creamery patrons and farmers in this vicinity with all they will need of this seed. All those wishing to get other seeds such as alsike and white clover, fodder corn etc. should leave their orders at the creamery within a week or ten days.

Geo. L. Austin,
Buttermaker.

Postponed

Miss Nellie Mullen wishes to announce that on account of the storm on Wednesday of this week her millinery opening will be postponed until Wednesday April 8, continuing until Friday. She will be pleased to meet all the ladies at that time at her millinery parlors in the Brannum building.

Vacations

The time to take a vacation is before one is exhausted. If one is discontented during his vacation he should take it, none the less, as a matter of duty, not expecting to enjoy every moment but contenting himself with the anticipation of greater pleasure in the resumption of his duties. In the meantime we suggest the daily use of a good malt tonic, such as golden grain belt beer. Taken at mealtime, it will nourish your nerves, enrich your blood and invigorate your muscles. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

A New Attorney

Mr. Roy V. Lewis, of Worthington, Minn., arrived last Saturday and has decided to locate here. Mr. Lewis is an attorney at law, being a graduate of the University of Minnesota and comes here highly recommended. He has the appearance of being a bright, capable young man and we can see no reason why he should not succeed here. He has rented the office east of the bank and is now all ready for business.

Love is Blind

That troubles never come singly to a man in love is very evident, judging from the paragraph below, taken from the Red Lake Falls Gazette. To be asked to leave the house would have been sufficient punishment for one evening but to have the local papers publish it, oh—horrors. It reads as follows;

In speaking of a recent visit from a St. Hilaire young man one our fair damsels said he prolonged his visit so late that she thought he ought to go. Finally she asked him to think of any number between 1 and 9, add 1, multiply by 9, cross out left hand figure, add fourteen, add the number started with—and then, she said, it was a pleasure to watch the young man's countenance.

The Senior Class Play

A crowded house greeted the seniors of the Thief River Falls high school when they presented their class play, "Dot, The Miner's Daughter", at the Imperial hall last Saturday evening.

The play was well received by the audience and all seemed pleased with the evening's entertainment. One half of the proceeds were donated by the class to the library fund of our local schools and a considerable sum was realized.

The people of St. Hilaire in general wish to express their sincere thanks to the Senior class and Supt. Hay of the high school for not only affording us a pleasant evening's entertainment but also for their liberal donation.

AN INTERESTING CHEMICAL EXPERIMENT

Any Child Can Do It—The Result Is Almost Like Magic—Useful, Too.

Anything in the nature of a chemical experiment is always interesting and usually educative. Here is a simple experiment which any child can perform and which is instructive in a very practical way: Get a bit of White Lead about the size of a pea, a piece of charcoal, a common candle in a candlestick, and a blow-pipe. Scoop out a little hollow in the charcoal to hold the White Lead, then light the candle, take the charcoal and lead in one hand and the blow-pipe in the other, with the large end of the blowpipe between the lips; blow the flame of the candle steadily against the bit of White Lead on the charcoal and if the White Lead is pure it will presently resolve itself into little shining globules of metallic lead, under the intense heat of the blow-pipe, leaving no residue.

If, however, the White Lead is adulterated in the slightest degree, it will not wholly change into lead. So, it will be seen, that this experiment is not only an entertaining chemical demonstration, but also of practical use in the home. White Lead is the most important ingredient of paint. It should be bought pure and unadulterated and mixed with pure linseed oil. That is the best paint. The above easy experiment enables anyone to know whether the paint is the kind which will wear or not.

The National Lead Company guarantee that white lead taken from a package bearing their "Dutch Boy Painter" trade-mark will prove absolutely pure under the blow-pipe test; and to encourage people to make the test and prove the purity of paint before using it, they will send free a blow-pipe and a valuable booklet on paint to anyone writing them asking for Test Equipment. Address National Lead Company, Woodbridge Building, New York City.

Daniel Up-to-Date.

Jimmy, aged five, was told the story of Daniel in the lion's den by his grandmother. When she had finished the story she asked Jimmy what he thought Daniel did the very first thing when he found he was saved from the lions?

"Oh, I guess he telephoned home to his wife to tell her he was all right," answered Jimmy.

Cold Calculating.

Ascum—Did you actually have the nerve to propose to that Boston girl?

Yerner—Yes, I told her my heart beat wildly for her alone and——

Ascum—She didn't believe you?

Yerner—No; she reached over and felt my pulse.

NEURALGIA

The real meaning of the word Neuralgia is nerve-pain, and any one who has suffered with the malady will not be so anxious to know of its nature as to hear of its antidote. Though scarcely recognized by the profession and people half a century ago, it is now one of the most common and painful ailments which afflict humanity. As now generally understood the word signifies an affection of the nervous system, with pain in the course of the principal nerves.

The two great causes of Neuralgia are, Impoverishment of the Blood and Deficiency of Nerve Force; and the treatment of it is not so obscure as many would be led to suppose. The first thing is to relieve the pain, which is done more quickly and satisfactorily by ST. JACOBS OIL than by any other remedy known; the second object is to remove the cause, which is accomplished by the abundant use of nourishing food, of a nature to strengthen and give tone to both the muscular and nervous systems.

The woman sniffed.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

A THRIFTY WIFE

By HELEN JANE BAYLEY

(Copyright.)

"We can't afford it, John."

"We can, Mary."

"No; John, you are too free with your money. We must look out for the rainy day."

The man shrugged his shoulders. "You're always harping on that rainy day, which is in the future, and always will be."

"We cannot be too sure; and there are the children."

"You make them burdens too heavy to be borne," the man grumbled.

Mary and John Sherman are a couple who heard their wedding bells peal out ten years ago. Then he was a young man of good character, with an excellent position and a heart full of love for his bride. She was a young woman, thrifty, a good manager and devoted to her husband. Today they stand as far apart as though the world divided them. Why?

Perhaps neither could tell exactly; yet the little scene just given is a good example of their conversations. Two fine children, a boy and a girl, have been added to their lives. The parents are wildly fond of them, and yet they cannot agree about them.

The father is now a partner in the business and producing an income sufficient not only to give his wife and children advantages and a pleasant life, but enough to add to his property; and he feels that this is the time to enjoy prosperity.

The mother, her thrift developed into niggardliness, grudges almost every cent which is spent upon anything except bare necessities. Her very virtues, developed too much on one side, have grown into obsessions.

Jack came home one evening with a sore throat. His mother gave him some quinine, wrapped up his neck in the stocking from his left foot, and put him to bed. This stocking remedy was a favorite one with her. Occupied with other duties, she said nothing to the father about the child's ailment.

Next day Jack looked very feverish, but as she wished the house clear, to clean it thoroughly, she sent the boy off.

As he went out the door the little fellow said plaintively: "Mamma, I don't feel well, truly."

"Come, come, son, don't be a baby. If your cold is no better, mother'll make you some lard and molasses when you come home," and with the seeds of disease already sown, he was sent out into the cold.

Mary worked and slaved, exposing herself in washing windows, saving a few cents, but wearing out her flesh and nerves, and depriving a very deserving woman, who needed the work and was accustomed to it, of the little money the tasks would have earned.

At noon, sneezing herself, Mary sent her two children back to school. Little Marie was not sick, but about half-after-two she returned, leading Jack, who was in a raging fever. The house was damp and cold, and the furnace fire was out.

"It seems as if all worries come at once," Mary complained, angry at fate.

"Let me telephone for papa," Marie suggested.

The mother returned with asperity: "You must think your father is made of money. I wonder what would become of us if I wasn't always looking out for the pennies. We'd be bad off when the rainy day arrives," and subdued by the threat of that awful day of retribution which had fallen upon her ears since babyhood, Marie wrapped up her little brother and tried to amuse him while the mother built the furnace fire, wasting much more in trying to ignite the dead coals than if she had dumped the grate and begun afresh, and thus she tried to dry the damp house.

So interested did she become in this work that she thoroughly forgot her sick child, her own wet clothing, and the terrible cold which was settling upon her, and so it was that John found no dinner when he returned; a shivery house; his wife almost unable to speak, and his son so ill that he trembled all his way to the doctor's, fearing he could not get a physician to the house in time to be of assistance.

For the following two weeks three trained nurses managed affairs, while a servant looked after the kitchen; one, and at times two, skilled physicians fought to save the lives of the children and the mother. When all three were recovered, Mary had only to say:

"Dear me! it is wonderful how little I am appreciated. Just see what it was to have a little laid by for a rainy day."

John, being human, naturally could not help answering: "But, my dear, if you had not been foolish and niggardly about little things, we would have had no such rainy day."

Nevertheless, Mary kept on thinking: "I am never appreciated."

In time a new baby came to the household, and the four were delighted over it. No one loved it more truly and fondly than Mary, and yet she almost caused its death.

Desiring a new crib for the infant, instead of buying a new one, she hunted about in second-hand stores until she found one, a beautiful little nest, at an absurdly low price.

Triumphantly, she had it sent home, and put her dainty little baby right into it, rejoicing over the small amount she had saved. Mysteriously the baby sickened with scarlet fever, the other children were sent to relatives, and for a weary period the mother fought with the terrible scourge. In time she learned that her bargain purchase had been previously occupied by a baby who had died of the disease her child had contracted.

At another time the family was nearly poisoned with canned goods. The woman habitually purchased her groceries where she could get the most goods for the least expenditure of money, and never stopped to think whether the food was wholesome. The cans were battered, the paper soiled, and in some cases missing, but she imagined that the contents would be all right, and then they were such a bargain! The goods were inferior, or they would not have been placed at a low price.

"I have such a bargain!" is an expression John shivers to hear, for he knows what it means. So once he endeavored to teach her a good lesson.

He came home early in the evening, and before they went to dinner said, sternly: "We all need a dose of medicine."

"Indeed we do not," Mary responded, for she does not approve of medicine except in extreme cases.

"We'll have to take it," John returned, "because I got it cheap."

Then followed a very disagreeable time, while all were dosed with an extremely bad-tasting but in reality very harmless remedy.

The following night John announced: "Hurry dinner, Mary, for we're going to a lecture on geology tonight."

"But I know nothing about geology, John, and I don't want to go," Mary objected.

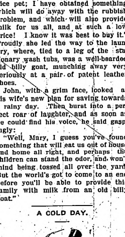
"Oh, yes, you do. I bought these tickets because I got them at 60 per cent off." They attended the lecture and yawned through the entire evening.

Within a week he brought home four strange men, business acquaintances of his, saying, when his wife objected: "It's so much cheaper to entertain them at home than at a restaurant." But now he has ceased, since she appeared to profit very little by his instructions, for right in the midst of his lessons she proclaimed: "I bought the best thing, and saved at least ten dollars toward our rainy day."

John meekly asked: "What is it this time?"

"The children have wanted a pet. We have so much rubbish which I cannot make up my mind to throw away—and then milk is so expensive—and I have found out how to solve the three questions."

"Well, how?" John inquired, a premonition of coming trouble stealing over him.



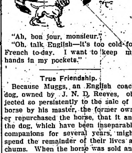
"We'll Have to Take It Because I Got It Cheap."

"I have provided the children with a nice pet; I have obtained something which will do away with the rubbish problem, and which will also provide milk for us all, and at such a low price! I know it was best to buy it." Proudly she led the way to the laundry, where, tied to a leg of the stationary wash tubs, was a well-bearded old billy goat, munching away very seriously at a pair of patent leather shoes.

John, with a grim face, looked at his wife's new plan for saving towards a rainy day. Then burst into a perfect roar of laughter, and as soon as he could find his voice, he said gaspingly:

"Well, Mary, I guess you've found something that will eat us out of house and home all right, and perhaps the children can stand the odor, and won't mind being tossed all over the yard. But the world's got to come to an end before you'll be able to provide this family with milk from an old billy goat."

A COLD DAY.



"Ah, bon jour, monsieur."

"Oh, talk English—it's too cold for French to-day. I want to keep my hands in my pockets."

True Friendship.

Because Muggs, an English coach dog, owned by J. N. D. Reeves, objected so persistently to the sale of a horse by his master, the former owner repurchased the horse, that it and the dog, which have been inseparable companions for several years, might spend the remainder of their lives as chums. When the horse was sold and the new purchaser attempted to lead the animal away, the dog held the halter with his teeth, nor would he release it until forced to do so by his master.

New Consumption Treatment.

Reports have appeared in the daily press, says Nature, of a new treatment for consumption in which the diseased portion of the lung is removed by operation. The only novelty seems to be the use of hot water or steam to control the hemorrhage, for excision of a portion of the lung has occasionally been performed during the last 70 years. Such a procedure could only be of service in a very few selected cases.

How Her Life Was Saved When Bitten By a Large Snake.

How few people there are who are not afraid of snakes. Not long ago a harmless little garter snake fell on the wheel of an automobile which was being driven by a woman. The woman promptly fainted and the car, left to its own resources, ran into a stone wall and caused a serious accident.

The bite of a poisonous snake needs prompt attention. Mrs. K. M. Fishel, Route No. 1, Box 40, Dillsburg, Pa., tells how she saved her life when bitten by a large snake.

"On August 29, 1906, I was bitten on the hand twice by a large copperhead snake. Being a distance from any medical aid, as a last resort I used Sloan's Liniment, and to my astonishment found it killed all pain and was the means of saving my life. I am the mother of four children and am never without your Liniment."

After Other Treatment Failed—Raw Eczema on Baby's Face Had Lasted Three Months—At Last Doctor Found Cure.

"Our baby boy broke out with eczema on his face when one month old. One place on the side of his face the size of a nickel was raw like beefsteak for three months, and he would cry out when I bathed the parts that were sore and broken out. I gave him three months' treatment from a good doctor, but at the end of that time the child was no better. Then my doctor recommended Cuticura. After using a cake of Cuticura Soap, a third of a box of Cuticura Ointment, and half a bottle of Cuticura Resolvent he was well and his face was as smooth as any baby's. He is now two years and a half old and no eczema has reappeared. Mrs. M. L. Harris, Alton, Kan., May 14 and June 12, 1907."

PEOPLE'S PARTY NAMES TICKET

Thomas E. Watson and Samuel Williams Are National Standard Bearers.

CONVENTION A STORMY ONE

Nebraska and Minnesota Fight to Adjourn Convention Until Other Parties Meet.

St. Louis, April 4.—For president of the United States, Thomas E. Watson of Georgia; for vice president of the United States, Samuel Williams of Indiana.

The above ticket was nominated yesterday by the People's party convention, after two stormy sessions, throughout which the Nebraska and Minnesota delegations, working in the interest of William J. Bryan, strove desperately to bring about an adjournment of the convention until after nominations had been made by the Democratic and Republican parties.

Fight Desperately.

Hopelessly outnumbered and without any chance whatever of gaining their object, the Nebraska men fought desperately to the last, and when Jay W. Forrest of Albany, N. Y., mounted the platform to place Watson in nomination they withdrew from the convention, attended by the Minnesota delegation, which consisted, however, of only one man, T. J. Weighan. If Bryan is nominated at Denver the men who walked out of yesterday's convention will support him, and they declare that the Populists of Nebraska will do so to a man.

The Candidates.

Thomas E. Watson, the presidential nominee, is well known throughout the country, and his political life is familiar history.

Samuel W. Williams, the candidate for vice president, is a resident of Vincennes, Ind., where he has practiced law for many years. He is sixty-two years old and has always been more or less of an active participant in politics. He was at one time a Democratic member of the Indiana legislature, but has been identified with the Populist party since its creation.

At a meeting last night of the new national committee, James H. Ferris of Joliet, Ill., was re-elected chairman, and Jay W. Forrest of Albany, N. Y., was chosen vice chairman.

CARNEGIE ADDS $5,000,000.

Increases Fund So That Professors of State Universities May Benefit.

New York, April 5.—Announcement was made last night that Andrew Carnegie would add $5,000,000 to the fund of the Carnegie Foundation, or whatever sum might be necessary, to include as pension beneficiaries eligible professors of state universities. No provision was made for this class of educators in the original gift for the reason, stated by Mr. Carnegie at the time, that the donor thought if possible that such institutions might prefer that their relations should continue exclusively with the state from which their chief support was derived. This view was not taken by the National Association of State Universities, which in the year following the establishment of the foundation petitioned the trustees for admittance to the benefits of the retiring allowance system. It was then found that the earnings of the original fund of $10,000,000 were exhausted through the outlet already planned, and that if the faculties of all state universities were to be benefited an additional $5,000,000 would be required. The situation was placed formally before Mr. Carnegie by Dr. Henry S. Pritchett, president of the Carnegie Foundation, on March 31 last, and that same day Mr. Carnegie replied that the money would be forthcoming for any state institution whose application received the approval of the legislature and governor of its state. The additional donation will be in 5 per cent bonds providing an added annual income of a quarter of a million dollars and a total for yearly disbursement of $750,000.

EQUIPMENT FOR MILITIA.

Gen. Wood Secures Promise From War Department.

Washington, April 5.—As a result of conferences with the ordnance bureau of the war department, Adjt. Gen. Fred B. Wood of Minnesota has secured promise of $25,000 worth of additional equipment for the Minnesota national guard. New rifles and other equipment to the value of $12,000 will be issued at once.

"The Minnesota guard will be up to the full standard of the law before the end of the year," said Gen. Wood.

Woman Drowns Herself Because Animal Is Killed.

Millville, N. J., April 5.—Brooding over the death of a pet dog, Mrs. Hannah Willis threw herself into the Richmond mill pond near her home yesterday and was drowned. Several weeks ago, while Mrs. Willis was crossing the railroad tracks, an electric train struck and killed her pet dog. The shock so unnerved her that her physician feared for her reason.

BRUTALLY MURDERED IN SHACK

Aged Man Found Dead Near Washburn—Eyes Gouged Out and Face Fearfully Slashed.

Washburn, Wis., April 9. — Lying half naked on the floor of a homestead shack on "the barrens," twelve miles from this city, the body of Joseph Hall, father-in-law of Former State Senator J. J. McGillivray of Black River Falls, was found last night by a neighbor who went with two children to call on the old man. The face and head was slashed and bruised; the eyes appeared to have been gouged out with some blunt instrument, and the hands, legs and feet had been pounded into shapeless masses.

The interior of the shack showed that a terrific struggle had taken place there. The two stoves, a heater and a cook stove, had been smashed to pieces.

There was nothing to indicate the identity of the murderers. The whole interior of the place and the condition of the body were as if a maniac had run amuck there, but there is no knowledge of the presence of such a person in this region.

Hall is generally supposed to have known something about the murder of Willie Ernst four years ago, and it has been suggested that the perpetrators of that act killed Hall to prevent his giving any information against them, but there is no evidence as yet to support the theory. When the body was examined Hall's gold watch and a little money were found in the trousers pockets, practically precluding the possibility that robbery was the motive for the crime.

DIES JUST AS FAST ENDS.

K. Ottestad Undertook to Live Forty Days Without Food.

St. Paul, April 9. — Last night Knute Ottestad would have completed his fast of forty days, but yesterday morning he died. He was a student of the occult sciences and he was trying to demonstrate the power of mind over matter.

Ottestad was found dying yesterday morning in his room at the boarding house of David Plonty, and he died before a doctor could reach him. The coroner has recorded the death as suicide, the primary cause of death as occult science and the immediate cause as starvation.

Otterstad left a diary of his fast, in which he records that he ate nothing except toward the end occasionally candy, maple-sugar and peanuts.

DIETZ TO BUILD NEW HOUSE.

Hero of Cameron Dam Anticipates No More Trouble.

Chippewa Falls, Wis., April 9. — John F. Dietz and members of his family are now making weekly visits to the village of Winter.

Dietz visited there three times in the last week to bargain for lumber and other materials for the erection of a new residence at Cameron dam. Dietz does not believe any more attempts will be made to apprehend him.

"DRYS" MAKE GAINS.

Foes of Saloon Win Victories at Benson, Hutchinson and Willmar.

St. Paul, April 9. — Elections were held in a number of cities and towns in Minnesota Tuesday. The feature of the campaign was the voting out of saloons at Hutchinson, Benson and Rushford and the retention of the no-license policy at Willmar, which now enters upon its eight year as a prohibition city. Enemies of the lid at New Ulm claim a victory in the election of Gen. Bobleter as mayor.

THIRD VENIRE IS ORDERED.

One Man Still Needed in Mooney Jury at Buffalo.

Buffalo, Minn., April 9. — One more juror was secured yesterday to try the case against John J. Mooney, accused of wife murder, and now only five men are left of the 125 summoned to be examined. It is proving so difficult to find jurors qualified to serve that a second special venire of twenty-five has been ordered and drawn.

REBATING COSTS $20,000.

Ludington Company Is Fined in Federal Court.

Grand Rapids, Mich., April 9. — Judge Knappen, in the United States district court, yesterday sentenced the Stearns Salt and Lumber company of Ludington, Mich., to pay a fine of $20,000 for accepting rebates from the Pere Marquette railroad on lumber shipments.

BODIES TERRIBLY MANGLED

Carriage Is Cut in Two—Driver Evidently Thought He Had Time to Cross Ahead of Train.

Chicago, April 9. — Four women occupants of a carriage were instantly killed and the driver was fatally injured yesterday afternoon when the vehicle was struck by an electric train on the Chicago, Elgin & Aurora railroad, near Maywood, a western suburb of Chicago. The carriage was one of a number that were returning from a funeral. The driver died a few hours later at a hospital to which he had been taken.

The carriage was cut in two and the rear portion was carried several hundred feet along the tracks before the train could be stopped.

Train Goes on Its Way.

The train proceeded after the accident and the first notice of the occurrence was received from Wheaton, several miles further west when an official of the railway company telephoned to Maywood, asking that ambulances be sent to the scene. When the undertakers arrived the occupants of the other carriages were caring for the driver and endeavoring to extricate the mangled bodies from the wrecked carriage. The driver is thought to have driven onto the right of way in the belief that he had time to cross, since the approaching train was plainly visible from the point where the accident occurred.

TO TELL ABOUT PAPER TRUST

House Passes Cannon Resolutions Calling for Information—Stormy Session.

Washington, April 9. — Yesterday's session of the house will go down as one of the stormiest in its history. The sum total of the day's proceedings was the adoption of several additional rules to further check the Democratic filibuster and the passing of the two resolutions introduced by Speaker Cannon calling on the department of justice and the department of commerce and labor for certain information regarding the so-called paper trust.

There were nine roll calls, during the day, five of them on the new rules. The Democrats exhausted their resources before they were made to feel that the Republicans by sheer force of numbers had beaten them at every point. The debate brought all the leaders of the house to the front. The Democrats were again charged with making the special rules necessary by reason of their filibuster, while the Democrats reasserted that they at last were causing the majority to enact legislation.

$12,010 SHORTAGE LAID TO WARNER

Public Examiner Reports on Accounts of Former State Oil Inspector.

SURETY COMPANY IS LIABLE

St. Paul, April 6. — Public Examiner Anton Schaefer Saturday filed with Gov. Johnson the report covering the period of the incumbency of Fenton G. Warner as state oil inspector, which he says shows a shortage of $12,010. The report covers what is known as the Minneapolis division by the Standard Oil company, including Ramsey, Hennepin and twenty-nine other counties.

The report is made by W. C. Heilborn, one of the deputy examiners, and covers about thirty pages, including a mass of figures. The report includes a copy of a letter written to Mr. Schefer by George W. Peterson, assistant attorney general, in which he states that the National Surety company, which was on Mr. Warner's bond for $5,000, is liable for that amount for any shortage discovered.

The Items.

The aggregate alleged shortage reported by the examiner is made up of the following items: Difference between the collections in the Minneapolis division and the money turned in to the state treasurer, $5,826.43; shortage on account of "out shipments," no affidavits showing them to have been such shipments having been found, $3,538.50; expenses illegally paid deputies, $2,092.75, and salary illegally paid C. M. Crandall, Dakota county, $552.32. These items make a total of $12,010.

No Shortage, Says Warner.

Mr. Warner was unwilling to make any extended comment on the discrepancies in the oil department charged to him.

"All I will say at the present time is," said Mr. Warner, "that as far as I am concerned there is no shortage."

"I have repeatedly said this, and I stick to it. Because an inspector says there is a shortage does not make it so."

TAFT LEADS IN STATE CAUCUSES

Most of Delegates Elected to County Conventions Favor the Secretary.

NO CONTESTS ARE EXPECTED

St. Paul, April 8.—The returns from the caucuses that were held throughout the state Saturday night and last night to elect delegates to the county conventions which will elect delegates to the Republican state convention fully justify the statement of those who have been claiming Minnesota for Taft. Ramsey county held its caucuses last night and everything went for Taft. Hennepin and some other counties will hold their caucuses this evening, and some counties will not elect delegates to their county conventions until Wednesday.

The returns from the counties that held caucuses Saturday night and last night are not complete, but they are sufficient to make it certain that every single district in the state will send a Taft delegation. Wilkin and Clay counties so far are the only places where anything else than Taft men were elected. Breckenridge, in Wilkin county, is a town populated almost entirely by railroad employes, and they elected La Follette delegates to the county convention.

Barnesville, in Clay county, last night also elected La Follette men to the county convention.

In Cannon Falls, where J. C. Applegate has been working hard for La Follette, Applegate himself was defeated and a Taft delegation was elected, and the Goodhue county convention will go for Taft solid. In Red Wing there was only one list of delegates voted for, and these all go to the county convention pledged to Taft. It is understood that delegations from every precinct in the county is for Taft. No contests have been reported from any precinct.

In only a few places in the state were there contests, but none have reported anything else than Taft victories so far, while in some of the cases it was personal contests between men who wanted to go and vote for Taft.

Market days have proved successful in a great many places, why not try it here?

Minnesota has gone for Taft and it is nearly a sure thing that he will be nominated on the first ballot.

Congress might just as well adjourn, the base ball season opens soon and there is always something doing on the diamond.

The insurance of bank deposits must come if not by the state then by some other means—but the state control would be much the better.

The increasing receipts at the creamery clearly indicate that the farmers of this section are aware of the fact that their future prosperity depends principally on dairying.

Attorney general Young in a letter intimates that Jacobson is receiving support from the liquor dealers, lumbermen and iron interests. One thing is certain, it looks very much like Jacobson at present.

An ancient rule of the democrats requires that a nominee for president shall have a two-thirds vote of the convention. Bryan will have a clear majority but whether the opposition can control enough to prevent his nomination is the all important question at present.

Meeting is Called

The Thief River Falls News has the following to say in regards to the county seat fight:

As will be noticed by a legal notice published in this issue, the board of county commissioners of Red Lake county are again called to meet to consider the county seat removal petition. Last fall mandamus proceedings were commenced and the case should have been tried in the March term of court. However it was discovered that a technical error had been made in the proceedings, the judge having made his returns outside of the county, and it was thought best to commence a new case and dismiss the old one. Therefore the county commissioners are called to meet on the 25th of April, to consider the petition and if they do not meet, mandamus proceedings will again be commenced. It may take some years before the case is decided, but one thing is certain and that is that voters of Red Lake county are some day going to have an opportunity to vote upon the question of where the county seat is to be located.

We further facilitate the grand old party upon the unprecedented universal prosperity enjoyed by our people, brought about by the wisdom and statesmanship of those in charge of affairs, both state and national.

We especially endorse the patriotic, fearless and vigorous administration of President Roosevelt, and most heartily commend his every act looking to the enforcement of law as respects rich and poor alike, and we take this opportunity to interate the policies of our party to elect to and maintain in office men who will administer the laws fearlessly and as they are found upon the statute books, regardless of the influence of predatory wealth or private interest.

Be It Resolved Further, That we believe that the property and general welfare of our country will be best conserved by continuing the policies inaugurated by our sturdy and matchless president, Theodore Roosevelt, and so believing we pledge our loyalty to the great secretary of war, the Hon. Wm. H. Taft, and instruct our delegates from this convention to vote for delegates who will use their influence for the nomination of Secretary Taft at the national convention at Chicago, thus insuring a continuation of the Roosevelt policies.

Be It Further Resolved, That we earnestly recommend that this convention shall choose delegates to the district convention who are able and willing to use all honorable means to insure the selection of our honored fellow citizen, Daniel Patterson, as a delegate from the ninth district to the republican national convention at Chicago.

Bascom and His Students.

John Bascom, once president of the University of Wisconsin, always had a keen insight into men, and for much of his life college students constituted mankind for him. Once when he was a class officer the names of two men were read by him as absent from morning prayers. One of them, a pietist, stopped at his desk and said:

"Professor, when the chapel bell was ringing I was engaged in prayer and did not hear it."

"You're not excused," responded John, with contempt in his eye and in his voice.

Then, calling back the other man, who was about at the door on his way out of the room, he said to him:

"What's your excuse?"

"I haven't any, sir."

"You're excused."

He used to have debates in his classroom. At one of them a student, whom Bascom subsequently described as a "floriating fellow," in the heat of his eloquence said, "I wish that I had the ability and the time to exhaust this subject."

"You have the time," said Bascom.—Harper's Weekly.

Smart Boy Wins.

The visitor was examining the class of small boys. He held the chalk in midair.

"What number shall I draw on the board?" he asked of one boy.

The boy replied, "Thirty-two."

The visitor drew the number backward, which made twenty-three.

"Is that right?" asked the visitor.

"Yes, sir; yes, sir," answered the boy in a timid way.

"What number shall I take now?" he asked of another.

The boy answered, "Sixty-two," whereupon the visitor drew the number backward, as before—twenty-six.

"Is that right?" he asked.

"Yes, sir," replied the boy.

A long way back a bright eyed boy held up a wavering hand.

"What number shall I draw for you?" asked the visitor.

The boy called out, "Forty-four!" Then, when the visitor had drawn it, he yelled out: "Now, if you are so blamed smart, twist that around!"—New York Globe.

A Financial Embarrassment.

A lady who had a kindly remembrance for all her domestic servants met an erstwhile washerwoman and stopped to ask her how she fared

"Oh, mem, it's terrible financial disthress me an the childer's in."

"Why, what is it? Are you out of employment?"

"No, mem. Work's in a fair state o' stiddiness and not a cint do I owe, but it's lashins o' trouble I've got!"

"Are you not paid promptly?"

"As promptly as the day cooms round."

"What is your financial distress, then?"

"Well, mem" (in a burst of horror), "what's killin' me is, I earn $6 the week an' pay $8 for me boord, an' God only knows how I do it!"—Short Stories.

So Many?

They went in to dinner together. He was very bashful, and she tried in vain to draw him out. Finally she began to talk books, and he became responsive. "And Hugo," she asked, "do you like his style?"

"Oh, yes," he replied, "I find him intensely interesting. I've read a number of his books."

Then she asked, "Have you read 'Ninety-Three?'"

"No, I've—er—only read three. I didn't know he had written so many."—Lippincott's Magazine.

As Japanese See It.

It is said the Japanese think our grown women most alarmingly overgrown, very shocking in their costume and quite dreadful as regards their teeth and their feet—in a word, outrageous. They consider the kimono preferable to western habiliments because it so completely obliterates the lines of the figure. They teach girls to talk with their lips almost closed, concealing the teeth, and to walk with the feet parallel in tiny steps or even toeing in.—Kansas City Journal.

His Absentmindedness.

Professor (after dinner, looking at his empty plate in a rage)—There, we've had spinach and egg again! You know perfectly well, Amelia, that I can't eat it!—Fliegende Blatter.

Sure Thing.

"Do you believe any of the plant or arboreal kingdom would stick to man if given the choice?"

"I think the dogwood."—Baltimore American.

"Have you a few moments to spare?"

"Young man," said the capitalist severely, "my time is worth $100 an hour, but I'll give you ten minutes."

"If it's all the same to you," thoughtfully replied the visitor, "I believe I would rather take it in cash."—Exchange.

Do You Belong to "The Citizens' Committee?"

"THE CITIZENS' COMMITTEE"

This committee is made up of the men who sit around an excavation for a new building, whittle pine sticks, spit tobacco juice on the fresh dirt and watch the other fellows work.
It's all right to show interest in new buildings, in town development and progress, but there's a better way.
You can do more good for yourself and the community by resigning from "The Citizens' Committee" and getting into the General Progress Committee.
This committee is the one that PUTS UP THE NEW BUILDINGS, brings new business into town to occupy them, paints the old houses, keeps the sidewalks in good repair, beautifies the front yards, cleans up the back yards and otherwise makes this town a better town to live in.
The General Progress Committee is the Unofficial Town Booming Committee. It really ought to be organized and made official. Let all of us work together for the advancement of the town we live in, and there will be more room around new excavations for the fellows at work to throw out the dirt.
Eternal industry is the price of progress.
Let's all fall in line for the General Progress Committee—and then

Sunbeam—Miss Esther Johnson closed a very successful three months term of school in this school district today. A social good-bye party will be given her at the school house tomorrow evening and it is expected that her brother Walter, who taught the fall term will also be present.

The prices of lumber, other building material and labor in the Red River Valley, is lower now than it has been for years, and the question arises: How long will such conditions last? Statistics show that all manufacturers of lumber are curtailing their output, which means a scarcity before another year goes by, even wit a very normal demand. A scarcity always tends towards higher prices and it might be business policy to take advantage of the present markets.

Prof. Wm. McGregor, of St. Cloud, was secured by the school board to take the place Prof. Bergh. Mr. McGregor arrived Tuesday and commenced work on Wednesday. He seems to be a bright and capable young man and should have no trouble in proving a success. He is a graduate of the St. Cloud normal.

He will, however, have their best wishes for success and prosperity.

Prof. Bergh Leaves

Prof. Casper E. Bergh came up from his home on Saturday and stayed here until Tuesday settling up his affairs. Prof. Bergh made many warm friends during his stay here and all will wish that he may speedily regain his health. He left for his home at Hendrum Tuesday evening.

Primary Education

The bulk of primary education is provided at public cost. We are proud of our "common schools"—tho they are far below what from an ideal standpoint they should be. No teacher is physically or mentally competent to give instruction to forty children, which is the average size of a division in the public schools. Under such conditions individual instruction is largely impossible. To the tired brain worker nothing is more grateful than a glass of golden grain belt beer at mealtime. Have it on the family table and enjoy its benefits. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

The General Demand

of the Well-Informed of the World has always been for a simple, pleasant and efficient liquid laxative remedy of known value; a laxative which physicians could sanction for family use because its component parts are known to them to be wholesome and truly beneficial in effect, acceptable to the system and gentle, yet prompt, in action.

In supplying that demand with its excellent combination of Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna, the California Fig Syrup Co. proceeds along ethical lines and relies on the merits of the laxative for its remarkable success.

That is one of many reasons why Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna is given the preference by the Well-Informed. To get its beneficial effects always buy the genuine—manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., only, and for sale by all leading druggists. Price fifty cents per bottle.

DIPLOMAT'S WIFE A FAVORITE.

Mme. Luis Pastor Has Made Happy International Marriage.

Recently there was published a list of the American women who have married foreigners, and with the list was given a history, more or less accurate, touching upon the happiness or unhappiness subsequent to marriage of each of the Yankee girls who had gone across the water for titles or position.

Searching the list there was a failure to discover the name of Mme. Luis Pastor, wife of Don Luis Pastor, first secretary of the Spanish legation in Washington. Prior to her marriage, which was in every sense of the word a love match, Mme. Pastor was Miss Constance C. Lee, of the Lee family of Virginia and Maryland.

Miss Lee was a favorite in Washington society circles, embracing the diplomatic, the army and navy, and the legislative branches. She met Don Luis when she was not far beyond the debutante stage of things, and now her husband has been promoted to the first secretaryship, a position of rank in a legation, and the chances are that what was practically the home of Mme. Pastor's girlhood will be the home of her wifehood for some years to come.

The home of Don Luis and his wife is one of the picturesque households of the capital city. The first secretary comes from an old Spanish family, grandees they would call his ancestors across the water. In order to give a thoroughly Spanish atmosphere to his Washington home, the first secretary has brought all kinds of ancient furniture and hangings from the land of his forebears, and when you step off the street into the secretary's home you step from America into Spain.

NO MORE MARKET BASKETS.

Washington Shoppers Take Purchases Home in Suit Cases.

"Running a leather department in connection with the market?" asked a daily buyer of a Washington market dealer the other day.

"Not that I am aware of," answered the dealer. "On what do you base your curiosity?"

"Why, just look at the dress suit cases setting about. I have been coming to this market now for some years. Lately I noticed this innovation, and I have been wondering what it meant. About a year ago I began to notice dress suit cases scattered about the market, but I paid no attention to them at first. Then it began to pique my curiosity, and finally I asked my wife if she knew why it was. She did not know. Now, I cannot stand the suspense any more."

"My dear Smith, I will relieve that chronic attack of curiosity," said the dealer, soothingly. "You see, my class of trade is changing. Instead of the good, old-fashioned basket-on-the-arm trade, I now have a suit-case patronage. For instance, that nice-looking woman over there with the black dress comes here every week and does her marketing after the new, approved suit-case fashion. That man over yonder by the vegetable stall is taking home a suit case full of potatoes, and so forth, and so forth; they are too numerous to mention."

The Close Mouthed Diplomats.

Now, when we say, "Over the Nuts and Wine at Washington," you probably have a mind's-eye picture of an aged diplomat in a red uniform, crossed by a cream-colored sash, arising to respond to a toast; but, really, it isn't that way at all. Diplomats are like Maj. Bagstock, "Joey B."—"dev'lish sly"—when it comes to committing themselves. They are raised in the continental school, which teaches that Vichy Celestin is the only safe beverage to precede a speech, and even then it's better not to. In the European capitals, when an ambassador speaks at a banquet, it is a practical certainty, unless he confines himself to the usual felicitations, that he is merely using himself as a mouthpiece for those higher up; and it's hard to teach an old dog new tricks. The habit of reticence, once acquired, is like the burr of the Scotch dialect; it will never down. Mr. Bryce, like most of his English predecessors, allows himself greater freedom in this respect, but even he has been known to regret it; while M. Jusserand, the French ambassador, has the melancholy satisfaction of knowing that on one occasion he addressed the assembled church leagues of Washington in courtly French, only to learn at the end that "Parlez-vous Francais" was the extent of their knowledge of the language.—Aubrey Lanston, in Bohemian.

Hard to Live Up To.

Here is a definition of a "gentleman," put forward by the Bristol Herald-Courier: "A man that's clean inside and outside, who neither looks up to the rich nor down on the poor, who can lose without squealing and win without bragging, who is considerate to women, children and old people, who is too brave to lie, too generous to cheat and who takes his share of the world and lets other people have theirs." Very nice; but it does sound very much like an obituary notice or an epitaph for a tombstone.

HOW TO APPLY PAINT.

Greatest care should be taken when painting buildings or implements which are exposed to the weather, to have the paint applied properly. No excellence of material can make up for carelessness of application, any more than care in applying it can make poor paint wear well.

The surface to be painted should be dry and scraped and sandpapered hard and smooth. Pure white lead should be mixed with pure linseed oil, fresh for the job, and should be well brushed out, not flowed on thick. When painting is done in this manner with National Lead Company's pure white lead (trade marked with "The Dutch Boy Painter") there is every chance that the job will be satisfactory. White lead is capable of absolute test for purity. National Lead Company, Woodbridge Building, New York, will send a testing outfit free to any one interested.

Wanted the Sensation.

The venerable farmer with the tobacco-stained whiskers and furrowed brow climbed aboard the limited and shambled into the smoker.

"Mister," he drawled, when the conductor halted before him, "is that thar 2-cent-a-mile rate good on this train?"

"It is," replied the conductor brusquely. "Where is your ticket?"

The old man fumbled in the depths of an ancient shot bag.

"Ain't got no ticket, mister," he said slowly, "but here be 2 cents. I never rode on one of these pesky flyers and I just want to feel the sensation. Put me off after I've rode one mile."

PRESCRIPTION PURIFIES BLOOD

Neutralizes Poisonous Acids and Stops Rheumatic Pains and Catarrh

The following prescription is very simple, but is the most effective obtainable for neutralizing acid poisons in the blood and relieving rheumatism and all its kindred ailments; it will also quickly restore the system to a healthy condition. Any one can prepare this simple mixture. The ingredients can be obtained at any well stocked drug store:

"One ounce Compound Syrup of Sarsaparilla; one ounce Toris Root Compound; half pint high grade whiskey. Mix and use a tablespoonful before each meal and at bed time. The bottle must be well shaken each time." Toris Root Compound is a product of the laboratories of the Globe Pharmaceutical Co., Chicago.

The good effect of this treatment is said to become apparent after the first few doses and that it is a remarkable system builder and renovator.

SKYSCRAPERS OF ROME.

Ancient Regulations Regarding the Height of Tenements and Palaces.

"The skyscraper is no modern invention," says a St. Louis architect, well read in the history of his profession. "In all the ancient cities where brick or stone was available high houses within the walls of the city were very numerous because of the lack of ground space for building.

"In the days of Augustus the tenement houses in Rome became so high as to be dangerous and laws were passed condemning a number of tenement rows and ordering them to be taken down, while at the same time a law was enacted limiting the height of all future tenements to 100 feet. For palaces and public buildings there was no limit.

"After the burning of the city in Nero's time the streets, which before were no wider than our alleys, were made broader; some of them, through the business part of the city, were forty feet wide, and some of the great thoroughfares were sixty.

"The tenement height was lowered to eighty feet, and as a consequence the city spread far beyond its walls. The average height of a ceiling in a Roman tenement was a little over five feet; the windows were open holes in the wall, stopped in cold weather with board shutters. So the worst modern tenement is a palace compared with the skyscraper home of the poor when the empire was at its best.

THEY GROW.

Good Humor and Cheerfulness from Right Food.

Cheerfulness is like sunlight. It dispels the clouds from the mind as sunlight chases away the shadows of night.

The good humored man can pick up and carry off a load that the man with a grouch wouldn't attempt to lift.

Anything that interferes with good health is apt to keep cheerfulness and good humor in the background. A Washington lady found that letting coffee alone made things bright for her. She writes:

"Four years ago I was practically given up by my doctor and was not expected to live long. My nervous system was in a bad condition.

"But I was young and did not want to die so I began to look about for the cause of my chronic trouble. I used to have nervous spells which would exhaust me and after each spell it would take me days before I could sit up in a chair.

"I became convinced my trouble was caused by coffee. I decided to stop it and bought some Postum.

"The first cup, which I made according to directions, had a soothing effect on my nerves and I liked the taste. For a time I nearly lived on Postum and ate little food besides. I am today a healthy woman.

"My family and relatives wonder if I am the same person I was four years ago, when I could do no work on account of nervousness. Now I am doing my own housework, take care of two babies—one twenty, the other two months old. I am so busy that I hardly get time to write a letter, yet I do it all with the cheerfulness and good humor that comes from enjoying good health.

"I tell my friends it is to Postum I owe my life today."

MAKING HEAVY GUNS

THE WASHINGTON NAVY YARD IS KEPT BUSY.

Forgings Are Brought from Various Steel Works and Assembled—Exact Designs and Measurements for Weapons.

All the big guns for the navy are now made at the Washington navy yard. The forgings come from Bethlehem, Midvale (near Philadelphia) and the Carnegie steel works at Pittsburg, being supplied under contract and manufactured under the supervision of naval officers, who are assigned to each furnace and whose duty it is to see that the steel is pure and perfect, and that it corresponds to the specifications. The government spends about $3,000,000 a year for materials of this kind, and there are about $2,000,000 worth of guns partially finished at the navy yard in Washington all the time. The forgings come in the rough, but have been hammered into the shapes and sizes desired, according to drawings furnished by the ordnance bureau of the navy department.

Every 12 and 13-inch gun is composed of nine separate pieces. Each piece is so exact in its measurements that they will fit together like the works of a watch. Each gun is manufactured after a design and measurements that are sketched upon a blue print, such as an architect furnishes to the builder of a house. Battleships are constructed the same way. Every plate of steel, every rivet, every bit of machinery, every wire and steam pipe, every electric light on a man-of-war has its picture made before it comes into existence and is shaped exactly on the lines and the size indicated by the measurements that are marked upon the blue print.

The forgings for a 13-inch gun—the largest that is now made, which will throw 2,400 pounds of steel 12 or 13 miles and hit a target five or six miles distant with as much accuracy as a revolver in a shooting gallery—vary in weight from 25 pounds to 25 tons, and are brought by rail over the Pennsylvania tracks into the gun factory, where they are picked up and carried to the places assigned them by traveling cranes that don't make half as much noise as a sewing machine. The biggest one can handle 110 tons, another 60 and another 40 tons as gently and as easily as a mother will raise her child from the cradle. The cranes pick up 13-inch guns and carry them the whole length of the factory, which is longer than the capitol building—a thousand feet from end to end—and lay them down in parallel rows like knives or spoons in a silver chest.

Every kind of gun and ordnance material is made at the navy yard—torpedo tubes, cartridge cases, swabs, rammers, canvas covers, rope for the gun carriers and sights which the gunners use to find the range and tell them when to shoot. They make all sizes of guns there, also, varying from the one-pounder, which is four feet long and about one-inch bore, to the big 13-inch thunderer, which is 45 feet long and made of metal that is four inches thick at the muzzle and 17 inches thick at the breech. The six-pounder is six feet long and has a bore of 2.24 inches. The 13-inch gun of the latest type costs $60,000. Everything that belongs to a gun is made at the navy yard except powder and projectiles. The powder is made at Indian Head and the projectiles at Giesboro, on the Potomac, four miles south of Washington. A factory was recently erected there by the Fort Sterling Company, a private corporation, which has a contract for furnishing $2,000,000 worth of projectiles for the navy.

Tips as Necessaries.

We pay tips for almost every service. We dislike to do so not only because it seems un-American, but because there is an uncertainty about the amount which compels every man to do more than he feels he should lest he be humiliated by a servant. All efforts at abolishing tips in this country have failed. We pay them in larger amounts than in Europe, though perhaps not quite so universally. We tip a waiter 10 per cent., at a hotel or restaurant when often his income exceeds ours. But we dare not face his stony glare if we give no pourboire. We are cowards in a sense and we are foolish in another. If we are to tip we ought to have a recognized tariff, so that a man may know what he is to pay. To give a man in the washroom a dime, a man at the coatroom a dime and a waiter half a dollar may be nothing to some men, but it disturbs the frugal mind and is not scientific.

Lists Are Perfectly Kept.

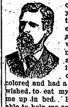
The entire list of all the several thousands of guests bidden to the White House state receptions are printed the morning after each affair, in both matutinal dailies of Washington, in alphabetical order, with punctilious exactitude, initials and spelling without a flaw. They are martinets in such matters at the White House. The lists, arranged somewhat in a book form, are supplied the press from the executive offices before the ball begins. Thus the overlooked may not with impunity have recourse to the ancient strategem: "We had cards to the White House this week, of course, but we didn't go. Those crushes are such bores, don't you know." Are "their names written there?" No? Then of course!

Reception for the Favored Few.

Congressional folk are, ex officio, invited to all three state levees, the diplomatic, the judiciary, the congressional, but they sigh in vain for entree to the army and navy blowout. The only senators and representatives bidden are those gentlemen with families who enjoy the distinction of being on the military and naval committees of both houses. The wives and daughters of many freshmen members often ignore the three state invitations that the gods have provided them, innocently arguing that these biddings presuppose the fourth and final card of admission, perhaps the most coveted of all. But nit and nixy, also nein, you can't come, dearies.

RAISED FROM A SICK BED.

After Being an Invalid with Kidney Disorders for Many Years.



John Armstrong, Cloverport, Ky., says: "I was an invalid with kidney complaints for many years, and cannot tell what agony I endured from backache. My limbs were swollen twice natural size and my sight was weakening. The kidney secretions were discolored and had a sediment. When I wished to eat my wife had to raise me up in bed. Physicians were unable to help me and I was going down fast when I began using Doan's Kidney Pills. After a short time I felt a great improvement and am now as strong and healthy as a man could be. I give Doan's Kidney Pills all the credit for it."

HIS WHEAT WENT 22 BUSHELS TO THE ACRE.

HE REALIZED $18 PER ACRE FROM IT, WHILE OATS GAVE HIM $17 AN ACRE.

Moose Jaw, Sask., Nov. 18th, 1907. Writing from Moose Jaw, Saskatchewan, Mr. S. K. Rathwall says:

"I have much pleasure in saying that on my farm this year I had 500 acres in wheat, and 120 acres in oats. My wheat averaged about 22 bushels per acre, and I had 200 acres cut before the frost, which I sold at 85 cents per bushel, thus realizing on that wheat $18.00 per acre, not counting cost of twine, seed and labor. With regard to the other 300 acres of wheat, it got touched with frost but is worth 60 cents per bushel. It will net me $13.00 per acre, but I do not intend to sell it at that price, as I can make more money by feeding it to hogs.

"My oats turned out about 50 bushels to the acre, and at 35 cents per bushel will give me $17.00 to the acre, not counting seed, twine and labor.

"On account of the late spring, a percentage of the grain was touched with frost, but on account of good prices, farmers will realize a fair profit on their farms even this year. We are as usual up against a shortage of cars to get our grain removed."

CONGRESS WARNED BY PRESIDENT

Vetoes Rainy River Project and in Vigorous Style Explains His Reasons.

MUST CONSERVE RESOURCES

Interest of All People Pleaded in Support of President's Stream Rights' Policy.

Washington, April 15.—In a special message vetoing a dam bill, President Roosevelt yesterday warned congress that there are pending in this session bills which propose to give away without price stream rights capable of developing 1,300,000 horse-power, the production of which would equal annually the production of 25,000,00 tons of coal. The president urged in vigorous terms the establishment of a policy, such as the filibustering minority in the house demands, which would safeguard the granting of bridge and dam privileges and require the grantees to pay for them.

He definitely announced a future policy on his part with regard to prompt utilization of construction privileges by refusing his signature to a bill giving an additional three years to the Rainy River Improvement company of Minnesota within which to build a dam in the Rainy river.

Policy Is Set Forth.

"In place of the present haphazard policy of permanently alienating valuable property," said the president, "we should substitute a definite policy along the following lines:

"First—There should be a limited or carefully guarded grant in the nature of an option or opportunity afforded within reasonable time for development of plans and for execution of the project.

"Second—Such a grant or concession should be accompanied in the act making the grant by a provision expressly making it the duty of the designated official to annul the grant if the work is not begun or plans are not carried on in accordance with the authority granted.

In Interest of Public.

"Third—It should also be the duty of some designated official to see to it that in approving the plans the maximum development of the navigation and power is assured, or at least in making the plans these may not be so developed as ultimately to interfere with the better utilization of the water or complete development of the power.

"Fourth—There should be a license fee or charge which, though small or nominal at the outset, can in the future be adjusted so as to secure a control in the interest of the public.

"Fifth — Provision should be made for the termination of the grant or privilege at a definite time, leaving to future generations the power or authority to renew or extend the concession in accordance with the conditions which may prevail at that time."

JOHNSON WARMLY WELCOMED.

Is Principal Speaker at Jefferson Banquet in Kentucky.

Louisville, Ky., April 15. — Gov. Johnson of Minnesota was given his first formal introduction to the Democrats of Kentucky at the banquet of the Jefferson club here, where he delivered the principal address of the evening. The welcome accorded him was an enthusiastic one, 500 diners sitting down at tables in the Sellbach Hotel Roof garden, while the remainder of the garden was filled with auditors by the time the speaking began. A number of Kentucky Democratic leaders were present, although pronounced political flavor was mitigated somewhat by the presence of Gov. Willson, Kentucky's Republican executive, and a party of friends. Gov. Willson delivered the address of welcome, and introduced his fellow executive to those present.

Gov. Johnson's speech, while rather brief, touched upon Democratic principles and the development of the Jeffersonian doctrines by present day deeds.

Gov. Johnson and party arrived late Sunday night from Shiloh battlefield, and after the banquet last night left in a special train for Chicago, en route to St. Paul.

HEAVY LOSS BY PRAIRIE FIRE

Seven Counties in South Dakota Suffer Heavily—Twenty Farmers Lose $60,000.

Huron, S. D., April 16.—Tuesday's prairie fires caused heavy losses and much suffering in Beadle, Jerauld, Sanborn, Spink, Mand and Sully counties. Twenty Beadle county farmers lost an aggregate of $60,000 in buildings, machinery and stock. Cattle, horses, hogs and sheep were burned by scores, and many farmers lost their homes, furniture and apparel. Several railroad and wagon bridges, a few school houses and one church were burned. The Van Dusen Elevator company suffered loss of $8,000; the Atlas Elevator company, $20,000; Great Northern railway, $2,000; Chicago & North-Western Railway company, $3,500; Central Dakota Telephone company, $2,000. Several persons were painfully burned and otherwise injured, but none was fatally hurt.

Two Small Boys Arrested at Warren for Attempting to Wreck Train.

Warren, Minn., April 16.—Two sons of John Khune, aged seven and thirteen, were arrested and bound over to the district court on the charge of attempting to wreck the Great Northern passenger train on the Greenbush extension. The boys placed large spikes between the rails near the switch. The train nearly left the track, but aside from the breaking of windows no serious damage resulted. The boys probably will be sent to the reformatory.

5,000 SAILORS IN MARTIAL PAGEANT

San Diego Takes Holiday to See Most Notable Land Display Ever Made by Navy.

THRONG WILDLY ENTHUSIASTIC

Three Thousand School Children Sing; Jeweled Sword for Evans, Medals for Others.

San Diego, April 16.—A parade of bluejackets and marines landed from the American battleship fleet, 5,000 fighting men, fresh from a cruise of more than 13,000 miles, marked yesterday the ceremonies of official welcome to the State of California. Sixty-four companies of sailormen in their togs of the sea, with wide flaring trousers reefed down in canvas leggings, and sixteen companies of marines, soldierly and straight, formed the most notable of the navy's land display. The procession the men of the navy formed was more than two miles long. San Diego took a holiday to see the martial pageant, and the sidewalks paralleling the asphalted roadways were crowded with a typical holiday throng.

Wildly Enthusiastic.

Their enthusiasm was explosive, the appearance of the bluejackets and marines calling forth long sustained cheering. At the city park the sailors passed in review before Rear Admirals Thomas, Sperry and Emery and Gov. Gillette and his staff. A crowd of many thousands of people surrounded the grand stands.

Three thousand school children, waving flags and banners, were massed directly in front of the reviewing stand, and their songs and cheers were one of the prettiest features of the day's celebration. Gov. Gillette in a brief speech supplemented his words of welcome spoken Tuesday on the quarter deck of the flagship Connecticut, and Rear Admiral Charles M. Thomas made a formal response on behalf of the fleet.

Sword for Evans.

Admiral Thomas then graciously accepted, on behalf of Admiral Evans, a golden key, symbolical of the freedom of the city. The token will be forwarded by Admiral Thomas to Admiral Evans at Paso Robles Hot Springs. There will go with it a gold-mounted and jeweled naval sword, presented yesterday to Admiral Evans, through Admiral Thomas, by the patriotic fraternities of the city, including the Grand Army of the Republic, the Confederate veterans and Spanish war veterans. To Admirals Thomas, Sperry and Emery gold medals commemorative of their visit visit were presented.

Last night a ball was tendered to the admirals and officers of the fleet at the Hotel del Coronado.

The fire started on the south side of the kitchen of the Smiley hotel. It spread rapidly and soon the entire block was a mass of flames. There is no fire protection at Nary, and it was impossible with the use of only buckets to arrest the progress of the fire. It took but a few moments over an hour to reduce six buildings to ashes.

STORM IS FATAL TO TWO MEN

Terrific Wind Storm Strikes Chicago—Eleven Men Rescued on Lake—Damage Heavy.

Chicago, April 16.—A gale which attained the velocity of forty-seven miles an hour struck this city early yesterday and raged until evening without lessening its violence.

It cost the lives of two men, Joseph Sachsel, a liquor dealer, and his nephew, Arthur Freud, both being drowned by the upsetting of their boat in Lake Michigan off the foot of Wilson avenue.

Both men went down in sight of Mrs. Sachsel and the four sisters of Freud, who saw the gale approaching and vainly attempted to signal the men. When they failed in this they telephoned to the police and to the lifesaving station. The crew from the latter place at once set out, but it had twelve miles to pull through a rapidly rising sea and against the wind. When the crew reached the spot the men and boat had disappeared.

Off Jackson Park eleven men were rescued by the lifesaving crew during the day.

The wind did much damage in all parts of the city to trees and shrubbery, and in the business sections tore down signs and smashed plate glass windows.

COUNTIES PICK TAFT DELEGATES

Solid Delegation From Minnesota Instructed for War Secretary Is Certain.

COUNTY CONVENTIONS HELD

Delegates to State and District Conventions Named and Most of Them Instructed.

St. Paul, April 11.—County conventions were held yesterday throughout the state for the purpose of selecting delegates to the Republican state convention to be held in Minneapolis next Thursday. Taft has made a clean sweep. He will have the solid twenty-two delegates from this state and they will be instructed to vote for him first, last and all the time.

He will have the state convention and every district convention by overwhelming majorities. There will not be enough delegates opposed to him in the conventions to make a noise.

The hopes of the La Follette people were shattered. Their hopes of strength in the Fifth congressional district, Hennepin, having gone glimmering at the primaries Tuesday night, they still talked of strength in the Seventh and Ninth, yet every county in both districts that had reported last night was for Taft.

Program for Thursday.

When the state convention meets at Minneapolis next Thursday it will elect F. B. Kellogg of St. Paul, W. W. Heffelfinger of Minneapolis and E. B. Hawkins of Duluth as three of the four delegates at large. The fourth will come from either the First or Second district. W. B. Parsons of Winona will have the indorsement of his district. Two districts in the Second instructed for Senator F. E. Putnam and one for Frank Hunt of Mankato.

In the First district every county reported Taft instructions except two, which reported indorsements without instructions. Senator A. S. Campbell of Austin and Dr. J. H. Adair of Owatoma were indorsed for district delegates and will be the choice.

Betz or Somerville.

In the Second district there are three counties to hear from, one for Taft without instructions and the rest instructed for him. T. C. Collins of Windom will be one of the delegates and the other will be either F. W. Betz of Fairmont or George H. Somerville of Sleepy Eye.

In the Third there are three to report, five instructed and one for Taft without instructions. C. M. Buck of Faribault and G. J. Bradley of Norwood received several indorsements for district delegates and will probably be elected.

The Fourth and Fifth districts went solid with Taft instructions. The fourth instructed for W. B. Webster and G. H. Sullivan for delegates, and the Fifth elected W. H. Eustis and Otto E. Greeley as delegates.

Eight districts in the Sixth instructed for Taft, one indorsed him without instructions, one elected Taft men, one gave no instructions and one has not reported. Senator C. J. Gunderson of Alexandria and Senator S. F. Alderman of Brainerd were indorsed by several counties for delegates and probably will be elected.

Has Second Chance.

In the Seventh thirteen counties instructed for Taft and one is yet to report. Redwood, however, made La Follette second choice.

Six counties in the Eighth reported Taft instructions, and the others have not yet reported. Anoka indorsed Senator C. J. Swanson of Fridley for district delegate, and St. Louis indorsed J. B. Cotton of Duluth. These will probably be the team.

Mille Lac county's delegation to both conventions will be headed by R. C. Dunn of Princeton. Mille Lac is solid for Taft.

The Ninth reported ten counties instructed for Taft and three have not been heard from.

BIG HAUSER DAM GIVES WAY

Damage Estimated at $250,000 Caused by Break Near Helena—No Lives Are Lost.

Helena, Mont., April 16.—Without warning, the great dam at Hauser lake, on the Missouri river, fifteen miles north of this city, partially gave way shortly before 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, causing damage estimated at $250,000. No lives were lost and as far as can be learned, no serious damage has been caused by the volume of water, estimated at about twenty-five feet, which was precipitated into the channel below the structure. The narrowness of the river and its interwinding course has impeded the progress of the water, and no great loss of property is anticipated in the towns and villages north of this city.

Hauser lake dam, seventy feet high and 490 feet long, was completed last year at a cost of more than $2,000,000, and developed a horse-power of 25,000, which was utilized in operating the various power plans in Helena and the Butte mines and the Amalgamated Copper company's smelter plants at Anaconda.

RUSHFORD IS GOING BROKE.

Embezzlement and No-license Vote Prove Bad Combination.

Rushford, Minn., April 16.—As the result of the alleged embezzlement of $3,200 by the city clerk and the voting of no license last week, this city is threatened with bankruptcy. The saloon licenses expire April 23, at which time $4,500 revenue in licenses will be cut off. The shortage of City Clerk Alm, who was arrested last night and pleaded guilty, brings the loss of revenue almost up to $8,000. Neither contingency was anticipated when the tax levy was made last fall and the city has not sufficient money for its needs, and no prospect of getting any until next winter. The council has not been able to find a way out of the dilemma.

Two extensive prairia fires are reported to be burning in Sully county, north of Pierre. A gale has been blowing, making it impossible to head the fires, and a large area has been burned over. D., April 16. — This city was entirely surrounded by prairie fires yesterday afternoon, the smoke from which was so dense that the sun was obscured and dust and ashes were driven in clouds by the high winds. Hundreds of men went out from here in automobiles and wagons to fight the fire.

No Elk Lodge for Thief River Falls

Bemidji Pioneer—Word has been received in this city that the application of Elks residing at Thief River Falls for a dispensation for the purpose of starting an Elk lodge at that place has been refused, and that there will be no Elk organization at Thief River Falls, at present.

In refusing the dispensation to the Thief River Falls "bunch" several matters were taken into consideration, the principal one which was that the town lacked the necessary 5,000 population. The Thief River Falls Elks will remain in the Crookston district.

Miss Mary Brunette, one of our richest and most popular young ladies will purchase the largest and best building in Thief River Falls. The deal will be closed about the last of the month the building in question being the Parker-Wilcox brick block. The building will be sold for $15,000 and as the rental income is $2,250 per year, this seems to be a good investment. The young lady has recently sold her pine claim on the reservation and instead of spending the money in the usual way is determined to invest it in valuable property. Are there any more at home like her?—Mahnomen Tribune.

A. S. Wright, travelling salesman for the Fergus Falls shirt factory, was here last Thursday afternoon and sold a large bill of shirts to M. L. Hanson. The Fergus Falls shirt factory is gaining an enviable reputation for itself all over the states of Minnesota and North Dakota for the quality of goods which it turns out. Mr. Hanson is the only merchant in St. Hilaire who will handle this celebrated line of shirts and anyone in need of a dress or soft shirt will do well to inspect his line when it arrives next week. Each shirt is guaranteed and consequently nothing but the best of material is used in their manufacture.

Paving of Steel

There is a section of the streets of Paris where steel paving blocks are being laid as an experiment. It is claimed that an advantage will be a uniform surface of greater wearing resistence. New inventions are being perfected every day, but is a question if anything will be manufactured that will equal golden grain belt beer in food values and tonic properties, or supplant it in favor as a home beverage. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

Board of Education Meets

The board of education held a special meeting last Friday evening, April 10, and elected Prof. Wm. McGregor to the principalship of the schools for the ensuing year. During his short stay here Prof. McGregor has given general satisfaction and the board lost no time in re-electing him. The board also elected Miss Margaret Plowman to a position in the grades. Miss Plowman graduates from the Moorhead normal this spring and comes highly recommended.

Since the opening of the spring term of school the pupils in the primary room exceed the seventy mark and it was decided that one half that number should attend school in the morning and the other half in the afternoon, thus relieving the teacher of a great deal of work and trouble and assuring each pupil of a more thorough training and attention from their teacher.

PLEASANT JAILS.

The Way Prisoners In Montenegro Are Treated.

When I paid a visit to the Cetinje jail I found that all the prisoners were out for a walk. For two hours every morning and again for two hours in the afternoon they are allowed to wander about on the green before the prison. There is nothing, indeed, but their own sense of honor to prevent their going farther afield unless they be murderers, in which case they wear chains. The authorities provide them with housing, of course, and with clothes—not uniform—also with a fire at which to cook their food, and they give them fourpence a day each to buy it. The prisoners cater for themselves. Two of them go to the market every morning to buy provisions for the day. They are not required to work unless they choose, and they are classified not according to the seriousness of their offense, but according to their standard of life and general behavior. If a man of education and refinement is sent to prison, care is taken to lodge him, so far as possible, in a room where the other occupants belong to his own rank in life. I found on one bed a beautiful counterpane and a pillow covered with delicate embroidery. "Yes, poor fellow, that's his wife's handiwork," the governor of the jail remarked casually as we passed. It one prison life was made so easy an pleasant that on leaving it I ventured to remark that to be there was no punishment, it seemed to me.

"No punishment!" the official who was with me exclaimed in surprise. "But think of the disgrace of being here. Is not that in itself punishment enough?"

I had and still have doubts on the subject, for I had just seen a cheery old fellow who, although the time for which he was sentenced had expired stoutly refused to quit the prison.—Edith Sellers in Fortnightly Review.

England's One Protestant Cathedral.

Truro cathedral is the only Established Church cathedral of any importance which has been built since St Paul's was completed by Sir Christopher Wren. All the great cathedrals and abbeys in England were erected by Catholics and were handed over, by act of parliament in the reign of Henry VIII. to the Protestants when the Catholic church was established and the Protestant religion created by law.—Reynolds' Newspaper.

Hunting the Marabou.

Hunting the marabou is attended with great difficulty, as the bird possesses wonderful cunning and often contrives to outwit the most skillful hunter. With laughable dignity it measures the ground between itself and its pursuer and takes very good care not to exhaust itself by too rapid flight. If the hunter moves slowly the bird at once adopts an equally easy pace, but if the hunter quickens his steps the bird is off like an arrow. It is very difficult to get within gun range of this calculating creature, but the natives adopt a novel means of capturing it, which the bird, with all its astuteness, is unable to comprehend and falls an easy victim. A tempting morsel of meat is tied to the end of a long stout cord, which the skillful hunter flings to a great distance, as he would a lasso, the bait falling as near the fleeing bird as he can aim it. He then conceals himself hastily behind a bush or crouches low on the sand. The marabou, which always keeps its eye on the hunter, seeing him vanish, quietly stops and devours the bait, when it is easily secured by the hunter, who runs toward it, coiling the rope as he goes.

Carlyle's Recipe For Shirts.

Here is an extract from a letter of Thomas Carlyle, in which he asks his sister to make him some shirts and sends the measurements. How many women could make a shirt after them?

"My Dear Jenny—* * * In the meanwhile I want you to make me some flannel things, too—three flannel shirts especially. You can get the flannel from Alick if he has any that he can well recommend. You can readily have them made before the other shirts go off. I have taken the measure today and now send you the dimensions, together with a measuring strap which I bought some weeks ago (at one penny) for the purpose! You are to be careful to scour the flannel first, after which process the dimensions are these: Width (when the shirt is laid on its back), 22½ inches; extent from wrist button to wrist button, 61 inches; length in the back, 35 inches; length in the front, 25½ inches. Do you understand all that? I dare say you will make it out, and this measuring band will enable you to be exact enough."

Began With "D" Anyway.

"An' when they gits to Italy," goes on Bill, growin' quite enthusiastic, as you might say, over th' idee, "he'll have th' time of his life ruminatin' roun' them old palaces of the dogs."

"Dogs!" I gasped. "Palaces of the dogs!"

"Doggies, then, I s'pose you might call it," says he, "if you're so blamed pertiklar, though it ain't spelt that way. It's spelt dogs, only with the 'e.'"

"Bill Gladox," says I, "for an uneducated man you are th' most ignorant I ever see. Do you mean to tell me you ain't never hear of th' dodges of Venice that has been mayors of th' town for th' last hundred years or more?"

"No, I ain't," says he, "an' no one else neither. Ther' ain't any such folks there. Dodge ain't an Eyetalian name nohow. It b'longs in Connecticut. Not but what ther's a few, mebbe in New York an' Rhode Island, but not in Italy, not by a derned sight."—American Magazine.

STAGE FRIGHT.

Actors Have Been Known to Die From the Malady.

Perhaps the most terrible malady which can attack the actor in the course of his performance is the peculiar disease known as stage fright. Through its evil effects strong men and women have been known to faint, break down and do many other queer things, and there are even on record several cases of people who have died through this horrible seizure.

Some years ago a young novice who was to appear for the first time arrived at the theater very white and shaky. Brandy being given him, he appeared slightly better, but no sooner had he set his foot on the stage than he clapped his hand to his heart, with a low cry, and fell down dead. The overwhelming sensation induced by stage fright had attacked his heart, and his theatrical career ended thus even at its beginning.

Quite as ghastly was the case of the young amateur actress who, strangely enough, had never experienced stage fright when playing with her fellow amateurs, but who was seized with the attack on making her first professional appearance. She went through the scene aided by the prompter, her eyes glazed, her hands rigid, and when the exit came it proved her exit from life's stage as well as the mimic boards, for she staggered to her dressing room and fell into a comatose state, from which she never recovered.

Perhaps, however, the most peculiar instance of all was that of the veteran performer who had gone through thirty years of stage work without experiencing this malady. One night, however, he confided to a fellow player that a quite unaccountable nervousness had suddenly taken hold of him and that he did not think he could ever act again.

His comrade laughed at the notion and urged him to go on, as usual, but his astonishment may well be conceived when the poor old player went on the stage and, after making several vain efforts to speak, fell back and expired. The doctor who made the postmortem examination stated that death was due to failure of the heart's action, evidently induced by the presence of an attack of stage fright.—Pearson's Weekly.

What Retards the Silo.

If the barn is properly ventilated and no silage is left strewn around on the floor to decay and to load the air with its odor, there will be no objections to the feeding of silage. It is the careless and indifferent dairymen who have led many people engaged in the milk business to condemn the silo.—New York Farmer.

"Have you a few moments to spare?"

"Young man," said the capitalist severely, "my time is worth $100 an hour, but I'll give you ten minutes."

"If it's all the same to you," thoughtfully replied the visitor, "I believe I would rather take it in cash."—Exchange.

Might Start a Forest.

A lady told a party of friends that she had quarreled with her husband and had planted a tree in memory of their first falling out.

"What a splendid idea," whispered another lady in her husband's ear; "if we had adopted that plan we might have had by now a fine avenue of trees in our garden."

The World's Gypsies.

The gypsies have passed under a variety of names, arising either from their supposed original country or the callings and characteristics of the race. The old English Egyptian, the Spanish Gitana and the Magyar Pharas nepek (Pharaoh's people) all point to an Egyptian origin. The Scandinavian Tatare identifies them with the Mongolian hordes which terrorized early Europe, while the French Bohemian suggests yet another country as their cradle.

As to the names bestowed by their supposed character, the Arab boldly calls them harami (a villain), the Dutchman heydens, or heathens, and the Persian takes his name from their complexion and dubs them karachi, or, swarthy. A charter of William the Lion, as early as the twelfth century, mentions their Scotch name of tinklers, which is commonly supposed to be a corruption of tinker, although possibly the substitution of "t" for "z" has produced this form of the Italian Zingaro, one of the most widespread of gypsy appellations.—London Chronicle.

The Spectator overlooked an important news item last week in failing to report the death of Mrs. Helena Nelson on Friday morning, April 10, at the home of P. E. Smedeseng in Wylie. Death was due, primarily, to old age, she being 73 years old. The funeral was held Sunday afternoon, Rev. Sand officiating, and the remains were laid at rest in the cemetery of the Swedish Lutheran church in the town of Bray.

The prices of lumber, other building material and labor in the Red River Valley, is lower now than it has been for years, and the question arises: How long will such conditions last? Statistics show that all manufacturers of lumber are curtailing their output, which means a scarcity before another year goes by, even wit a very normal demand. A scarcity always tends towards higher prices and it might be business policy to take advantage of the present markets.

Miss Eda Brink was brought home Monday morning from the Moorhead normal her system having suffered a general break-down due to overwork and hard study. Her condition is not very serious, however, and she will return to the normal in a few days.

At Oslo last Friday the cold storage agencies of the Minneapolis Brewing Co., Hamm Brewing Co., Anhauser-Bush Brewing Co. and Val Blatz Brewing Co. and 500 tons of coal belonging to the Soo railway company were destroyed by a fire which caused a loss of $25,000. The burning coal is still causing a great fire and intense heat, but there is no danger of further destruction. A special train with the Thief River Falls department was started from that city. The Soo depot was saved. The loss is partially covered by insurance.—Norman Co. Herald.

Rev. Palm and family were pleasantly surprised at his home last Friday evening by the members of the congregation of his church. The fact that it came as a most complete and unexpected surprise added lustre to the occasion and the evening was spent in general conversation and games. A lunch was served and the gathering dispersed at a late hour after holding a short devotional service. Rev. Palm and family were presented with a supply of groceries and other things and they take this occasion to again thank their generous contributors and congregation as a whole.

Last Friday evening one of the large plate glasses in the front of the Imperial Drug store was cracked and broken by a large stone thrown by one of the small boys of the village. The young culprit was apprehended and developments may follow later. A few days prior to this a stone found its way through a window pane in the law office belonging to Mr. R. V. Lewis and here also the boy was caught. Not content with this they commenced bombarding windows in empty houses about the village. The young boys of the village have been permitted to do very much as they please, the instances cited above are but two of the many depredations which they have committed. They congregate where they please, and any number of the youngsters are to be found roaming the streets long after the curfew has sounded its warning. Parents should see to it that their children are at home at the proper hour and the marshall should see to it that the curfew and its warnings are heeded. One or two arrests might aid the situation very materially.

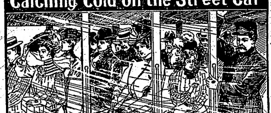
NO ONE CAN ALWAYS AVOID

Catching Cold on the Street Car



Pe-ru-na Prevents Catching Cold.
One Dose in Time, Saves Nine.

Many people persist in riding on the street cars, insufficiently protected by clothing.

They start out perhaps in the heat of the day and do not feel the need of wraps.

The rapid moving of the car cools the body unduly. When they board the car perhaps they are slightly perspiring. When the body is in this condition it is easily chilled. This is especially true when a person is sitting.

Beginning a street car ride in the middle of the day and ending it in the evening almost invariably requires extra wraps, but people do not observe these precautions, hence they catch cold.

Colds are very frequent in the Spring on this account, and as the Summer advances, they do not decrease. During the Spring months, no one should think of riding on the car without being provided with a wrap.

A cold caught in the Spring is liable to last through the entire Summer. Great caution should be observed at this season against exposure to cold. During the first few pleasant days of Spring, the liability of catching cold is great.

No wonder so many people acquire muscular rheumatism and catarrhal diseases during this season.

However, in spite of the greatest precautions, colds will be caught.

At the appearance of the first symptom, Peruna should be taken according to directions on the bottle, and continued until every symptom disappears.

Do not put it off. Do not waste time by taking other remedies. Begin at once to take Peruna and continue taking it until you are positive that the cold has entirely disappeared. This may save you a long and perhaps serious illness later on.

Bad Effects From Cold.

Mr. M. J. Deutsch, Secretary Building Material Trades Council, 151 Washington St., Chicago, Ill., writes:

"I have found your medicine to be unusually efficacious in getting rid of bad effects from cold, and more especially in driving away all symptoms of catarrh, with which I am frequently troubled.

"The relief Peruna gives in catarrhal troubles alone is well worth the price per bottle. I have used the remedy for several years now."

Spells of Coughing.

Mrs. C. E. Long, writes from Atwood, Colorado, as follows:

"When I wrote you for advice my little three-year-old girl had a cough that had been troubling her for four months. She took cold easily, and would wheeze and have spells of coughing that would sometimes last for a half hour.

"Now we can never thank you enough for the change you have made in our little one's health. Before she began taking your Peruna she suffered everything in the way of cough, colds and croup, but now she has taken not quite a bottle of Peruna, and is well and strong as she has ever been in her life."

Pe-ru-na for Colds.

Mr. James Morrison, 68 East 10th St., Paterson, N. J., writes:

"I have given Peruna a fair trial, and I find it to be just what you claim it to be. I cannot praise it too highly. I have used two bottles in my family for colds, and everything imaginable. I can safely say that your medicine is the best I have ever used."

At a meeting of the Crookston school board the contract was let for the erection of a school building, at a cost of $30,000, to take the place of the Franklin school, recently destroyed by fire. The building will be of stone and brick, with the highest class fire protection in the state. It will seat 800 pupils.

Hundreds of persons were momentarily panicstricken and hundreds of buildings in Southeast Minneapolis were violently shaken by the explosion of a gunpowder magazine on the state university campus. No one was injured by the explosion, but the damage to window glass was heavy. The cause of the explosion is not yet known. The damage will amount to about $200.

John Reed, alias Herman Greeler, who departed from Crookston recently, having, it is alleged, in his possession instruments belonging to the Crookston band, has been arrested at his home in Edgerton, Wis., and Sheriff Louis Gonyea has departed thence to bring him back. NEW ARRIVALS IN CANADA NEARLY 300,000 IN 1907.

ABOUT SIXTY THOUSAND FROM THE UNITED STATES.

Now that it is known that in the year just closed nearly sixty thousand from the United States declared their intention of making their homes in Canada, it might not be out of place to search for some reasons that would bring this about. These people are but following the example of the fifty-five or sixty thousand who did the same thing the year previous, and an almost equal number who the year before that but followed the example of the thousands of the year preceding. An excellent climate, certain and positive crops of grain of all kinds, good markets for their produce, land—and good land, too—at low prices, easy terms of payment, (not forgetting the 160 acres of land given free by the Government, particulars of which the Canadian Government Agent whose name appears elsewhere will tell you about) and then the splendid social conditions. The situation is pretty well sized up by a writer in one of the magazines. Quoting from this article, we find this: "Those of us who made good in the States," interjected another settler as if to continue the story of his neighbor, "have had it easy from the start; a little money is a mighty good thing on coming into a new country. But those who make an entry, or even buy lands at low rates, are able to square things in two or three seasons' crops. There are hardships in building shanties, and then with increasing prosperity getting things into shape for better homes. But affairs go much as in the States. We have the largest liberty in the world; there is more home rule in the Provinces than in the several states of the Republic. Taxes are light and with only a few million people west of Winnipeg we don't get in each other's way. One's friends over the line probably thought we would not live through the winter; and while it is cold, real cold, it is free from the moisture experienced in the east. Schools are good as encouraged by the Government; the enterprising American promoter and Yankee drummer see to it that we take notice of the latest improvements and best agricultural machinery. Altogether we are as near to affairs as we would be on our own farms in the States. Winnipeg bears the same relation to us as Chicago did at home; and Edmonton with the surrounding region advances as Omaha did in the days when we were as young as the boys yonder. We get together much as they did in the granges over the border; the government has established experimental schools of agriculture, and progress in every line is stimulated. This is a great region for grazing," we hear the Calgary citizen continuing, "and then with building elevators of wheat at one dollar a bushel, many of us find time to go over to the live stock exhibition in Chicago or visit old friends during the course of the winter. Every man is taken for what he is worth or for what he can raise; and in this good air and on this fertile soil we intend to show our old friends that we are made of the right stuff—that we are chips of the old block who built up the American West."

Nervousness.

Nervousness is often due to some poison formed in the blood by the decomposition of undigested food—in other words, often arises primarily from indigestion.

Nervousness when due to this cause may sometimes continue through many years without causing dangerous conditions. On the other hand nervous disturbances due to this auto-intoxication or self-poisoning may be immediately fatal.

Many people, however, suffer from "nervous indigestion," as they call it, for twenty years or more without fatal termination. In these cases there is of course a gradual weakening of the system which predisposes to many diseases, and death is always premature, usually being tracable to what is called "heart failure."

En Route.

An American speeding over the continent of Europe in his automobile asked of his chauffeur:

"Where are we?"

"In Paris," shouted the man at the wheel, and the dust flew.

"Oh, never mind the details," irritably screamed the American millionaire; "I mean what continent?"

NEWSPAPERS CALL FOR SQUARE DEAL

Members of Associated Press Demand Immediate Relief From Paper Trust.

OBJECT TO DILATORY TACTICS

Insist That Congress Take Action at Once—Complain of False Reports About Prices.

New York, April 23. — The annual meeting of the Associated Press was held at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel yesterday with an exceptionally large attendance of members from every section of the country. Aside from the transaction of purely routine business affecting the organization the most important action taken was the presentation and adoption of an address asking the president and the congress to "grant immediate relief from the exactions of combinatons of papermakers." The address as adopted is as follows:

Ask Immediate Relief.

"Representative of 774 daily newspapers gathered at the annual meeting of the Associated Press respectfully ask the president and congress to grant immediate relief from the exactions of combinations of papermakers. In September, 1907, and again in November, 1907, the attention of the authorities was directed to the excessive prices then demanded by the paper combination. Immediately upon the assembling of congress twenty or more bills aiming to correct these conditions and to put paper and pulp on the free list were introduced and referred to the ways and means committee. Persistent efforts to obtain a hearing have been refused. Dilatory tactics have been employed to prolong present conditions and to carry over to another session of congress every proposition designed for relief. All newspapers here represented protest against delay.

False Reports About Prices.

"Attention is also directed to the false reports of news print paper prices which were recently furnished to congress by the director of the census bureau. The newspapers here represented use approximately 80 per cent of the news print paper consumed in the United States. We denounce the quotations as submitted to congress as misleading and unworthy of credence. SEND WARSHIP TO VENEZUELA.

Declared in Washington That Her Mission Is a Peaceful One.

Washington, April 23.—An American war vessel will be sent to Venezuelan waters, but her mission is to be an entirely peaceful one. The closing of the port of La Guaira because of the existence of what is believed to be bubonic plague there has made it necessary for the state department to have at hand some vessel to be used as a dispatch boat by Minister Russell in sending messages to Curacao or Port of Spain, Trinidad, and for taking cablegrams to him from the state department.

May Delay Vacation.

Caracas, April 23.—Although Minister Russell had intended to sail for New York on April 27 on his annual leave of absence, it is now possible that the exigencies of the present very delicate diplomatic situation may make his going inadvisable until congress makes some definite decision as to what it is going to do with the Venezuelan question. Mr. Russell has been awaiting word from Washington as to whether he can leave his post at this time. If the minister leaves his post at this time, Jacob Sleeper, secretary of the legation here, will become charge' d'affaires.

RECORD IS CLEAN AND OPEN

Loeb Replies to Statement Made by Congressman Sims About His Traction Stock.

Washington, April 23.—The references to Mr. Loeb, secretary of the president, in the house Monday by Mr. Sims, in connection with his ownership of 4,700 shares of stock in the Washington Railway and Electric company, called forth yesterday a letter from Mr. Loeb to that gentleman, explaining how the stock came into his possession and suggesting to Mr. Sims that he should be most scrupulous in dealing with men's characters or reputations. Mr. Sims read the letter.

Loeb Explains.

Explaining his possession of the stock Mr. Loeb says:

'Forty-seven hundred shares of the capital stock of the Washington Railyaw and Electric company stand in my name on the books of the company. One hundred of these shares, enough to enable me to qualify as director, are mine; 4,600 are holdings of friends of mine for whom I simply acted as representative at the last annual meeting of the stockholders of the company, at which I was elected a director."

Kept Hands Off Legislation.

Speaking of what he calls Mr. Sims' "intimatio athat I have improperly in-"intimation that I have improperly interfered with traction legislation." my election as a director, Mr. Smith of the house District committee called upon me and started to ask my adadvice as to certain bills affecting the traction company pending before the committee. I at once informed him that, while I occupied the position of secretary to the president I could not and would not discuss with any member of congress any matters of legislation affecting the local public service corporations."

Senator Also Explains.

After reading the letter Mr. Sims said that he was the last person to take advantage of any congressional privilege to say anything derogatory of any man, and therefore he felt that the letter should be read in as public a manner as he had made his statement. Later Mr. Sims, without mentioning the name of the senator to whom he referred Monday, but who, it was learned through the senator himself, was Mr. Newlands of Nevada, as owning over 1,000 shares of Capital traction stock, read a statement from the senator saying that the stock came into his possession as trustee of the Sharon estate long before his entry into public life and that since he controlled it he had not participated in any legislation on street railway matters.

Dr. Baker readily complied with the court's order and ushered Mr. Graham into Thaw's ward. Thaw was greatly pleased with the steps taken and held a long conference with counsel after signing the petition.

It is believed that Thaw will appear in court at Newburgh next Saturday morning.

Concord, N. H., April 23.—Six of the eight members of the New Hampshire delegation to the Republican national convention at Chicago were selected here yesterday at the state and Second district conventions, and the platform, which was identical in each case, contained a resolution to the effect that "the real interests of the party and of the presidential candidate to be nominated in Chicago will best be served by the omission of instructions, specific or implied, in the form of resolutions of preference."

The platform also favored an early revision of the tariff and indorsed President Roosevelt.

FORMER BRITISH PREMIER IS DEAD

Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman Passes Peacefully Away at Official Home.

HAD DISTINGUISHED CAREER

His Command of Liberal Parliamentary Party Was a Marvel in Personal Prowess.

London, April 23.—Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, former British premier, died at 9:15 yesterday at his official residence, No. 10 Downing street. The end was peaceful.

Sir Henry's final illness dates from Feb. 12, when he last appeared in the house of commons and moved the closure of the Scottish land bills, although he had been ailing since Nov. 13, 1907, when he participated at an entertainment in honor of Emperor William at the Guild hall. On Nov. 16, after addressing a political meeting at Bristol, he was seriously stricken with heart weakness and later influenza was added to his heart trouble, bringing on his fatal illness.

Life of Sir Henry.

Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, who had been British premier since 1905, has a long and distinguished political career. His command of the Liberal parliamentary party, with all its diverse elements, was a marvel in personal prowess. He did not rule by any adroit diplomacy, but almost wholly by the confidence that all the different sections had in the essential sincerity of his attitude. It has been truthfully remarked that few public men have ever earned a place so near to the hearts of their political supporters as Sir Henry, in whose absolute honesty of purpose there was entire confidence.

Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman was the second son of the late Sir James Campbell of Stracathro, Forfarshire, and was born in 1836. He was educated at the University of Glasgow and at Trinity college, Cambridge. In 1872 he assumed the additional surname of Bannerman, under the will of his uncle, Henry Bannerman.

Inhabitants Fighting Fiercely to Head Off the Flames.

Mosinee, Wis., April 23.—Mosinee last night was entirely surrounded by brush fires, which the inhabitants are fiercely fighting from within and which hundreds of men from Nausau who answered the call of Mayor Lamont are battling without.

Fires are raging in many localities in Marathon county, but so far only one farm house has been reported here as destroyed.

DELEGATES ARE PLEDGED TO TAFT

Minnesota Republican Convention Names Delegates-at-Large to Chicago.

FAVOR REVISION OF TARIFF

Heffelfinger, Kellogg, Putnam and Hawkins Are Selected as the "Big Four."

Minneapolis, April 18.—The Minnesota Republican state convention yesterday elected four delegates at large to the national convention at Chicago and instructed them to vote for the nomination of Secretary of War Taft until he is "selected by the convention."

The action of the convention yesterday insures that the twenty-two votes of Minnesota in the national convention will be cast for the secretary of war, as all the eighteen district delegates are under Taft instructions.

Indorses Administration.

In addition to naming delegates at large the convention yesterday named four alternates at large, nominated eleven presidential electors, adopted a platform indorsing the administration of President Roosevelt, "especially his efforts for the establishment of a sound financial system, the enforcement of the laws and proper regulation of corporations," and declared for a revision of the tariff by a Republican congress.

The delegates at large selected yesterday are: Frank B. Kellogg of St. Paul, Walter W. Hefferfinger of Minneapolis, State Senator Frank L. Putnam of Blue Earth and E. B. Hawkins of Biwabik.

The alternates are F. E. Bantley of Montevideo, C. M. Sprague of Sauk Center, D. C. Sheldon of Pine Island and W. B. Marn of Aitkin.

Presidential Electors.

The list of presidential electors follows:

At Large—John J. Eklund, Duluth; Job W. Lloyd, Le Sueur.

First district, R. E. Thompson, Preston; Second, R. C. Dunn, Winnebago City; Third, H. L. Sump; Fourth, James E. Melin, Center City; Fifth, Stewart Gamble, Minneapolis; Sixth, A. H. Turretin, Rice; Seventh, Thomas Anderson; Eighth, Daniel Anderson, Cambridge; Ninth, E. J. Herringer, Ada.

Harmonious Convention.

The convention was harmonious throughout, the only element of conflict being eliminated by the action of W. B. Parsons of Winona, who had contested with Senator Putnam for the honor of representing the southern part of the state as delegate at large. He surprised the convention by moving that the rules be suspended and that the men who were finally chosen delegates at large be elected unanimously. The motion was carried by a rising vote. All other resolutions and nominations were made without division.

The convention was called to order at 11:25 a. m. in the Minneapolis Auditorium by Dr. A. B. Cole, chairman of the state central committee, who after the invocation by Rev. G. L. Morill of Minneapolis, introduced Former Congressman Samuel P. Snider of Minneapolis as temporary chairman.

Snider Makes Speech.

Mr. Snider on assuming the chair made a speech advocating a revision of the tariff, the regulation of public service corporations, with fair play both to the public and to the corporations, and the supremacy of the nation over the states.

At the conclusion of Mr. Snider's speech the convention voted to dispense with the committee on rules and on credentials and elected State Senator Ripley P. Brower of St. Cloud permanent chairman.

While the committee on resolutions, which was headed by M. D. Munn of St. Paul, was preparing its report, the convention was addressed by Frank B. Kellogg, Walter W. Heffelfinger, Senator Putnam and Congressman J. Adam Bede of Duluth.

The state was represented by Attorney General Young and T. D. O'Brien, while Jared How and Stiles W. Burr appeared for the railroads.

Judge Charles E. Otis of St. Paul and George P. Flannery of Minneapolis, either of whom will be satisfactory to both sides, were suggested for the appointment. Judge Sanborn took the application under advisement.

The order appointing a master will also prescribe the nature and extent of the master's duties. Besides reporting the testimony to the court it is possible that the master will be directed to make special findings in regard to certain minor questions. Saturday April 25 1908

Harmony was about all the country delegates got at the recent state convention.

The merry widow hat is regarded as a joke but not by the fellow who has to buy one.

Yesterday's rain will be coined into gold dollars at the creamery this coming month.

The all-absorbing political question at present is: "Has Jacobson changed his friends?"

It is about all over and Taft will be nomiated on the first hallot; and then to have Bryan to run against, surely Taft is a lucky fellow.

For the benefit of the Plummer Pioneer we will state that D. P. O'Neill, although a first class man for the position, has not, as yet, been elected as chairman of the Republican county central committee.

The county board has been called to meet at Red Lake Falls today to consider the county seat removal petition. Whether or not they will meet or what they will do is more than we can state as we are not informed.

The republican state convention at Minneapolis last week probably did more to convince a lot of republican voters that the extension of the primary election is a necessity than any thing that has happened in a long time. Over one thousand men went to Minneapolis to attend a convention only to find that the cities had combined and caucused the night before and taken about everything in sight. In the interest of harmony. How sweet that word "harmony" does sound when the others quit and you can hog it all.

Dan Patterson
Feels Grateful

Crookston Daily Journal:—Daniel Patterson, of St. Hilaire, who was elected alternate delegate to the National Republican Convention at Chicago at the convention held here Wednesday, was in the city this morning enroute home after attending the convention at St. Paul and to a Journal man said:

"I feel grateful to all friends who stood by me at the convention, but I wish to specially express my thanks for the loyal hard work of Editor John W. Eastman and D. P. O'Niell of Thief River Falls. They worked like beavers and I shall never forget what they did for me.

Sent to Reform School.

Warren Sheaf:—Otto Kuehne, the 12 year old son of August Kuehne, of Excel, was taken before Judge Grindeland, of the district court on Tuesday this week, charged with placing an obstruction on the track of the Greenbush line of the Great Northern railway. He had taken big railroad spikes and inserted them in the openings between the rails at the ends. This was done April 5th. When Monday morning's passenger train came along it was nearly wrecked when it struck the protruding end of one of these nails. If the nail in bending had not turned a little to one side, the train would surely have been derailed and perhaps many people killed. A Great Northern detective was sent to look up the culprit and found him in the person of this boy, Otto Kuehne. Asked by the court why he did this he said he did it "just for fun," and that he wanted "to see the train jump." The boy did not appear to realize the seriousness of the offense. The judge thought that a year at the state reform school at Red Wing was the proper punishment, and the best thing that could be given the boy, whose schooling hitherto had been much neglected.

The railroad company has been troubled a great deal of late by boys putting obstructions on the track. A few days ago one of our local boys was caught in the act of moving a switch. These are serious offenses, and all boys should take warning.

Mr. Lawhead—Why do you treat me so coldly? Why didn't you answer the note I wrote you last Thursday? Miss Brushley—Sir, I don't wish to have anything more to say to you. You began your note by saying you "thought you would drop me a line." I want you to understand that I'm not a fish.

Bascom and His Students.

John Bascom, once president of the University of Wisconsin, always had a keen insight into men, and for much of his life college students constituted mankind for him. Once when he was a class officer the names of two men were read by him as absent from morning prayers. One of them, a plutist, stopped at his desk and said:

"Professor, when the chapel bell was ringing I was engaged in prayer and did not hear it."

"You're not excused," responded John, with contempt in his eye and in his voice.

Then, calling back the other man, who was about at the door on his way out of the room, he said to him:

"What's your excuse?"

"I haven't any, sir."

"You're excused.'

He used to have debates in his classroom: At one of them a student, whom Bascom subsequently described as a "floriating fellow," in the heat of his eloquence, said, "I wish that I had the ability and the time to exhaust this subject."

"You have the time," said Bascom.—Harper's Weekly.

Smart Boy Wins.

The visitor was examining the class of small boys. He held the chalk in midair.

"What number shall I draw on the board?" he asked of one boy.

The boy replied, "Thirty-two."

The visitor drew the number backward, which made twenty-three.

"Is that right?" asked the visitor.

"Yes, sir; yes, sir," answered the boy in a timid way.

"What number shall I take now?" he asked of another.

The boy answered, "Sixty-two," whereupon the visitor drew the number backward, as before—twenty-six.

"Is that right?" he asked.

"Yes, sir," replied the boy.

A long way back a bright eyed boy held up a wavering hand.

"What number shall I draw for you?" asked the visitor.

The boy called out, "Forty-four!" Then, when the visitor had drawn it he yelled out, "Now, if you are so blamed smart, twist that around!"—New York Globe.

A Financial Embarrassment.

A lady who had a kindly remembrance for all her domestic servants met an erstwhile washerwoman and stopped to ask her how she fared.

"Oh, mem, it's turrible finansial distress me an the childer's in."

"Why, what is it? Are you out of employment?"

"No, mem. Work's in a fair state o' stiddiness and not a cint do I owe, but it's lashins o' trouble I've got!"

"Are you not paid promptly?"

"As promptly as the day cooms round."

"What is your financial distress, then?"

"Well, mem" (in a burst of horror), "what's killin' me is, I earn $6 the week an' pay $8 for me boord, an' God only knows how I do it!"—Short Stories.

So Many?

They went in to dinner together. He was very bashful, and she tried in vain to draw him out. Finally she began to talk books, and he became responsive. "And Hugo," she asked, "do you like his style?"

"Oh, yes," he replied. "I find him intensely interesting. I've read a number of his books."

Then she asked, "Have you read Ninety-Three?"

"No, I've—er—only read three. I didn't know he had written so many."—Lippincott's Magazine.

Exhausting.

"They say early rising is very unhealthy."

"Of course. Many a woman has broken down her constitution getting her husband up in time for breakfast."

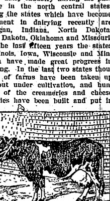
March of The Dairy Cow.

As long as business is prosperous and population continues to concentrate in the cities and towns, requiring them to reach out farther and farther for supplies of fresh milk, the market milk business will crowd back the making of butter and cheese, especially of the ordinary grades, and factories for their manufacture will be abandoned in order to sell milk or cream to the city. The outlook for the market milk business in New England as far as demand is concerned is good. The only question is that of price. The farm labor situation is acute, the cost of grain feeds is high and increasing, and the awakening of health authorities to the importance of clean, sanitary milk is adding to the cost of production. There seems, however, to be no danger of the overproduction of milk, cream or fancy fresh butter.

Wonderful progress has been made in the dairy industry during the past decade in the north central states. Among the states which have become prominent in dairying recently are Michigan, Indiana, North Dakota, South Dakota, Oklahoma and Missouri

In the last fifteen years the states of Illinois, Iowa, Wisconsin and Minnesota have made great progress in dairying. In the last two states thousands of farms have been taken up and put under cultivation, and hundreds of the creameries and cheese factories have been built and put in operation. The center of butter production has been moving westward, while market milk is relatively of less importance westward than in the east.



GRADE HOLSTEIN QUEEN.
[Best yearly record, 12,000 pounds milk, 486 pounds butter fat; average for six years, 8,422 pounds milk, 339.47 pounds butter fat.]

In the South.

In the south some herds are found producing as good results as are ordinarily made in any section of America. Altogether there is an enormous demand in the south for dairy products. Almost all of the butter and cheese is imported, and some cream is shipped in from states a great distance away. While the southern dairyman has some difficulties he has also many advantages in climate, cost of building, variety of forage crops and good markets.

On the Pacific Coast.

In the highly productive valleys of the state of Washington rich, succulent food, pure water and temperate climate are the essentials in the manufacture of a "nutty," high flavored sweet butter. Nature has been lavish in her gifts to the state of Washington in this respect, and we may look forward to this state becoming a large producer of highest grade butter.

In the beautiful climate of Oregon new blood, dairy literature and farmers' institutes are the leaven which is changing the "mossback" into an intelligent dairyman. Here and there may be seen pure bred herds of Jerseys, Holstein-Friesians and Ayrshires.

California has sections that are ideal for the production of milk, the only drawback being the scarcity of labor. The counties surrounding the bay of San Francisco comprise the best developed dairy district of California. It is from these counties that California is receiving one-third of its butter and San Francisco all of its milk.

No section of the United States offers greater returns to the intelligent dairyman than the states on the Pacific coast. Owing to the numerous streams which have their origin in snow clad peaks there is a never failing supply of fresh pure water, and in this equable climate dairy cows require to be stabled only from two to four months, according to the locality.

What Grade Cows May Do.

In all parts of the country the interest of farmers who desire to build up profitable dairy herds, but do not feel able to purchase pure bred stock entirely, centers largely around the possibilities of grade cows. Carefully kept records of individual grade cows for a series of years have shown that when such cows are well fed and well managed they may return a liberal profit for a term of seven, eight or even nine years.

Fever Tick on Sheep.

The cattle fever tick, which has been found on sheep all through the range country, has upset all the theories heretofore held regarding the pest, says Denver Field and Farm. Experts have been at work endeavoring to eradicate the cattle tick under generous appropriations from congress. The first discovery of the tick on the sheep was one which had been left in an isolated field for a month before the ticks were discovered. In moving the herd this one had been accidentally left behind, but the pest has spread rapidly in some way, and now whole bands are infested in several states.

"Your old one getting careless?"

"No, but his baby is beginning to say cute things."

MERMAIDS OF LEGEND

Sea Women That Were Vouched For by Ancient Writers.

ORIGIN OF THE DELUSION.

These Traditional Creatures Were Probably Dugongs and Manatees. Seal Maidens of Fable—Mermaids of Fiction and the Seal of Fact.

There is a decided fascination about the mermaids of legend. Considering their traditional form, it does not seem quite certain whether they can be included among the fair "humanities" of old religion, but it would be extremely interesting to see one. In all seriousness the truths and poetry underlying and inherent in the old myths are well worth attention, but apart from these there is something distinctly entertaining in the quasi-historical accounts that we have of mermaids and the heroic attempts at rationalistic explanation. The fancy has taken firmer hold on popular imagination than many of the old legends. Of course they are recognized as nonexistent; but, unlike the majority of mythological beings, they are invested colloquially with a sort of humorous reality.

A "History of the Netherlands" gives a circumstantial account of a great tempest which washed ashore near Haarlem a "sea woman" as she was swimming about. She was captured and cleansed from the "sea moss that had grown about her" and became a humanized creature, except that she was always trying to escape into the water. And it is added, "Many persons worthy of credit have justified in their writings that they had seene her in the said towne of Haarlem." In the sixteenth century off Ceylon some sailors captured "seven mermen and mermaids," several priests and physicians testifying to the fact and the latter leaving it on record that after examination and dissection they found the external and internal structures resembled those of human beings. Hudson, the famous navigator, declared that his ship's company had seen a mermaid, the upper part of her body like a woman, skin very white and long black hair. An old Iceland history tells of one near Greenland, "the neck and head in all respects like a human being." The Norwegian Bishop Pontippidan, who wrote in the eighteenth century, "records the appearance of a mermaid which was deposed to on oath by the observers." And not to multiply quotations proving the belief even of the learned in the actual existence of the mermaids Pliny asserts authoritatively that "as for the meremaidens it is no fabulous tale that goeth of them, for looke how painters draw them, so thay are indeed."

It seems hard after all these weighty testimonies that we should be assured that the "historical" mermaids were only dugongs or manatees, seals or sea lions, especially as some of these interesting creatures measure some eighteen feet in length and are by no means attractive in appearance. Something in the shape of the head and the breast is relied on by the rationalistic scientists as explaining the delusion, but one is at a loss to understand how this can account for the circumstantial descriptions that have come down to us. Coevals of those old writers have proved to us by their paintings that they held very much the same views as to what constitutes feminine beauty as we have, and we should certainly not discover in the dugong or manatee anything whatever to suggest in the very faintest degree the idea of a pretty woman. Yet there is generally the implication of comeliness in the verbal pictures the old writers give of their mermaids, though Columbus, who reported that he had seen two or three, admitted that he saw no beauty in them. The seal explanation perhaps does the least violence to one's traditional ideas, as, whatever may be thought of its resemblance to a woman, it is in itself graceful and its face and eyes are pleasing.

There is, at any rate, a rather suggestive coincidence in the view that the mermaid of fiction is the seal of fact, for closely allied if not identical with mermaids were the "seal maidens" of a thousand fables. The accepted tradition was that these maidens assumed the form of seals, which they could relinquish at any moment by divesting themselves of the sealskins. Only if while they were disporting themselves in quasi human guise their seal integuments were stolen or hidden they would have to remain as "maidens" and could not resume the form of seals. We know on the authority of many a song and legend that willingly or unwillingly a man has been

"married to a mermaid
At the bottom of the deep blue sea,"

but in the case of the fortunate purloiner of a seal maiden's "troublesome disguise" there was no need for a submarine descent. She could quite comfortably live on land and, indeed, had to unless she found her sealskin again though always longing, like the mermaid of Haarlem, to become a sea dweller once more. There is therefore unquestionably a certain poetic propriety in the scientific identification of the mermaid with the seal.—London Globe.

Renunciation.

"I have always been a good friend to you, Mrs. Jinx," said Mrs. Lapsing with blazing eyes, as she rose to go, "but I am a friend no longer. You have talked about my husband. Right here is where our paths divulge. Good afternoon."—Chicago Tribune.

As Japanese See It.

It is said the Japanese think our grown women most alarmingly overgrown, very shocking in their costume and quite dreadful as regards their teeth and their feet—in a word, outrageous. They consider the kimono preferable to western habiliments because it so completely obliterates the lines of the figure. They teach girls to talk with their lips almost closed, concealing the teeth, and to walk with the feet parallel taking tiny steps or even toeing in.—Kansas City Journal

Hunting the Marabou.

Hunting the marabou is attended with great difficulty, as the bird possesses wonderful cunning and often contrives to outwit the most skillful hunter. With laughable dignity it measures the ground between itself and its pursuer and takes very good care not to exhaust itself by too rapid flight. If the hunter moves slowly the bird at once adopts an equally easy pace, but if the hunter quickens his steps the bird is off like an arrow. It is very difficult to get within gun range of this calculating creature, but the natives adopt a novel means of capturing it, which the bird, with all its astuteness, is unable to comprehend and falls an easy victim. A tempting morsel of meat is tied to the end of a long stout cord, which the skillful hunter flings to a great distance, as he would a lasso, the bait falling as near the fleeing bird as he can aim it. He then conceals himself hastily behind a bush or crouches low on the sand. The marabou, which always keeps its eye on the hunter, seeing him vanish, quietly stops and devours the bait, when it is easily secured by the hunter, who runs toward it, coiling the rope as he goes.

Carlyle's Recipe For Shirts.

Here is an extract from a letter of Thomas Carlyle, in which he asks his sister to make him some shirts and sends the measurements. How many women could make a shirt after them?

"My Dear Jenny—* * * In the meanwhile I want you to make me some flannel things, too—three flannel shirts especially. You can get the flannel from Alick if he has any that he can well recommend. You can readily have them made before the other shirts go off. I have taken the measure today and now send you the dimensions, together with a measuring strap which I bought some weeks ago (at one penny) for the purpose! You are to be careful to scour the flannel first, after which process the dimensions are these: Width (when the shirt is laid on its back), 22½ inches; extent from wrist button to wrist button, 61 inches; length in the back, 35 inches; length in the front, 25½ inches; Do you understand all that? I dare say you will make it out, and this measuring band will enable you to be exact enough."

Began With "D" Anyway.

"An' when they gits to Italy," goes on Bill, growin' quite enthusiastic, as you might say, over th' idee, "he'll have th' time of his life ruminatin' roun' them old palaces of the dogs."

"Dogs!" I gasped. "Palaces of the dogs!"

"Doggies, then, I s'pose you might call it," says he, "if you're so blamed pertiklar, though it ain't spelt that way. It's spelt dogs, only with the 'e.'"

"Bill Gladox," says I, "for an uneducated man you are th' most ignorant I ever see. Do you mean to tell me you ain't never hear of th' dodges of Venice that has been mayors of th' town for th' last hundred years or more?"

"No, I ain't," says he, "an' no one else neither. Ther' ain't any such folks there. Dodge ain't an Eyetalian name nohow. It b'longs in Connecticut. Not but what ther's a few mebbe in New York an' Rhode Island, but not in Italy, not by a derned sight."—American Magazine.

STAGE FRIGHT.

Actors Have Been Known to Die From the Malady.

Perhaps the most terrible malady which can attack the actor in the course of his performance is the peculiar disease known as stage fright Through its evil effects strong men and women have been known to faint, break down and do many other queer things, and there are even on record several cases of people who have died through this horrible seizure.

Some years ago a young novice who was to appear for the first time arrived at the theater very white and shaky. Brandy being given him, he appeared slightly better, but no sooner had he set his foot on the stage than he clapped his hand to his heart, with a low cry, and fell down dead. The overwhelming sensation induced by stage fright had attacked his heart, and his theatrical career ended thus even at its beginning.

Quite as ghastly was the case of the young amateur actress who, strangely enough, had never experienced stage fright when playing with her fellow amateurs, but who was seized with the attack on making her first professional appearance. She went through the scene aided by the prompter, her eyes glazed, her hands rigid, and when the exit came it proved her exit from life's stage as well as the mimic boards, for she staggered to her dressing room and fell into a comatose state, from which she never recovered.

Perhaps, however, the most peculiar instance of all was that of the veteran performer who had gone through thirty years of stage work without experiencing this malady. One night, however, he confided to a fellow player that a quite unaccountable nervousness had suddenly taken hold of him and that he did not think he could ever act again. His comrade laughed at the notion and urged him to go on, as usual; but his astonishment may well be conceived when the poor old player went on the stage and, after making several vain efforts to speak, fell back and expired. The doctor who made the postmortem examination stated that death was due to failure of the heart's action, evidently induced by the presence of an attack of stage fright.—Pearson's Weekly.

What Retards the Silo.

If the barn is properly ventilated and no silage is left strewn around on the floor to decay and to load the air with its odor, there will be no objections to the feeding of silage. It is the careless and indifferent dairymen who have led many people engaged in the milk business to condemn the silo.—New York Farmer.

"Have you a few moments to spare?"

"Young man," said the capitalist severely, "my time is worth $100 an hour, but I'll give you ten minutes."

"If it's all the same to you," thoughtfully replied the visitor, "I believe I would rather take it in cash."—Exchange.

Seeding has been general the past week and a few more nice days will find the most of the wheat in the ground. It is going in in fine shape as nearly all of the fields are dry and in good condition. There should be a considerable increase in acreage this spring as the fine weather will permit the farmers to do a great deal of spring plowing.

Thief River Falls News:—Prof. Wm. MacGregor, of the St. Hilaire city schools, was in Thief River Falls last Saturday. Mr. MacGregor is one of the bright young educators of the state and is giving excellent satisfaction at St. Hilaire. He has been engaged to teach at St. Hilaire again next year.

Thief River Falls has a new company of state militia organized this week. It is composed at present of forty-seven members and an old St. Hilaire boy, Christ Wiste, was elected captain and J. Buhlman and W. B. Fuller as lieutenants. Captain Wiste left here five years ago and served three years in the regular army after which he located in Thief River Falls.

The prices of lumber, other building material and labor in the Red River Valley, is lower now than it has been for years, and the question arises: How long will such conditions last? Statistics show that all manufacturers of lumber are curtailing their output, which means a scarcity before another year goes by, even wit a very normal demand. A scarcity always tends towards higher prices and it might be business policy to take advantage of the present markets.

A great sensation was created when between sixty and seventy farmers in Ida county, Iowa, received notice from the United States curcuit court of appeals to the effect that the so-called Economy cream separator they had purchased of Sears, Roebuck & Co. had been declared an infringement and they were restrained from using the separator. The farmers who have received notice have consulted lawyers as to what they had better do and the lawyers advised them to break up and sell the old separators as old iron and then come to town and buy new ones. The mail order house has been restrained by the court from manufacturing and selling any more of the separators, and they were also forced to bring their books into court and show to whom they had sold the machines. The users are now being notified that they must not use them.

A Chemical Mystery

Some years since a meteor that fell in Mexico attracted attention from scientists all over the world because there was some reason for thinking that it might be a fragment of a lost comet. A scientific investigation proves that golden grain belt beer is rich in nutrition and nerve food, and a pure, wholesome drink that aids digestion. Have it on the family table and enjoy its benefits. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

A New Channel

A drive of logs belonging to the Grand Forks Lumber Company formed a jam on the dam located midway between here and Thief River Falls last Saturday raising the water so that it cut a new channel across the point and cutting off nearly a mile of river. The accident is similar to the one that happened here in 1896 and a new dam will have to be built if the damage is repaired. The dam was built several years ago by the Crookston Lumber Company to help the driving of logs. It is not probable that that company will spend very much money for repairs as their log driving is about over. A large number of the Grand Forks logs are left high and dry.

Use the Split Log Drag

Supt. of Highways C. H. Martz wishes us to call the attention of the farmers and others interested in good roads that now is the time to do the most effective work on the roads with a split log drag. If the roads are put in good shape now with the drag they will harden and keep in good shape all summer with but little additional work. Mr. Martz informs us that he is expecting a visit soon from the state officials of the good roads association and that work done before they arrive will help to give a good impression and might lead to an additional appropriations for Red Lake County roads. If the ruts are dragged out now and the roads well rounded up the spring rains when they come will have but little effect.

$1,000 For a Woman

There may be nothing new under the sun, but "When the Mummy Moves" is certainly an original title for a story. It is, of course, a story of mystery and it is so ingenious and interesting a mystery that The Chicago Record-Herald in which it appers serially, offers a first prize of $1,000 to the woman who makes the best solution, with 115 other cash prizes for women and girls who make the next best solutions. The story begins in The Record Herald Thursday, April 23, and the conditions of the contest will be found, accompanying each installment, in that paper. Those who have been unable to get The Record Herald containing the early installments may obtain a reprint of those installments by writing to the Prize Mystery editor, The Record Herald, Chicago. While the masculine sex is not eligible in this competition it is probable that it will interest the whole family circle and there is no reason why men should not help their wives and daughters or friends to a successful solution.

Notice to Clean Up.

Notice is hereby given to the residents and property owners of St. Hilaire that they must before May 10th, 1908, clean up and remove any and all garbage, manure or slops, on the premises owned or occupied by them and also on alleys or thoroughfares adjacent to said property. Said owners or occupants are also required to maintain any and all property which they own or occupy in a thoroughly sanitary condition, also that proprietors of hotels and restaurants keep sufficient barrels in the rear of their places of business in which to deposit all offal and refuse, and contents of which shall be deposited on the dumping grounds at least once in each week.

Any person failing to comply with this order will be promptly prosecuted according to law.

Dr. J. C. Cummings,
Health Officer.

In order that the public may be thoroughly informed, we herewith publish the following resolutions, ordered by the board of health, which will be rigidly enforced:

I.

That owners or occupants of lots within the village limits be required to to remove from their respective premises before the 10th day of May, 1908, all manure, garbage and other refuse matter, manure must also be removed at frequent intervals during the summer months.

II.

That the keeping of hogs within the village limits be prohibited except upon special permission from the board of health.

III.

That the carcasses of all dead animals such as cattle, dogs, sheep, etc., must be properly buried by the owners.

IV.

That slops and kitchen refuse must not be allowed to accumulate unless suitable receptacles be provided. The board requests every family to provide suitable barrels, convenient to be gotten at by some conveyance.

V.

The board recommends that private wells be thoroughly cleaned in order to remove from them all decaying animal and vegetable matter and it is also recommended that particular attention be given to cleaning and disinfecting all cellars as these two are the main sources of all contagious diseases prevalent in this country.

VI.

The annual inspection by the board of health will take place on May 10th, 1908, at which time all premises not found free from garbage, manure or other refuse, and all outhouses in an unsanitary condition will be ordered cleaned according to the provisions of the village ordinances.

VII.

Garbage and refuse should be burned or mixed with quick-lime or crude carbolic acid (5 per cent) and buried in a pit or hauled to a dumping ground where it is exposed to the sun light.

VIII.

Be it further resolved that the above resolutions be published in The St. Hilaire Spectator for two successive weeks.

Dated April 23th, 1908, by order of the board of health.

Dr. J. C. Cummings,
Health Officer.

THE COME AND SEE SIGN

PUBLIC INSPECTION INVITED
FROM 8 A.M. to 4 P.M.
SATURDAYS EXCEPTED.
LYDIA E. PINKHAM MEDICINE CO.

This sign is permanently attached to the front of the main building of the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company, Lynn, Mass.

What Does This Sign Mean?

It means that public inspection of the Laboratory and methods of doing business is honestly desired. It means that there is nothing about the business which is not "open and above-board."

It means that a permanent invitation is extended to anyone to come and verify any and all statements made in the advertisements of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Is it a purely vegetable compound made from roots and herbs — without drugs?

Come and See.

Do the women of America continually use as much of it as we are told?

Come and See.

Was there ever such a person as Lydia E. Pinkham, and is there any Mrs. Pinkham now to whom sick woman are asked to write?

Come and See.

Is the vast private correspondence with sick women conducted by women only, and are the letters kept strictly confidential?

Come and See.

Have they really got letters from over one million, one hundred thousand women correspondents?

Come and See.

Have they proof that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has cured thousands of these women?

Come and See.

This advertisement is only for doubters. The great army of women who know from their own personal experience that no medicine in the world equals Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for female ills will still go on using and being benefited by it; but the poor doubting, suffering woman must, for her own sake, be taught confidence, for she also might just as well regain her health.

THE CALL OF THE SOIL.

DAYS OF FINANCIAL STRESS MAKE FARM LANDS LOOK RICH.

A staff contributor of a southern newspaper has taken up the question of the return to the farm of many who had forsaken it for the glitter of the city. He says: "It is a well known fact that the history of this Government shows that those men who have been most successful in life and who have left their impress upon its people and its institutions as statesmen, soldiers, financiers—have as a rule been those whose youth was spent on the farm, and it is to such as these that there comes with overmastering power THE CALL OF THE SOIL. More especially does it come with redoubled persuasiveness, greater power and sweeter pleading to the man of affairs when the clouds of financial unrest begin to darken the sky; when the cry of panic causes people to lose their wits and act like stampeded cattle; when, with reason or without reason there arises before him the specter of ruin, grinning in his face and waving its gaunt arms in threatening gesticulation.

"The pitiable state into which some men were brought by the recent financial flurry, which happily is now passed, suggests these reflections. Some were ruined and a very few became insane because of their losses. Two or three took their own lives.

It is when such times come that the statesman, the great financier, and the man of affairs becomes tired of the struggle. He lays down his pen, turns from his desk and listens to the CALL OF THE SOIL.

There are hundreds of cases throughout the United States of those who have money in the banks and are looking for investment in lands. No investment is better or safer. Take, for instance, the lands in Western Canada that can be bought at from $10 to $15 per acre which yield a revenue equal to and often greater than their original cost. Those lands make a certain investment. During the past two months large investments in these lands have been made, some intending to use the lands for farming purposes of their own. Others to resell to farmer friends. The agents of the Government of Canada located at different points throughout the United States have in their possession particulars of districts in which there are free homestead grants of 160 acres each accessible to railways, markets, schools, churches, &c. These are valuable lands. These agents will be pleased to give information to any desirous of securing, and will tell all about the railway rates, &c.

THE COMIC TRAGEDY OF THE TWOS

"Hello, Central!" said Jones pleasantly, holding the receiver to his ear.

"Number, please?" returned Central.

"Main double two two," replied Jones.

"Main W two two?" repeated Central, to make sure.

"No, Main double two two," said Jones, still pleasantly.

"The line isn't working very well this morning," explained Central. "I didn't quite get it. Did you say Main W two two?"

"Main double two two," said Jones, growing a bit impatient.

Central gave him Main W two two and Jones said: "Hello, is this Jackson?"

"No, this is the Vienna Bakery," was the response.

"Pardon me, they've given me the wrong number," said Jones, clicking the bracket up and down.

"Did you get them?" asked Central.

"You gave me the wrong number, Central," Jones said. "I want Main double two two—three twos—Do you get that?"

"Oh, Main three two?" queried Central.

"No, not Main three two," objected Jones. "I didn't say anything about three two at all. I said three twos—three twos in a row—understand?"

"Three twos in R O," repeated Central musingly. "I don't think we have any such number. I'yy give you the chief operator."

"If you will just keep your ear to the ground we won't need any chief operator," said Jones. "This is a perfectly plain call I'm giving you—Main double two two—two two two—three twos."

"Oh, you want Main double two two two two three two?" said Central.

"I don't want all that at all," repeated Jones. "I want Main double two two—understand?—two two two—understand that?—three twos?"

"I can't give you three calls at once," objected Central.

"Who said anything about three calls?" Jones shouted into the transmitter. "I only want one call, and I'm trying to indicate that by every method I know. I want Main two two two."

"Is that another one?" inquired Central, puzzled.

"No, it's the same one," Jones shouted.

"Well, you said you wanted Main two two, too," urged Central.

"Well, I do want Main two two two," repeated Jones.

"Well, I can't give you Main two two two and Main two two, too—at least, not both at the same time," said Central helplessly.

"Who said anything about both?" interrupted Jones, heatedly. "I want only one call—the first one I gave you—and I want Main two two two."

"Well, I said Main two two, too," said Central, "and you said you didn't want it."

"Did you hear me say two two two?" persisted Jones.

"Yes, and I said two two, too," said Central.

Jones heaved a long sigh. "Now, Central, please listen," he continued. "This is an important matter, and I can't wait here all day. I want Main two two two—three twos make six. Do you get it?"

"Oh, you want two two two three two A six," said Central, beginning to understand. "Here's your party. Do you get them?"

"Central," said Jones, worn out, "I dont want 22232A6 at all. I've been standing her like a stork on one leg for fifteen minutes trying to get a number, and you give it to me with compound interest for a hundred years. I want two hundred and twenty-two, and if I don't get it soon I'll—"

"Oh," said Central sweetly. "You want two double two. Why didn't you say so in the first place? Here you are."—Philadelphia Ledger.

A Trial by Bread and Cheese.

There were many odd ways in ancient times of detecting criminals. Our ancestors had not lived long enough to lose their faith in the gnawings of conscience, and Divine interference in earthly justice was superstitiously regarded as a daily occurrence.

No queerer example of this could be found than the ancient mode of trying prisoners by bread and cheese. The unfortunate offender was led, with a halter round his neck, to the parish church, and there in the presence of all the people the priest put pieces of cheese and rye bread in a patten on the altar. These he blessed and then the supposed criminal had to eat them dry before the congregation. If he managed to swallow them easily he was acquitted, but if he choked, he was condemned. Naturally enough scores of innocent folk were thus done to death.

Not Reassuring.

A farmer, on a frosty autumn afternoon, went out into his turnip field and began to gather turnips. The early sun sank in the west, and as the bluish dusk came on the farmer perceived at the other end of the field two men, who, laying down a bag, began to dig with frantic haste.

The farmer watched the pair in some perplexity. What could they be doing? And he was just putting his hand to his cheek to shout and ask them their business when one of them rose up and yelled loudly and reassuredly:

"Don't let us disturb you; we are only prigging a few ourselves."

Very Little Loss.

"Yes," said Kadley, "I'm engaged to Miss Poorley, but my people think I'd be throwing myself away on that girl."

"Huh!" exclaimed Peppery, "how economical they're becoming! That wouldn't be very wasteful."

Oh, Beg Pardon.

"Why don't you come right out and say you don't like that man who wants to marry your daughter?"

"What for?" asked Mr. Cumrox. "He's popular enough with mother and the girls now."

THE PAINTING SEASON.

Good results in painting at the least cost depend largely upon the material chosen. Paint is a simple compound and the ingredients can be easily tested. The solid part or pigment should be White Lead. The liquid part should be Linseed Oil. Those best informed on painting always buy these ingredients separately and have their painter mix them fresh for each job. Before the mixing the test is made.

Place a pea-sized bit of White Lead on a piece of charcoal or piece of wood. Blow the flame against it and see what it will do. If it is pure White Lead, little drops of bright, pure metallic lead will appear, and with patience the White Lead can be completely reduced to one globule of metallic lead. This is because pure White Lead is made from metallic lead.

You may test dozens of other so-called White Leads and not be able to reduce one of them to lead. If they will not change wholly to lead but leave a residue, it is clear that some adulterant is present.

If you should have your painting done with such materials, no matter how cheap they might seem, it would be costly in the end.

National Lead Company, Woodbridge Building, New York City, are sending on request a blowpipe free to any one about to have painting done, so that the White Lead may be tested. With it will be sent a handsomely printed booklet having as its frontispiece the "Dutch Boy Painter," reproduced from the original painting. This little painter has become noted as the guaranty of pure White Lead.

WORK OF THE VOLTA BUREAU.

Institution That Is Doing Much Good Among the Deaf.

On a quiet street of Washington's once fashionable neighbor, Georgetown, there is a building whose peculiar appearance arouses the curiosity of all strangers who see it. It is something like a library, something like a mausoleum and something like a small Christian Science church, with a roof garden on top.

It is none of these. If you know what it is, even after you are told its name, you may step right along to the head of the class. Persons who know about the Volta bureau are not plentiful enough to get in your way.

The story of the Volta bureau is interesting. The beginning of it lies back in Italy more than 150 years ago, when Alessandro Volta, who was to make a study of electricity, was born. Later Napoleon had a great opinion of the Italian scientist and established the Volta prize.

This prize, a great reward for inventions or discoveries, is not conferred at regular intervals. In fact, it has been given only three or four times. In 1880 it was voted to Dr. Alexander Graham Bell in recognition of his service to the world in producing the telephone.

The prize amounted to about $10,000. The original $10,000, through investments, became $100,000.

Part of this money was used for that building of baffling aspect in Georgetown.

Part of the structure really is a library and absolutely unique at that. At the rear of the building, which is fireproof, the steel book stacks contain thousands of books, periodicals and pamphlets, forming the most remarkable collection of statistics in regard to the deaf that exists anywhere in the world.

Dr. Bell has the best reasons for being interested in the deaf. His own wife is what used to be called a deaf mute, though it is no longer an accurate term. Mrs. Bell has been taught speech, and as she is an accomplished lip reader many persons have met and talked with her without discovering her deafness.

It was Dr. Bell himself who taught her to speak. His father, Alexander Melville Bell, invented the system known as visible speech and sent his son from Scotland to this country to introduce the method in schools for the deaf here.

Among the young man's pupils was a daughter of Gardiner G. Hubbard. Her teacher fell in love with her, and she became the wife of the inventor.

The Volta bureau corresponds with almost every civilized country in regard to work for the deaf. On its shelves are books in all languages. Its aid is sought by various governments.

AMERICAN CROSS OF HONOR.

Distinguished Personages Decorated By Order Recently Established.

Thomas H. Heardon is entitled to a niche in the hall of fame of the near great. Mr. Heardon, who is a clerk in the land office at Washington, receiving an annual compensation of $1,000, has recently bestowed upon King Edward VII. of Great Britain the grand cross of the American Cross of Honor, and has received his majesty's thanks for the distinction. Similar bestowals have been made upon the German emperor, King Leopold of Belgium, President McKinley, President Roosevelt and Andrew Carnegie. Each of the distinguished and worthy personages who have received decorations from Mr. Heardon have accepted with thanks either through their personal autograph letters or through their ambassadors or private secretaries.

The American Cross of Honor is an organization incorporated by act of congress several years ago. Only those persons who have received a lifesaving medal from the United States government are eligible to active membership. The scheme of organizing such a society was conceived by Mr. Heardon, who has been its president from the start. Mr. Heardon is the sole directing spirit in the society which his untiring efforts brought into existence. He conducts all of its business and chooses the crowned heads who are to be made honorary members and have the grand cross of the order bestowed upon them.

Pie Day for Senator Crane.

"Seen Senator Crane?" said a man to a senate restaurant waiter, early in the winter.

"De senator done just gone out, sah," replied the negro. "I done got him a wedge of pie and glass of milk, sah."

"Senator Crane, he done got his lunch ovah an hour ago, boss," cut in another waiter, passing. "Jus' took a piece of pie and milk, as usual, sah. Had some gentleman with him to-day, sah."

"What yo' all talking about, anyhow?" put in another of the waiter corps. "Senator Crane's in dar now. I'se got his order for pie and a glass of milk."

The argument waxed warm, and the last man drew his two opponents to the swinging doors of the senators' room in the restaurant and pointed out the Massachusetts senator at a table chatting with a friend.

"Fo' de lan' sakes!" ejaculated the second man, who had carried the apple pie and glass of milk; "he eat three lunches in one day!"

The fact is that Senator Crane entertained an unusual number of Massachusetts constituents that day, says a Washington correspondent, and in order to do the thing right he had to eat no less than three pieces of apple pie and drink nearly a quart of milk.—Home Magazine.

Fine Painting of Gettysburg.

There is at present on exhibition in one of the rooms of the national house at Washington a magnificent painting of the Battle of Gettysburg, the work of James Walker, who painted the Battle of Chapultepec, which is hung on the senate side of the capitol. The original sketches were made on the battlefield by the artist himself, and it required eight years to complete the painting. Noticeable in the foreground is a figure of General Bingham of Pennsylvania, the dean of the house of representatives.

THE LIVING ROOM.

It Should at All Times Be a "Livable" Room.

What to do with the living room is a problem that confronts every housekeeper. The living room should be in fact as well as in name a living room—a livable room. It is the room in which the most of our time at home is spent, the hours we have for leisure, the time we have for play, the place where we entertain our friends and it is absolutely essential that the walls and furnishings of the living room should be harmonious in color, suitable in texture, and durable in material.

The rich, soft, solid colored walls are the ideal walls for the living rooms. They make a better background for pictures, throw the furniture out in better relief, are less discordant with rugs and carpeting, and indicate a higher degree of taste and culture than do the colored monstrosities which we paste on when we apply wall paper.

Who ever saw roses climbing up a plastered wall growing out of a hardwood floor? Yet, that is what we suggest to the imagination when we paste paper covered with roses on our walls: They are neither artistic nor true. Roses are all very beautiful, but they were never made to climb up interior walls and they do not grow from hardwood flooring. The set figures of wall paper are also tiresome and equally disagreeable and repellant.

The alabastined wall is the only correct form of a tinted or solid colored wall. Fortunately it is the only clean way, and more fortunately it is the only permanent way; the only way that does not involve the endless labor in the future.

In lighting the walls some thought must be given the color. Light colors reflect 85% of the light thrown upon them. Dark colors reflect but 15%. Lighting bills can be saved by choosing a color which will reflect the largest degree of light. In north rooms use warm colors or colors which reflect light. In south and west rooms sometimes the light can be modified by the use of darker colors. Dark greens absorb the light; light yellows reflect it; browns modify it, and so on, through the scale of colors. The color scheme of a room not only is dependent upon the color of the carpetings but it is also dependent upon the light of the room.

There is no excuse for rough actions on the part of any man. Even a stove may be polished.

BIG TROLLEY CARS IN FATAL CRASH

Mistake in Orders Results in Collision Between Two Large Interurban Cars.

NINE KILLED; THIRTY INJURED

Running Time Had Been Changed and One Motorman Overran Orders; Cars Telescoped.

Detroit, Mich., April 30.—Two large interurban trolley cars on the Detroit, Jackson & Chicago railway, a part of the Detroit United Railways system, running from Detroit to Jackson, collided head-on yesterday afternoon while running about forty-five miles an hour, twenty-five miles west of here, near Ypsilanti. Nine men were killed and about thirty men and women injured, some of them seriously. All of the severely wounded were taken to the university hospital at Ann Arbor. A mistake in orders on the part of Motorman Isa Fay of the limited car, who was crushed to death beneath his vestibule, is alleged to have caused the collision. It is charged that he overran his orders.

Running Time Changed.

The limited car, comfortably filled with about forty people, left Ypsilanti at 2:17 o'clock for Detroit. The running time of the car was changed yesterday and reduced, so that Motorman Fay left Ypsilanti ten minutes earlier than he had been accustomed to. This is thought by some to have been responsible for his mistake. Instead of stopping at Harris Switch, where the cars should have passed, the limited rushed by the crossing point at high speed. As it rounded a curve, four miles east of Ypsilanti, the local car flashed into view, also running at high speed.

Terrific Crash.

It was a hopeless effort to trip and stop the heavy cars, and they crashed together with terrific impact. Motorman Wingrave of the local car jumped when he saw that the collision was inevitable, but Motorman Fay stuck to his vestibule. The local car was built considerably higher than the limited, so that as they met its body rode in over the heavy flooring of the limited and telescoped it for nearly thirty feet. Hardly a passenger escaped injuries of some sort.

AGAIN RAPS THE PAPER TRUST.

Evidence That Combination Exists—Prices Arbitrarialy Raised.

Washington, April 30.—Before the select committee of the house which is investigating the subject of the tariff on wood pulp as effecting the price of news print paper and also whether or not there is a combination of paper makers in restraint of trade, Mr. John Norris, representing the paper committee of the American Newspaper association, yesterday submitted further evidence in support of the association's charge that such a combination exists and that the price of paper has been arbitrarily raised. He refuted the contention of the manufacturers that this increase in price has been partly due to higher freight rates and submitted a communication from the interstate commerce commission showing the freight rates from the principal mills to the larger consuming points, from which it appeared that, with one or two exceptions, there had been no increase for several years, and in two instances the statement showed a reduction in rates.

The committee will meet again today at 10 o'clock, at which time Mr. Norris will enter upon the fourth day of his examination.

GLAD HAND FOR JOHNSON.

Detroit Will Give Minnesotan a Nonpartisan Welcome.

Detroit, Mich., April 30.—An elaborate program of entertainment has been arranged for Gov. John A. Johnson of Minnesota, who will arrive here to-day. He will give a lecture this evening before the Western High School Alumni association. His reception and entertainment will be largely non-partisan.

Arriving in the city from the supper peninsula at 7:40 a. m., he will be met by a committee of thirty prominent Democrats and escorted to the Pontchartrain hotel. Gov. Fred M. Warner of Michigan, a Republican, will join Gov. Johnson after breakfast in an automobile tour of the city. The Wholesalers' association of Detroit will entertain the two governors at luncheon.

After his lecture in Light Guard armory Gov. Johnson will be banqueted at the hotel by a party of prominent local Democrats.

2,000 People Massacred.

Teheran, Persia, April 30. — Dispatches were read in parliament yesterday stating that the Kurds around Urumiah, a town of Persian Armenia, had pillaged thirty-six villages and masacred 2,000 people.

Stevens Point, Wis. April 30. — An unidentified man, less than forty years old and well dressed, was instantly killed here yesterday under the wheels of a Wisconsin Central freight train.

LOSES ANOTHER BATTLESHIP

Torpedo Boat Destroyer Is Cut Into and Sunk During Night Maneuvers.

Harwich, Eng., April 30.—The British torpedo boat destroyer Gala was cut in two and sunk early yesterday off Kentish Rock, in the North sea, by the scout Attentive. The torpedo boat destroyer Ribble also was involved in the collision and returned to the Sheerness with two compartments full of water.

The flotilla was engaged in night maneuvers when the accident occurred. Engineer Lieutenant Frank A. Fletcher of the Gala, who was in his bunk at the point where the destroyer was struck, went down with the vessel. There was no other loss of life.

None Blamed for Deaths.

Yarmouth, April 30. — A coroner's jury, comprising among others Sir Henry Earle as foreman, Capt. Alexander, who played an important part in the work of rescue, and three ex-naval captains, after hearing the evidence of the captains of the American line steamship St. Paul and the cruiser Gladiator, respectively, which collided in the Solent on Saturday, and other witnesses, yesterday brought in a verdict declaring that nobody was criminally to blame for the loss of life. This inquiry, however, does not entirely settle the question as to whether any one was actually to blame for the collision, which question will be minutely investigated at the court martial to be held on the loss of the Gladiator.

FOUR BODIES IN ROOM.

Woman and Children Perish in Fire Started by Incendiary.

La Porte, Ind., April 30. — The removal of four charred bodies, the blackened forms of three children huddled about that of the mother as if for protection, the arrest of Ray Lamphere, formerly employed by Mrs. Belle Gunness, the victim, and the collapse of Lamphere at the jail last night, has caused excitement in La Porte that may at any moment break forth in mob violence.

Mrs. Gunness lived on her farm near here with her three children. At 4 o'clock yesterday morning Joseph Maxwell, an employe of the place, was awakened by smoke. He made every effort to rescue the family but failed. Late yesterday afternoon the bodies of Mrs. Gunness and her three children, Myrtle, aged eleven; Lucy, aged nine, and Philip, aged five, were removed from the smoldering ruins.

Fired Through Malice.

There was a rumor that the home had been fired because of malice, and as the day advanced the police took up the story and began an investigation which resulted in the arrest of Lamphere last evening. Lamphere had been employed on the Gunness farm and was infatuated with Mrs. Gunness, who was a beautiful woman. Mrs. Gunness declared that the man annoyed her, and filed proceedings to have him declared insane, but a jury found him sane.

Officers are on the alert to prevent violence.

GAS IS FATAL TO SIX.

Italian Found Dead in Room of New York Lodging House.

New York, April 30.—The bodies of six unknown Italians, supposed to be miners from Midvale, Pa., were found in a room on the third floor of a Greenwich street lodging house late yesterday. The gas in the room was turned on and the coroner stated that the men had been dead several hours.

A porter smelled gas yesterday afternoon and tried the door of the room occupied by the six men. Unable to gain entrance the porter broke in the door and found the men lying on their cots. The door had been nailed shut from the inside and the window fastened tight, evidently in fear of thieves.

The appearance of the gas jet indicated that one of the men had turned out the light, but did not fully close the stop.

NOTABLE CATHOLIC GATHERING.

Public Thanksgiving for Completion of Centennial in New York.

New York, April 30.—Not since the last plenary council of Baltimore has there been such a gathering of Catholic hierarchy as that which assembled yesterday in St. Patrick's cathedral and offered public thanksgiving for the completion of a hundred years of catholicism in New York. With two exceptions, every archbishop in the country was present and all of the leading bishops and numerous heads of the various religious orders.

Mgr. Falconio, the apostolic delegate represented the Vatican, and at the close of the ceremonies imparted the papal bendiction.

The thanksgiving was in the form of a pontifical mass, the celebrant being Cardinal Logue of Ireland.

Attempt to Poison Girl.

Mason City, Iowa, April 30.—Strychnine was placed in a piece of mince pie, part of the lunch carried by Ivy Wells, employed at a brick plant. Miss Wells was stricken soon after eating and physicians were summoned, but she is in a critical condition.

Five Hurt on British Warship.

Portsmouth, April 30. — The explosion of a boiler tube on the British battleship Britannia during a full speed trial yesterday injured five men, four severely and one slightly.

GANG OF ROBBERS SHOOTS UP TOWN

Dynamite the Vault and Safe in the Scandia State Bank at Stephen, Minn.

GET AWAY WITH $8,000 CASH

Merchant Fires on Bandits and Fusilade Follows Which Terrorizes the Town.

Stephen, Minn., April 30.—Stephen was terrified at an early hour yesterday by a gang of six robbers, who dynamited the vault and the safe of the Scandia State bank and carried off $8,000 in cash after a revolver duel with William Merdink, a merchant who lives upstairs in a block adjoining the bank. He was aroused by the first explosion and, grabbing his revolver, crawled to the cement roof, and lying behind the parapet opened fire on the robbers as they left the bank with the loot.

Fusillade of Shots.

The robbers returned his fire and for a few minutes there was a perfect fusillade, which aroused the entire town, but none of those near at hand had guns to assist Merdink. Merdink escaped injury, but at least one of the robbers was badly wounded and blood was spattered on the sidewalks from the bank to the stables of Al Dickerson, manager of the lumber yard, where the wounded robber and two others stole a buggy and horse and drove out of to town, heading north. The other three robbers headed for Strandquist, east on the Soo.

Posse Gives Chase.

In a few minutes the citizens organized posses and gave chase in all directions and all surrounding towns were notified by telephone and wire. Residents in the neighborhood were panic-stricken during the shooting, and several women were thrown into hysterics. No suspects were seen about Stephen.

Both vaults and safe were completely wrecked. The robbers were cool and walked away after Merdink ran out of ammunition.

It is believed the entire gang is headed for the Canadian boundary, but all crossing places will be carefully guarded.

EXPLOSION IS NEARLY FATAL.

Leaking Gas Wrecks House and Fire Threatens Two Lives.

St. Paul, April 30.—Mrs. Ellen Haas and Mrs. C. Kelly, who jointly occupy the house at 297 Pleasant avenue, narrowly escaped cremation as the result of an explosion of gas in the house, which shattered glass and blew off doors and windows. Mrs. Haas was taken out of the second story window by firemen, almost suffocated, and when Mrs. Kelly reached the street she was burned about the face and hands. Both women were cared for by neighbors, and after they had recovered from the shock it was found that neither was seriously hurt.

Waterloo, Iowa, April 30.—As a protection to the home merchants, the council of Waterloo last night passed an ordinance regulating the licenses for itinerant peddlers, auction promoters and agents of that class, making the license $50 a day. In the past the license has been $5 a day or $50 a year.

Logs Are Scattered.

Bayfield, Wis., April 30.—The wind which blew a gale from the northwest for twenty-four hours broke the double boom which held 2,000,000 feet of A. J. Mussel's logs in the Bayfield Mill company's pond and scattered the logs all over Chequamegon bay. The Bayfield Mill company also lost about 500,000. Although the storm is a very severe one, it will do no other damage as there is no frost whatever.

Stock Pavilion Burned.

Marshalltown, Iowa, April 30.—Four thousand dollars loss by fire resulted in the destruction of the big stock pavilion of the Farmers' Exchange company at Laurel, Iowa, yesterday morning. Nine head of horses and fifteen hogs were burned.

Babe Smothered to Death.

Montrose, Minn., April 30.—The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Hickman was smothered to death under heavy coverings. When the parents awoke the child was dead.

DAVIS CREATES SENSATION

Says 10,000 Names Are Being Kept Off Indian Rolls in Oklahoma by Secretary.

Washington, April 30.—Senator Davis of Arkansas created a mild sensation in the senate yesterday when, in discussing his resolution calling on the secretary of the interior for information about the tribal rolls of the Choctaw and Chickasaw Indians of Oklahoma, he declared that 10,000 names were being kept off the rolls by the secretary, and instanced a case in which he said nine members of a family were rated as negroes and only one sa an Indian. Advancing toward Mr. Foraker, his voice thundered throughout the chamber and adjacent halls as he asked if the Ohio senator "loved niggers" so well, why did he not come forward and defend these members of that race. Only laughter greeted this, and Mr. Foraker requested in a mild tone that the senator speak louder. Later Mr. Davis' resolution was passed.

The sundry civil appropriation bill was under consideration in the house of representatives yesterday and the greater part of the time was consumed in general debate.

Mr. Williams of Mississippi presented a petition, signed by 164 of the 166 Democrats composing the minority, asking the speaker to recognize some member of the house to move the discharge of the ways and means committee from further consideration of the Stevens bill for the removal of the duty on wood pulp and print paper and to pass that bill or a similar one.

ROBBERS ELUDE PURSUERS.

Five Thousand Men Search for Bandits Who Got Away With $12,000.

Bluefield, W. Va., April 30. — Although 5,000 men searched in the mountains all Tuesday night for the robbers who held up and robbed the United States Coal and Coke company's payroll wagon on Tuesday morning at Gary, no clue to the whereabouts of the highwaymen has been discovered.

It developed yesterday that the amount taken in the holdup was $12,000, although it was believed Tuesday that $18,000 had been stolen.

OLDEST ENGINEER IS STRICKEN.

Simeon E. Hedding, in Service for Forty Years, Passes Away.

Minneapolis, April 30.—Simeon E. Hedding, oldest passenger engineer on the St. Paul road, died at his home here yesterday morning. During his forty years' service he never had a wreck and never lost a cent of property belonging to the company as the result of accidents of any kind. He had the honor of pulling the firsttrain which ran out of Minneapolis on the St. Paul road. This was on Christmas day, 1874.

DOESN'T WAIT FOR COURTS.

Convict Escapes Pending Hearing on Appeal.

Chamberlain, S. D., April 30.—John Sysinger, convicted of a statutory offense and sentenced to fifteen years in the penitentiary at Sioux Falls, but who had secured a stay of sentence pending hearing on an appeal, broke from the new county jail here last night and still is at large. He stole a pony kept close to the wall and made for the prairie.

MILLERS BLOCK CORNER ON WHEAT

Nine Mills Agree to Accept No. 2 Northern in Place of No. 1 Northern Wheat.

CAUSES SENSATION ON CHANGE

Condition Was Developing, Millers Say, That Would Paralyze the Industry.

Minneapolis, April 30.—The Northwestern Consolidated Milling company, by A. C. Loring, president, posted a notice at the Chamber of Commerce yesterday announcing that on contracts for wheat due it for May and July delivery, the company would accept No. 2 Northern wheat at fair and equitable price differences, instead of No. 1 Northern, the contract grade.

The sensation caused by this move was still at its height when eight more such notices were posted, and what at first looked like the daring move of one big company took on the appearance of concerted effort on the part of millers to stop the price manipulation that has been going on openly in the Minneapolis pit for some time and had threatened to end in a corner in May wheat.

Other Mills Follow Lead.

The Sheffield Milling company, Faribault; New Ulm Roller mills, New Ulm; Hubbard & Palmer company, Mankato; Sleepy Eye Milling company, Sleepy Eye; Bay State Milling company, Winona; Everett, Augenbaugh & Co., Waseca, and Seymour Carter of the Gardner mill, Hastings, were the millers posting notices, following that of the Northwestern Consolidated, and it was said that there were others yet to come.

The millers' contention is that a condition was developing that would paralyze the industry; that while there is wheat enough, there is so small a quantity of No. 1 Northern, the contract grade in Minneapolis, that one large firm or a combination of firms might control it and run prices to a level that would make it impossible to sell flour, necessitating the closing down of the mills.

KEEP WORKMEN IN MILLS.

Gypsum Employers Will Give Protection to Strikebreakers.

Fort Dodge, Iowa, April 30.—Gypsum employers are conveying cooking utensils, supplies and cots to the mills to obviate the necessity of transporting strikebreakers to and from the city daily. The strikers are becoming desperate and have created some disturbances on the street. Extra police have been appointed. In an altercation Tuesday revolvers were drawn, but were taken away from their holders. Miners are keeping watch for strikebreakers to dissuade them from working. Violence is feared.

ROBBERS CAUGHT BY POSSE.

Run Down in Swamp After Exhausting Ammunition.

Grand Rapids, Mich., April 30.—Pursued for thirty miles, two men charged with wrecking the safe in the bank of D. S. Hendry & Co. at Mecosta were captured in a swamp near Barrytown after exhausting their ammunition in an effort to drive back their pursuers. One hundred farmers and half a dozen officers were in the posse. The men were exhausted with hunger and fatigue. Three of the gang which blew the safe are still at large. But $12 was secured by the robbers.

SHOWS UP THE PAPER TRUST

Cost of Production Increases Sixty Cents a Ton; Price of Paper Raised $12 a Ton.

Washington, April 30.— More evidence tending to show that there is a combination of paper manufacturers to fix the price of news print paper in the United States was adduced yesterday before the special committee of the house which is investigating the subject of duty on wood pulp and print paper as affecting the price in the United States. Mr. John Norris of the New York Times and representing the paper committee of the American Newspaper Publishers' association continued his testimony and presented numerous letters and documents to bear out his contention. Apparently the committee was particularly impressed with the annual statement of the International Paper company for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1907, showing an increased cost of production of 60 cents a ton as against the raise in price of paper of $12 a ton. Chairman Mann, appreciating the importance of this testimony, announced that he would go to the bottom to ascertain the cause of so large an increase in the price of paper.

During the day Mr. Norris formulated a number of questions which he wished the committee to propound at once to the International Paper company and others, and also submitted the names of a dozen persons identified with the paper business whom he desired subpoenaed.

JAIL-BREAK IS FOILED BY GIRL.

Refuses to Get Express Package Containing Saws for the Prisoners.

Fergus Falls, Minn., April 30.—An attempted jail delivery was neatly foiled here yesterday, twenty-four hacksaws, intended for A. R. Applin and B. B. Smith, two of the jail inmates, falling into the hands of the sheriff. Either directly or through some friend, the men succeeded in ordering a a package of fine saws, which had just arrived addressed to a fictitious name. They endeavored to get into the confidence of a young woman employed in the sheriff's home and asked her to call at the express office and get the package. The girl informed the sheriff of the request and the saws were promptly seized.

Norway, Mich., April 30.—Fearing that his children might get hold of them, much to the menace of their lives, Frank Ball, a miner employed at the Tobin property, Western Menominee iron range, took a box of dynamite caps to a nearby vacant lot to destroy the explosives. The caps exploded before Ball could get out of the way after he had lighted the fuse. His face and hands were blown full of powder and sand and he may lose one eye.

The men were engaged in a quarrel and Whitaker alleges he did the shooting in self-defense. He was placed under arrest and brought to Towner.

The injured man is a nephew of Congressman Steenerson of Minnesota. The little village of Downer is greatly worked up over the affair.

MANY CALVES PERISH.

Blizzard in the Black Hills Country Causes Loss to Cattlemen.

Deadwood, S. D., April 30.—Reports coming in from the range country and the points outside of the cities indicate that there will be much loss among the cattlemen resulting from the blizzard that has just swept over the Northern Black Hills. From one to two feet of snow fell, accompanied by a high wind that piled up drifts, and with a temperature below freezing many young calves have perished.

WOMEN'S KIDNEYS.

Are the Source of Most of Women's Sickness.

Mrs. Rebecca Mock, 1795 E. Rich Street, Columbus, Ohio, writes: "I believe I would still be a victim of kidney troubles but for Doan's Kdiney Pills, for when I started using them I was in constant pain with my back, and no other remedy had been of any use. The kidney secretions were irregular, and I was nervous and lacked energy. But Doan's Kidney Pills gave me prompt relief and continued use cured me."

ACCOMPANIMENTS OF A FUNERAL.

Dentistry, Music Lesson, Reception and Wedding in Same Flathouse.

"I have heard a lot of stories about singular happenings in New York," said one who has lived in the metropolis many years, but nothing more singular than my experience at a funeral last week.

"It was in a big flathouse. After the service I heard a scream in an adjoining apartment. I learned later that a nervous woman was having a tooth pulled. That was a good mixup for one floor.

"As we passed to the floor below I heard a woman singing. I was informed that it was her hour for taking a music lesson.

"Across the hall an afternoon reception was under full swing. The invited guests were arriving.

"When we got to the first floor a bridal couple were just coming out."

BABY'S ITCHING HUMOR.

Nothing Would Help Him—Mother Almost in Despair—Owes Quick Cure to Cuticura.

"Several months ago, my little boy began to break out with itching sores. I doctored him, but as soon as I got them healed up in one place they would break out in another. I was almost in despair. I could not get anything that would help him. Then I began to use Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment, and after using them three times, the sores commenced to heal. He is now well, and not a scar is left on his body. They have never returned nor left him with bad blood, as one would think. Cuticura Remedies are the best I have ever tried, and I shall highly recommend them to any one who is suffering likewise. Mrs. William Geeding, 102 Washington St., Attica, Ind., July 22, 1907."

HE NEEDED IT.

Actor Who Stopped Too Soon to Get the Other Boot.

Some provincial touring companies make a profit from their audiences in more ways than one.

Such a company was playing "The Broken Vow" in a small town.

The audience didn't appreciate the performance, and eggs, cabbages and potatoes rained upon the stage with striking persistency.

Still the play went on. The hero raved and tore his hair, dodging the bouquets of turnips that were also forced upon him.

Finally, a gallery auditor, in a paroxysm of rage, hurled a heavy boot, and the actor, thoroughly alarmed, started to retreat.

"Keep on playing, you fool!" hissed the manager from the wings, as he hooked in the boot with an umbrella. "Keep on till we get the other one!"

BUILT RIGHT.

Brain and Nerves Restored by Grape-Nuts Food.

The number of persons whose ailments were such that no other food could be retained at all, is large and reports are on the increase.

"For 12 years I suffered from dyspepsia, finding no food that did not distress me," writes a Wis. lady. "I was reduced from 145 to 90 lbs., gradually growing weaker until I could leave my bed only a short while at a time, and became unable to speak aloud.

"Three years ago I was attracted by an article on Grape-Nuts and decided to try it.

"My stomach was so weak I could not take cream, but I used Grape-Nuts with milk and lime water. It helped me from the first, building up my system in a manner most astonishing to the friends who had thought my recovery impossible.

"Soon I was able to take Grape-Nuts and cream for breakfast, and lunch at night, with an egg and Grape-Nuts for dinner.

"I am now able to eat fruit, meat and nearly all vegetables for dinner, but fondly continue Grape-Nuts for breakfast and supper.

"At the time of beginning Grape-Nuts I could scarcely speak a sentence without changing words around or 'talking crooked' in some way, but my brain and nerves have become so strengthened that I no longer have that trouble." "There's a Reason." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Lest you forget we will again remind you that it is time to drag the roads.

Don't swear at the weather. It was fully as cold as this last year, besides it don't do any good.

Aspirants for county offices seem to be more backward in Red Lake Falls than in the adjoining counties.

The village board of health will inspect back yards and alleys next Friday so it stands you in hand to clean up next week.

The nomination of Taft is conceded and his election is almost as certain. The policies of Roosevelt will be continued.

Congress still continues their do nothing policy and seem to be proud of it. Some of those congressmen won't be working next year.

The Roseau people have commenced again to look for the Great Northern to build this year. We hope they will not again be disappointed.

Three of the five county commissioners failed to attend the meeting of the board called to consider the county seat removal petition last Saturday.

It begins to look as if the opponents of W. J. Bryan had him beaten for the nomination. Whether or not the plum will fall to Johnson remains to be seen.

The county delegates to the late Republican convention are still kicking about how the gang from the cities handled the convention; but they were a wonderfully meek crowd while the work was being done.

Electric Power in Chili.

Many projects are now under way or under consideration, for the utilization of the numerous sources of electric power that are furnished by the streams descending from the Andes in Chili. Many people agree that for a table beverage nothing is quite so delicious as golden grain belt beer. It pleases the palate and satisfies the thirst. Hearticulture

Oliver Hereford and John Cecil Clay in the May Woman's Home Companion assert that Hearticulture is an exact science, and they give cultural directions for use of lovers, young and old. The illustrations of these unique plants are in color.

Will Be Here This Evening

Thief River Falls, Minn.
April 23, 1908.

Mr. H. E. Ives,
St. Hilaire, Minn.

Friend Harry:—

I wish you would announce in yout Spectator that Capt. Wiste, Lieutenants Bulman and Fuller, Sargent Hansen and Medical Examiner Dr. Melby will be in St. Hilaire Saturday evening in order to muster in a squad of militia. The boys will be entitled to a sargent and corporal.

Yours truly

Our 1915 Election

Sunbeam:—Grant county Oklahoma, will vote on the proposition to remove the county seat from Pond Creek to Medford, on May 27th, this year. We were down there on a visit to a brother ten years ago next month, and at that time Medford had just gotten up the first petition for removal, and thought they would have the county seat moved in three months. Figuring on the same length of time for "courting" the proposition to move the county seat from Red Lake to Thief River Falls had ought to be put to a vote early in January 1915.

Since the Oklahoma fight was started some of the older ones have died and younger men taken their places and continued the fight, and that will undoubtedly be the way it will be done in this county, but some of the next generations will undoubtedly smile, when they read in the ancient history, that the campaign of 1906, was made on the issue of county seat removal.

Poor Service

We have received the following letter in regard to the freight service the Great Northern is giving St. Hilaire at present. Agent Borneman, when shown the letter informed us that we have freight service three times a week, on Monday, Wednesday and Friday. Competitive points such as, Red Lake Falls and Thief River Falls get a daily service. The bill of goods mentioned in the letter, which was offered the company on Friday, April 24th did not get here until Wednesday the 29th making a delay of five days. It might be well for the commercial club to take this matter up with the railroad company or the railway and warehouse commission. The letter is as follows:

Crookston, Minn., Apr 25, 1908

Mr. H. E. Ives,
St. Hilaire, Minn.

Dear Sir:—

I took a load of goods to the G. N. depot yesterday for St. Hilaire and the company refused to take it saying the freight train stops at St. Hilaire only twice a week and there would be no freight to St. Hilaire till next Tuesday. They accept freight for Red Lake Falls and Thief River Falls every day. Can you explain the reason for this, as the freight goes through St. Hilaire to get to Thief River Falls and surely it would be no extra expense to unload freight at St. Hilaire. I had several orders that should have reached my customers at St. Hilaire today and if they don't know about this new deal on freight I expect they will lay the blame on me.

Yours respectfully,
J. H. Peterson.

The many friends here of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Cross, of Red Lake Falls will be pleased to know that a bran new baby boy arrived at their home last Tuesday, mother and child are doing nicely and the proud father seems to stand the shock in a surprising manner as the Gazette came out on time this week.

Anton Larson, of Sanders, a brother of O. L. and Ole Larson, died last Wednesday of consumption. He has been a well known resident of Sanders for the past twenty years and has a large number of friends who sincerely mourn his loss. He was a single man. The funeral will take place today, Rev. NO FAT CROPS.

Shortage In Feed Grains This Year and Some Probable Effects.

The government crop report for September is looked upon as one of the most important of the year, showing especially the harvest of small grains and usually indicating fairly well the corn prospects. This year it is less to be depended on than usual as to corn because the crop is late and not out of frost danger at the time the report is compiled. But the conclusions as to corn and the other crops also seem to be pretty well in line with estimates made by commercial authorities.

Leaving out wheat and rye, both of which in price are now out of the list of feeding grains, we find that the shortage in the yield of corn, oats and barley amounts to a total of 601,000,000 bushels. Allowing for a better hay crop than last year and the economy incident to feeding high priced grains, there must still be a serious shortage in the stuff that makes all meat and dairy products and also in byproducts from mills. And there is no reason aside from their cost to anticipate a greatly decreased consumption of these products. In fact, there are reasons for believing that people will have to depend on them more than usual. With exception of potatoes staple vegetable supplies are short. Canned goods, both fruits and vegetables, are not in liberal supply, and prices are higher than usual. Bread must be dearer than usual also. There is therefore not much probability of substitution reducing the consumption of meats and dairy products, though careful consumption may do so. Certainly the feed grain situation justifies expectations of good markets, because prices of feeds now prevailing will restrict feeding as much as prices of products will retard consumption and probably more.

A Shift In the Hog Trade.

For many months light hogs have sold at a substantial premium over heavy ones. Considering the difference in the percentage of meat they yield and the price the light weights have cost $1 to $1.50 per hundred weight more than the heavy when they were hung up. But there will probably be a change in this relation—in fact, a part of the difference has already disappeared. It would not be surprising to see their positions reversed so far as the price on foot is concerned. High priced corn will probably bring about marketing of hogs at lighter weights, and the heavy grades will be relatively scarce. The lard market promises to be good. These influences, with the smaller percentage of waste from heavy hogs, is very likely to put a premium on them before the winter is very old.—National Stockman

DAIRY COMMENT.

Professor Fraser of the Illinois Agricultural college has struck a new method of teaching in the country district school. There was a bright, sensible lady schoolteacher who wanted to make her school of some practical use to the farmers and their children. So she applied to the professor for a Babcock test machine, and the children have been bringing samples of milk from their homes to be tested. The scheme is working fine, and we are glad to see it inaugurated, says Hoard's Dairyman.

Price of Milk.

Higher prices for milk per 100 pounds as made to farmers by the Borden Condensed Milk company for the next six months are quoted as follows:

October, $1.80; November, $2; December, $2; January, $2; February, $2; March, $1.80.

The Vital Difference.

Do you know that in some of the European countries today they are dairying successfully on land worth from $400 to $1,000 per acre? The same markets are open to our people that are open to those people, and no duty bars the way. The difference is right here—they are dairying intelligently with good cows. Their average is nearly 300 pounds of butter per cow, while ours is about 140 pounds per cow. We need a great awakening.—G. L. McKay, Iowa.

Greater Use of Starters.

A recent Pennsylvania butter scoring contest shows an increase in the number of commercial starters used to be noted, though the scores of the users show that there is much to be learned about the making and using of the starter. A good starter is a great help a poor one worse than none.

Arrives Just Right.

Pat the fall calf on the back. She arrives in the world at the proper time. She will be six months old before she sees a fly. That means six months of a start, remarks Dorothy T. in Farm Journal. Give her a good place to sleep. Be sure it's dry. Calves like clover hay too.

Complete Ration.

Corn silage and alfalfa, two of the best feeds for dairy cows, make practically a complete or balanced ration in themselves. For the Mississippi valley there is no crop generally grown that will produce more feed to the acre than corn.—W. J. Fraser, Illinois.

Overcoming Fatigue.

From France comes the information that good results have been obtained from the use of sugar to overcome the great fatigue in horses when overworked. The good result obtained by a veterinary surgeon from the use of sugar in large doses in forced marches led him to employ it for the purpose of overcoming fatigue. Two hundred grains of sugar were fed daily, mixed with the horse's food and distributed regularly throughout the day.

An Added Supply of Talk.

"I've had to get a new barber."

"Your old one getting careless?"

"No, but his baby is beginning to say cute things."

Her Little Pleasures.

Husband—I wish you would stop this everlasting picking flaws in your neighbors. Wife—That's just like you! You never want me to have the least pleasure!—Liverpool Mercury.

Bare Lot or Grass Lot.

At the Louisiana experiment station an experiment as to the relation of bare lot and grass lot feeding to parasites in the stomach and intestines of sheep has been concluded, and Dr. Dairymple states in his report of the test, bulletin No. 95, that on the whole the lambs raised by the bare lot method were in every way more satisfactory than those raised on the grass lot.

Sugar Beets For Stock.

Farmers are beginning to appreciate the value of sugar beets for stock feeding and are raising more of them each year. Many of the farmers in northern Colorado have grown beets for this purpose and will slice them before feeding, while others will turn their stock into the fields to fatten on tops and roots. The Jones Cattle company of the Middle Park has contracted for 300 tons of beets at Mead, which will be fed to cattle, with hogs following, a plan which was tried last year with excellent results.—Denver Field and Farm.

No American Coach Horse.

Although numerous entries were made, not one was judged good enough to carry off the first prize for a coach horse which was offered this year by the Iowa state fair. The requirements were "American trotting bred horses of suitable size, conformation, style, quality and action for heavy harness service. Size, 15 hands and over; 15.1 to 15.3 preferred. Horses competing must be standard bred or registered nonstandard."

Champion Buttermaker.

Mrs. J. A. Peters of Story county has again won first prize at the Iowa state fair in the women's buttermaking contest. She is champion woman buttermaker in Iowa, having ranked first for many years. Sixty-four women, representing the states of Minnesota, Illinois, Iowa and Nebraska, competed.

Base Ball Tomorrow

The base ball season of 1908 will be opened for St. Hilaire tomorrow afternoon, May 3rd, by the local and Thief River Falls nines on the home diamond. The game itself will not be a demonstration of what the local club can do but will be more in the light of a practice game for both teams as neither one has lined up against an opponent this year.

Thief River Fall has the reputation of having one of the fastest clubs in this section of the state this year and ought to present a clean, snappy article of ball tomorrow.

In this game St. Hilaire will present a patched-up team, gotten together at practically the last moment and will not be able to "let loose" until they have a couple of weeks good, hard practice behind them. With all her men in condition St. Hilaire will be strictly in it with the average team in this section of the country and ought to at least win her fair share of games. Game called at 2:30.

Most people have an idea they can get better and dryer lumber where there is a saw mill than they can get at a retail lumber yard, but that is not so.

If you are going to build come and take a look at our stock before buying your lumber. We have nearly thirty yards in Minnesota and North Dakota and the Crookston Lumber Company is in a position to provide a special stock for these yards and every stick of our lumber is kept in sheds.

We have just received a few car loads of lumber and if you are going to build bring us your bill and you will be well pleased if you get your lumber from

Notice to Clean Up.

Notice is hereby given to the residents and property owners of St. Hilaire that they must before May 10th, 1908, clean up and remove any and all garbage, manure or slops, on the premises owned or occupied by them and also on alleys or thoroughfares adjacent to said property. Said owners or occupants are also required to maintain any and all property, which they own or occupy in a thoroughly sanitary condition, also that proprietors of hotels and restaurants keep sufficient barrels in the rear of their places of business in which to deposit all offal and refuse, and contents of which shall be deposited on the dumping grounds at least once in each week.

Any person failing to comply with this order will be promptly prosecuted according to law.

Dr. J. C. Cummings,
Health Officer.

In order that the public may be thoroughly informed, we herewith publish the following resolutions, ordered by the board of health, which will be rigidly enforced:

I.

That owners or occupants of lots within the village limits be required to to remove from their respective premises before the 10th day of May, 1908, all manure, garbage and other refuse matter, manure must also be removed at frequent intervals during the summer months.

II.

That the keeping of hogs within the village limits be prohibited except upon special permission from the board of health.

III.

That the carcasses of all dead animals such as cattle, dogs, sheep, etc., must be properly buried by the owners.

IV.

That slops and kitchen refuse must not be allowed to accumulate unless suitable receptacles be provided. The board requests every family to provide suitable barrels, convenient to be gotten at by some conveyance.

V.

The board recommends that private wells be thoroughly cleaned in order to remove from them all decaying animal and vegetable matter and it is also recommended that particular attention be given to cleaning and disinfecting all cellars as these two are the main sources of all contagious diseases prevalent in this country.

VI.

The annual inspection by the board of health will take place on May 10th, 1908, at which time all premises not found free from garbage, manure, or other refuse, and all outhouses in an unsanitary condition will be ordered cleaned according to the provisions of the village ordinances.

VII.

Garbage and refuse should be burned or mixed with quick-lime or crude carbolic acid (5 per cent) and buried in a pit or hauled to a dumping ground where it is exposed to the sun light.

VIII.

Be it further resolved that the above resolutions be published in The St. Hilaire Spectator for two successive weeks.

Dated April 23th, 1908, by order of the board of health.
Dr. J. C. Cummings,
Health Officer.

Peterson, 132 South Main St., Council Bluffs, Iowa, writes: "I cannot tell you how much good Peruna has done me. Constant confinement in my store began to tell on my health, and I felt that I was gradually breaking down. I tried several remedies, but obtained no permanent relief until I took Peruna. I felt better immediately, and five bottles restored me to complete health."

A SINCERE RECOMMENDATION.

Mr. D. C. Prosser, Bravo, Allegan Co., Mich., writes: "Two years ago I was badly afflicted with catarrh of the stomach. I had had a run of typhoid fever, was very depleted. I could find nothing I could eat without causing distress and sour stomach. Finally I came to the conclusion that I had catarrh of the stomach and seeing Peruna advertised, began to take it. It helped me soon, and after taking three or four bottles I was entirely cured of stomach trouble, and can now eat anything."

HATCHERY FOR ALEXANDRIA.

Steenerson Tells Crookston Club That Site Practically Is Settled.

Secretary Moore of the Twenty-five Thousand club of Crookston, which has been endeavoring to make an effort to land the fish hatchery, proposed in the senate for Northern Minnesota at Maple Lake, a North valley summer resort, received from Congressman Halvor Steenerson of Crookston at Washington the following letter:

"Dear Mr. Moore: I have your letter of the 8th inst., relative to section 6335, a bill introduced by Mr. Nelson to establish a fish culture station in the State of Minnesota, and replying would say that the bill has passed the senate and is now pending in the house, but in the present state of the Democratic filibuster the chances are not favorable for its passage. The bill was undoubtedly introduced by Senator Nelson for the benefit of the lakes in the vicinity of Alexandria, and if it should pass he would probably secure the location of the fish station at that point. In the event that the bill should become a law I should of course be glad to forward every effort to secure the station for Maple Lake, but I do not think it is intended for any other place than Alexandria. I am yours very truly,

—"Halvor Steenerson."

Agitation was started in Crookston as well as at Bemidji and Cass Lake to secure this hatchery, and Crookston had secured the support of the North Dakota delegation for the hatchery at Maple Lake. This is considered in Crookston the final word this year.

OWE GUDE WILL BE IN ST. PAUL.

Will Be Orator at Norwegian Day Exercises.

Owe Gude, recently appointed ambassador from Norway to the United States, will be the orator of the day at the ceremonies in the St. Paul Auditorium, Norwegian day, May 16, which is next in honor of the Independence day of the Norwegians. It will be the first time that the ambassador of the new kingdom will see this part of the country, and the Scandinavians of the Twin Cities and the Northwest are preparing to give him a fitting welcome.

Ambassador Gude is a man of brilliant attainments. He is a son of the famous Norwegian painter Gude. While quite young Mr. Gude developed remarkable talents. Shortly after leaving the University of Norway he was made an attache of one of the European embassies. Afterwards he was made envoy to Spain, followed by his appointment to Denmark as representative of Norway and Sweden by King Oscar. He was endowed with many distinguished honors by the king of Sweden during his long diplomatic career. While he was located in Denmark he became a warm friend of Prince Carl of Denmark, now king of Norway. When the crisis came two years ago Mr. Gude resigned his diplomatic position, preferring to wait until Norway took her place among the nations of the world.

His manly attitude won him favor with King Haakon and his appointment to Washington was heralded with praise in all countries.

DOESN'T EXPECT TO MOVE.

Sparta Officials Are Preparing Plans for Installing Water Works.

While the village officials of Sparta claim that their action has no connection with the failure of the United States Steel corporation to move the town, as agreed upon, they are preparing to submit to the voters a proposition to bond the village for $20,000. All the papers are drawn and need but the formal action of the trustees.

The money is to be spent rebuilding sidewalks and replacing the light and water plant and to begin the construction of a sewer system. A number of Sparta merchants are putting in branch houses in Gilbert, the rival town, and are otherwise going upon the proposition that Sparta is not to be moved.

A thorough canvass has been made of the property owners of Sparta and it is found that on a sale proposition they value their property at a little more than $200,000. Refusing to move the town, the Steel corporation must pay this amount to be able to take out the ore under the town, which has been assessed at $188,000.

The disastrous prairie fire that swept over the townships of Skree, Elkton and Parke in Clay county did more damage than was at first reported. The house, granary and barn belonging to Mrs. Personne of Skree were burned to the ground. There is no insurance. Another farm dwelling was burned, but no one lived in it.

The body of a man was found floating in the water by two Indians who were camping on the bank of the Mississippi river close to Reno. The body was found to be that of a man by the name of Danehoer, from Richmond, Winona county. Danehoer last was seen alive at Trempealeau, Wis., on Feb. 27, on his way home across the river. He evidently walked into an airhole in the ice and was drowned.

The Free academy at Utica, N. Y., was gutted by fire. The loss is estimated at $100,000.

Before H. A. Simons, United States commissioner at Bemidji, John R. Stewart and L. Nap La Pointe waived examination on the charge of trespassing on government timber land were bound over to await the action of the federal court at the spring term, to be held in Fergus Falls in May. Both men were released on their own recognizance.

In order to extend its lines in Wasatch final steps were taken in the financing of a railroad from Salt Lake City to the copper camp of Bingham.

HOW TO TEST LINSEED OIL.

There is nothing that will make paint go wrong on the house more quickly than poor oil. It is as bad in its way as adulterations in the white lead. Petroleum oil cheapeners may be detected by placing a drop of the oil on a black painted surface. If one sees the characteristic iridescence or play of colors which kerosene exhibits, it is evidence of adulteration. Corn and fish oil can be detected by the smell. Adulteration in white lead can best be discovered by the use of a blowpipe, which National Lead Company will send with instructions free to anyone interested in paint. Address, National Lead Company, Woodbridge Building, New York.

Good Crops in Mexico.

Good crop conditions are reported from all parts of Mexico. The sugar cane crop which is now being harvested is the largest in the history of the country, while the yield of coffee exceeds that of any previous year. There is a shortage of corn and wheat in some sections, but the prospects are favorable for good crops of those two cereals this year.

MINNESOTA FOR JOHN A. JOHNSON

Governor Will Get Backing of Home State for Presidential Nomination.

DEMOCRATIC PRIMARIES HELD

Results Throughout the State Generally Favorable to Governor—Bryan Men Don't Give Up.

St. Paul, May 7.—Democratic primaries for the selection of delegates to the state convention were held throughout the state yesterday. The latest returns indicate a sweeping victory for Gov. Johnson. Minnesota will send twenty and probably twenty-two delegates to the Denver convention instructed to vote for Johnson for the presidential nomination.

The Bryan delegates in the state convention will number somewhere around 100, although the Bryan men claim more than that. The Bryan men believe that they have a chance to carry the Eighth congressional district, as they have carried Carlton county and claim to have St. Louis county, although the Johnson people have reports to the contrary.

The result of yesterday's vote means that Johnson's name will be presented at Denver and that he will receive the solid, or almost solid, vote of the state on the first ballot.

The following is the result by congressional districts, according to the latest returns:

First District.

In the First district Johnson swept Winona, securing 665 votes to 89 for Bryan in the city and about the same proportion in the county. Olmsted county went for Bryan without a contest. Reports from Waseca, Mower and Steele show Johnson victories.

Second District.

In the Second district Bryan had Cottonwood since the county convention last Saturday and carried Jackson without a contest. Watonwan, Nobles, Blue Earth and Faribault report Johnson delegations. In Brown only about 12 of the 113 delegates to the county convention are for Bryan. One report says Rock county broke even, but the Bryan men claim to have carried it.

Third District.

No reports of Bryan victories have been received from the Third district, although the Bryan people claim they have McLeod and Carver. In Goodhue Johnson won easily. Nicollet and Sibley report solid Johnson delegations, and in other counties there is no contest reported.

Fourth District.

In Ramsey county the conditions were peculiar, owing to the fact that each faction held its own caucuses and elected its own set of delegates to the county convention. The Washington county delegation will be solid for Johnson, and if the Johnson delegation from Ramsey county is seated in the state convention, which is not entirely improbable, the Fourth district will be for Johnson.

Fifth District.

Hennepin, the Fifth congressional district, was almost a landslide for Johnson. From the returns it is estimated that Bryan will have 101 in the county convention and Johnson 261.

Sixth District.

The Sixth district was a battleground, especially Stearns county. Here the Johnson men won out, carrying every ward in St. Cloud and every precinct outside except the villages of Torah and Melrose. Douglas, Sherburne, Wadena and Benton counties report Johnson delegations. The Bryan men have reports which lead them to claim Wright county.

Seventh District.

Lyon county is about all the Bryan men get in the Seventh district, although Bryan men were elected in Olivia, Renville county, and the rest of the county is doubtful.

Eighth District.

The Eighth district is the only district where the Bryan people may get a look in. If their claim of getting St. Louis county is true, and they get Kanabec, Carlton and one or two other counties, they can carry the district. Carlton has reported a Johnson delegation, but Anoka and Aitkin report overwhelming Johnson victories.

Ninth District.

There was some scattered Bryan sentiment in the Ninth district, but not enough to control any county. Ada, in Norman county, and Hallock, in Kittson county, went for Bryan. The Bryan people claim Norman, but it is claimed that the outsie precincts will carry Kittson for Johnson. Wilkin will have nearly all Johnson men in its county convention. In Clay county, Moorhead, Barnesville, Hawley and Comstock are reported for Johnson and no opposition heard of elsewhere. There were no contests in Otter Tail, and the men elected are mostly Johnson men.

Sturgis, S. D., May 7.—A prairie fire started yesterday near Fort Meade cemetery and the entire garrison was ordered out to fight the flames. It was several hours before the fire was under control and was not until the country around and adjoining the graveyard was burned over.

BOY KING TAKES THE OATH

Manuel Is Formally Proclaimed King of Portugal—Day Observed as a Holiday.

Lisbon, May 7. — Manuel, the boy king of Portugal, solemnly took the oath of allegiance to his people yesterday, and with all the traditional courtly observance was proclaimed the ruler of the nation. The day was observed as a holiday and the city was aglow with brilliant sunshine and a myriad of flags and flowers. Through the streets, which were lined with troops and filled with throngs of people, King Manuel, accompanied by the high dignitaries drove in the state coach to the parliament house.

The ceremonies occurred in the presence of a brilliant assemblage, made up of peers, deputies, court functionaries and members of the diplomatic corps.

After the oath had been taken, King Emanuel read the following discourse:

"My ideal is the nation's prosperity and my ambition is the winning of my people's love."

From the balcony of the parliament building Manuel was formally proclaimed king by the grand standard bearer of the realm, whereupon the shouts of the herald of "Long live the king!" arose, and the booming of guns carried the news throughout the city.

A complete state ticket was nominated and Former Governor James H. Campbell was indorsed for United States senator, and delegates and alternates at large to the national convention selected.

MOST FIENDISH WOMAN OF CENTURY

Five Bodies of Slain Victims Found on Farm of Woman Who Perished in Fire.

SEARCH FOR OTHER VICTIMS

South Dakota Man in Search of Missing Brother Unearths Awful Record of Crime.

Laporte, Ind., May 7. — With five bodies already unearthed, sheriff Sautzer and Coroner Mack will continue their search to-day for other alleged victims of Mrs. Belle Guinness, who, according to all indications, was one of the most fiendish murderesses of the century and who was recently killed with her three children through the burning of her country home one mile east of Laporte.

Of the bodies so far unearthed, two have been identified. They are those of Andrew Heleglein, a wealthy bachelor of Mansfield, S. D., and Miss Jennie Olson, eleven years old, stepdaughter of Mrs. Guinness. The other three bodies are so badly decomposed as to make identification impossible.

In Search of Brother.

The discovery of the bodies was brought about by the appearance of A. K. Helgelein of Aberdeen, S. D., a brother of Andrew Helgelein, in Laporte in search of the missing man, with information that his brother Andrew had come to Laporte to wed Mrs. Guinness and that he had turned over his property to her, he became convinced that he had been the victim of foul play.

While questioning Joseph Maxson, a hired hand on the Guinness farm, he learned of the mysterious digging of holes by him, all of them being filled at a later date by Mrs. Guinness.

Find Five Victims.

He led Helgelein and the officers to the spot where the holes had been dug, and after digging for a few minutes there was uncovered the body of Helgelein. About thirty-five feet further on the remains of the four other bodies were found.

It is recalled that the two husbands of Mrs. Guinness died under suspicious circumstances, both meeting violent deaths. The first, Edward Sorrenson, was insured for $8,500 and the second, Guinness, for $3,500. The insurance was paid over to Mrs. Guinness by the companies.

Hired Man Accused.

Ray Lamphere, the former hired man of Mrs. Guinness, who was arrested after the woman's house had been destroyed by fire and the bodies of Mrs. Guinness and her three children had been found in the ruins, was charged with murdering the family. He will now be accused of being an accomplice of Mrs. Guinness in the murdering of alleged victims of the Laporte woman.

That Lamphere knew that Helgelein had been slain now is believed to a certainty. During the time he was prosecuted by her for trespass he told the police he knew something that Mrs. Guinness wanted him to forget.

Planning Another Marriage.

That Mrs. Guinness was evidently contemplating still another marriage is believed by the authorities. A letter was received Wednesday by Executor Fogler, addressed to Mrs. Guinness. The letter is written in Norwegian and is from Carl Peterson of Waupaca, Wis. He writes that he is sorry he cannot meet her requirements as to his financial conditions, but he is respectable and worthy in every way. He says he hopes she will be able to find the right kind of a man, one who will make a good and true husband and one who will be a father to her children.

MORE CHARGES AGAINST TRUST.

Manufacturers Go Into Market and Arbitrarily Mark Up Prices.

Washington, May 7. —John Norris of New York, the representative of the American Newspaper Publishers' association, yesterday repeated his statement before the house committee investigating the wood pulp and print paper industry that the American paper manufacturers have bought large tracts of wood land in Canada and charges that instead of cutting the timber on this land, "which they have bought with almost recklessness," they have gone into the market and artificially marked up the prices on themselves. He protested that the American consumers should not be saddled with the penalties of any such speculation. Mr. Norris produced figures to show that there has been a reduction in the price of pulp wood exported from Canada. He expressed the opinion that paper can be made for $20 a ton.

The investigation will continue today.

Shoots Man; Kills Self.

Montpelier, Vt., May 7. — Miss Christina Bau, a young woman supposed to have been insane, shot and probably fatally injured Louis Neveau, a hotel clerk, on the principal street of the city late last night and then killed herself.

IS WORST TERROR OF THE AGE

Man Under Arrest Suspected of Complicity—Bodies Shipped to Farm for Interment.

Laporte, Ind., May 7. — A possible solution of the Guinness farm mystery, which was deepened yesterday when four additional bodies were found in the barn yard, developed late yesterday afternoon. Evidence that the nine dismembered corpses unearthed Tuesday and yesterday had been shipped to this city, probably from Chicago, came to light, the testimony of draymen who had carted trunks and boxes to the Guinness home bearing this out. In addition, the local authorities received information that two trunks consigned to Mrs. Belle Guinness, Laporte, Ind., were being held in an express office in the larger city, and the assistance of the Chicago police in unraveling the puzzle was sought at once.

Two Bodies Identified.

Two of the nine bodies were identified yesterday with considerable certainty. They were those of Jennie Olson, the sixteen-year-old foster daughter of Mrs. Guinness, and Andrew Helgelein of South Dakota.

Ray Lamphere, who is held on a charge of first degree murder growing out of the fire which destroyed the Guinness home and caused the deaths of Mrs. Guinness and her three children, offered no new evidence, despite repeated questionings. Ralph N. Smith, the prosecuting attorney of the district, asserted, however, that a confession is not necessary, so far as Lamphere is concerned.

Evidence Against Lamphere.

"We have positive evidence in the shape of letters connecting Lamphere with the recent murders at the Guinness farm," he said.

The exact nature of these letters was carefully guarded by Mr. Smith. The increasingly divergent character of the gruesome mysteries has aroused the entire community.

The Guinness farm was a Mecca for curious sightseers yesterday. When Sheriff Smultzer and his assistants reached the place yesterday morning he resumed the task of delving for bodies.

Had Help in Bloody Work.

The men who are seeking to fasten the responsibility for the numerous deaths upon the guilty are not all convinced that Mrs. Guinness was unaided in her horrifying work. Roy Lamphere is the person toward whom the hand of official suspicion is pointing. In addition to the many suspicious circumstances connecting him with the woman is the testimony of several townspeople that say they saw him wearing Andrew Helgelein's furlined overcoat after the South Dakota man had dropped from view.

Draw Money; Disappear.

A motive for the wholesale murders has not been fully established. The circumstances surrounding the disappearance of Helgelein and Ole B. Bulsberg of Iola, Wis., are, however, startlingly enough similar to give a clue as to the object of the person or persons who committed the crimes.

Helgelein had secured $3,000 through the First National bank here shortly before he was lost track of. Bulsberg negotiated the sale of a mortgage through the Laporte Savings bank which yielded him $1,000. He drew this money April 6, 1907. No record of his further appearance in the flesh has been found.

SUICIDE IS DRAMATIC.

Miner Ties a Stick of Dynamite to His Head and Lights Fuse.

Duluth, Minn., May 7.—A dramatic suicide occurred at Virginia when Thomas Wren killed himself. He was in the dining room of his boarding house when he tied a stick of dynamite to his head and set fire to the fuse. He first called some women to see him commit the act, but when they saw the dynamite they fled, one being badly hurt. The explosion, which tore the man to pieces, also wrecked the boarding house. The man was blown to fragments.

GREATEST PARADE IN NAVY'S HISTORY

Combined Atlantic and Pacific Fleets Reviewed by Great Multitude.

WELCOME NOISY AND SINCERE

People of a Hundred Cities and Towns Voice Greeting of Enthusiastic West.

San Francisco, May 7. — Through the towering, rocky portals of the Golden Gate—heavy-laden with the romance of centuries—into the harbor of the city of a hundred hills; into a new San Francisco, risen from the ruins of two years ago, the Atlantic battleship fleet steamed yesterday in review of a great multitude. Thirty vessels were in the imposing line. Fourteen vessels of the Pacific fleet—eight of them heavily armored cruisers and rivaling the greatest of the visiting battleships in displacement and weight of gunfire, joined the line inside the entrance off Angel Island and then followed the greatest parade of ships of war the navy has ever known.

Evans in Command.

Through the crowded harbor the combined fleets, under command of Rear Admiral Robley D. Evans, treaded their way to the anchorage grounds, their progress being heralded by the never-ceasing blasts of steam whistles afloat and the ringing of bells ashore.

The white-anchored, four-starred, blue flag of the secretary of the navy, flying from the mainmast of the trim little gunboat Yorktown, fluttered the welcome of the navy, while the governor of California, the mayor of San Francisco and the people of a hundred towns and cities voiced the greeting of the enthusiastic West. San Francisco, Oakland and other cities nearby all took a holiday to witness the coming of the fleet. There was a complete cessation of business and the streets in the downtown section were absolutely deserted.

Huge Welcome Sign.

A welcome sign spelled in letters fifty feet high topped the heights of Telegraph hill. Last night the city was gay with merrymaking and the long program of entertainments planned in honor of the fleet was well under way. Official dinners, band concerts and a reception and ball at the Fairmount hotel, with 5,000 invited guests were features of the first evening of the fleet's stay.

Because of illness and the death of a favorite grandchild, Admiral Evans will be unable to participate in any of the functions planned in honor of the officers.

Columbus, Ohio, May 7.—At the request of the sheriff and prosecuting attorney of Adams county, who declare that the night riders there were destroying tobacco beds and the situation was such that the county authorities were unable to control it, Gov. Adams county is immediately east of Brown county, where Troop B of Columbus is now on duty.

Marshalltown, Iowa, May 7.—Awaking at 4:30 o'clock yesterday morning, for what reason she cannot say, Mrs. Albert Whinery was shocked to find her husband lying dead by her side. PUBLISHERS TAKE THE STAND

Tell Investigating Committee How Price of Paper Has Been Raised From Year to Year.

Washington, May 7. — The house committee inquiring into the question of wood pulp and print paper heard the statements of publishers and managers of newspapers yesterday as to the increase in the price of print paper. They all told practically the same story—that the price of paper had been raised from year to year and they practically were unanimous in asking for the passage of the Stevens bill removing the duty on wood pulp and print paper.

John Norris, the representative of the American Newspaper Publishers' association, informed the committee that all the association asks of congress is the repeal of the duty on mere mechanically ground wood pulp and on print paper valued at not over 2 cents a pound.

The question of the tariff on the finer grades of paper, he said, was not under consideration.

EX-CASHIER HELD FOR TRIAL.

Friend to Whom He Loaned Money Denies Amount Is $23,000.

Madison, Wis., May 7.—At the close of the preliminary hearing of Edwin C. Story, former cashier of the Citizens' State bank at Belleville, this county, Judge Donavon, in the municipal court, held him for trial on the charge of embezzling $23,000 of the bank's funds and making false entries and a false report to the state banking commissioner.

A confession made by Story before his attempt at suicide was introduced as evidence. It sets forth that he never used one cent of the bank's money for himself, but that in his eagerness for business he loaned $23,000 to Henry Elmer, a cheese buyer at Belleville, without security.

Elmer on the stand yesterdy denied that he owes the bank that much money.

Steamer Springs Leak, Is Hit by Huge Wave and Rendered Unmanageable.

NINE RESCUED BY LIFESAVERS

Some of Crew Drowned While Trying to Launch Boat—Dangerous Work for Rescuers.

Newport, Or., May 6. — During a storm Friday night on the coast the steamer Minnie E. Kellon shifted and sprung a bad leak. Saturday noon a huge wave struck the vessel and washed her deck and cabin, leaving the vessel waterlogged and unmanageable. Eleven of the crew were drowned some while trying to launch a boat.

Four on a raft tried to get ashore, but only one succeeded, and he sustained a broken leg. The lifesaving crew of this place took nine men off the vessel and landed them on the shore about fifteen miles north of here. The Minnie E. Kellon was bound from Aberdeen to San Francisco, loaded with lumber, in command of Capt. James McKenna. The last seen of the vessel she was picked up by another schooner going north.

As soon as the news reached here the lifesaving crew at Yakima Bay station left for the scene. After a trip fraught with danger the crew reached the vessel and succeeded in rescuing the nine men who remained on board. The lifeboats put ashore twenty miles north of Newport.

THAW GETS OUT OF ASYLUM.

Temporary Lodged in Duchess County Jail.

Poughkeepsie, May 6.—Temporarily at least, Harry K. Thaw is out of the Matteawan hospital for the criminal insane. As a result of yesterday's proceedings on the writ of habeas corpus sued out in an effort to have him legally declared sane, he will remain in the Dutchess county jail until the final decision on the writ is handed down. The formal hearing in the case will come before the supreme court here next Monday.

The adjournment was taken upon the request of a representative of the district attorney of New York county, to give District Attorney Jerome an opportunity to appear in person to oppose Thaw's release from the asylum.

In the meantime Thaw will remain in the Dutchess county jail here instead of being returned to Matteawan.

Evelyn Thaw May Testify.

An interesting feature of yesterday's proceedings was an announcement that Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, although she has brought suit for annulment of her marriage, will appear, if necessary, as a witness in her husband's behalf.

Thaw himself undoubtedly will go on the stand in his own behalf, Mr. Peabody said. He declared that the prisoner is willing to submit to any examination the court or the district attorney may desire as proof of his sanity.

"We hold that the burden of proof rests upon Mr. Jerome to show that Thaw is insane. He has never been declared insane. Mr. Jerome's commission in the first trial adjudged him sane. The jury in the second trial deemed him insane at the time he killed Stanford White."

ELEVEN DEAD IN HOTEL FIRE.

Rain Drives Exhausted Workmen From Ruins at Fort Wayne.

Fort Wayne, Ind., May 6. — At 6 o'clock last evening rain stopped the work on the Aveline hotel ruins. The firemen and other workmen who had been constantly digging for bodies since Sunday morning were exhausted. The mayor, chief of police and chief of the fire department had had no sleep.

Up to last night no bodies had been found since 4 o'clock yesterday morning when a charred trunk was taken out. All the bodies but two were claimed by friends yesterday, and most of them were taken away during the afternoon and evening. The injured in the hospitals are all doing well except E. M. Matthews of Columbus, Ohio, who it is thought cannot survive over to-day.

The body taken out yesterday morning makes eleven known victims. The only persons known to be missing are Charles Benjamin of Detroit and Herman Seligman of New York.

Seeding is about finished and it has gone into the ground in fine shape.

Speaker Cannon is by far the biggest and only real asset the democrats have this year.

The Taft managers claim over five hundred votes for the big secretary on the first ballot and his nomination is conceded.

The contest for the republican nomination for governor is a badly mixed up affair with Jacobson apparently in the lead at present.

To avoid sickness and keep this village in the good health it has enjoyed, it is necessary for everyone to be careful about cleaning up before warm weather comes.

The Red Lake county democratic convention meets today at Thief River Falls and the county will, without question, declare in favor of instructing delegates for Governor Johnson.

It really does not make much difference who the democrats nominate at Denver as Taft will be chosen at Chicago to continue the Roosevelt policies and his election is a foregone conclusion.

Creameries are getting plentiful in this part of the state but our local concern is easily the largest and best in this section of the country. For April they set a new record by receiving 70,220 pounds of cream which made a little over ten tons of premium butter.

Iowa men claim that the cows of their state with proper care and feed should produce thirty million dollars worth of butter more than they do under present conditions. They want the state to start a school of instruction for dairymen and hold sessions in all parts of the state. The same conditions exist in this state and something should be done towards stopping this enormous waste by educating the farmer so that he may enjoy all of his profits.

Street Talk

Anoka Union:—Oh, isn't it nice to be a delegate to a state convention. A real snap, so to speak. You arrive in town, hasten to the hotel headquarters, and stand around, irrigate occasionally, if you are so minded, shake hands with personal acquaintances, introduced to scores of delegates and others, asked "who is to be the next governor?" Talk confidentially to some fellow and have another butt in. Object to what you hear is going on. Hear stories of vulgar hue, smoke poor cigars, get the glad hand from the different candidates, and act the fool generally. While you are doing this, assisted by about nine hundred or more delegates, a few who run things get together in some room and fix up the slate. Occasionally one of these big guns appear in the hotel foyer, grabs a delegate and they disappear. When convention time comes you walk to the meeting place, file in and take a seat in the space allotted to your county. Some delegate is recognized, previously agreed on, and makes a motion, and so it goes to the end, the whole convention being run along these lines, and the nine hundred or more delegates acquiesce in everything like a lot of sheep, following the bell weather. This large majority having no more to say than a mute. A delegate with the average amount of intelligence and independence feels as cheap as a copper cent.

The Perfect Man

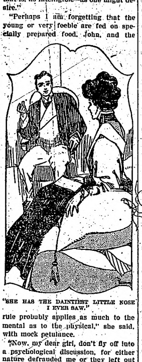
By TROY ALLISON.

Copyrighted, 1908, by E. C. Parcells.

"I am getting frightfully cynical," Elberta said dolefully, arranging the cushions on the box couch so the becoming red one would be nearest her face, "and I don't like it. My dislike is not founded so much upon moral grounds as from a regard for my complexion."

"Eh?" remarked Mr. Terhune helplessly. "Your conversation, my dear Elberta, often seems involved. Your remarks are sometimes not as lucid—that is, as intelligible—as one might desire."

"Perhaps I am forgetting that the young or very feeble are fed on specially prepared food, John, and the rule probably applies as much to the mental as to the physical," she said, with mock petulance.



"SHE HAS THE DAINTIEST LITTLE NOSE I EVER SAW."

"Now, my dear girl, don't fly off into a psychological discussion, for either nature defrauded me or they left out something in my college course, I don't know which. The only thing I want to know is—why being cynical should affect your complexion."

"That's easily explained. It takes the sparkle out of my eyes, it draws my mouth down at the corners and destroys my dimple, and to cap the climax it makes me wonder if there is a living, breathing man worth marceling my hair for. So when I get in a cynical mood I go around straight haired, thin lipped, with a listless expression that makes me positively homely."

"But, my dear child," protested Mr. Terhune, "I could run in almost any time to admire the marceled hair, and if I didn't happen to come at the psychological moment you could phone me at any minute, and I would be delighted—dee-light-ed—to rush to admire—just count on me for any old time," he added graciously.

"John, you are at intervals positively foolish," she said severely, trying to select from the box in her lap a chocolate that contained a nut. "I am tired of being admired by plain, everyday men."

"Like me?" he suggested amiably.

"I didn't say I was rude or impolite enough to call you names. I merely said I was cynical," she demurred.

"Oh, call me a plain, everyday man if you like," he conceded graciously—"if it makes you feel one tiny bit better to work off your cynicism on me. Lady Fair, 'Tis sweet to die for—er—I'm not strong in poetry, Elberta, but I'm willing to help you out all I can. So you want the marcel to be admired by some wonderful being. Elberta, my child, don't you think a perfect man would let his thoughts run upon—er—scientific lines—and not undulations in—hair lines?"

"He wouldn't, I'm sure, labor under the impression that he could make puns," she sniffed disdainfully.

"Even if he didn't make puns he might be disagreeable in other respects," suggested Mr. Terhune hopefully. "His very perfections, my dear girl, would make him clear slighted enough to see the imperfections of others. Now, I think you are perfect, but he probably would not take to you at all on account of your imperfections."

"Indeed? Would you enumerate them?" The tone struck Mr. Terhune as being slightly icy, but, however foolish, he evidently was not lacking in bravery.

"If you will for once let me assume that I, even I, am a perfect man, perhaps I can give you a few of the ideas he might entertain."

"Pray do. It cannot fail to be interesting," freezingly.

"That reminds me. I met Miss Deland on the street this afternoon and I never in my life saw so perfect a profile. She is the exact type that would make a suitable mate for your perfect man. And I think she has the daintiest little nose I ever saw," reminiscently.

Elberta reddened slightly. She had always wondered if her nose were not a trifle large, and her fingers unconsciously flew to her face to be passed furtively over the suspected member.

"And she always makes herself so entirely charming—she doesn't seem to be moody—one could not imagine her ever being—er—rude. She is an ideal feminine character, a perfectly womanly woman—she would give her husband just the proper amount of adoration necessary to stimulate him to success—she wouldn't expect the perfect man to waste time in admiring a mere woman—a frail, impulsive, whimsical woman. The perfect man, my dear, would probably—at least possibly—be the center of attraction himself. I can imagine that his wife would occupy the subordinate position of second fiddle."

Elberta sat quietly stroking her nose with her finger, evidently deeply absorbed in thought.

"John—do you think my nose is—very large?" she asked timidly, almost humbly.

"Oh, I have seen a few larger," declared Mr. Terhune airily.

It is hard to have one's sensitive point so negligently handled, and the girl looked at him in grieved surprise. "I had no idea you were so disagreeably critical. Of course I never thought I was a beauty, but I can't help the size of my nose."

"Of course you can't," consolingly. "Nobody can blame you for it," he declared piously. "We should not blame people for their misfortunes. We should sympathize."

She looked at him a second, tears of mortification in her eyes. "You are—cruel," she said in muffled tones from the depth of the red pillow where she buried her face.

Mr. Terhune without her eyes upon him permitted a look of satisfaction to creep over his face.

"Wouldn't it be awful to live in the same house with a man so perfect himself that he never noticed your eyes or hair, who perhaps had so perfect a nose that he would make disagreeable comparisons of your own—er—features?" he suggested wickedly.

A slight sob from the red cushion and an unhappy tapping on the floor by the small slippered foot nearest him was the only response.

"Wouldn't you rather have a—well, just a plain everyday man who thought you altogether charming?" He dared to put his hand on the mass of fluffy hair that showed off well on the red cushion. He had never been so daring before, and the sobs stopped in amazement.

"He—he might like Miss Deland's type too. I haven't a profile like hers," came the muffled tones.

"Tshaw!" said Mr. Terhune, with a fine flow of scorn. "She is always so exactly the same that she would soon grow monotonous." And he deftly lifted the bowed head to his shoulder.

"But is my nose—so very large?" came a whisper from his shoulder.

"You dear," said the plain, everyday man enthusiastically, "there's not in the whole world a more charming feature."

OVER NIAGARA FALLS

Fate of a Schooner That Was Used as an Experiment.

SHE WAS DASHED TO PIECES.

A Thrilling Sight From the Time She Struck the Seething Rapids Until the Mighty Falls Tore Her Into Splinters—A Pair of Tough Geese.

The following story of the first public excursion to Niagara Falls was written at the time by an eyewitness:

"The schooner Michigan was the largest vessel on Lake Erie at that time. She was too large, in fact, to enter the various harbors on the lake, and, being somewhat decayed in her uppers, the owner, Major Frazer, got the idea that she would answer the purpose of testing the fate of a vessel that by accident might approach too near the cataract and also the fate of living things that might be caught in the rapids. The proprietors of the large public houses at the falls on both sides of the river and of stages and steamboats made up a purse to purchase the schooner, aware that they would be amply repaid by the spectators that the exhibition would attract.

"For several days previous to Sept. 6, 1828, the day for which the affair was fixed, which was Saturday, the stages and canalboats came to Buffalo crowded with people. On the night of Sept. 5 wagons filled with country people rattled through the village in unbroken procession all night long, and on the morning of Sept. 6 Buffalo itself seemed to be moving in one mass toward the point of attraction. Five steamboats had been advertised to leave Buffalo Saturday morning. They were the Henry Clay, William Penn, Pioneer, Niagara and Chippewa. The Chippewa was appointed to tow the schooner Michigan to the Niagara river. I was a passenger on her.

"As soon as we got well under way the scene became interesting. The other four steamers came plowing along in our wake, crowded to the guards with passengers and bands of music playing. The Chippewa towed the big schooner to Yale's landing, on the Canada side of the Niagara river, where our passengers went ashore, as did those of the William Penn. The passengers of the Henry Clay and Pioneer landed on the American side. Yale's Landing was three miles above the falls, and the crowds of people were taken from there on down the river in wagons of all kinds. The hour fixed for towing the Michigan from Yale's Landing to the rapids was 3 in the afternoon.

"This task, an extremely hazardous one, was intrusted to the oldest sailor on the lake, Captain Rough. With a yawl boat and five sturdy oarsmen the old captain got the schooner under way. They towed her to within a quarter of a mile of the first rapids and within half a mile of the tremendous precipice itself—as near as they dared approach. They cut the big vessel adrift, and she passed majestically on, while the oarsmen of the yawl had to bend their every nerve and muscle to remove themselves from the peril of being drawn down by the rushing waters. Indeed, such had been the fear and apprehension of the men that they mutinied against Captain Rough and cut the towline before the time he had set. If they had obeyed the reckless old captain, he, the yawl and its crew would have preceded the Michigan over the falls.

"The high grounds on both shores of the river were lined with people as the Michigan, unguided by human agency, approached, head on, the first rapid of the seething descent, apparently keeping the very course that a skillful navigator would have guided her in. The American ensign streamed from her bowsprit and the British jack floated at her stern. The vessel shot the first rapid unhurt, still head on, making a plunge, shipping a sea and rising from it in beautiful style. In her descent of the second rapid, the water momentarily increasing in velocity and tumult, her towering masts went by the board, giving the spectators a startling representation of the crashing of a vessel's spars in a shipwreck at sea. She swung around and presented her broadside to the dashing and foaming water, and, after remaining, as it seemed, stationary for a moment, swung around until she was headed upstream.

"Passing the third rapid she bilged, but carried her hull to all appearances whole as she tossed and groaned between Grass Island and the British shore to the Horseshoe fall, over which she was drawn sternforemost and hurled into the thundering abyss. She was dashed to fragments before she struck in the seething waters below. Immediately after she went over hundreds of people hurried below the falls. The river was covered with fragments of the vessel. Nowhere could be found as much as two boards nailed together, and her great timbers were broken into bits like firewood.

"There were aboard the Michigan when she started on her trip toward the falls a wild bull buffalo from a western prairie, two bears from the Lake Superior regions, two foxes, a raccoon, a dog, a cat and four geese. When the vessel left Yale's landing in tow all these were let loose on the deck except the buffalo. He was inclosed in a pen. The two bears got enough of the trip when the vessel began the descent of the first rapid, and they climbed down the side next the Canada shore, plunged into the swift water, breasted its powerful sweep successfully and reached the shore. They were so exhausted when they got on land that they made no resistance to being captured. The bears, before they abandoned the ship, climbed the masts of the vessel and, as it was presumed, from that outlook saw what their finish would be anyhow and then determined to take the chances of getting to land, slim as they were. The raccoon ran up a mast and remained there until the mast fell. He was never seen again. The foxes ran frantically up and down the deck and went over with the schooner, as did the buffalo bull and the geese. Not a trace of foxes or buffalo was ever found. Two of the geese swam ashore half a mile below the falls. The other two met the fate of the buffalo and the foxes."

THE ODOR OF SANCITY.

A French Writer's Theory of How It May Be Exuded by Man.

Dr. Georges Dumas is the author of an article in the Revue de Paris on "The Odor of Sanctity." The writer accepts as true the numerous reported instances of saints and mystics of the Catholic church whose bodies after death or during moments of ecstasy emitted peculiarly pleasing odors of various kinds. Then men and women with whom such legends deal, argues Dr. Dumas, were neurasthenes, and it is not impossible that the aroma of sanctity which surrounded them was the product of strictly physiological and chemical changes common to all men, but present in highly intensified form in subjects who, so to speak, burned up the candle of their existence at an unusually rapid rate. He says in part:

"So far, then, we have come across a great variety of perfumes—cinnamon, clove, orange, pineapple, rose, violet, lily of the valley, yellow amber and benzoin. Now, the natural constitution of all of these is well known, and chemistry produces them daily for commercial purposes. We may therefore substitute the equivalent chemical expressions for the ordinary terms we have employed and say that orange, cinnamon, violet and musk owe their perfume to aldehydes and acetones, aromatic liquids derived from the alcohols, just as the artificial essence of pineapple comes from butyric ether. We have, then, to ask whether the human body can produce odorous compounds of the kind we have mentioned and under what conditions. As a matter of fact, it does produce a certain number of such compounds in the destruction of organic matter, which is the constant condition of life, in particular acetones and the volatile fatty acids, butyric, formic, acetic, etc. If the process of combustion is normal all these constituents are burned up, completely oxidized, and give as a residue water, carbonic acid and urea. But let some slackening occur in the inmost nutrition of the tissues and the same constituents will escape through the breath, perspiration and the skin."

Good Judgment.

"Your partner," remarked the privileged friend, "seems to be a man of unusually good judgment."

"You bet he is," replied the self acknowledged brains of the firm. "Why, he never makes a move without asking my advice!"—Chicago News.

A Mean Question.

Charles—I heard the other day that Gerald is going to get married.

Edward—Well, why shouldn't he? He's comfortably well off.

"That's just the whole point. Why doesn't he remain so?"

Just Found a Soul.

"Talking of Jekyll and Hyde effects," said a chronic bachelor at the club, "I got the surprise of my life the other night. Met a woman, the wife of a friend who married her a year or so ago. Knew her before marriage and always thought she was too homely ever to find a husband—one of the sort that polite writers call 'uncompromisingly plain.'

"Well, sir, when I entered her home last night she had the same old face—made me feel sorry for her husband, really. Then she got to talking about some charitable work she is engaged in for crippled children—and, presto, she suddenly became beautiful! Never saw such a transformation in all my life, really—not the same woman somehow.

"The deuce of it is I couldn't dissect the change, but I guess the eyes had more to do with it than any other feature. I had an idea of advising her husband to confine her conversation to that particular charity, but I'm afraid he'd regard it as a bit personal."—New York Globe.

The probability is that Wylie and the farmers north of here will be talking to St. Hilaire over a new telephone line before freezing up time.

90 BUSHELS OF OATS TO THE ACRE.

WHAT MR. KALTENBRUNNER HAS TO SAY ABOUT HIS GRAIN CROPS IN CENTRAL CANADA.

Writing from Regina, Saskatchewan, Central Canada, Mr. A. Kaltenbrunner writes:—

"Some years ago I took up a homestead for myself, and also one for my son. The half section which we own adjoins the Moose Jaw Creek; is a low, level and heavy land. We put in 70 acres of wheat in stubble which went 20 bushels to the acre, and 30 acres of summer fallow, which went 25 bushels to the acre. All the wheat we harvested this year is No. 1 Hard. That means the best wheat that can be raised on the earth. We did not sell any wheat yet, as we intend to keep one part for our own seed, and sell the other part to people who want first class seed, for there is no doubt if you sow good wheat you will harvest good wheat. We also threshed 9,000 bushels of first class oats out of 160 acres. 80 acres has been fall plowing, which yielded 90 bushels per acre, and 80 acres stubble, which went 30 bushels to the acre. These oats are the best kind that can be raised. We have shipped three carloads of them, and got 53 cents per bushel clear. All our grain was cut in the last week of the month of August before any frost could touch it. "Notwithstanding the fact that we have had a late spring, and that the weather conditions this year were very adverse and unfavorable, we will make more money out of our crop this year than last.

"For myself I feel compelled to say that Western Canada crops cannot be checked, even by unusual conditions."

Information regarding free homestead lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta may be had on application to any Canadian Government Agent, whose advertisement appears elsewhere. He will give you information as to best route and what it will cost you to reach these lands for purposes of inspection.
